² Although petitioner failed to seek authorization from the court prior to filing his surreply, in light of petitioner's pro se status, the court will consider petitioner's sur-reply.

On April 27, 2020, petitioner filed a state habeas petition challenging the state court's denial of his resentencing petition with the California Supreme Court. ECF No. 10-17. On July 22, 2020, the California Supreme Court denied the petition. ECF No. 10-18.

On August 25, 2011, petitioner filed a federal habeas petition with the district court challenging his original 2008 conviction. ECF No. 10-19; see also Doughton v. McDonald, 2:11-cv-02252 JAM KJN P. Spearman, 2:17-cv-00639 KJM DMC.

The instant federal habeas petition was filed on August 24, 2020.³ ECF No. 1. Discussion

It is difficult to ascertain the precise nature of the claims that petitioner brings in Claims 1 and 2, especially Claim 1. The claims could be: (1) petitioner's resentencing petition pursuant to Cal. Penal Code § 1170.95 (Senate Bill 1437) should have been granted based on insufficient evidence proving petitioner as the actual killer, and (2) petitioner's counsel was ineffective for failing to file a reply brief in support of petitioner's resentencing petition. ECF No. 1 at 5-6. Or, the first claim might have to do with petitioner's belief that the Superior Court judge did not properly apply the standards which are set forth in the above statute. If petitioner is actually attacking the sufficiency of the evidence at his trial, the claim is successive and the court has no jurisdiction to review it. If it is the latter "improper state law standards applied," or some other state law interpretive error on the part of the state courts, respondent is correct that the assertion is not cognizable in federal habeas corpus. While it is theoretically possible to receive ineffective assistance of counsel, even on state law issues, and hence state a viable federal claim, such a claim is unavailable for state court collateral proceedings. Moreover, petitioner goes no distance in showing what possible difference the lack of a reply brief could have made in the outcome of the resentencing process.

The resentencing decision by the Sacramento County Superior Court (the last reasoned, state resentencing decision) is the place to start the analysis:

The Second District Court of Appeal, Division One, in People v. Lewis (2020) -- Cal.App.5th--, 2020 Cal. App. LEXIS 9; not yet final, the Second District Court. of Appeal, Division Six, in People v. Cornelius (2020) -- Cal.App.5th --, 2020 Cal. App. LEXIS 11, not yet final, and the Second District Court of Appeal, Division 7, in People v. Verdugo (2020) - CalApp.5th --, 2020 Cal. App. LEXIS 33, not yet final, have- held that the court may make an initial determination of eligibility for relief under Penal Code § 1170.95 based solely on the initial pleading of the defendant and the record of conviction, which includes the appellate opinion, even if counsel has not yet been appointed.

In defendant Doughton's case, the Conflict Criminal Defenders designated Sharon Cammisa to represent defendant Doughton. The court placed the matter on calendar and a hearing was held, at which time Cammisa submitted the matter based on the record.

The record clearly and unequivocally shows that defendant Doughton is not eligible to seek relief under Penal Code § 1170.95. Defendant Doughton was convicted at jury trial of first degree murder, and the jury found true a Penal Code§ 190.2(a)(17) robberymurder special circumstance, after being instructed with CALCRIM No. 703, that to find the special circumstance true the jury needed to find that either defendant Doughton was the actual killer, acted with intent to kill, or was a major participant in the robbery who acted with reckless indifference to human life. As such, the jury necessarily found true the very factor that SB 1437 has now made a required finding for convicting a defendant of first degree murder based on a first degree felony-murder theory of liability. In addition, the jury found true a Penal Code § 12022.53(d) personal gun discharge proximately causing the death, while juries for his codefendants Edward Quintanilla and Danny Hampton found true only a Penal Code §12022(a)(I) arming enhancement and there was no gun enhancement found true for codefendant Deandre Scott, giving rise to the conclusion that defendant Doughton's jury, beyond a reasonable doubt had found that defendant Doughton was the actual killer.

Penal Code § 1170.95(a) provides that "[a] person convicted of felony murder or murder under a natural and probable consequences theory may file a petition with the court that sentenced the petitioner to have the petitioner's murder conviction vacated ... when all of the following conditions apply: ... (3) The petitioner could not be convicted of first or second degree murder because of changes to Section 188 or 189 made effective January 1, 2019." Defendant Doughton is not such a person, as the jury necessarily found it true beyond a reasonable doubt that he was either the actual killer, acted with intent to kill, or was a major participant in a burglary who acted with reckless indifference to human life - and beyond a reasonable doubt did additionally and necessarily find him to have been the actual killer - as is required under the SB 1437 amendments to Penal Code §§ 188 and 189 with regard to first degree felony murder itself.

The court did not need to conduct a hearing to deny the instant Penal Code§ 1170.95 petition. Nevertheless, the court held a hearing and counsel for defendant Doughton did appear on his behalf. There was nothing counsel for defendant could say at the hearing, other than what was said, that the matter was submitted based on the record, as the record clearly and unequivocally shows that defendant Doughton, convicted of felony-murder special circumstance murder, is not a "person" under the meaning of Penal Code § 1170.95(a) and, as such, is not eligible to seek relief under Penal Code § 1170.95.

