UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

S & J RENTALS, INC. d/b/a TWIN CITIES EQUIPMENT RENTALS, a California corporation, individually and on behalf of all others similarly situated,

Plaintiff,

v.

HILTI, INC., an Oklahoma corporation,
Defendant.

No. 2:16-cv-00879-MCE-KJN

MEMORANDUM AND ORDER

S & J Rentals, Inc., (“Plaintiff”) seeks redress on behalf of itself and a putative class from Hilti, Inc. (“Defendant”) due to alleged illegal business practices. Plaintiff’s First Amended Complaint (“FAC”) brings a single cause of action on grounds that Defendant violated California’s Unfair Competition Law (“UCL”), California Business and Professions Code §§ 17200–17204. ECF No. 4, at 9–10.

Before the Court are two motions, both filed by Defendant. Through its Motion to Transfer (“Transfer Motion”), (ECF No. 9), Defendant first asks the Court to transfer this case to the United States District Court of the Northern District of Oklahoma, pursuant to a forum selection clause in a contractual agreement between the parties. Def.’s Mem., ECF No. 9-1, at 2:3–8. Secondly, Defendant has submitted a Motion to Dismiss, (ECF

1 No. 8), addressing the merits of Plaintiff's Complaint. According to Defendant, it filed 2 that motion simply "out of an abundance of caution" in the event the Transfer Motion did 3 not suffice as a responsive pleading to Plaintiff's FAC. Def.'s Mem. Supp. Mot. Dismiss, 4 ECF No. 8-1, at 1:18–25. Plaintiff filed oppositions to each of these motions, (ECF 5 Nos. 15 & 16), to which Defendant filed timely replies. ECF Nos. 20 & 21. For the 6 reasons set forth below, the Court GRANTS Defendant's Motion to Transfer and 7 DENIES Defendant's Motion to Dismiss without prejudice.

9 BACKGROUND<sup>1</sup>

11 Plaintiff is a California corporation that rents construction equipment to the public.
12 Defendant is incorporated in Oklahoma and headquartered in Plano, Texas. Defendant 13 develops, manufactures, and markets products for construction, building maintenance, 14 and mining industries.

15 In 2008 and 2010, Plaintiff completed credit applications with Defendant to 16 facilitate its purchase of tools on credit. Schofield Decl., ECF No. 9-2, at 1–2. Plaintiff 17 subsequently made several tool purchases utilizing this credit. Id. at 2. One of those 18 purchases was a TE 3000-AVR breaker chiseling tool obtained from Defendant in 2012.

19 Plaintiff claims that it was unaware at the time it purchased Defendant's products 20 that many of its tools are equipped with a "deactivation feature" which causes them to 21 automatically shut down after a specified number of operational hours. Plaintiff claims 22 that in 2015, its TE 3000-AVR breaker shut down due to this deactivation feature, and 23 that Defendant charged "reactivation" fees to make the tool operational again.

24 Plaintiff alleges that Defendant failed to disclose the deactivation feature prior to 25 selling these tools, and thus committed unfair business practices, as defined by the UCL.

27 <sup>1</sup> Unless otherwise stated, the following recitation of facts is taken, sometimes verbatim, from 28 Plaintiff's FAC, ECF No. 4.

1 § 1404(a) motion, a district court should transfer the case pursuant to the forum selection 2 clause unless “extraordinary circumstances unrelated to the convenience of the parties” 3 clearly disfavors transfer. Id. at 581.

4 5 ANALYSIS

6 7 A. A Forum Selection Clause Applies To The Current Dispute

8 The terms and conditions in the 2008 and 2010 credit applications include a 9 “Consent to Jurisdiction” clause, providing that:

10 All transactions made pursuant hereto shall be deemed to 11 have been entered in Tulsa, Oklahoma. Any and all disputes 12 arising directly or indirectly from such transactions shall be 13 resolved in the court of the County of Tulsa, State of 14 Oklahoma, to the exclusion of any other court, and any 15 resulting judgment may be enforced by any court having 16 jurisdiction of such an action. All transactions shall be 17 governed by and constructed in accordance with the laws of 18 the State of Oklahoma.

