UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
EASTERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

JAMES BARBER, an individual,

Plaintiff,

v.

CITY OF ELK GROVE, a California governmental entity; ELK GROVE
POLICE DEPARTMENT, a California governmental entity; CODY NGUYEN; BRYAN GATES; and DOES 1 through 10, inclusive,

Defendants.

No. 2:24-cv-01913-TLN-AC

ORDER

This matter is before the Court on Defendants City of Elk Grove (“the City”), Elk Grove Police Department (“Police Department”), Cody Nguyen (“Nguyen”), and Bryan Gates’s (“Gates”) (collectively, “Defendants”) Motion to Dismiss. (ECF No. 4.) Plaintiff James Barber (“Plaintiff”) opposed the motion. (ECF No. 6.) Defendants replied. (ECF No. 8.) For the reasons set forth below, Defendants’ motion is GRANTED.

1 I. FACTUAL AND PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND

2 The instant action arises out of an alleged altercation between Plaintiff, Nguyen, and 3 Gates during a traffic stop. (ECF No. 1 at 5.) On July 28, 2023, at or near the intersection of 4 Power Inn Road and Calvine Road in Sacramento, Plaintiff was pulling out of the nearby 5 McDonald’s when he was suddenly pulled over by Nguyen and Gates, both of whom worked for 6 the Police Department. (Id.) When Plaintiff inquired about the reason for the stop, Nguyen said 7 Plaintiff did not have a front license plate. (Id.) Plaintiff explained he had recently purchased the 8 vehicle and provided proof of purchase. (Id.) Nguyen returned to his patrol vehicle and learned 9 Plaintiff’s license was suspended. (Id.) Nguyen then approached Plaintiff’s vehicle and asked 10 Plaintiff to exit the vehicle. (Id.) Plaintiff asked if he was being detained, but Nguyen initially 11 did not respond. (Id.) After refusing to exit his vehicle, Plaintiff asked again, and Nguyen 12 confirmed he was being detained for driving on a suspended license. (Id.) Plaintiff asked if 13 Nguyen had the right to detain him, and Nguyen responded in the affirmative. (Id.) Plaintiff 14 alleges he was afraid for his safety, so he asked if he could record the event, but by then Nguyen 15 had already opened the driver’s door and started unbuckling Plaintiff’s seatbelt. (Id.) Plaintiff 16 further alleges Gates and Nguyen then attempted to physically remove Plaintiff from his vehicle, 17 ultimately forcing him to the ground, while Gates punched Plaintiff repeatedly in the face. (Id.)

18 On May 22, 2024, Plaintiff filed the operative Complaint in Sacramento County Superior 19 Court against Defendants. (Id. at 4–17.) The Complaint alleges the following claims: (1) 20 unlawful detention in violation of 42 U.S.C. § 1983; (2) arrest without probable cause in violation 21 of 42 U.S.C. § 1983; (3) false imprisonment in violation of 42 U.S.C. § 1983; (4) malicious 22 prosecution in violation of 42 U.S.C. § 1983; (5) intentional infliction of emotional distress; (6) 23 negligence; (7) failure to properly screen and hire; (8) failure to supervise and discipline; (9) 24 failure to properly train; (10) Monell liability for a pattern of false arrest; (11) violation of 25 California Civil Code § 52.1; and (12) permanent injunction and other equitable relief. (Id.) 26 Plaintiff’s first, second, third, fourth, and fifth claims are alleged against Nguyen and Gates. (Id.
27 at 8–16.) Plaintiff’s sixth, eleventh, and twelfth claims are alleged against all Defendants. (Id.) 28 Plaintiff’s seventh, eighth, and tenth claims are alleged against the City and Police Department.

1 (Id.) Plaintiff’s ninth claim is alleged against the City. (Id.)

2 On July 12, 2024, Defendants removed the action to this Court based on federal question 3 jurisdiction. (Id. at 1–2.) On September 5, 2024, Defendants filed the instant motion to dismiss.
4 (ECF No. 4.)

5 II. STANDARD OF LAW

6 A motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted under 7 Federal Rule of Civil Procedure (“Rule”) 12(b)(6) tests the legal sufficiency of a complaint.
8 Navarro v. Block, 250 F.3d 729, 732 (9th Cir. 2001). Rule 8(a) requires that a pleading contain 9 “a short and plain statement of the claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief.” Fed. R.
10 Civ. P. 8(a); see also Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 677–78 (2009). Under notice pleading in 11 federal court, the complaint must “give the defendant fair notice of what the . . . claim is and the 12 grounds upon which it rests.” Bell Atlantic v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 555 (2007) (internal 13 citation and quotations omitted). “This simplified notice pleading standard relies on liberal 14 discovery rules and summary judgment motions to define disputed facts and issues and to dispose 15 of unmeritorious claims.” Swierkiewicz v. Sorema N.A., 534 U.S. 506, 512 (2002).

