UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

LISA MARIE BELYEW,
Plaintiff,
v.
KORY L. HONEA, et al.,
Defendants.

No. 2:17-cv-0508 KJM AC P

FINDINGS & RECOMMENDATIONS

Plaintiff is a former county and current state prisoner proceeding pro se with a civil rights action pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983.

I. Procedural History

In findings and recommendations filed September 30, 2022, the undersigned recommended that defendants’ motion for summary judgment be granted in part and denied in part. ECF No. 73. The assigned district judge adopted the findings and recommendations in part, granting summary judgment with respect to Claims Two and Three on the ground that plaintiff did not exhaust her administrative remedies prior to filing suit, and denying the motion as to Claim One insofar as defendants relied on a non-exhaustion theory. ECF No. 79. The district judge declined to adopt the recommendation that the motion be granted as to Claim One on the alternative ground that defendant Moreland did not violate plaintiff’s Fourth Amendment rights. Id. Specifically, the district judge found that plaintiff’s allegations in the first amended complaint

1 called into question the “findings that defendants have established as undisputed that ‘the search
2 was conducted in a private area and in a professional manner’ and that defendant Moreland did 3 not require plaintiff to go through search procedures ‘more times than was necessary to properly 4 complete the search.’” Id. at 2. The matter was referred back to the undersigned for further 5 findings and recommendations on the merits of Claim One and, as appropriate, on defendant 6 Moreland’s qualified immunity defense. Id.

7 II. Plaintiff’s Allegations

8 In Claim One, plaintiff alleged as follows:

9 On or about December 24, 2016, I was strip-searched and forced to 10 squat and cough multiple times by Officer MORELAND. I informed 11 MORELAND that I had severe back and knee problems that 12 prevented me from bending at my knees. MORELAND then told me 13 to place my face on the floor of the shower. I told her I did not want 14 to do this because it could put me in danger of contracting Hepatitis 15 A, B, C, HIV and/or Herpes. MORELAND threatened that if I did 16 not do it she would get some other officers and “make me” do it.
17 MORELAND made me cough and spread my anus and vagina until 18 she could “see inside.” Then I heard MORELAND tell a male officer 19 who was standing outside the door while this process was going on, 20 the door was kept open, and she told him “I don’t trust her because 21 she ‘leaked’ on herself.[”] Because of my extensive history of 22 sexual/physical abuse and rape this cause me extreme psychological 23 trauma and physical pain because my knees gave out on me. I filed 24 a grievance on MORELAND for this. I filed a grievance for this 25 incident on or about December 30, 2019 and it was denied.

26 ECF No. 23 at 3.

27 III. Motion for Summary Judgment

28 A. Defendant’s Arguments

Defendant Moreland argues that the December 24, 2016, strip search was not conducted in an unreasonable manner and therefore did not violate plaintiff’s Fourth Amendment rights. ECF
No. 65-2 at 12-14. She alternatively argues that she is entitled to qualified immunity. Id. at 21-23.

B. Plaintiff’s Response

As noted in the previous findings and recommendations, plaintiff has failed to comply with Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 56(c)(1)(A), which requires that “[a] party asserting that a fact . . . is genuinely disputed must support the assertion by . . . citing to particular parts of 1 materials in the record.” Plaintiff has also failed to file a separate document in response to 2 defendants’ statement of undisputed facts that identifies which facts are admitted and which are 3 disputed, as required by Local Rule 260(b).

4 “Pro se litigants must follow the same rules of procedure that govern other litigants.”
5 King v. Atiyeh, 814 F.2d 565, 567 (9th Cir. 1987) (citation omitted), overruled on other grounds, 6 Lacey v. Maricopa County, 693 F.3d 896, 928 (9th Cir. 2012) (en banc). However, it is well-7 established that district courts are to “construe liberally motion papers and pleadings filed by pro
8 se inmates and should avoid applying summary judgment rules strictly.” Thomas v. Ponder, 611
9 F.3d 1144, 1150 (9th Cir. 2010). The unrepresented prisoner’s choice to proceed without counsel 10 “is less than voluntary” and they are subject to “the handicaps . . . detention necessarily imposes 11 upon a litigant,” such as “limited access to legal materials” as well as “sources of proof.” 12 Jacobsen v. Filler, 790 F.2d 1362, 1364 n.4 (9th Cir. 1986) (alteration in original) (citations and 13 internal quotation marks omitted). Inmate litigants, therefore, should not be held to a standard of 14 “strict literalness” with respect to the requirements of the summary judgment rule. Id. (citation 15 omitted).

16 Accordingly, the court considers the record before it in its entirety despite plaintiff’s 17 failure to be in strict compliance with the applicable rules. However, only those assertions in the 18 opposition which have evidentiary support in the record will be considered. In her opposition, 19 plaintiff asserts that defendant Moreland conducted the December 24, 2016 strip search in an 20 unreasonable manner and is therefore not entitled to summary judgment. ECF No. 70 at 3-4.

