

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

United States District Court
For the Northern District of California

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

Laura Aguilera,

No. C 10-0184 JL

Plaintiff,

DISMISSAL WITH PREJUDICE

v.

Hilltop Lending Corporation, et al.,

Defendants.

I. Introduction

This lawsuit was originally filed in Alameda County Superior Court and removed by Defendants as authorized by 28 U.S.C. §1331, this Court having original jurisdiction under 15 U.S.C. §1601, the Truth in Lending Act (“TILA”). All parties consented to this Court’s jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. §636(c). Plaintiff’s motion to remand to state court and for an award of attorney’s fees and costs (Docket # 4), and Defendants’ motion to dismiss, to strike punitive damages claim, and to lift lis pendens (Docket # 8, 26) came on for hearing. Attorney for Plaintiff was Stevan J. Henriouille, Law Office of Uy & Henriouille; Attorney for Defendants was Justin D. Balsler, AKERMAN SENTERFITT LLP, Los Angeles, California and Denver, Colorado.

The Court carefully considered the moving and opposing papers and the arguments of counsel and hereby grants Defendants’ motion to dismiss, to strike claims for punitive

1 damages, and to lift the lis pendens. Plaintiff's motion to remand and for an award of 2 attorney fees is denied as moot.

3 In its motion to dismiss, Aurora Loan Services LLC (Aurora) demonstrated that 4 Plaintiff's claims fail because, among other things,

5 (i) she has not tendered the indebtedness, which is a prerequisite under California
6 law to any claims seeking relief from a foreclosure sale;

7 (ii) there is no requirement in California for the lender to "produce the original note"
8 before foreclosing; and

9 (iii) Aurora, the loan's servicer, did not participate in the loan's origination and cannot 10 be held liable for any of the wrongs plaintiff alleges when she obtained the loan.

11 Plaintiff argues that the tender rule, which has repeatedly been upheld by California
12 Federal District Courts, including in the last few weeks, is "antiquated." She also continues
13 to demand the production of the original note and references problems with the loan's 14 origination without explaining any connection between any alleged conduct by the broker or 15 originating lender and Aurora. Plaintiff's opposition does not refute the arguments in 16 Aurora's motion to dismiss and does not save the complaint, which should be dismissed
17 with prejudice.

18 II. Factual Background, per Plaintiff

19 The Complaint in this action alleges that around July, 2007, Plaintiff was approved
20 for a bifurcated transaction, resulting in a $537,600.00 first loan and a $134,400.00 second
21 loan to facilitate Plaintiff's purchase of the property situated at 981 Hollice Lane, Livermore, 22 California.

23 After discussing Plaintiff's situation in Spanish, the loan was processed and 24 approved as a stated income loan, with no attempts at income analysis made by any 25 Defendants. Plaintiff was not required by any Defendant to submit any substantial 26 documentation for her loan beyond basic debt and asset verification – in large part because 27 failure to perform their own due diligence had the direct effect of fattening Defendants' own 28 proverbial wallets. Indeed, Plaintiff's loan payments eventually ballooned from $1,900.00 to

1 $5,575.52 under the terms of her usurious loans. No consideration of the ability of Plaintiff
2 to repay her loan with any sort of realistic means test was made by Defendants. No attempt
3 was made to verify Plaintiff's income in the form of W-2's or tax returns, nor did the 4 mortgage funder in its underwriting process analyze Plaintiff's income levels to any degree,
5 instead approving the loan on the basis of credit score and foreclosure value of the 6 property, in order to ensure that Defendants would reap tidy profits from an overly hefty
7 mortgage, property to resell after seizure via foreclosure, or some combination of the two.
8 Moreover, none of the Defendants explained to Plaintiff the nature and consequences or 9 the advantages and disadvantages of an Adjustable Rate Note. In addition, Plaintiff did not 10 comprehend that the interest rate of the loan would rise precipitously, beginning within 11 months.

12 Plaintiff was not forewarned of the possible negative effects of executing an 13 Adjustable Rate Note. Plaintiff was not given a meaningful opportunity to look for an 14 alternative source of funds to purchase her property, nor was she given the opportunity to 15 compare the terms and conditions of Defendants' loan to the loan packages of other 16 lenders, as the loan was rushed towards closing.

17 Plaintiff purportedly also signed and delivered a Deed of Trust, wherein Plaintiff (as 18 trustor) conveyed to Financial Title Co. (as trustee) an interest in the subject Property as 19 security for payment of her Notes to Defendants. A later July 2, 2009 Substitution of 20 Trustee purported to replace Financial Title Company with Defendant Cal-Western 21 Reconveyance Corp.