16 On a motion to dismiss, the factual allegations of the complaint must be accepted as true.
17 Cruz v. Beto, 405 U.S. 319, 322 (1972). A court must give the plaintiff the benefit of every 18 reasonable inference to be drawn from the “well-pleaded” allegations of the complaint. Retail 19 Clerks Int’l Ass’n v. Schermerhorn, 373 U.S. 746, 753 n.6 (1963). A plaintiff need not allege 20 “‘specific facts’ beyond those necessary to state his claim and the grounds showing entitlement to 21 relief.” Twombly, 550 U.S. at 570 (internal citation omitted).

22 Nevertheless, a court “need not assume the truth of legal conclusions cast in the form of 23 factual allegations.” U.S. ex rel. Chunie v. Ringrose, 788 F.2d 638, 643 n.2 (9th Cir. 1986).
24 While Rule 8(a) does not require detailed factual allegations, “it demands more than an 25 unadorned, the defendant-unlawfully-harmed-me accusation.” Iqbal, 556 U.S. at 678. A 26 pleading is insufficient if it offers mere “labels and conclusions” or “a formulaic recitation of the 27 elements of a cause of action.” Twombly, 550 U.S. at 555; see also Iqbal, 556 U.S. at 678 28 (“Threadbare recitals of the elements of a cause of action, supported by mere conclusory

1 statements, do not suffice.”). Thus, “[c]onclusory allegations of law and unwarranted inferences
2 are insufficient to defeat a motion to dismiss” for failure to state a claim. Adams v. Johnson, 355 3 F.3d 1179, 1183 (9th Cir. 2004) (citations omitted). Moreover, it is inappropriate to assume the 4 plaintiff “can prove facts that it has not alleged or that the defendants have violated the . . . laws 5 in ways that have not been alleged.” Associated Gen. Contractors of Cal., Inc. v. Cal. State 6 Council of Carpenters, 459 U.S. 519, 526 (1983).

7 Ultimately, a court may not dismiss a complaint in which the plaintiff has alleged “enough 8 facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face.” Twombly, 550 U.S. at 570. “A claim 9 has facial plausibility when the plaintiff pleads factual content that allows the court to draw the 10 reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the misconduct alleged.” Iqbal, 556 U.S. at 11 680. While the plausibility requirement is not akin to a probability requirement, it demands more 12 than “a sheer possibility that a defendant has acted unlawfully.” Id. at 678. This plausibility 13 inquiry is “a context-specific task that requires the reviewing court to draw on its judicial 14 experience and common sense.” Id. at 679. Thus, only where a plaintiff fails to “nudge [his or 15 her] claims . . . across the line from conceivable to plausible[,]” is the complaint properly 16 dismissed. Id. at 680 (internal quotations omitted).

17 In ruling on a motion to dismiss, a court may consider only the complaint, any exhibits 18 thereto, and matters which may be judicially noticed pursuant to Federal Rule of Evidence 201 or 19 incorporated by reference. See Mir v. Little Co. of Mary Hosp., 844 F.2d 646, 649 (9th Cir.
20 1988); Isuzu Motors Ltd. v. Consumers Union of U.S., Inc., 12 F. Supp. 2d 1035, 1042 (C.D. Cal.
21 1998); Khoja v. Orexigen Therapeutics, Inc., 899 F.3d 988, 998 (9th Cir. 2018).

22 If a complaint fails to state a plausible claim, “[a] district court should grant leave to 23 amend even if no request to amend the pleading was made, unless it determines that the pleading 24 could not possibly be cured by the allegation of other facts.” Lopez v. Smith, 203 F.3d 1122, 25 1130 (9th Cir. 2000) (en banc) (quoting Doe v. United States, 58 F.3d 494, 497 (9th Cir. 1995)); 26 see also Gardner v. Martino, 563 F.3d 981, 990 (9th Cir. 2009) (finding no abuse of discretion in 27 denying leave to amend when amendment would be futile). Although a district court should 28 freely give leave to amend when justice so requires under Rule 15(a)(2), “the court’s discretion to 1 deny such leave is ‘particularly broad’ where the plaintiff has previously amended its complaint.”

2 Ecological Rights Found. v. Pac. Gas & Elec. Co., 713 F.3d 502, 520 (9th Cir. 2013) (quoting 3 Miller v. Yokohama Tire Corp., 358 F.3d 616, 622 (9th Cir. 2004)).

4 III. ANALYSIS

5 Defendants move to dismiss Claims One through Four, Six, Seven through, Ten, Eleven, 6 and Twelve. (ECF No. 4-1 at 3–10.) The Court will address each argument in turn.

7 A. Claims One through Four

8 Defendants argue Plaintiff’s claims for unlawful stop and detention (Claim One), false 9 arrest (Claim Two), false imprisonment (Claim Three), and malicious prosecution (Claim Four) 10 hinge on the absence of probable cause for Plaintiff’s detention and arrest on July 28, 2023. (ECF 11 No. 4-1 at 4.) Defendants contend these claims should be dismissed because the Complaint 12 establishes the officers had reasonable suspicion and probable cause. (Id.) Specifically, 13 Defendants note the Complaint alleges Plaintiff was pulled over for not having a front license 14 plate, driving on a suspended license, and refused to exit his vehicle, in violation of California 15 Vehicle Code §§ 5200(a), 14601.1(a) and California Penal Code § 148(a)(1), respectively. (Id.)