19 Schofield Decl., Ex. B, ECF No. 9-2, at 296 (emphasis added).

20 Plaintiff contends that it is too early in the proceedings to determine if this action 21 relates to the credit applications. Pl.’s Opp. 5:19–21. The Court disagrees. When 22 considering the validity of a forum selection clause, the Court may consider facts outside 23 of the pleadings. See CyberCSI v. Bank of Am. Corp., No. 15-cv-02045-PSG, 2015 WL 24 9434697, at *2 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 24, 2015) (In considering “whether a valid forum selection 25 clause exists . . . pleadings need not be accepted as true, and facts outside the 26 pleadings may be considered.”). Here, Defendant provides a declaration that Plaintiff 27 “purchased the TE 3000-AVR products, in addition to a plethora of other products, on 28 credit from [Defendant].” Schofield Decl., ECF No. 9-2, at 2. Additionally, Defendant provides invoices showing that items purchased by Plaintiff on credit includes the TE 3000-AVR breaker. See Supp. Schofield Decl., ECF No. 20-1 & Ex. A.

Therefore, this matter arises either “directly or indirectly” from Plaintiff’s credit applications, such that it falls within the provisions of the forum selection clause. See

1 Robles v. Comtrak Logistics, Inc., No. 2:13-cv-00161-JAM-AC, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS
2 44323, at *3-8 (E.D. Cal. Apr. 2, 2015) (Finding that the “scope of the claims governed 3 by a forum selection clause depends upon the language used in the clause . . . [and] 4 provisions that include or add phrases such as ‘relating to’ and ‘in connection with’ . . .
5 have a broader reach.”) (Citations omitted).

6 B. The Forum Selection Clause Is Not Unreasonable

7 Next, the Court determines if the forum selection clause is prima facie valid.
8 Plaintiff can only defeat the strong presumption in favor of validity by showing that the 9 forum selection clause is unreasonable under the circumstances. Argueta, 87 F.3d at 10 325. As indicated above, to establish “unreasonableness,” Plaintiff must show that 11 (1) the clause was incorporated into the contract due to fraud or overweening bargaining 12 power, (2) the selected forum is so inconvenient that it will essentially result in denial of 13 its day in court, or (3) that enforcement would be contrary to a strong California public 14 policy. Id.

15 1. The Forum Selection Clause Was Not the Result of Fraud, or 16 Overweening Bargaining Power.

17 Plaintiff alleges that the application’s terms were non-negotiable, and thus the 18 forum selection clause was part of a contract of adhesion. Pl.’s Opp. 1:22–23, 11:6–8.
19 However, this is not enough to show that the forum selection clause was unreasonable 20 due to overweening bargaining power. See Tompkins v. 23andMe, Inc., 840 F.3d 1016, 21 1029 (9th Cir. 2016) (Recognizing that California courts “uphold[ ] forum selection 22 clauses . . . even in adhesion contracts . . .”). Thus, as Plaintiff makes no claims of 23 fraud, there is no showing of unreasonableness under the first exception.

24 2. The Selected Forum Would Not Deny Plaintiff its Day in Court.

25 Plaintiff contends that transfer would be “gravely difficult,” and “prohibitively 26 expensive” due to the increased costs of litigating in Oklahoma. Pl.’s Opp. 11:6–18.
27 These difficulties include the burden of having to travel from California to Oklahoma, 28 particularly given the lack of non-stop flights between Sacramento to Tulsa. Id. at 11:9–

1 11. According to Plaintiff, the expense and difficulty of having to litigate this case in 2 Oklahoma would essentially deprive it of its ability to pursue the matter. Id. at 11:11–14.

3 Plaintiff points to Aral v. Earthlink, Inc. to support the contention that enforcement 4 of the forum selection clause here is unreasonable. 134 Cal. App. 4th 544, 561 (2005).
5 Aral held that “a forum selection clause that requires a consumer to travel 2,000 miles to 6 recover a small sum is not reasonable . . . .” Id. However, the forum selection clause in 7 Aral was imbedded in an arbitration agreement, which also included a class action 8 waiver. Id. at 557. The Ninth Circuit recently recognized that California’s courts appear 9 to apply different standards in analyzing forum selection clauses depending on whether 10 or not the clause is in an arbitration agreement.<sup>3</sup> See Tompkins, 840 F.3d at 1029 11 (recognizing that California “courts apply different standards in arbitration and 12 nonarbitration contexts, upholding forum selection clauses in the nonarbitration 13 context . . . without considering expense and inconvenience, while striking them down in 14 the arbitration context due to expense and inconvenience.”). To the extent that 15 California courts apply different analytical standards depending on the context of the 16 forum selection clause, the federal appellate court noted that “these cases are not 17 binding on us as California law.” Tompkins, 840 F.3d at 1029. Furthermore, in 18 considering a forum selection clause, the Ninth Circuit ultimately found that the agreed-19 to forum was “not unavailable or unable to accomplish substantial justice . . . [and 20 that] . . . mere inconvenience or additional expense does not make the locale 21 unreasonable.” Tompkins, 840 F.3d at 1029 (internal quotations omitted).