22 On or about December 15, 2008, a Notice of Default and Election to Sell was 23 recorded in the Official Records of Alameda County, California. A Notice of Trustee's Sale
24 was subsequently recorded on August 24, 2009, and a Trustee's Deed Upon Sale recorded 25 on October 10, 2009, after AURORA obtained legal title to the property. Subsequent to the 26 illegal foreclosure, AURORA prosecuted an illegal Unlawful Detainer action and evicted
27 Plaintiff and her family.

28

1 Plaintiff is informed and believes that the entity which is engaging in foreclosure and
2 eviction proceedings on the Subject Property was not the Holder of the Promissory Note
3 and Deed of Trust, and did not have both those documents in their possession at the time
4 the foreclosure proceedings was initiated. Plaintiff also alleges that the foreclosing
5 Defendant was not the Holder in Due Course and thus was not entitled to foreclose on the 6 Subject real Property or subsequently evict Plaintiff and the other occupants of Subject
7 Property.

8 Plaintiff further alleges in her Complaint that the foreclosing Defendants had no legal 9 authority to commence the foreclosing process regarding the subject real property because 10 of the illegality of the transaction, which nullifies the obligation of the Plaintiff, combined
11 with fraud that induced Plaintiff to sign her security instruments with neither knowledge nor 12 reasonable opportunity to learn of its character or its essential terms.

13 The Complaint alleges that it was not until about the time of the commencement of 14 the foreclosure proceedings that Plaintiff became aware of the violations of federal and 15 state laws and the wrongdoing of Defendants as alleged herein. The Actions and 16 representations of Defendants caused Plaintiff not to be put on notice of the illegality of the 17 transaction and of her rights of recourse for the actions of Defendants. Plaintiff had relied 18 on the statements and actions of Defendants, placing faith and confidence in the 19 relationship between Plaintiff and the Defendants. Ultimately, she was lulled into a false
20 sense of security and misdirected from the illegal acts of Defendants as alleged in Plaintiff's
21 Complaint.

22 III. ANALYSIS

23 A. The Tender Rule bars any claims seeking to set aside the sale

24 Plaintiff does not dispute that the foreclosure sale has already occurred. Accordingly, 25 as California Federal District Courts have repeatedly held, any challenge to the sale would 26 require plaintiff to tender the indebtedness. In a recent decision, Kozhayev v. America's 27 Wholesale Lender, No. Civ. S-09-2841, 2010 WL 3036001, at *4 (E.D. Cal. July 30, 2010),
28 for example, Judge Drozd of the Eastern District noted:

1 "A valid and viable tender of payment of the indebtedness owing is essential to an
2 action to cancel a voidable sale under a deed of trust." Karlsen v. American Sav. &
3 Loan Assn., 15 Cal.App.3d 112, 117 (Cal. App. 2d Dist. 1971). The overwhelming
4 majority of California district courts utilize the Karlsen rationale in examining 5 wrongful foreclosure claims. Anaya v. Advisors Lending Group, 2009 U.S. Dist.
6 LEXIS 68373, 2009 WL 2424037 (E.D. Cal. August 3, 2009) ("Plaintiff offers nothing
7 to indicate that she is able to tender her debt to warrant disruption of nonjudicial
8 foreclosure"); Alicea v. GE Money Bank, No. 09-0091 SBA, 2009 WL 2136969, at *3
9 (N.D. Cal. July 16, 2009) ("When a debtor is in default of a home mortgage loan, and 10 a foreclosure is either pending or has taken place, the debtor must allege a credible 11 tender of the amount of the secured debt to maintain any cause of action for 12 foreclosure."); Montoya v. Countrywide Bank, No. C09-00641 JW, 2009 WL
13 1813973 (N.D. Cal. June 25, 2009) ("Under California law, the "tender rule" requires
14 that as a precondition to challenging a foreclosure sale, or any cause of action 15 implicitly integrated to the sale, the borrower must make a valid and viable tender of 16 payment of the secured debt"). The application of the "tender rule" prevents "a court
17 from uselessly setting aside a foreclosure sale on a technical ground when the party
18 making the challenge has not established his ability to purchase the property."
19 Williams v. Countrywide Home Loans, No. C 99-0242 SC, 1999 WL 740375, at *2
20 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 15, 1999).

21 Based on this, he further held that "[b]ecause plaintiffs have not alleged any facts 22 supporting their ability to tender payment, defendants' motion to dismiss those causes of 23 action seeking to enjoin foreclosure proceedings or order rescission of the loan agreement
24 should be granted." Kozhayev, 2010 WL 3036001, at *4.