16 In opposition, Plaintiff argues Nguyen and Gates may have lacked reasonable suspicion 17 for the stop because it is unclear whether they could see the front of Plaintiff’s vehicle. (ECF No.
18 6 at 5.) Plaintiff further argues Defendants misinterpreted his refusal to exit the vehicle as 19 probable cause for arrest, alleging he hesitated to leave because he was asking about whether he 20 could be detained for a suspended license and preparing to record the interaction. (Id. at 6–7.) 21 Plaintiff thus contends there is more than one interpretation as to whether he actually refused to 22 exit his vehicle, such that there is a question of fact as to whether there was probable cause for a 23 violation of California Penal Code § 148(a)(1). (Id.)

24 In reply, Defendants note Plaintiff’s Complaint does not allege the officers could not see 25 the front of Plaintiff’s vehicle and therefore could not have known there was no front license plate 26 when they pulled him over. (ECF No. 8 at 3.) Defendants further note the Complaint contains no 27 well-pleaded facts to support the plausibility of this assertion. (Id.) In the alternative, Defendants 28 contend Plaintiff challenges only the probable cause for the stop but concedes probable cause for

1 the arrest because officers were aware of the missing license plate and suspended license at the 2 time of arrest. (Id. at 4.)

3 Indeed, claims for unlawful stop and detention will be upheld only if there is no 4 reasonable suspicion. See United States v. Montero-Camargo, 208 F.3d 1122, 1129 (9th Cir.
5 2000) (“[A]n investigatory stop by the police may be made only if the officer in question has a 6 reasonable suspicion supported by articulable facts that criminal activity may be afoot[.]” 7 (internal quotations and citation omitted)); United States v. Bravo, 295 F.3d 1002, 1009 (9th Cir.
8 2002) (“At issue here is whether a ‘detention,’ which does not require probable cause, evolved 9 into an ‘arrest,’ which must be supported by probable cause.” (emphasis in original)). Similarly, 10 claims for false arrest, false imprisonment, and malicious prosecution will be upheld only if there 11 is no probable cause. See United States v. Miles, 247 F.3d 1009, 1012 (9th Cir. 2001) (noting that 12 if a detention proceeds beyond “a brief stop, interrogation, and, under proper circumstances, a 13 brief check for weapons,” and an arrest occurs, probable cause is required); Cabrera v. City of 14 Huntington Park, 159 F.3d 374, 380 (9th Cir. 1998) (“To prevail on his § 1983 claim for false 15 arrest and false imprisonment, [plaintiff] would have to demonstrate that there was no probable 16 cause to arrest him.”); Freeman v. City of Santa Ana, 68 F.3d 1180, 1189 (9th Cir. 1995) (noting 17 that for a plaintiff to prevail on a malicious prosecution claim, plaintiff must show defendants 18 prosecuted her without probable cause).

19 Probable cause is satisfied when, at the moment of the seizure, the facts and circumstances 20 within the officers’ knowledge are sufficient to warrant a prudent person to believe that the 21 suspect had committed or was committing an offense. Beck v. State of Ohio, 379 U.S. 89, 91 22 (1964). Alternatively, the Ninth Circuit has defined probable cause as when “under the totality of 23 circumstances known to arresting officers, a prudent person would have concluded that there was 24 fair probability that [the defendant] had committed a crime.” United States v. Lopez, 482 F.3d 25 1067, 1072 (9th Cir. 2007). While conclusive evidence of guilt is not necessary under this 26 standard to establish probable cause, “[m]ere suspicion, common rumor, or even strong reason to 27 suspect are not enough.” McKenzie v. Lamb, 738 F.2d 1005, 1008 (9th Cir. 1984) (citing Henry 28 v. United States, 361 U.S. 98, 101, (1959)). “Probable cause is lacking if the circumstances relied

1 on are susceptible to a variety of credible interpretations not necessarily compatible with 2 nefarious activities.” Gasho v. United States, 39 F.3d 1420, 1432 (9th Cir. 1994) (citations 3 omitted).

4 The reasonable suspicion standard “is a less demanding standard than probable cause,” 5 and only requires “a minimal level of objective justification.” Illinois v. Wardlow, 528 U.S. 119, 6 123, 120 (2000); see also Gallegos, 308 F.3d at 990 (holding the same); Hayes v. Florida, 470
7 U.S. 811, 816 (1985) (“[I]f there are articulable facts supporting a reasonable suspicion that a 8 person has committed a criminal offense, that person may be stopped in order to identify him, to 9 question him briefly, or to detain him briefly while attempting to obtain additional information”).
10 A court must consider the totality of the circumstances when determining whether reasonable 11 suspicion exists. See United States v. Drake, 543 F.3d 1080, 1088 (9th Cir. 2008); United States 12 v. Osborn, 203 F.3d 1176, 1181 (9th Cir. 2000).

