Hi Carlos,

I have a JD Edwards account, Vanguard Managed Solutions. The customer has requested to cancel support as they feel it's too expensive, their company is shrinking and splitting into 2 and they are not likely to continue upgrades in the future.

Do you have any thoughts or input on this situation? I have noted the contract below and support amount.

Contract: P-JD-M02419-000—56 annual fee is $82,870.58

I have attached the product list that is currently supported via this contract.

Thanks,
Lori

Yes they are my account. While I am not surprised by David's comments it is worth noting for David that there would be no opportunity for Vanguard to assign some or all of the JDE asset if the company does in fact split or divest some of their assets/organization. (That said, I am not familiar with their particular JDE agreement so I am not sure that includes any language that empowers assignment at all) Just a thought...

John,

Is Vanguard Managed Solutions your account?

If so, I received the following email from David Hartling stating they will be dropping support. I wanted to see if you were aware and or if you have any additional insight on this.

thanks,
Lori

Hi Lori--

Sorry for not letting you know sooner. It is just to expensive, and we did not need support last year, except one time that was minor. Our company is shrinking and splitting into 2, and we are not likely to continue forward with JDE upgrades in the future.

thanks...Dave Hartling