25 Plaintiff's argument that the tender rule is inapplicable because it is "antiquated" is 26 simply untrue.

27 B. The lender does not need to produce the Note to foreclose

28 Plaintiff argues she cannot show the sale was in any way defective because 29 Defendants have refused to produce the original note (allegedly to show there was no
30 separation of the note from the deed of trust). As an initial matter, plaintiff fails to explain
31 when, if ever, she made such a demand before the sale occurred. In any event, there is no
32 requirement under California law that the lender possess or produce the note before
33 initiating foreclosure. In Gumbs v. Litton Loan Servicing, No. 2:09-cv-01159-GEB-GGH,
34 2010 WL 1992199, at *12 (E.D. Cal. May 13, 2010), for example, the court explained:

35 "[C]ontrary to Plaintiffs' assertions, the party initiating the foreclosure process need 36 not be in possession of the note. See Quintero Family Trust v. Onewest Bank,
37 F.S.B., No. 09cv-1516-IEG (WVG), 2010 WL 392312, at *6 (S.D. Cal. Jan. 27, 2009) 38 (stating that "under California law there is no requirement for production of the original note to initiate nonjudicial foreclosure proceedings"); Morgera v.

1 Countrywide Home Loans, Inc., No. 2:09-cv-01476-MCE-GGH, 2010 WL 160348, at 2 *7 (finding that "[t]here is no requirement that the party initiating non-judicial
3 foreclosure proceedings be in possession of the original note"); Champlaine v. BAC
4 Home Loans Servicing, LP, 2009 WL 3429622, at *14 (concluding that "neither
5 possession of the promissory note nor identification of the party in possession is a 6 pre-requisite to non-judicial foreclosure); Castaneda v. Saxon Mortgage Services,
7 Inc., No. CIV 2:09-01124 WBS DAD, 2009 WL 4640673, at *7 (finding that "[u]nder
8 California law, there is no requirement for the production of the original note to 9 initiate a nonjudicial foreclosure").

10 Therefore, Plaintiffs' allegation that Defendants are not in possession of the note
11 does not state a wrongful foreclosure claim." Plaintiff's "produce the note" theory as a 12 means to challenge a proper foreclosure has no legal basis and cannot support any viable 13 claims.

14 C. Plaintiff has no remedies under Civil Code § 2923.5 or 2923.6

15 In its motion to dismiss, Aurora argued Plaintiff's claims under California Civil Code §
16 2923.5 and 2923.6 were not privately-actionable and were preempted. Since that motion's
17 filing, as Plaintiff notes, the California Court of Appeal ruled there is a private right of action
18 under 2923.5 and that the statute is not preempted if interpreted in its narrowest sense.
19 Conceding this, Aurora withdrew these arguments.

20 But Plaintiff's claims fail anyway because that same Court of Appeal decision, Mabry
21 v. Superior Court, -- Cal.Rptr.3d --, 2010 WL 2180530 (Cal. Ct. App. June 2, 2010), ruled
22 section 2923.5 provides a pre-sale remedy only. The only available remedy is a 23 postponement of the foreclosure sale. Mabry, 2010 WL 2180530, at *11-12. In Mabry, the 24 Court of Appeal, Fourth District, Third Division carefully considered the language, context,
25 and purpose of the statute, and found the only remedy is "more time" for a borrower before 26 the foreclosure sale occurs. The court explicitly held: "To repeat: The right of action is 27 limited to obtaining a postponement of an impending foreclosure to permit the lender to 28 comply with section 2923.5." Id., at *1. Once the sale is held, the statute is no longer actionable.

 Moreover, the court also held an alleged section 2923.5 violation before the foreclosure sale does not affect title after the sale. Id., at *14. In doing so, the Court

1 recognized the purpose of the foreclosure statutes in general is to ensure "stability of title"
2 after a completed sale, and that nothing in the statute can be read to suggest the 3 Legislature intended to upset that. The court further found "[t]here is nothing in section
4 2923.5 that even hints that noncompliance with the statute would cause any cloud on title 5 after an otherwise properly conducted foreclosure sale," and once again emphasized the 6 only remedy is a postponement before the sale takes place. Id.

7 Again, there is no dispute in this case the sale has already been held. Accordingly,
8 Plaintiff has no recourse under section 2923.5. Nor does Plaintiff have any recourse under 9 section 2923.6, which the court in Mabry confirmed is, contrary to section 2923.5, not 10 privately-enforceable. Mabry, 2010 WL 2180530, at *6. Any claims based on alleged 11 violations of either section therefore cannot survive.