13 Here, with respect to the initial stop and detention, Plaintiff alleges he was pulling out of 14 McDonald’s when he was suddenly pulled over by Nguyen and Gates. (ECF No. 1 at 5.)
15 Plaintiff further alleges Nguyen never asked for a license or registration, but when Plaintiff asked 16 why he was pulled over, Nguyen responded that Plaintiff had no front license plate. (Id.) In 17 response, Plaintiff alleges he explained to Nguyen he recently purchased the vehicle and provided 18 proof of purchase. (Id.) The Court finds Plaintiff’s allegations strongly imply that he lacked a 19 front license plate, even though it is not explicitly stated in the Complaint. Additionally, even 20 though Plaintiff argues in his opposition that “from the vantage point where Nguyen and Gates 21 were situated, there is a question of fact as to whether or not Nguyen and Gates were even able to 22 see [Plaintiff’s] front plate” (ECF No. 6 at 5), these allegations are not included in the Complaint.
23 Plaintiff does not allege Nguyen and Gates were in a physical location such that they could not 24 have seen the front of Plaintiff’s vehicle and known there was no front license plate prior to the 25 stop. The Court therefore agrees with Defendants that Plaintiff admits the officers had both 26 reasonable suspicion (for a violation of California Vehicle Code § 5200(a)) for the initial stop and 27 detention. (ECF No. 4-1 at 4.) Accordingly, Defendants’ motion to dismiss Claim One (unlawful 28 stop and detention) is GRANTED with leave to amend.

1 With respect to the arrest, Defendants proffer two bases for probable cause — a violation 2 of California Vehicle Code § 14601.1(a) (driving on a suspended or revoked license) and a 3 violation of California Penal Code § 148(a)(1) (willfully resisting, delaying, or obstructing a 4 peace officer). (ECF No. 4-1 at 4.) First, with respect to a violation of California Vehicle Code § 5 14601.1(a), Plaintiff does not respond in its opposition. (See ECF No. 6.) Therefore, there is 6 insufficient argument developed by the parties for the Court to determine whether Plaintiff’s 7 allegations with respect to driving on a suspended license are sufficient to establish probable 8 cause for the arrest. Second, with respect to a violation of California Penal Code § 148(a)(1), the 9 parties dispute whether there was probable cause based on the facts surrounding Plaintiff’s refusal 10 to exit the vehicle. (ECF No. 4-1 at 4; ECF No. 6 at 6–7.) Plaintiff alleges Nguyen discovered 11 Plaintiff’s license was suspended and asked him to exit the vehicle. (ECF No. 1 at 5.) Plaintiff 12 allegedly asked if he was being detained, but Nguyen did not initially respond. (Id.) Plaintiff 13 alleges that after he refused to exit, he repeated his question, and Nguyen confirmed Plaintiff was 14 being detained for driving on a suspended license. (Id.) Plaintiff — allegedly fearing for his 15 safety — indicated he would record the event, but Nguyen had already opened the driver’s door 16 and begun unbuckling Plaintiff’s seatbelt. (Id.) Giving Plaintiff the benefit of every reasonable 17 inference to be drawn from the allegations in his Complaint, Schermerhorn, 373 U.S. at 753 n.6, 18 the Court finds Plaintiff establishes a question of fact as to whether there was probable cause to 19 arrest him based on a violation of California Penal Code § 148(a)(1). Accordingly, Defendants’ 20 motion to dismiss Claims Two (false arrest), Three (false imprisonment), and Four (malicious 21 prosecution) is DENIED.¹

22
23 ¹ To the extent that Plaintiff decides to file an amended complaint and Defendant decides to 24 file another responsive pleading, the Court cautions the parties to examine California Vehicle Code § 14601.1(a) and its requirements closely.

25 Additionally, in the alternative, Defendants argue Claim Four should be dismissed 26 because Plaintiff has not alleged termination of proceedings in his favor and Defendants are 27 protected by the presumption of prosecutorial independence. (ECF No. 4-1 at 4–5.) However, 28 because the Court concludes Plaintiff has failed to allege sufficient facts to state a claim with respect to malicious prosecution (namely, probable cause), the Court need not address these arguments.

1 B. Claim Six

2 Defendants contend Plaintiff must plead a statutory duty or statutory basis for liability to 3 hold the City liable for negligence. (See ECF No. 4-1 at 6 (citing Lopez v. S. Cal. Rapid Transit 4 Dist., 40 Cal. 3d 780, 795 (1985)).) Plaintiff does not address this argument in his opposition.
5 (See ECF No. 6.) Consequently, Plaintiff concedes this argument. See Crandall v. Teamsters
6 Loc. No. 150, No. 2:23-CV-03043-KJM-CSK, 2024 WL 3889916, at *5 (E.D. Cal. Aug. 20, 7 2024) (finding plaintiff abandoned claims not raised in opposition to defendants’ motion to 8 dismiss). Therefore, Defendants’ motion to dismiss Claim Six against the City is GRANTED 9 without leave to amend.

