

1 the Court is plaintiff's motion for a preliminary injunction. Defendants have opposed the 2 motions.

3 A. Motions for Continuance and Court-Ordered Physical Examination

4 As noted, plaintiff has moved for a Rule 56(f) continuance to file his opposition to 5 defendants' motion to dismiss. Specifically, plaintiff states he is seeking to conduct 6 discovery in order to raise a triable issue with respect to whether defendants acted with 7 deliberate indifference to his serious medical needs. In furtherance thereof, plaintiff asks the 8 Court to order he be given a physical examination by an internist at the University of 9 California, and that the date of his opposition to the motion to dismiss be continued until he 10 has received the internist's written report; additionally, plaintiff seeks discovery to dispute 11 the veracity of a medical report on which defendants rely and which states plaintiff has 12 refused proffered medical treatment and, due to his "high level of paranoia and manic 13 behavior," he is unlikely to receive "treatment, testing or medication" for his Hepatitis C.
14 (Mot. to Dismiss at 13:3-7.)

15 Rule 56(f) is a subsection of the rules governing summary judgment motions and 16 provides, in relevant part:

17 Should it appear from the affidavits of a party opposing the motion [for 18 summary judgment] that the party cannot for reasons stated present by affidavit 19 facts essential to justify the party's opposition, the court may refuse the 20 application for judgment or may order a continuance to permit affidavits to be obtained or depositions to be taken or discovery to be had or may make such other order as is just.

21 Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(f).

22 As noted, defendants have filed a motion to dismiss. Consequently, Rule 56(f) is not 23 applicable to the instant proceedings. Nor, as set forth below, is plaintiff's request for a 24 continuance to conduct discovery prior to filing an opposition to such motion warranted.

25 As an initial matter, plaintiff has not shown the type of factual development he seeks 26 is relevant to the issue of whether certain of plaintiff's claims are unexhausted. In particular, 27 the only evidence plaintiff must present to successfully oppose such motion is evidence that 28 shows either that the claims are exhausted or that some legally-recognized exception to

1 exhaustion applies. As was explained to plaintiff in the Court's order of service:

2 In the event defendants file an unenumerated motion to dismiss under Rule 3 12(b), plaintiff is hereby cautioned as follows:

4 The defendants have made a motion to dismiss pursuant to Rule 12(b) of the 5 Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, on the ground you have not exhausted your 6 administrative remedies. The motion will, if granted, result in the dismissal of 7 your case. When a party you are suing makes a motion to dismiss for failure to 8 exhaust, and that motion is properly supported by declarations (or other sworn 9 testimony) and/or documents, you may not simply rely on what your complaint
10 says. Instead, you must set out specific facts in declarations, depositions, 11 answers to interrogatories, or documents, that contradict the facts shown in the 12 defendant's declarations and documents and show that you have in fact 13 exhausted your claims. If you do not submit your own evidence in opposition, 14 the motion to dismiss, if appropriate, may be granted and the case dismissed.

15 (Order, filed April 6, 2009, at 4:19-5:2 (footnote omitted).)

16 Additionally, the court's review of a motion to dismiss under Rule 12(b)(6) is limited
17 to the contents of the complaint, see Clegg v. Cult Awareness Network, 18 F.3d 752, 754-55
18 (9th Cir. 1994), including documents physically attached to the complaint or documents on 19 which the complaint necessarily relies and whose authenticity is not contested. See Lee v.
20 County of Los Angeles, 250 F.3d 668, 688 (9th Cir. 2001). Consequently, a pro se plaintiff 21 who has alleged well-pleaded facts supporting a claim for relief "can simply rest on the 22 assumed truthfulness and liberal construction afforded his complaint." See Curtis v.
23 Bembenek, 48 F.3d 281, 287 (7th Cir. 1995).

24 Next, plaintiff has not shown he is entitled to a court order for a physical examination 25 pursuant to Rule 35, which provides in relevant part:

26 The court where the action is pending may order a party whose mental or 27 physical condition – including blood group – is in controversy to submit to a 28 physical or mental examination by a suitably licensed or certified examiner.

Fed. R. Civ. P. 35(a)(1). The order may be made only on motion for good cause shown. Id.
35(a)(2)(A).

