

1
2
3
4 IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
5 FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

6 EDWARD ALVARADO, et al.,

No. C 04-0098 SI, No. C 04-0099 SI

7 Plaintiffs,

8 v.

ORDER DENYING McCOY'S
"LETTER BRIEF" REQUESTING
RECONSIDERATION OF DECEMBER
19, 2011 ORDER DIRECTING CLERK
TO DISBURSE INTERPLED FUNDS TO EDWARD ALVARADO AND
CHARLOTTE BOSWELL

9 FEDERAL EXPRESS CORPORATION,

10 Defendant.

United States District Court
For the Northern District of California

11
12 On December 20, 2011, Waukeen McCoy filed a "letter brief" requesting reconsideration of the 13 Court's December 19, 2011 Order Directing Clerk to Disburse Interpled Funds to Edward Alvarado and 14 Charlotte Boswell. McCoy asserts that he is entitled to 40% of each plaintiffs' total jury awards, and 15 thus that the majority of the remaining interpled funds should be released to him ($144,597 from 16 Alvarado and $262,644 from Boswell).

17 McCoy's request for reconsideration is DENIED on both procedural and substantive grounds.
18 First, McCoy's "letter brief" is procedurally improper. Civil Local Rule 7-9 sets forth the procedure 19 for seeking reconsideration of an order. Under that rule, a party must file a motion requesting leave to 20 file a motion for reconsideration. Civil Local Rule 7-9. Letter briefs seeking reconsideration are not 21 permitted. Further, a party seeking leave to file a motion for reconsideration must specifically show:

- 22 (1) That at the time of the motion for leave, a material difference in fact or law exists
23 from that which was presented to the Court before entry of the interlocutory 24 order for which reconsideration is sought. The party also must show that in the 25 exercise of reasonable diligence the party applying for reconsideration did not 26 know such fact or law at the time of the interlocutory order; or 27 (2) The emergence of new material facts or a change of law occurring after the time
28 of such order; or
(3) A manifest failure by the Court to consider material facts or dispositive legal arguments which were presented to the Court before such interlocutory order.

Civil Local Rule 7-9(b)(1)-(3).

1 McCoy has not made and cannot make this showing because the claim that he filed to the 2 interpled funds did not assert that he was entitled to a contingent recovery out of the interpled funds.
3 On September 30, 2011, the Court issued an order resolving the statutory fee petitions, and on October
4 12, 2011 the Court issued an Order to Show Cause re: Claims to Interpled Funds. McCoy filed a claim
5 to the interpled funds, Docket No. 1772. Although McCoy sought $355,633.63 from the interpled jury
6 awards, McCoy did not seek any contingent fees from the interpled funds: McCoy's claim sought (1)
7 $37,678.50 of expert fees paid to Carlene Young, (2) $24,000 in compensatory sanctions that the Court
8 awarded against McCoy in connection with the proceedings before the Special Master, and (3)
9 approximately $293,955.13 in attorneys' fees incurred by McCoy in connection with litigating his 10 amended statutory fee petition. If McCoy had wished to seek contingent fees from the interpled funds,
11 he should have sought those fees in the claim that he filed, not in a letter brief seeking reconsideration,
12 to allow for full briefing on the matter and to afford plaintiffs the opportunity to address McCoy's claim 13 to contingent fees.

14 Second, as a substantive matter, the authority McCoy cites in his letter brief does not support
15 his position that he is entitled to a full 40% contingent fee in addition to the almost $1 million in 16 statutory fees that the Court awarded. The cases cited by McCoy address whether fee shifting statutes 17 "invalidate[d] contingent-fee contracts that would require a prevailing civil rights plaintiff to pay his 18 attorney more than the statutory award against the defendant." Venegas v. Mitchell, 495 U.S. 82, 83-84
19 (1990) (addressing 42 U.S.C. § 1988); Govert v. Williams, 323 F.3d 1099, 1100 (5th Cir. 2003)
20 (applying Venegas to 42 U.S.C. § 2000e-5(k)). The Court has never held that McCoy's statutory fee
21 award invalidates the contingent-fee contracts between plaintiffs and McCoy. Instead, the Court's 22 September 30, 2011 order stated,