10 C. Claims Seven through Nine

11 Defendants contend Plaintiff fails to state a Monell claim for failure to properly screen and 12 hire (Claim Seven), failure to supervise and discipline (Claim Eight), and failure to properly train 13 (Claim Nine) because he does not allege any past incidents where an individual’s constitutional 14 rights were violated in a manner similar to Plaintiff’s allegations. (ECF No. 4-1 at 7, 9.)
15 Moreover, Defendants assert the Complaint lacks allegations regarding any similar past incidents 16 involving the use of excessive force by individual Defendants or any other City employee, the 17 County’s hiring practices, or individual Defendants’ backgrounds sufficient to demonstrate the 18 City’s deliberate indifference to the potential for Plaintiff’s rights to be violated. (Id.)

19 In opposition, Plaintiff argues allegations of past similar incidents are not required at the 20 pleading stage to state claims for failure to properly screen, supervise and discipline, and 21 adequately train. (ECF No. 6 at 9.) Plaintiff contends he met the pleading requirements by 22 alleging the deprivation of a constitutional right, the existence of a municipal policy, the policy 23 reflects deliberate indifference to his rights, and the policy was the moving force behind the 24 constitutional violation. (Id. at 9–10.)

25 A municipality may not be vicariously liable under § 1983 for an injury caused by its 26 employee or agent. Monell v. Dep’t of Soc. Services of City of New York, 436 U.S. 658, 694 27 (1978). However, a municipal entity can be liable in a § 1983 case premised on: (1) an official 28 policy; (2) a “longstanding practice or custom which constitutes the standard operating procedure

1 of the local government entity”; (3) the act of an “official whose acts fairly represent official 2 policy such that the challenged action constituted official policy”; or (4) where “an official with 3 final policy-making authority ‘delegated that authority to, or ratified the decision of, a 4 subordinate.’” Price v. Sery, 513 F.3d 962, 966 (9th Cir. 2008); see also Trevino v. Gates, 99 5 F.3d 911, 918 (9th Cir. 1996). Additionally, a Monell claim “may not simply recite the elements 6 of a cause of action but must contain sufficient allegations of underlying facts to give fair notice 7 and to enable the opposing party to defend itself effectively.” AE ex rel. Hernandez v. Cnty. of 8 Tulare, 666 F.3d 631, 637 (9th Cir. 2012) (quoting Starr v. Baca, 652 F.3d 1202, 1216 (9th Cir.
9 2011)).

10 Where the plaintiff seeks to establish a Monell claim based on a longstanding custom, he 11 must prove that: (1) he possessed a constitutional right of which he was deprived; (2) the 12 municipality had a longstanding custom which amounted to a policy; (3) the custom amounts to 13 deliberate indifference to the plaintiff’s constitutional right; and (4) the custom is the moving 14 force behind the constitutional violation. See Dougherty v. City of Covina, 654 F.3d 892, 900 15 (9th Cir. 2011) (quoting Plumeau v. Sch. Dist. No. 40 Cnty. of Yamhill, 130 F.3d 432, 438 (9th 16 Cir. 1997)). “The custom must be so ‘persistent and widespread’ that it constitutes a ‘permanent 17 and well settled city policy.’” Trevino, 99 F.3d at 918 (quoting Monell, 436 U.S. at 691).
18 “Liability for improper custom may not be predicated on isolated or sporadic incidents; it must be 19 founded upon practices of sufficient duration, frequency and consistency that the conduct has 20 become a traditional method of carrying out policy.” Id. In rare instances, however, a plaintiff 21 may rely on “single-incident” liability, which is when “unconstitutional consequences of failing 22 to train could be so patently obvious that a city could be liable under § 1983 without proof of a 23 pre-existing pattern of violations.” Connick v. Thompson, 563 U.S. 51, 64 (2011).

24 Here, Plaintiff’s Complaint alleges the City and Police Department’s failure to properly 25 screen and hire, supervise and discipline, and train its officers — as a matter of custom, practice, 26 and policy — was done with deliberate indifference to Plaintiff’s constitutional rights, causing 27 harm to Plaintiff and others similarly situated. (See ECF No. 1 ¶¶ 53–57, 60–65, 69–72.)
28 However, Plaintiff failed to provide any factual support for these allegations, and only alleges in a