21 IV. Legal Standards for Summary Judgment

22 Summary judgment is appropriate when the moving party “shows that there is no genuine 23 dispute as to any material fact and the movant is entitled to judgment as a matter of law.” Fed. R.
24 Civ. P. 56(a). Under summary judgment practice, “[t]he moving party initially bears the burden 25 of proving the absence of a genuine issue of material fact.” In re Oracle Corp. Sec. Litig., 627 26 F.3d 376, 387 (9th Cir. 2010) (citing Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 323 (1986)). The 27 moving party may accomplish this by “citing to particular parts of materials in the record, 28 including depositions, documents, electronically stored information, affidavits or declarations,

1 stipulations (including those made for purposes of the motion only), admissions, interrogatory 2 answers, or other materials” or by showing that such materials “do not establish the absence or 3 presence of a genuine dispute, or that an adverse party cannot produce admissible evidence to 4 support the fact.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(c)(1).

5 “Where the non-moving party bears the burden of proof at trial, the moving party need 6 only prove that there is an absence of evidence to support the non-moving party’s case.” Oracle 7 Corp., 627 F.3d at 387 (citing Celotex, 477 U.S. at 325); see also Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(c)(1)(B).
8 Indeed, summary judgment should be entered, “after adequate time for discovery and upon 9 motion, against a party who fails to make a showing sufficient to establish the existence of an 10 element essential to that party’s case, and on which that party will bear the burden of proof at 11 trial.” Celotex, 477 U.S. at 322. “[A] complete failure of proof concerning an essential element 12 of the nonmoving party’s case necessarily renders all other facts immaterial.” Id. at 323. In such 13 a circumstance, summary judgment should “be granted so long as whatever is before the district 14 court demonstrates that the standard for the entry of summary judgment, as set forth in Rule 15 56(c), is satisfied.” Id.

16 If the moving party meets its initial responsibility, the burden then shifts to the opposing 17 party to establish that a genuine issue as to any material fact actually does exist. Matsushita Elec.
18 Indus. Co. v. Zenith Radio Corp., 475 U.S. 574, 586-87 (1986). In attempting to establish the 19 existence of this factual dispute, the opposing party may not rely upon the allegations or denials 20 of its pleadings but is required to tender evidence of specific facts in the form of affidavits, and/or 21 admissible discovery material, in support of its contention that the dispute exists. See Fed. R.
22 Civ. P. 56(c). The opposing party must demonstrate that the fact in contention is material, i.e., a 23 fact “that might affect the outcome of the suit under the governing law,” and that the dispute is 24 genuine, i.e., “the evidence is such that a reasonable jury could return a verdict for the nonmoving 25 party.” Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 248 (1986).

26 In the endeavor to establish the existence of a factual dispute, the opposing party need not 27 establish a material issue of fact conclusively in its favor. It is sufficient that “the claimed factual 28 dispute be shown to require a jury or judge to resolve the parties’ differing versions of the truth at

1 trial.” T.W. Elec. Serv., Inc. v. Pac. Elec. Contractors Ass’n, 809 F.2d 626, 630 (9th Cir. 1987)
2 (quoting First Nat’l Bank of Ariz. v. Cities Serv. Co., 391 U.S. 253, 288-89 (1968). Thus, the 3 “purpose of summary judgment is to pierce the pleadings and to assess the proof in order to see 4 whether there is a genuine need for trial.” Matsushita, 475 U.S. at 587 (citation and internal 5 quotation marks omitted).

6 “In evaluating the evidence to determine whether there is a genuine issue of fact, [the 7 court] draw[s] all inferences supported by the evidence in favor of the non-moving party.” Walls 8 v. Cent. Contra Costa Transit Auth., 653 F.3d 963, 966 (9th Cir. 2011) (citation omitted). It is the 9 opposing party’s obligation to produce a factual predicate from which the inference may be 10 drawn. See Richards v. Nielsen Freight Lines, 810 F.2d 898, 902 (9th Cir. 1987). Finally, to 11 demonstrate a genuine issue, the opposing party “must do more than simply show that there is 12 some metaphysical doubt as to the material facts.” Matsushita, 475 U.S. at 586 (citations 13 omitted). “Where the record taken as a whole could not lead a rational trier of fact to find for the 14 non-moving party, there is no ‘genuine issue for trial.’” Id. at 587 (quoting First Nat’l Bank, 391 15 U.S. at 289).

16 Defendants simultaneously served plaintiff with notice of the requirements for opposing a 17 motion pursuant to Rule 56 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure along with their motion for 18 summary judgment. ECF No. 65-1; see Klingele v. Eikenberry, 849 F.2d 409, 411 (9th Cir.
19 1988) (pro se prisoners must be provided with notice of the requirements for summary judgment); 20 Rand v. Rowland, 154 F.3d 952, 960 (9th Cir. 1998) (en banc) (movant may provide notice).