In response to plaintiff's motion, defendants argue that plaintiff's physical condition is not in controversy in the instant action because it is undisputed that plaintiff suffers from Hepatitis C. Rather, defendants submit, the only question at issue is whether defendants acted with deliberate indifference to plaintiff's serious medical needs by failing to properly

1 treat his illness. Although plaintiff argues his current physical condition is in controversy
2 because his claims include an allegation of physical injury resulting from defendants' 3 inadequate medical care, the Court, given the pendency of defendants' motion to dismiss the 4 complaint on procedural grounds, need not at this time resolve the parties dispute as to the 5 propriety of an order under Rule 35.

6 Accordingly, plaintiff's motions for a Rule 56(f) continuance and for a court-ordered 7 physical examination under Rule 35 will be denied without prejudice to refiling if plaintiff's 8 complaint survives defendants' motion to dismiss and defendants thereafter file a motion for 9 summary judgment. Plaintiff will, however, be granted one further extension of time to file 10 opposition to defendants' motion to dismiss.

11 B. Motion for Preliminary Injunction¹

12 At the time plaintiff initially filed his motion for a preliminary injunction, he was 13 incarcerated at the California State Prison, Los Angeles County ("LAC"). By way of such 14 motion, plaintiff sought an order restraining prison officials at LAC from seizing plaintiff's 15 legal mail, as well as orders directing that a medical hold be placed on plaintiff pending
16 resolution of his motion for a Rule 35 physical examination, that prison officials at LAC 17 provide him with prescription glasses, that his medical plan be restored, and that he not be 18 subjected to retaliation. Subsequently, plaintiff was transferred back to SVSP, the location at 19 which the claims in the instant action arose and where he currently resides. Plaintiff 20 thereafter wrote this Court, stating he believes prison officials at SVSP will continue to 21 retaliate against him by housing him in "the hole" and failing to provide him with access to 22 his legal property. He seeks an order that he be "housed properly" and that SVSP prison 23 officials give him his legal and other property. (Notice of Change of Address (Docket No.
24 44) at 5).

25 "A plaintiff seeking a preliminary injunction must establish that he is likely to succeed 26 on the merits, that he is likely to suffer irreparable harm in the absence of preliminary relief,

27
28 ¹Together with his motion, plaintiff has filed a motion for leave to exceed the court's twenty-five page limit. The motion will be granted.

1 that the balance of equities tips in his favor, and that an injunction is in the public interest.”
2 Winter v. Natural Resources Defense Council, Inc., 129 S. Ct. 365, 374 (2008).

3 At the outset, the Court notes that plaintiff’s earlier request for preliminary injunctive
4 relief, made by plaintiff while he was incarcerated at LAC, is now moot, as plaintiff no
5 longer is incarcerated at such facility. Further, with respect to the more recent request, 6 specifically, that the Court direct he be moved from “the hole” at SVSP back to the general 7 population, in order to facilitate his access to his legal property for purposes of litigating the 8 instant action, plaintiff has made no showing as to a likelihood of irreparable harm if such 9 request is not granted.

10 Additionally, the Court finds that, at this stage of the proceedings, plaintiff has not 11 shown he is likely to succeed on the merits of his claim that defendants acted with deliberate 12 indifference to his serious medical needs by failing to properly treat him for Hepatitis C. In 13 particular, the evidence before the Court at this time shows that during the approximately 14 fifteen-month period wherein plaintiff was under the medical care of the defendants to the 15 instant action, i.e., from May 2007 through August 2008, he was seen by his primary 16 physician and numerous medical specialists on at least twenty-six occasions. (Defs.’ Opp.
17 Mot. Prelim. Inj. at 5.) While such evidence is not conclusive of defendants’ subjective state 18 of mind as to plaintiff’s treatment, it is highly probative thereof and gives rise to a reasonable 19 inference that defendants did not act with deliberate indifference to plaintiff’s serious 20 medical needs. Further, as plaintiff has not yet opposed defendants’ motion to dismiss the 21 complaint on procedural grounds, there is no evidence presently before the Court that 22 suggests defendants will not prevail on such motion.

23 Accordingly, plaintiff’s motion for a preliminary injunction will be denied.

24 CONCLUSION

25 For the reasons stated above, the Court orders as follows:

- 26 1. Plaintiff’s motion for a Rule 56(f) continuance is hereby DENIED.
- 27 2. Plaintiff’s motion for a Rule 35 court-ordered physical examination is hereby
