IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA, acting by and through City Attorney Dennis J. Herrera,

No. C 11-3107 SI

ORDER GRANTING PLAINTIFF'S MOTION TO REMAND

Plaintiff,

v.

BLUE CROSS OF CALIFORNIA, INC. d/b/a ANTHEM BLUE CROSS; ANTHEM BLUE CROSS LIFE AND HEALTH INSURANCE COMPANY; HEALTH NET OF CALIFORNIA, INC., and Does 1-50 Inclusive, Defendants.

On September 30, 2011, the Court heard argument on plaintiff's motion to remand. Having considered the arguments of counsel and the papers submitted, the Court hereby GRANTS plaintiff's motion and REMANDS this case to the San Francisco Superior Court, for want of federal jurisdiction.

BACKGROUND

On May 24, 2011, the People of the State of California, acting by and through San Francisco City Attorney Dennis J. Herrera ("plaintiff"), filed a civil action in the Superior Court of the State of California, County of San Francisco, against defendants Blue Cross of California, Anthem Blue Cross Life and Health Insurance Company, and Health Net (collectively "defendants"). Plaintiff alleges one claim under California Health and Safety Code Section 1371.4 and one claim under California Business and Professions Code Section 17200. Compl. ¶¶ 31-34.

The complaint alleges that defendants have "systematically underpaid and delayed payment of

1 fees owed to [San Francisco General Hospital or “SFGH”] and other public hospitals for emergency 2 services.” Id. ¶ 3. The complaint alleges that “[u]nder State law, SFGH and other public hospitals have 3 a duty to provide emergency treatment to all patients who need it, regardless of the patient’s ability to 4 pay. Defendants have a corresponding duty to reimburse SFGH and other public hospitals based on the 5 full amount charged for emergency medical treatment provided to Defendants’ insureds. Defendants 6 violate this duty because they routinely refuse to make payments based on the full amount of such 7 charges, but instead make arbitrary Usual and Customary (“UCR”) reductions to the bills they receive 8 from SFGH and other public hospitals.” Id. ¶ 4. The complaint also alleges that defendants “have a 9 duty to respond promptly and use fair procedures when processing claims for payments, and appeals 10 from denials of such claims, made by emergency medical providers including SFGH and other public 11 hospitals. Defendants systematically violate these duties through their dilatory and unfair claims 12 handling practices.” Id.

13         The complaint alleges that defendants’ practices violate California Health and Safety Code 14 Section 1371.4, which requires health care service plans to “reimburse providers for emergency services 15 and care provided” to their insureds. Cal. Health & Safety Code § 1371.4(b); Compl. ¶¶ 23-24. The 16 complaint also alleges that defendants’ practices violate various claims processing requirements of the 17 California Health and Safety Code and the California Insurance Code. Compl. ¶ 26. The complaint 18 seeks (1) an order enjoining defendants “from performing or proposing to perform any act of unfair 19 competition in California”; (2) an order that defendants “restore to California public hospitals, including 20 SFGH, all funds improperly withheld by Defendants, along with interest thereon as required by law”; 21 and (3) an order that defendants pay $2,500 in civil penalties for each violation of Cal. Bus. & Prof.
22 Code § 17200. Id., Prayer for Relief ¶¶ 1-3.

23         Defendants removed the case to this Court on June 23, 2011 on the ground that “[t]o the extent
24 Plaintiff seeks additional benefits from ERISA-governed plans, those claims are completely preempted 25 by ERISA because the claims attempt to assert claims for which ERISA’s exclusive remedial scheme 26 already provides enforcement mechanisms. See ERISA § 502(a)(1)(B), 29 U.S.C. § 1132(a)(1)(B).”

LEGAL STANDARD

Under the removal statute, “any civil action brought in a State court of which the district courts of the United States have original jurisdiction, may be removed by the defendant” to federal court. 28 U.S.C. § 1441(a). A district court has federal question jurisdiction in “all civil actions arising under the Constitution, laws, or treaties of the United States.” 28 U.S.C. § 1331. “The strong presumption against removal jurisdiction means that the defendant always has the burden of establishing that removal is proper.” Emrich v. Touche Ross & Co., 846 F.2d 1190, 1195 (9th Cir. 1988) (citations omitted). Remand to state court must be ordered when a district court lacks subject matter jurisdiction. See 28 U.S.C. § 1447(c).