ECF No. 10-16 at 3-4; see also ECF No. 10-16 at 1 (explanatory letter from petitioner's counsel).

To the extent that petitioner seeks to find that the jury verdict was based on insufficient evidence, that ship left port a long time ago. Such an assertion must have been made on direct review in state court, and later, if at all, in the first federal habeas petition. As such, his insufficiency of evidence assertion here in this later, resentencing habeas petition, if that is his assertion, constitutes a successive claim, even though the ability to challenge the resentencing process itself in a later habeas petition is left intact. The court has no jurisdiction to review such an insufficiency of evidence claim. See Cole v. Sullivan, 480 F.Supp.3d 1089 (C.D. Cal. Aug. 19, 2020) (excellent discussion of this issue with its discussion of Ninth Circuit case law).

However, if petitioner is simply challenging the application of state law resentencing standards, such a claim is not cognizable in federal habeas corpus. A writ of habeas corpus is available under 28 U.S.C. § 2254(a) only on the basis of some transgression of federal law binding on the state courts. Estelle v. McGuire, 502 U.S. 62, 68 (1991); Middleton v. Cupp, 768 F.2d 1083, 1085 (9th Cir. 1985); Gutierrez v. Griggs, 695 F.2d 1195, 1197 (9th Cir. 1983). It is unavailable for alleged error in the interpretation or application of state law. Medley v. Runnels,

Case 2:20-cv-01774-TLN-GGH Document 18 Filed 07/28/21 Page 6 of 7

306 F.3d 83 /, 862 (9th Cir. 2007); Middleton v. Cupp , 768 F.2d at 1085; see also Lincoln v. Sunn, 807 F.2d 805, 814 (9th Cir. 1983); Givens v. Housewright, 786 F.2d 1378, 1381 (9th Cir.
1986). Thus, to the extent petitioner is seeking to challenge the state court's application of a state sentencing law, petitioner's claim does not state a cognizable federal claim. Moreover, petitioner newly asserts in his opposition and sur-reply a due process violation based on his denial of his resentencing petition. ECF Nos. 15; 17. Petitioner may not "transform a state-law issue into a federal one merely by asserting a violation of due process." Langford v. Day, 110 F.3d 1380, 1389 (9th Cir. 1996); see also Christian v. Rhode, 41 F.3d 461, 469 (9th Cir. 1994)
("Absent a showing of fundamental unfairness, a state court's misapplication of its own sentencing law does not justify federal habeas relief."); Richmond v. Lewis, 506 U.S. 40, 50 (1992) (To state a cognizable federal habeas claim based on an alleged error in state sentencing, a petitioner must show that the error was "so arbitrary or capricious as to constitute an independent due process" violation). For these reasons, petitioner has failed to raise a cognizable federal claim

Additionally, "[t]he ineffectiveness or incompetence of counsel during Federal or State collateral post-conviction proceedings shall not be a ground for relief in a proceeding arising under section 2254." 28 U.S.C. § 2254(i); see also Coleman v. Thompson, 501 U.S. 722, 752 (1991) ("There is no constitutional right to an attorney in state post-conviction proceedings. [...] Consequently, a petition cannot claim constitutionally ineffective assistance of counsel in such proceedings.") Therefore, petitioner has no constitutional right to effective assistance of counsel. The undersigned also agrees with the Sacramento County Superior Court after presentation of the issues in petitioner's resentencing petition that "there was nothing more" defense counsel could have said in a reply or oral argument.

Accordingly, the undersigned recommends respondent's motion to dismiss be granted and petitioner's federal habeas petition be dismissed.

Certificate of Appealability

Pursuant to Rule 11 of the Federal Rules Governing Section 2254 Cases, this court must issue or deny a certificate of appealability when it enters a final order adverse to the applicant. A 1 certificate of appealability may issue only "if the applicant has made a substantial showing of the 2 denial of a constitutional right." 28 U.S.C. § 2253(c)(2). For the reasons set forth in these 3 findings and recommendations, a substantial showing of the denial of a constitutional right has 4 not been made in this case. 5 Conclusion For the foregoing reasons, IT IS HEREBY RECOMMENDED that: 6 7 1. Respondent's motion to dismiss (ECF No. 8) be granted; 8 2. Petitioner's federal habeas petition (ECF No. 1) be dismissed; and 9 3. The District Court decline to issue a certificate of appealability. 10 These findings and recommendations are submitted to the United States District Judge 11 assigned to the case, pursuant to the provisions of 28 U.S.C. § 636(b)(1). Within twenty-one days 12 after being served with these findings and recommendations, any party may file written 13 objections with the court and serve a copy on all parties. Such a document should be captioned 14 "Objections to Magistrate Judge's Findings and Recommendations." Any reply to the objections 15 shall be served and filed within fourteen days after service of the objections. The parties are 16 advised that failure to file objections within the specified time may waive the right to appeal the 17 District Court's order. Martinez v. Ylst, 951 F.2d 1153 (9th Cir. 1991). 18 Dated: July 28, 2021 /s/ Gregory G. Hollows 19 UNITED STATES MAGISTRATE JUDGE 20 21 22 23 24 25 26 27