12 D. Plaintiff does not plead any unconscionability claim

13 Unconscionability is not an affirmative claim but a defense; and even if it were an 14 affirmative claim, any claims based on the loan's terms would be preempted as to Aurora, a 15 wholly-owned subsidiary of a federal savings bank. Plaintiff does not substantively address 16 either point other than to repeat inflammatory allegations against other Defendants in the 17 case.

18 E. Plaintiff does not plead any claim for an accounting

19 Plaintiff's claim for an accounting fails because she has shown no special
20 relationship with Aurora or any other circumstances to justify an accounting claim. Plaintiff
21 responds the "collusive relationship between Defendants creates an implicit agency 22 arrangement among them" creating a "many-headed hydra" designed to evade liability.
23 (Opposition, p. 13:17- 19). Plaintiff fails to explain why an agreement among the 24 Defendants (which itself is not explained anywhere in the complaint) creates a fiduciary 25 duty by Aurora to Plaintiff. Perhaps more importantly, she fails to explain why an 26 accounting is warranted now that the property has been sold in foreclosure and there is no
27 more loan.

28 F. Plaintiff's Quiet Title Claim fails

 Plaintiff's quiet title claim fails because:

- 1 (i) she has shown no defects in the foreclosure sale;
2 (ii) she cannot pay back what she borrowed; and
3 (iii) she has no more interest in the property so as to quiet title in the property in 4 herself.

5 Plaintiff responds that she does not need to tender if nothing is due, that tender is 6 not necessary before the sale, and that tender is not a complete defense. (Opposition, p.
7 15:8-16). She fails to explain why nothing would be due on a 30-year loan that Plaintiff 8 defaulted on in roughly a year, why any argument relating to remedies before the sale is 9 relevant here, where the sale has already been held, or what equity she has offered such 10 the tender would not be a complete defense. Once again she fails to offer any plausible 11 reason this claim can survive.

12 G. Plaintiff has not pleaded any entitlement to declaratory or injunctive
13 relief

14 Plaintiff argues she is entitled to declaratory or injunctive relief against a completed
15 foreclosure sale and eviction. She offers no authority for the Court to rely on in enjoining
16 events that have already occurred. Nor has she explained any basis for a declaration, as 17 the claim is solely derivative and all of Plaintiff's underlying claims fail as a matter of law.

18 The case Plaintiff cites to on this point is completely inapposite. In Hauger, the 19 plaintiff bought real property from the defendants. As part of the deal, the defendants 20 agreed to include certain personal property as well. Id. at 753. The defendant failed to 21 deliver the personal property and the plaintiff therefore stopped making payments on the 22 loan. Id. at 754. The defendant, still refusing to deliver the personal property, then 23 foreclosed based on the plaintiff's non-payment, which foreclosure the plaintiff challenged
24 in court. In allowing the plaintiff's claims to proceed, the court did not hold that tender was 25 not required. Instead, the court held that because the personal property was (allegedly) 26 worth more than the remaining installments under the loan, there was no indebtedness at 27 the time of the foreclosure sale at all, and the sale was therefore improper. Id. at 755. Here,
28 Plaintiff provides no support for her allegation that the payments she made in one year on a 30-year loan are worth more than the remaining balance. Hauger therefore does not apply.

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

H. Plaintiff has not shown entitlement to punitive damages

Plaintiff's response to Aurora's motion to strike her demands for punitive damages offers nothing more than the same unsupported allegations against other Defendants that permeate the complaint. Plaintiff still fails to explain Aurora's role in the alleged "scheme," much less that Aurora's unexplained participation warrants punitive damages. Plaintiff's requests for punitive damages should be stricken as baseless and improper.

I. The Lis Pendens should be expunged

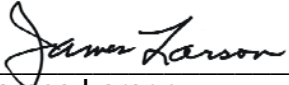

Plaintiff's opposition to Aurora's motion to expunge the lis pendens does nothing more than list the claims alleged in the complaint. As Aurora has demonstrated throughout, each one of these claims is baseless and fails as a matter of law. Plaintiff therefore has not shown a valid real property claim on which to base a lis pendens. The lis pendens is therefore expunged.

IV. CONCLUSION

For the foregoing reasons, Plaintiff's complaint is dismissed with prejudice and the notice of pendency of action expunged from the public record. The request for punitive damages is stricken. Plaintiff's motion to remand and for an award of attorney fees are denied as moot. The Clerk shall close the file.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

DATED: August 25, 2010

James Larson
United States Magistrate Judge

G:\JLALL\CASES\CIVIL\10-0184\DISMISSAL.wpd