21 V. Undisputed Material Facts

22 Plaintiff did not separately respond to Defendants’ Statement of Undisputed Facts 23 (DSUF), and the facts are therefore deemed undisputed except as otherwise discussed.

24 On December 24, 2016, plaintiff was taken to Butte County Jail after she was arrested for 25 assault with a deadly weapon and corporal injury on a spouse. DSUF (ECF No. 65-3) ¶ 1; PL’s 26 Depo. at 15:5-14 (ECF No. 65-4 at 19). This was her first time at Butte County Jail. DSUF ¶ 2; 27 PL’s Depo. at 13:15-17 (ECF No. 65-4 at 17). Based on the charge for assault with a deadly 28 weapon, policy required that she undergo a visual strip search prior to being placed in a housing

1 unit at the jail. DSUF ¶ 3; PL's Response to Admission No. 7 (ECF No. 65-4 at 124). During the 2 booking process, plaintiff was asked medical and psychological questions, including whether she 3 had any injuries. DSUF ¶ 5; PL's Depo. at 16:16-25, 18:18-22 (ECF No. 65-4 at 20, 22). At the 4 time, she also completed a classification questionnaire in which she identified defensive wounds
5 but did not identify prior knee or back issues. DSUF ¶ 6; PL's Depo. at 17:5-24, 18:18-22; 6 67:10-13 (ECF No. 65-4 at 21-22, 71). Plaintiff was then taken to the booking showers to be 7 visually strip searched. DSUF ¶ 7; PL's Depo. at 24:10-12 (ECF No. 65-4 at 28). The booking 8 shower was a room with "a toilet, a sink, and a little shower stall" and a little window through 9 which inmates were given their clothes. PL's Depo. at 24:13-17 (ECF No. 65-4 at 28). Plaintiff 10 entered the room by herself, and Moreland stood outside holding the door open. PL's Depo. at 11 26:18-21 (ECF No. 65-4 at 30).

12 Defendant Moreland, who is female, supervised plaintiff's visual strip search, which was 13 their first interaction that plaintiff could recall.¹ DSUF ¶ 8; ECF No. 23 at 3; PL's Depo. at 14 24:18-20; 35:19-23 (ECF No. 65-4 at 28, 39). Moreland explained the strip search process to 15 plaintiff and ordered plaintiff to submit to a strip search. DSUF ¶ 9; PL's Depo. at 24:22-24 16 (ECF No. 65-4 at 28). The strip search process was comprised of seven steps, the last of which 17 required plaintiff to turn around, bend forward and spread her buttocks if necessary to view the 18 anus and vagina for a visual cavity search. DSUF ¶ 9; Moreland Decl. ¶ 4 (ECF No. 65-4 at 132);
19 ECF No. 23 at 3; PL's Depo. at 31:21-32:3 (ECF No. 65-4 at 35-36).

20 Plaintiff completed the first six steps and Moreland instructed plaintiff to squat and cough 21 to complete step seven. DSUF ¶ 10; ECF No. 23 at 3. Plaintiff responded that she could not 22 squat and cough because she had a bad back and knees that prevented her from bending at the 23 knees. DSUF ¶ 11; ECF No. 23 at 3; PL's Depo. at 26:14-17, 27:4-17 (ECF No. 65-4 at 30-31).
24 Because plaintiff informed Moreland that she had bad knees and could not bend her knees, 25 Moreland used a modified method and instructed plaintiff to bend at the waist and place her head 26 near her feet, grab her buttocks, and cough. DSUF ¶¶ 15, 66-67. This procedure did not require

27 ¹ Plaintiff testified during her deposition that she may have spoken to Moreland in booking, but 28 she did not recall. PL's Depo. at 35:19-23 (ECF No. 65-4 at 39).

1 plaintiff to bend her knees. DSUF ¶ 16. Plaintiff asserts that after she told Moreland she could 2 not bend her knees, Moreland told her to place her face on the floor of the shower. ECF No. 23 at 3 3; PL’s Depo. at 26:12-27:22 (ECF No. 65-4 at 30-31). When plaintiff stated that she would not 4 place her face on the floor, Moreland responded that she would get additional correctional 5 deputies to “make [her] do it if [she] wouldn’t comply.”² PL’s Depo. at 27:16-24 (ECF No. 65-4 6 at 31); ECF No. 23 at 3.