22 Thus, Plaintiff does not meet the high burden of showing that it would essentially 23 be denied of its day in court if transfer were granted. See Performance Chevrolet, Inc. v.
24 ADP Dealer Servs., No. 2:14-cv-02738-TLN-AC, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 80774, at *6-7 25 (E.D. Cal. June 18, 2015) (“Plaintiff has the burden of proving that the difficulty and

---

27 <sup>3</sup> Nevertheless, the Aral court purported to use “general contract law principles without regard to 28 the fact that [the forum selection clause] appears in an arbitration agreement.” Aral, 134 Cal. App. 4th at 557.

1 inconvenience associated with transfer is so severe that it would effectively deprive 2 Plaintiff of its day in court, and the aforementioned allegations [of increased litigation 3 costs and logistical difficulties with witnesses] do not rise to this level.”). Indeed, 4 “[w]hatever ‘inconvenience’ [the parties] would suffer by being forced to litigate in the 5 contractual forum as [they] agreed to do was clearly foreseeable at the time of 6 contracting.” Atl. Marine, 134 S. Ct. at 582) (quoting Zapata, 407 U.S. at 17–18). There 7 is no showing of unreasonableness under the second exception sufficient to invalidate 8 the forum selection clause.<sup>4</sup>

9 3. Enforcement of the Forum Selection Clause Would Not 10 Contravene a Strong California Public Policy.

11 Plaintiff contends that the forum selection and choice of law clauses operate 12 jointly to undermine California’s strong interest in consumer class action protections.
13 Pl.’s Opp. 1:10–13, 10:4–7. However, Plaintiff’s argument fails to show how California’s 14 public policy would be undermined with regard to venue in the Federal District Court in 15 Tulsa, Oklahoma. Instead, Plaintiff incorrectly focuses on a choice of law analysis that is 16 not before this Court.

17 Plaintiff relies on Doe 1 v. AOL LLC, 552 F.3d 1077 (9th Cir. 2009), to support its 18 argument that enforcement of the forum selection clause would contravene a strong 19 public policy of California. Pl.’s Opp. 6:12–27. That reliance is misplaced. The forum 20 selection clause in AOL required disputes to be heard in Virginia state court, under 21 Virginia law. AOL, 552 F.3d at 1080. However, the court found that enforcement of the 22 forum selection clause effectively amounted to “a waiver of statutory remedies provided 23 by [California’s Consumer Legal Remedies Act] in violation of the anti-waiver 24 provision . . .” because Virginia state law did not provide a legal mechanism enabling 25 class action consumer lawsuits. AOL, 552 F.3d at 1085. Here, Plaintiff points to no

26 <sup>4</sup> Plaintiff argues that because Defendant relocated its headquarters from Oklahoma to Plano, 27 Texas, that the forum selection clause lacks a “logical nexus to this litigation.” Pl.’s Opp. 11:23–25.
28 However, Defendant has represented that it is incorporated in Oklahoma, and maintains its largest office in Tulsa, Oklahoma. See Supp. Schofield Decl., ECF No. 20-1, at 1–2. Thus, Defendant’s continued significant presence in Oklahoma is sufficient to establish a logical nexus to this litigation.

1 California policy similar to the anti-waiver provisions of the CLRA that would be violated 2 by transferring this case to a federal court in Oklahoma. Thus, the situation in AOL is 3 distinguishable from the present matter. See also Mitsui Sumitomo Ins. USA, Inc. v.
4 Tokio Marine & Nichido Fire Ins. Co., 659 F. App'x 918, 920 (9th Cir. 2016) (finding that 5 the forum selection clause before the court was “distinguishable from other forum-6 selection clauses that operate to foreclose non-waivable statutory rights of consumers or 7 employees”) (discussing AOL, 552 F.3d at 1083-84).

8 Plaintiff also relies on Frango Grille USA, Inc. v. Pepe's Franchising Ltd., 9 No. CV 14-2086 DSF (PLAx), 2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 182207 (C.D. Cal. July 21, 2014), 10 to support its contentions. Pl.'s Opp. 5:2–10. However, Frango is similarly 11 distinguishable from the present case. Frango involved the invalidation of a forum 12 selection clause within a franchise contract that directly contradicted protections of 13 California's Franchise Relations Act. Frango, 2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 182207, at *3–5.
14 Indeed, an addendum to the contract in question specifically stated that “[t]he Franchise 15 Agreement requires application of the laws and forum of London, England. This 16 provision may not be enforceable under California Law.” Id. at *2 (emphasis added).

