Ryan -

We do not believe the email exchange we've had obviates the advisability of having a telephone meet and confer as soon as possible, and we assumed we would still have the previously scheduled meet and confer with you this afternoon. We have made numerous efforts to address the scheduling issue on the class certification motion deadline, and are willing to further discuss that issue today to find a mutually acceptable date. We also need to discuss the schedule and organization of our further document production and anticipated depositions. Each day the schedule is unresolved is another day we cannot efficiently ramp up our production, which is not our preference given the tight schedule. If you do not wish to have the meet and confer, and are canceling it, there is nothing we can do, but please understand the door is open to discussing these scheduling issues and trying to find an agreed upon resolution.

Dave:

Thanks for the e-mail and voice mail.

We had assumed that today's conference call was off-calendar in light of the parties' recent e-mail correspondence. We are prepared to meet and confer later in the week, if necessary.

Ryan

Ryan,

I am writing to confirm that we are still on for our meet and confer scheduled for 5pm EST today. David and I would prefer an earlier time, but will make ourselves available at 5pm if that is the only time that works for you. Please let us know. Thanks.

Dave