7 To complete the search, plaintiff bent forward at the waist without bending her knees, and 8 tried to complete the process as quickly as possible. PL’s Depo. at 28:1-2, 29:7-10, 32:5-17 (ECF 9 No. 65-4 at 32-33, 36). She spent a few seconds in this position, during which she was required
10 to grab her buttocks and cough three times. DSUF ¶¶ 15, 17; PL’s Depo. at 29:7-14, 31:14-32:4
11 (ECF No. 65-4 at 33, 35-36). While bent over, her face was about a foot from the floor but did 12 not ever touch the floor. PL’s Depo. at 26:7-11, 29:14-16 (ECF No. 65-4 at 30, 33). Plaintiff 13 claims that she was required to complete the bend and cough procedure three times, that her knee
14 almost went out, and that during the coughing some urine released and ran down her leg. DSUF 15 ¶¶ 18, 20, 22; PL’s Depo. at 31:11-13, 75:2-14, 81:23 (ECF No. 65-4 at 35, 79, 85). Moreland 16 did not tell plaintiff why she was required to complete the procedure three times. PL’s Depo. at 17 75:20-76:23 (ECF No. 65-4 at 79-80). After the search, plaintiff overheard Moreland tell a male 18 deputy outside the door that she did not trust plaintiff because “she was leaking.” DSUF ¶ 21;
19 ECF No. 23 at 3; PL’s Depo. at 28:13-16, 30:21-31:5 (ECF No. 65-4 at 32, 34-35).

20 VI. Discussion

21 A. Fourth Amendment

22 i. Legal Standard

23 A detention facility’s strip-search policy is analyzed using the test for reasonableness 24 outlined in Bell v. Wolfish, as “[t]he Fourth Amendment prohibits only unreasonable searches.”
25

26 ² Defendants’ statement of facts does not explicitly address whether Moreland directed plaintiff 27 to put her face on the floor, but does state that Moreland told plaintiff she would request 28 additional correctional deputies if plaintiff refused to complete the last step (bend and cough).
DSUF ¶ 14. For purposes of this motion, the court will assume that plaintiff’s allegation that Moreland told her to put her face on the floor is true.

1 Bull v. City and County of San Francisco, 595 F.3d 964, 971-72 (9th Cir. 2010) (alteration in 2 original) (quoting Bell v. Wolfish, 441 U.S. 520, 558 (1979)). Under Bell, the court must balance 3 “the need for the particular search against the invasion of personal rights that the search entails.”
4 Bell, 441 U.S. at 559. In order to do so, “[c]ourts must consider the scope of the particular 5 intrusion, the manner in which it is conducted, the justification for initiating it, and the place in 6 which it is conducted.” Id. (citations omitted).

7 “Correctional officials have a significant interest in conducting a thorough search as a 8 standard part of the intake process.” Florence v. Bd. of Chosen Freeholders, 566 U.S. 318, 330
9 (2012). The Supreme Court has accordingly held that all arrestees, when joining the general 10 population of a jail, can be subject to strip searches even without reasonable suspicion that a 11 specific individual is concealing weapons or other contraband. Id. at 330-39. Those strip 12 searches that are limited to “visual inspection,” even if “invasive and embarrassing,” are 13 permissible. Bull, 595 F.3d at 975 (holding that visual strip searches that are held in a 14 “professional manner and in a place that afforded privacy” and conducted to prevent the 15 smuggling of contraband did not violate Fourth Amendment). However, any searches done for 16 the purpose of harassment are not constitutionally valid—the Supreme Court has held that 17 “intentional harassment of even the most hardened criminals cannot be tolerated” by the Fourth 18 Amendment’s protections. Hudson v. Palmer, 468 U.S. 517, 528 (1984). Accordingly, strip 19 searches that are excessive, vindictive, harassing, or unrelated to any legitimate penological 20 interest may violate the Fourth Amendment. Michenfelder v. Sumner, 860 F.2d 328, 332 (9th 21 Cir. 1988).

22 ii. Scope of Intrusion and Justification for Search

23 In this case, the intrusion was limited in scope to a visual body cavity inspection and 24 “bend and cough” procedure conducted by a same-gender officer.³ Such a search was required 25 by jail policy, and defendants justify that policy on institutional security grounds. The Supreme 26 Court has squarely held that general institutional security concerns render intrusions of this scope

27 _____
28 ³ Cf. Byrd v. Maricopa Cnty. Sheriff’s Dep’t, 629 F.3d 1135, 1146 (9th Cir. 2011) (cross-gender searches unconstitutional outside of emergency situation).

1 (routine visual inspection of genitals and anus, and “squat and cough” procedure) reasonable 2 within the meaning of the Fourth Amendment. Bell, 441 U.S. at 558-560; Florence, 566 U.S. at 3 324, 339. Accordingly, these two factors weigh in favor of finding the search reasonable. See 4 Bull, 595 F.3d at 975, 982.