1 conclusory fashion the elements of the claim for Claims Seven through Nine. (See id.) 2 Conclusory Monell pleadings, without factual detail, are insufficient to survive a motion to 3 dismiss. See AE ex rel. Hernandez, 666 F.3d at 637 (holding to survive a motion to dismiss, a 4 plaintiff must do more than allege a Monell defendant “maintained or permitted an official policy, 5 custom or practice of knowingly permitting the occurrence of the type of wrongs” alleged 6 elsewhere in the complaint). Plaintiff does not allege prior incidents of excessive force involving 7 Nguyen, Gates, or other City employees, nor does he identify specific City policies or customs 8 that caused the alleged harm. (See ECF No. 1.) Plaintiff also does not allege a single incident 9 was “so patently obvious” the City could be liable “without proof of a pre-existing pattern of 10 violations.” Connick, 563 U.S. at 64. Consequently, the Court concurs with Defendants’ 11 assertion that Plaintiff’s allegations are merely a formulaic recitation of claim elements. (ECF 12 No. 4-1 at 9.) As such, Plaintiff’s Complaint fails to state a sufficient basis for Monell claims for 13 failure to screen and hire, supervise and discipline, or train. Accordingly, the Court GRANTS 14 Defendants’ motion to dismiss Claims Seven through Nine with leave to amend, as Plaintiff may 15 cure the deficiencies by alleging a specific past incident or relevant policies or customs.

16 D. Claim Ten

17 Defendants argue Plaintiff fails to state a Monell claim for excessive force (Claim Ten) 18 because he does not allege an official policy or prior similar incidents. (ECF No. 4-1 at 9.) 19 Defendants contend Plaintiff’s claim relies on an alleged unofficial custom, but notes Plaintiff has 20 not provided sufficient allegations of past excessive force incidents to establish such a custom.
21 (Id. at 9–10.) In response, Plaintiff asserts he has alleged the existence of policies based on the 22 actions of Nguyen and Gates as well as a causal link between these policies and the harm 23 suffered. (ECF No. 6 at 10.) Plaintiff further argues he has provided all available information he 24 is aware of to support his claims of widespread policies, despite lacking access to Defendants’ 25 internal communications. (Id.) In reply, Defendants assert that Plaintiff’s reliance on the conduct 26 of Nguyen and Gates, without pleading evidence of similar past incidents or any other facts, 27 cannot establish the existence of a policy that caused the violation of his rights. (ECF No. 8 at 5.)

28 ///

1 “Absent a formal government policy, [a plaintiff] must show a longstanding practice or 2 custom which constitutes the standard operating procedure of the local government entity . . . so 3 persistent and widespread that it constitutes a permanent and well settled . . . policy.” Trevino, 99 4 F.3d at 918. Furthermore, an isolated incident cannot be used to infer the existence of an 5 improper policy. Id.

6 Plaintiff alleges the Defendants were deliberately indifferent to widespread misconduct of 7 its officers in detaining citizens who had committed no crimes and in the application of 8 unnecessary and excessive use of force, Nguyen and Gates were acting pursuant to City policy, 9 and their conduct violated Plaintiff’s constitutional rights. (ECF No. 1 ¶¶ 76–80.) However, 10 Plaintiff fails to specify which policy the officers were following. (See id.) The Court finds 11 Plaintiff’s assertion that he has alleged the existence of a policy through Nguyen and Gates’s 12 conduct and its link to the harm suffered insufficient. (ECF No. 6 at 10.) Because Plaintiff does 13 not rely on a formal policy but rather on the officers’ conduct, he must demonstrate a 14 longstanding, widespread custom of excessive force. See Trevino, 99 F.3d at 918. Plaintiff’s 15 Complaint does not allege facts suggesting such a custom, nor does it reference any prior 16 incidents of excessive force involving Nguyen, Gates, or other City employees. (See ECF No. 1.) 17 Although Plaintiff alleges officers used excessive force by physically removing him from his 18 vehicle, forcing him to the ground, and repeatedly punching him in the face, an isolated incident 19 cannot support the inference of an improper policy. (See ECF No. 1 at 5, 12 ¶¶ 86–87); see also 20 Trevino, 99 F.3d at 918. Since Plaintiff has not alleged sufficient facts to establish a 21 longstanding, widespread practice or custom of excessive force, Defendants’ motion to dismiss 22 Claim Ten is GRANTED with leave to amend.

23 E. Claim Eleven

24 Defendants move to dismiss Plaintiff’s eleventh claim against the City, arguing that 25 California Civil Code § 52.1 (the “Bane Act”) does not on its face provide any claim against a 26 public entity and no statutory exception to public entity immunity under California Government 27 Code § 815 (“the Government Claims Act”) exists for Bane Act claims. (ECF No. 4-1 at 10 28 (citing Towery v. State of California, 14 Cal. App. 5th 226, 231–32 (2017), as modified (Aug. 14, 1 2017)). In opposition, Plaintiff argues the Bane Act authorizes liability against municipal 2 defendants. (ECF No. 6 at 11.) Plaintiff asserts he has sufficiently alleged a violation based on 3 the unconstitutional application of excessive force, in which Nguyen and Gates unreasonably and 4 without provocation forced him to the ground from his car, beat, wrestled, and pinned him to the 5 ground, where Gates continuously assaulted him in the face while Nguyen held him down. (Id. at 6 13.) Plaintiff further argues Defendants’ reliance on Hoff v. Vacaville Unified Sch. Dist., 19 Cal.

7 4th 925, 932 (1998), and Towery is inapposite to this matter. (Id. at 11–12.)