17 Plaintiff contends that venue in Oklahoma contravenes California's public policy 18 because “[t]here is no aspect of this case that would permit Plaintiff to bring it as a class 19 action in Oklahoma.” Pl.'s Opp. 10:6–7. Even assuming that Plaintiff's interpretation of 20 Oklahoma law is correct, this argument again presupposes the outcome of a choice of 21 law provision not before this Court. As transfer is requested to a federal district court, 22 not to a state court as in AOL, Plaintiff would be able to make the same procedural and 23 substantive legal arguments in district court in Oklahoma as it could here. See Sawyer 24 v. Bill Me Later, Inc., No. CV 10-04461 SJO (JCGx), 2011 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 154784, at 25 *19-20 (C.D. Cal. Oct. 21, 2011) (noting that when a case is transferred to another 26 federal court, the receiving court “is able to hear class actions and will do so using the 27 exact same procedures available in . . .” the transferring federal court, and that “Plaintiff 28 would have the same access to California substantive and federal procedural law . . .”).

1 Plaintiff's arguments conflate transfer analysis with choice of law. The 2 enforceability of the forum selection clause requires a distinct analysis from the choice of 3 law provisions within the contract. See, e.g., Performance Chevrolet, 2015 U.S. Dist.
4 LEXIS 80774, at *8 (finding that "an attorney's fees provision in the Agreement that may 5 violate California law is more relevant to a choice of law analysis, rather than the venue 6 analysis done for a motion to transfer"); Swenson v. T-Mobile United States, Inc., 7 415 F. Supp. 2d 1101, 1104 (S.D. Cal. 2006) (finding that the Plaintiff "impermissibly, 8 combin[ed] the forum selection and choice of law analyses . . ." by arguing that 9 enforcement of the forum selection clause would result "in the application of a 10 Washington law violative of California public policy").

11 Here, Plaintiff has not shown that "[e]nforcement of the forum selection clause 12 itself" would "contravene a strong public policy of California." Swenson, 415 F. Supp. 2d 13 at 1104 (emphasis added). Thus, Plaintiff has not shown that enforcement of the forum 14 selection clause, apart from the choice of law provision, would violate a strong public 15 policy of California.<sup>5</sup>

16 As there is no showing of unreasonableness under the third exception, the Court 17 finds that the forum selection clause is prima facie valid and only looks to "public-18 interest" factors in considering the Transfer Motion. Atl. Marine, 134 S. Ct. at 581–83.

19 C. Public-Interest Factors Do Not Amount To "Extraordinary 20 Circumstances"

21 Public interest factors include "the administrative difficulties flowing from court 22 congestion; the local interest in having localized controversies decided at home; [and] 23 the interest in having the trial of a diversity case in a forum that is at home with the law." 24 Atl. Marine, 134 S. Ct. at 581 n.6. The first factor favors transfer inasmuch as the 25 Eastern District of California is one of the busiest courts in the nation, and it can

26 <sup>5</sup> Plaintiff's substantive choice of law arguments can be presented in the Oklahoma district court 27 after transfer. See Amberger v. Legacy Capital Corp., No. 16-cv-05622-JSC, 2017 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 8392, 28 at *10 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 20, 2017) (Providing that "[i]ndeed, courts often conclude . . . once the case is in its proper venue, the plaintiff is free to argue for application of California law.").

1 accordingly be resolved in Defendant's favor.<sup>6</sup> The second factor, however, tends to 2 benefit Plaintiff since many of the actions pertaining to the sale of Defendant's tools 3 allegedly took place in California. Finally, the third factor inures to the benefit of 4 Defendant because a determination of which state's substantive law applies to this 5 matter depends on the application of Oklahoma's choice of law rules, pursuant to the 6 agreement's choice of law clause.

7 The sole public interest factor that can be resolved in Plaintiff's favor (the fact that 8 many of the actions underlying this claim apparently occurred in California) does not, 9 standing alone, constitute an "extraordinary circumstance" sufficient to invalidate the 10 forum selection clause. Atl. Marine, 134 S. Ct. at 581. The public interest factors 11 present here, viewed as a whole, do not overcome the strong presumption that the 12 forum selection clause should be enforced. Argueta, 87 F.3d at 325.

14 CONCLUSION

16 For the reasons set forth, Defendant's Motion to Transfer, (ECF No. 9), is 17 GRANTED.<sup>7</sup> The Clerk of the Court is directed to transfer this case to the United States 18 District Court for the Northern District of Oklahoma in Tulsa, Oklahoma. The Court 19 DENIES Defendant's Motion to Dismiss, (ECF No. 8), without prejudice, since that is a 20 matter that should be addressed by the Oklahoma district court following transfer.