5 iii. Manner of the Search

6 Plaintiff argues that the manner in which the search was conducted rendered the search 7 unconstitutional. In this context, the detainee “bears the burden of showing that [jail] officials 8 intentionally used exaggerated or excessive means to enforce security.” Michenfelder, 860 F.2d 9 at 333. Here, plaintiff asserts that the search was unreasonable because Moreland required her to 10 repeat the search—causing her emotional distress and physical pain—and “threatened [plaintiff] 11 with physical violence if [she] did not comply.” ECF No. 70 at 3. She also argues that the search 12 was unreasonable because upon completion, Moreland commented to a male officer who was 13 behind the door that she did not trust plaintiff because she “leaked.” Id.

14 Plaintiff was required to bend over and cough three times, which is not an objectively 15 excessive number of repetitions and does not support an inference of vindictiveness or 16 harassment. See Crockett v. Jensen, No. 16-cv-0959 PHX JJT (JZB), 2018 WL 10809993, at *7, 17 2018 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 237066, at *19 (D. Ariz. July 25, 2018) (direction to repeat the “squat and 18 cough” portion of search five times, without more, was not “excessive, vindictive, harassing, or 19 unrelated to any legitimate penological interest” (citation omitted)); Johnson v. Carroll, No. 2:08-20 cv-1494 KJN, 2012 WL 2069561, at *30, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 79380, at *92 (E.D. Cal. June 7, 21 2012) (requiring prisoner to complete “squat and cough” portion of the strip search three times 22 was within constitutional limits). Plaintiff has acknowledged that each instance of “bend and 23 cough” was very brief, which further weighs against a finding of excessiveness.

24 Moreland has provided a credible and penologically justified explanation for repeating the 25 procedure. In support of her motion, Moreland declares under penalty of perjury that, “[i]f an 26 inmate does not spread their buttocks wide enough or cough enough to verify there is no 27 contraband in that person’s anus or vagina, our training requires that the inmate complete this 28 portion of the visual strip search again” and that those are the only two reasons she would require

1 an inmate to repeat the procedure. Moreland Decl. at 3, ¶ 5 (ECF No. 65-4 at 133). In response, 2 plaintiff makes only conclusory assertions that the search was intended to harass her because she 3 was made to repeat the process, and her deposition testimony reflects that this belief was based on 4 speculation due to her interactions with sheriff's department patrol units and the fact that the 5 process itself is humiliating, rather than any conduct by Moreland. PL's Depo. at 24:2-4, 55:18-6 56:15 (ECF No. 65-4 at 28, 59-60). This does not create a triable issue as to the credibility of 7 Moreland's explanation. See Carmen v. San Francisco Unified Sch. Dist., 237 F.3d 1026, 1028 8 (9th Cir. 2001) ("A plaintiff's belief that a defendant acted from an unlawful motive, without 9 evidence supporting that belief, is no more than speculation or unfounded accusation about 10 whether the defendant really did act from an unlawful motive."). Plaintiff's testimony that she 11 attempted to complete the process as quickly as possible is, to the contrary, consistent with 12 defendant's theory that plaintiff did not spread her buttocks wide enough or cough hard enough 13 the first two times to verify that there was no contraband in her body cavities.

14 With respect to plaintiff's claim that the strip search caused her physical pain, it is 15 undisputed that after plaintiff advised Moreland that she was unable to bend at the knees, she was 16 instructed to use a modified method that did not require her to bend her knees. PL's Depo. at 17 32:5-17 (ECF No. 65-4 at 36). Although plaintiff alleges that it hurt her back to complete the 18 search by bending at her waist, PL's Depo. at 32:9-10 (ECF No. 65-4 at 36), there is no evidence 19 that the discomfort she felt was so significant that it rendered the search unreasonable. Nothing in 20 the record indicates that plaintiff told Moreland she was unable to bend over due to back pain.
21 Plaintiff's testimony that she spent only a few seconds in the bent position weighs against an 22 inference that the pain was so severe as to render an otherwise permissible search objectively 23 unreasonable.

24 Plaintiff similarly fails to demonstrate that her emotional pain rendered the search 25 unreasonable. While the courts have "consistently recognized the frightening and humiliating 26 invasion occasioned by a strip search, even when conducted with all due courtesy," Byrd v.
27 Maricopa Cnty. Sheriff's Dep't, 629 F.3d 1135, 1143 (9th Cir. 2011) (citations and internal 28 quotation marks omitted), they have nonetheless found visual body cavity searches reasonable

1 when balanced against correctional facilities’ “significant interest in conducting a thorough search 2 as a standard part of the intake process,” Florence, 566 U.S. at 330; see also Bull, 595 F.3d at 3 975. In other words, the emotional distress inevitably caused by visual body cavity searches is 4 accounted for in the balancing of intrusion against penological justification that led to the binding 5 holdings in Bell, Florence and Bull. In any event, any additional distress caused by the manner in 6 which the search was conducted would not affect the Fourth Amendment analysis. Plaintiff’s 7 subjective experience might be relevant to damages had there been a violation of her rights, but 8 the Fourth Amendment analysis of reasonableness is an objective one. See Ashcroft v. al-Kidd, 9 563 U.S. 731, 737 (2011) (Fourth Amendment reasonableness is predominantly an objective 10 inquiry).