8 In reply, Defendants argue Towery clarifies that “nothing in the language of the Bane Act 9 indicates it creates even a general rule of actionable duty for public entities.” (ECF No. 8 at 5 10 (citing Towery, 14 Cal. App. 5th at 231–32).) Defendants also note that if Plaintiff intends to 11 hold the City vicariously liable for the acts of its employees, that statutory basis must be pleaded 12 with particularity. (Id. at 6.)

13 The California Government Claims Act provides: “Except as otherwise provided by 14 statute[,] [a] public entity is not liable for an injury, whether such injury arises out of an act or 15 omission of the public entity or a public employee or any other person.” Cal. Gov. Code § 815.
16 “California courts have interpreted § 815 to require a specific statutory basis for either direct or 17 indirect claims against a public entity.” Johnson v. Sacramento County, No. Civ. S-06-0169-18 RRB-GGH, 2007 WL 2391015, at *3 (E.D. Cal. Aug. 22, 2007) (internal citations omitted). “As 19 to vicarious liability, [§] 815.2(a) of the California Government Code ‘expressly makes the 20 doctrine of respondeat superior applicable to public employers.’” Mullins v. County of Fresno, 21 No. 1:21-cv-00405-AWI-SAB, 2021 WL 5304015, at *7 (E.D. Cal. Nov. 15, 2021) (citing Hoff, 22 19 Cal. 4th at 932). Plaintiffs “must plead the statutory basis for a claim against a government 23 entity,” and “[f]ailure to do so provides a ground for dismissal under Rule 12(b)(6).” Id. (citing 24 cases).

25 The Bane Act “provides a damage claim for any ‘individual whose exercise or enjoyment 26 of rights secured by the Constitution or laws of the United States, or of rights secured by the 27 Constitution or laws of this state, has been interfered with, or attempted to be interfered with, as 28 described in subdivision (a).” Towery, 14 Cal. App. 5th at 233 (citing Cal. Civil Code § 52.1(b)).

1 Civil Code § 52.1(a) applies “[i]f a person or persons, whether or not acting under color of law, 2 interferes by threat, intimidation, or coercion, or attempts to interfere by threat, intimidation or 3 coercion, with the exercise or enjoyment by any individual or individuals’ of constitutional 4 rights.” Id. (emphasis in original). Although the section does not define “person,” California 5 Civil Code § 14 provides that, as used in that code, “the word person includes a corporation as 6 well as a natural person.” Id.

7 Here, Plaintiff alleges “Defendants interfered with Plaintiff’s rights under the Fourth 8 Amendment of the United States Constitution . . . by the use of force” and the “interference with 9 Plaintiff’s rights was perpetrated by Defendants in violation of California Civil Code § 52.1[.]” 10 (ECF No. 1 ¶¶ 86– 87.) While Plaintiff argues the Bane Act authorizes liability against a 11 municipal defendant because the statute states, “whether or not acting under the color of law” 12 (ECF No. 6 at 11), Plaintiff ignores the Bane Act also states “person” or “persons” — meaning it 13 does not apply directly to public entities. See Valadez v. Cnty. of Los Angeles, No. 2:20-CV-14 03724-JWH-SKX, 2020 WL 11271959, at *6 (C.D. Cal. Dec. 30, 2020) (“[T]he language of the 15 Bane Act only applies to a ‘person’ or ‘persons,’ and, thus, it does not apply to a public entity.”)
16 Therefore, the Court finds the Bane Act does not authorize direct liability against the City.²

17 Further, the Court finds Plaintiff’s discussion of Hoff and Towery unpersuasive. (See ECF 18 No. 6 at 11–13.) As the Court has already found the Bane Act does not provide a private cause of 19 action against public entities, Plaintiff’s argument regarding Hoff on this point is moot. The 20 Court finds several issues with Plaintiff’s interpretation and application of Towery. First, the fact

21 ² As an additional note, the Court agrees with both Plaintiff and Defendants that Towery 22 establishes public entities may be vicariously liable for their employees. (ECF No. 6 at 12; ECF 23 No. 8 at 5.) However, unlike other cases involving vicarious liability claims against public 24 entities, Plaintiff does not explicitly allege vicarious liability against the City. (See ECF No. 1); 25 see also Page v. County of Madera, No. 1:17-CV-00849-DAD-EPG, 2017 WL 5998227, at *5 26 (E.D. Cal. Dec. 4, 2017) (“Plaintiff alleges that the public entity defendants are vicariously liable 27 for the acts of its employees pursuant to Cal. Gov’t Code § 815.2.”). Instead, Plaintiff appears to 28 allege only direct liability because Plaintiff alleges his rights were “perpetrated by the Defendants” and initially argued the Bane Act provided a private cause of action against public entities. (ECF No. 1 ¶ 87 (emphasis added); ECF No. 6 at 11.) Because Plaintiff does not allege vicarious liability, any direct liability claim against the City must rely on a distinct statutory basis, as the Bane Act does not provide a legal foundation for liability against the City and public entities are not liable for injuries unless provided by statute. Hoff, 19 Cal. 4th at 932.