23 The Court has also heeded the Ninth Circuit's caution to consider the possible effect on 24 the plaintiffs of denying McCoy a statutory fee, namely that "if McCoy is unable to 25 collect statutory attorney's fees from FedEx he may be able to collect contractual
26 attorney's fees from the clients. In that event, it would be the clients rather than McCoy
27 who would suffer the adverse consequences of McCoy's misconduct in seeking fees."
Docket No. 1553 at 6. It is the Court's view that because the statutory fee awards 28 granted in this order exceed 40% of the jury awards sustained on appeal, neither Parker nor McCoy is entitled to any contingent fees from trial clients Alvarado and Boswell.

Docket No. 1752 at 56:11-17. The Court's view that McCoy is not entitled to recover any contingent

1 fees from plaintiffs is both consistent with the Ninth Circuit's caution to this Court, as well as with the
2 authority that McCoy cited in his letter brief. Venegas and Gobert both addressed situations where the
3 contingent fee was more than the statutory fee, and the clients sought to invalidate the fee agreements
4 to avoid paying any contingent fees. Indeed, in Venegas, the Supreme Court affirmed the Ninth
5 Circuit's decision, Venegas v. Skaggs, 867 F.2d 527, 534 n.7 (9th Cir. 1989), in which the Ninth Circuit
6 stated,

7       Where the district court concludes that a contingent fee that exceeds the statutory award
8 is reasonable, the plaintiff may be required to pay the difference between the 1988 award
9 paid by the defendant and the contingent fee. Hamner, 769 F.2d at 1409. The plaintiff's attorneys are not entitled to both the statutory award and the full amount of the contingent fee.

10 Id. at 534 n.7.

11       Here, unlike Venegas, McCoy's statutory fee award significantly exceeds the maximum possible
12 contingent fee.<sup>1</sup> Thus, even if the fee agreement applied to plaintiffs' jury awards, because McCoy
13 obtained a statutory fee from FedEx that exceeds the contingent fees, the Court finds that McCoy is not 14 entitled to contingent fees from his former clients.

15       IT IS SO ORDERED.

16 Dated: December 23, 2011

17 _____
18 SUSAN ILLSTON
United States District Judge

19       <sup>1</sup> McCoy's letter brief assumes that the fee agreements apply to plaintiffs' jury awards.
20 However, as the Court found in its September 27, 2010 order in C 09-485 SI (Docket No. 63 at 11:5-12 21 in C 09-485 SI) the plain language of the fee agreements does not address the fee arrangement in the event of a judgment at trial. The fee agreements state,

22       We have agreed to the following attorney fee arrangement: (a) 33 1/3% of any amounts
23 received or recovered by way of settlement prior to mediation and/or arbitration; (b) 40% of any amounts received or recovered by way of settlement after arbitration, mediation, or trial.

24 Id. at 2:16-18. In C 09-485 SI, plaintiffs Alvarado and Boswell argued that the fee agreements did not
25 explicitly provide for attorneys' fees in the event of a recovery by arbitration or trial, and that the failure
26 to provide for fees upon recovery by arbitration or trial was by design, it being contemplated that in such 27 event the attorneys would be compensated solely by means of statutory fees awarded by the court and 28 not by a percentage of the recovery. Conversely, Mr. McCoy asserted that he and his former clients intended for both a contingent recovery and statutory fees. In ruling on the plaintiffs' motion for summary judgment, the Court held that because the plain language of the fee agreement did not address the fee arrangement in the event of a judgment at trial, questions surrounding McCoy's entitlement to a statutory and/or contingent fee would be resolved in C 04-0098 SI.