11 With respect to plaintiff’s claim that she was threatened with violence if she did not 12 complete the search, the only statement plaintiff identifies is Moreland’s warning that additional 13 officers would be called and force could be used if plaintiff did not comply with the strip search 14 as directed. ECF No. 23 at 3; PL’s Depo. at 26:8-11, 27:19-24, 30:7-17 (ECF No. 65-4 at 30-31, 15 34). It is undisputed that no force was actually used and that no actions predicate to a use of 16 force, such as the summoning of additional officers or even a physical approach by Moreland, 17 were taken. Moreover, both the complaint and plaintiff’s deposition make clear that at the time
18 Moreland told her that other officers would be called to make her complete the search, plaintiff 19 had not yet complied with Moreland’s instructions to complete the last step. ECF No. 23 at 3; 20 PL’s Depo. at 27:16-24, 30:18-20 (ECF No. 65-4 at 31, 34). Had plaintiff continued to refuse to 21 complete the procedure, the use of reasonable force would have been constitutionally permissible.
22 See Michenfelder, 860 F.2d at 336 (“the legitimate penological purpose of strip searches—to 23 discover hidden weapons and contraband—justifies using force necessary to induce compliance 24 by difficult inmates”). Moreland’s “threat” to use force where force was permissible does not 25 render the search excessive, vindictive, harassing, or unrelated to any legitimate penological 26 interest.

27 Plaintiff’s claim that Moreland ordered her to put her face on the floor, accepted as true, 28 does not change the analysis because there is no evidence that this was more than a fleeting

1 comment with no follow-through. The bend and cough procedure was completed without 2 plaintiff touching her face to the floor or Moreland saying anything further about it. A single 3 such statement, even if offensive, does not rise to the level of “exaggerated or excessive means”
4 within the meaning of Michenfelder. See Thompson v. Souza, 111 F.3d 694, 700 (9th Cir. 1997)
5 (no Fourth Amendment violation under Michenfelder standard where officer directed a prisoner 6 to manipulate his own genitals for visual inspection and then to “run his finger around his gums”).

7 Finally, assuming Moreland did in fact tell another officer that she did not trust plaintiff 8 because plaintiff leaked, she did so after the search was completed and therefore the comment 9 does not render the search unreasonable. There is also no evidence that Moreland intended 10 plaintiff to overhear the comment; to the contrary, plaintiff testified she had to put her ear to the 11 door to hear. Accordingly, the comment cannot establish that the manner of the search was 12 abusive. Finally, even if Moreland made the comment during the search, and assuming the 13 statement to have been both embarrassing and unprofessional, it did not violate plaintiff’s 14 constitutional rights. See Burton v. City of Spokane (Burton I), No. 06-cv-0322 RHW, 2009 WL
15 772929, at *4-5, 2009 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 23185, at *12, 15 (E.D. Wash. Mar. 18, 2009) (officers 16 executing search warrant entitled to qualified immunity because alleged comments that “[t]here is 17 no crack in this crack” and “I wonder if he has ever been molested” made during strip search of 18 arrestee did not rise to the level of a constitutional violation), aff’d sub nom. Burton v. Spokane 19 Police Dep’t (Burton II), 383 F. App’x 671, 673 (9th Cir. 2010).

20 In sum, plaintiff has not identified evidence that could support a finding that the manner in 21 which Moreland conducted an otherwise permissible search was excessive, vindictive, harassing, 22 or unrelated to any legitimate penological interest. See Thompson, 111 F.3d at 700 (plaintiff 23 “bears the burden of showing that [prison] officials intentionally used exaggerated or excessive 24 means to enforce security.” (alteration in original) (quoting Michenfelder, 860 F.2d at 333).

25 iv. Place Where Search Was Conducted

26 It is undisputed that the search was conducted in the booking shower and that plaintiff was 27 in the room by herself with Moreland outside the door. Plaintiff further alleges, and defendants 28 have not disputed, that there was also a male officer outside the door of the shower. ECF No. 23

1 at 3. The question, therefore, is whether the presence of a male officer outside the door of the 2 booking shower resulted in insufficient privacy and rendered the search unreasonable.