1 that the instant matter does not involve California Government Code § 844.6 or inmate injuries is 2 irrelevant. Defendants are correct that Towery clarifies “nothing in the language of the Bane Act 3 indicates that it creates even a general rule of actionable duty for public entities.” (ECF No. 8 at 5 4 (citing Towery, 14 Cal. App. 5th at 231–32).) Moreover, even if the Court were to find Towery 5 applicable, other courts have held the Bane Act does not provide a valid statutory basis for 6 imposing direct liability on public entities, further confirming the Bane Act does not override the 7 immunity granted to public entities under § 815. See Valadez, 2020 WL 11271959, at *6.
8 Finally, the Court finds Plaintiff’s discussion of “specific immunity” and “general immunity” 9 unpersuasive, as the Towery court does not mention “general immunity” at all. (ECF No. 6 at 10 12); see Towery, 14 Cal. App. 5th 226. While Towery explains specific immunity cannot be 11 overridden by a statute imposing a general duty, it does not support Plaintiff’s argument that 12 Defendants’ failure to cite a specific immunity, like § 844, means the Bane Act applies to the 13 City. (ECF No. 6 at 12–13); Towery, 14 Cal. App. 5th at 233. On the contrary, the Towery court 14 held the Bane Act does not provide an exception to immunity under the plain language of §§ 815
15 and 844.6. Towery, 14 Cal. App. 5th at 233. Therefore, just as § 844 grants immunity to public 16 entities, § 815 similarly provides immunity for public entities against Bane Act claims.

17 In sum, Defendants’ reliance on § 815 is sufficient to support their motion, as the Bane 18 Act does not provide a statutory basis for holding public entities, such as the City, directly liable.
19 (See ECF No. 4-1 at 10.) Accordingly, Defendants’ motion to dismiss Claim Eleven as to the 20 City is GRANTED. However, since Plaintiff may amend the Complaint to allege vicarious 21 liability for Nguyen and Gates’s conduct, dismissal is with leave to amend.

22 F. Claim Twelve

23 Defendants argue that Claim Twelve (injunctive relief) should be dismissed because 24 injunctive relief is a remedy, not a cause of action. (See ECF No. 4-1 at 10.) In opposition, 25 Plaintiff contends the Court should treat Claim Twelve as a request for equitable relief, as 26 California Civil Code § 52.1 provides a private right to injunctive relief. (ECF No. 6 at 14.)
27 Plaintiff additionally argues that striking the request based on the Complaint’s inartful 28 presentation would unjustly deprive him of a statutory remedy. (Id.)

1 “A request for injunctive relief by itself does not state a cause of action[.]” Jensen v.
2 Quality Loan Service Corp., 702 F. Supp. 2d 1183, 1201 (E.D. Cal. 2010). “Declaratory and 3 injunctive relief are not independent claims, rather they are forms of relief.” Lane v. Vitek Real 4 Estate Indus. Grp., 713 F. Supp. 2d 1092, 1104 (E.D. Cal. 2010). “A pleading can request 5 injunctive relief in connection with a substantive claim, but a separately [pleaded] claim or cause 6 of action for injunctive relief is inappropriate.” Jensen, 702 F. Supp. 2d at 1201; see also 7 Gardner v. Nationstar Mortg. LLC, No. 2:14-CV-1583-TLN-CKD, 2015 WL 1405539, at *12 8 (E.D. Cal. Mar. 26, 2015) (dismissing the plaintiff’s claim for declaratory and injunctive relief on 9 the basis that declaratory and injunctive relief are forms of relief, not independent claims).

10 Here, Plaintiff alleges “unless enjoined, Defendants will continue to engage in the unlaw 11 act and . . . policies and practices described above[.]” (ECF No. 1 at 16 ¶ 95.) Based on these 12 allegations, Plaintiff seeks injunctive or equitable relief, implicitly acknowledging this request by 13 asking the Court to treat Claim Twelve as a request for equitable relief. (See ECF No. 6 at 14.)
14 Therefore, Plaintiff’s claim for injunctive relief is similarly dismissed.

15 Accordingly, Defendants’ motion to dismiss Claim Twelve is GRANTED. If Plaintiff 16 prevails on any other cause of action, and declaratory or injunctive relief are the appropriate 17 remedy, then those forms of relief remain available, just as economic damages are available.
18 Plaintiff should clarify in any future filing whether there is a basis for separate causes of action 19 for injunctive relief. Therefore, dismissal is without leave to amend.

20 IV. CONCLUSION

21 For the foregoing reasons, the Court hereby GRANTS Defendants’ motion to dismiss 22 (ECF No. 4) as follows:

- 23 1. Defendants’ motion is GRANTED as to Claim One with leave to amend;
- 24 2. Defendants’ motion is DENIED as to Claims Two through Four;
- 25 3. Defendants’ motion is GRANTED as to Claim Six against the City without leave 26 to amend;
- 27 4. Defendants’ motion is GRANTED as to Claims Seven through Nine with leave to 28 amend;