3 While “cross-gender strip searches in the absence of an emergency violate an inmate’s 4 right under the Fourth Amendment to be free from unreasonable searches,” Byrd, 629 F.3d at 5 1146, there is no evidence that such a search occurred in this case. Plaintiff alleges that after the 6 completion of the strip search Moreland made comments to a male officer who was present 7 behind the door. However, there are no allegations and plaintiff has identified no evidence that 8 the male officer participated in the search or was able to view plaintiff during the search.
9 Plaintiff’s deposition testimony indicates that the male officer would not have been able to see 10 her, as she testified that she heard but did not see Moreland talking to the officer because they 11 were standing outside the door and that she heard Moreland talking to the other officer when she 12 put her ear to the door. PL’s Depo. at 30:21-31:8, 79:2-5 (ECF No. 65-4 at 34-35, 83). That a 13 male officer was merely present outside the booking shower does not render the search 14 unconstitutional, even if he had an occasional or obstructed view of plaintiff during the search.
15 See Michenfelder, 860 F.2d at 333-34 (no violation where visual body cavity searches of male 16 inmates were conducted within view of female guards from video monitors which provided 17 “indistinct, limited view”); Grummett v. Rushen, 779 F.2d 491, 495-96 (9th Cir. 1985) 18 (occasional viewing of unclothed male inmates by female prison guards did not violate the Fourth 19 Amendment).

20 v. Conclusion

21 For the reasons explained above, construing the undisputed facts in plaintiff’s favor and 22 crediting her testimony as to Moreland’s statements, the evidence does not support a conclusion 23 that the December 24, 2016, strip search exceeded constitutional limits. Summary judgment 24 should therefore be granted as to Claim One.

25 B. Qualified Immunity

26 i. Legal Standard

27 “Government officials enjoy qualified immunity from civil damages unless their conduct 28 violates ‘clearly established statutory or constitutional rights of which a reasonable person would

1 have known.” Jeffers v. Gomez, 267 F.3d 895, 910 (9th Cir. 2001) (quoting Harlow v.
2 Fitzgerald, 457 U.S. 800, 818 (1982)). In analyzing a qualified immunity defense, the court must 3 consider the following: (1) whether the alleged facts, taken in the light most favorable to the 4 plaintiff, demonstrate that defendant’s conduct violated a statutory or constitutional right; and (2) 5 whether the right at issue was clearly established at the time of the incident. Saucier v. Katz, 533
6 U.S. 194, 201 (2001) overruled in part by Pearson v. Callahan, 555 U.S. 223, 236 (2009)
7 (overruling Saucier’s requirement that the two prongs be decided sequentially). These questions 8 may be addressed in the order most appropriate to “the circumstances in the particular case at 9 hand.” Pearson, 555 U.S. at 236. If a court decides that plaintiff’s allegations do not support a 10 statutory or constitutional violation, “there is no necessity for further inquiries concerning 11 qualified immunity.” Saucier, 533 U.S. at 201. On the other hand, if a court determines that the 12 right at issue was not clearly established at the time of the defendant’s alleged misconduct, the 13 court need not determine whether plaintiff’s allegations support a statutory or constitutional 14 violation. Pearson, 555 U.S. at 236-42.

15 Having already concluded that there was no constitutional violation, the undersigned now 16 considers in the alternative whether—even if the search exceeded permissible bounds in the 17 opinion of this court—Moreland’s conduct violated clearly established law. The inquiry turns on 18 the state of legal authority in December 2016 regarding the application and balancing of the Bell 19 factors: the scope of the particular intrusion, the manner in which the search is conducted, the 20 justification for initiating it, and the place in which it is conducted. Bell, 441 U.S. at 559.

21 ii. Defendant’s Conduct Did Not Violate Clearly Established Law

22 a. Scope of Intrusion and Justification for Search

23 At the time of the search, both the Supreme Court and the Ninth Circuit had squarely held 24 that the routine strip searching of a detainee by a same-sex officer, including visual body cavity 25 inspection and use of a “squat and cough” procedure, is an intrusion into privacy the scope of 26 which is categorically justified by the need for institutional security. Bell, 441 U.S. at 558-560
27 (1979 decision); Florence, 566 U.S. at 330-39 (2012 decision); Bull, 595 F.3d at 971-72 (2010 28 decision).

1 b. Manner of the Search

2 At the time in question, it was clearly established that the execution of an otherwise 3 authorized strip search must be reasonable. See Act Up!/Portland v. Bagley, 988 F.2d 868, 872 4 (9th Cir. 1993) (“clearly established that the Fourth Amendment requires that any strip search be 5 conducted in a reasonable manner”).⁴ The Ninth Circuit held in 1988 that the manner in which a 6 custodial strip search is conducted may violate the Fourth Amendment if it is “excessive, 7 vindictive, harassing, or unrelated to any legitimate penological interest.” Michenfelder, 860 F.2d 8 at 332. While this general standard was clearly established at the time of the 2016 search, the 9 undersigned has identified no authority that would have informed a reasonable officer that 10 requiring a detainee to repeat a “cough and squat” procedure three times was so excessive as to be 11 constitutionally impermissible. Indeed, lower courts have identified no such limitation on the 12 practice. See, e.g., Crockett, No. 16-cv-0959 PHX JJT (JZB), 2018 WL 10809993, at *7, 2018
13 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 237066, at *19; Johnson, No. 2:08-cv-1494 KJN, 2012 WL 2069561, at *30, 14 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 79380, at *92.

15 Thompson v. Souza, supra, decided in 1977, is the only Ninth Circuit opinion to evaluate 16 whether an otherwise permissible strip search was carried out in an impermissible manner. The 17 court found in that case that an officer directing a prisoner to manipulate his own genitals for 18 visual inspection and then to “run his finger around his gums” did not constitute “exaggerated or 19 excessive means” within the meaning of Michenfelder. Thompson, 111 F.3d at 700. The 20 instructions given to plaintiff in this case, and the comments made by Moreland, are no more 21 excessive or offensive than the directions given in Thompson.⁵ As to the alleged “threat,” it was

22 ⁴ The qualified immunity analysis in Act Up!/Portland is otherwise inapplicable here, as it
23 predated Bull and Florence, supra. Prior to those decisions, the law of the circuit was that strip 24 searches of arrestees facing only minor charges had to be supported by reasonable suspicion that the individual was carrying or concealing contraband. See Act Up!/Portland, 988 F.2d at 871-72.

25 ⁵ The undersigned has undertaken a thorough review of district court opinions from within the 26 Ninth Circuit that apply the Michenfelder/Thompson standard, and has identified no case before or after 2016 finding that a purely visual body cavity search exceeded permissible limits on facts 27 similar to those presented here. In Bealer v. Sec’y of Cal. Dep’t of Corr., No. 1:16-cv-00671 LJO MJS, 2017 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 61958 at *11 (E.D. Cal. Apr. 24, 2017), the court found on 28 screening that plaintiff had presented a cognizable claim based on an allegedly lewd comment

1 clearly established that reasonable force could be used if plaintiff persisted in refusing to 2 cooperate. Michenfelder, 860 F.2d at 336. Under Michenfelder and Thompson, a reasonable 3 officer in Moreland’s position would not have had reason to think that any of her comments 4 crossed a constitutionally-mandated line.

5 iii. Place Where Search Was Conducted

6 While it was clearly established in 2016 that non-emergency cross-gender strip searches 7 violate the Fourth Amendment, Byrd, 629 F.3d at 1146, there was no such prohibition on the 8 presence of a male officer outside the area in which the search took place—even if the 9 circumstances permitted an occasional or obstructed view of the search. See Michenfelder, 860 10 F.2d at 333-34 (no violation where visual body cavity searches of male inmates were conducted 11 within view of female guards from video monitors which provided “indistinct, limited view”); 12 Grummett, 779 F.2d at 495-96 (occasional viewing of unclothed male inmates by female prison
13 guards did not violate the Fourth Amendment); see also Burton II, 383 F. App’x at 673 (no 14 clearly established law that brief presence of female officers during strip search violated Fourth 15 Amendment).

16 For all the reasons discussed above, it would not have been clear to a reasonable officer at 17 the time of the search in question that Moreland’s actions exceeded constitutional limits.
18 Accordingly, Moreland is entitled to qualified immunity.

19 VII. Plain Language Summary of this Order for a Pro Se Litigant

20 It is being recommended that the motion for summary judgment be granted as to your 21 claim against Moreland based on the December 24, 2016, strip search because the evidence 22 shows that the search was did not violate the constitution. Alternatively, Officer Moreland is 23 entitled to qualified immunity because the law was not clear at the time of the search that her 24 actions were unconstitutional.

25 ///

26 _____
27 made by the officer conducting the strip search. The case at bar does not involve such 28 allegations. The undersigned is unaware of any authority finding that comments not arguably amounting to sexual harassment, without more, rendered abusive a purely visual body cavity search that was otherwise permissible under Florence and Bull.

1 CONCLUSION

2 For all the reasons set forth above, IT IS HEREBY RECOMMENDED that:

3 1. The motion for summary judgment (ECF No. 65) be GRANTED as to Claim One on 4 the ground that Moreland did not violate plaintiff's Fourth Amendment rights or, alternatively, 5 that Moreland is entitled to qualified immunity;

6 2. This case be dismissed; and 7 3. Judgment entered in defendants' favor.

8 These findings and recommendations are submitted to the United States District Judge 9 assigned to the case, pursuant to the provisions of 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1). Within twenty-one days 10 after being served with these findings and recommendations, any party may file written 11 objections with the court and serve a copy on all parties. Such a document should be captioned 12 "Objections to Magistrate Judge's Findings and Recommendations." Any response to the 13 objections shall be served and filed within fourteen days after service of the objections. The 14 parties are advised that failure to file objections within the specified time may waive the right to 15 appeal the District Court's order. Martinez v. Ylst, 951 F.2d 1153 (9th Cir. 1991).