DISCUSSION

“A party seeking removal based on federal question jurisdiction must show either that the state-law causes of action are completely preempted by § 502(a) of ERISA, or that some other basis exists for federal question jurisdiction.” Marin General Hosp. v. Modesto & Empire Traction Co., 581 F.3d 941, 945 (9th Cir. 2009). Complete preemption under § 502(a) is “really a jurisdictional rather than a preemption doctrine, [as it] confers exclusive federal jurisdiction in certain instances where Congress intended the scope of a federal law to be so broad as to entirely replace any state-law claim.” Franciscan Skemp Healthcare, Inc. v. Cent. States Joint Bd. Health & Welfare Trust Fund, 538 F.3d 594, 596 (7th Cir. 2008).<sup>1</sup>

In Aetna Health Inc. v. Davila, 542 U.S. 200 (2004), the Supreme Court set out a two-prong test for complete ERISA preemption: “a state-law cause of action is completely preempted if (1) ‘an individual, at some point in time, could have brought [the] claim under ERISA § 502(a)(1)(B),’ and (2) ‘where there is no other independent legal duty that is implicated by a defendant’s actions.’” Marin General Hosp., 581 F.3d at 946, quoting Davila, 542 U.S. at 210. “A state-law cause of action is

<sup>1</sup> This Court only has jurisdiction if any of plaintiff’s claims are completely preempted under Section 502 of ERISA. Marin General Hosp., 581 F.3d at 944-45. A provision of state law may “relate to” an ERISA benefit plan, and may therefore be preempted under § 514(a) of ERISA, 29 U.S.C. § 1144(a). “But a defense of conflict preemption under § 514(a) does not confer federal question jurisdiction on a federal district court.” Marin General Hosp., 581 F.3d at 944. Accordingly, this order only analyzes whether plaintiff’s claims are completely preempted under § 502(a).

1 preempted by § 502(a)(1)(B) only if both prongs of the test are satisfied.” Marin General Hosp., 581
2 F.3d at 947.

3 Plaintiff moves to remand this case, contending that neither prong of the Davila test is met here.

5 A. Claims could not have been brought under ERISA

6 Under § 502(a)(1)(B), a civil action may be brought by a participant or beneficiary “to recover 7 benefits due to him under the terms of his plan, to enforce his rights under the terms of the plan, or to 8 clarify his rights to future benefits under the terms of the plan.” Thus, “[i]f a participant or beneficiary 9 believes that benefits promised to him under the terms of the plan are not provided, he can bring suit 10 seeking provision of those benefits.” Davila, 542 U.S. at 210.

11 The plaintiff in Davila was a health care plan participant who alleged claims for denial of 12 coverage under the terms of his ERISA-regulated employee benefit plan. Id. at 211. The Supreme 13 Court ruled that the plaintiff’s claims were preempted by ERISA because he could have sought 14 reimbursement under his ERISA-governed health plan through § 502(a) of ERISA. Id. In contrast, the 15 plaintiff in Marin General Hospital was a hospital which was an assignee of a patient’s benefits under 16 the patient’s ERISA-governed health plan. Marin General Hosp., 581 F.3d at 947. The hospital 17 brought suit against an ERISA plan administrator for breach of contract under California state law. Id.
18 at 944. The Ninth Circuit applied the first prong of Davila and determined that the plaintiff’s state law 19 claims were not completely preempted by ERISA § 502(a)(1)(B) because the claims arose out of an oral 20 agreement between the hospital and an insurance plan administrator to pay certain of the patient’s 21 hospital charges above and beyond those covered by the ERISA plan. Id. at 947.

22 Defendants attempt to distinguish Marin General Hospital by arguing that plaintiff does not 23 allege that defendants have entered into any contracts with public hospitals. However, as plaintiff 24 argues, what was determinative in Marin General Hospital was the fact that the hospital’s claim 25 stemmed from a non-ERISA obligation:

26 [I]n the case before us the patient assigned to the Hospital any claim he had under his 27 ERISA plan. Pursuant to that assignment, the Hospital was paid the money owed to the 28 patient under the ERISA plan. The Hospital now seeks more money based upon a different obligation. The obligation to pay this additional money does not stem from the ERISA plan, and the Hospital is therefore not suing as the assignee of an ERISA plan

1 participant or beneficiary under § 502(a)(1)(B). Rather, the asserted obligation to make 2 the additional payment stems from the alleged oral contract between the Hospital and 3 MBAMD. As in Blue Cross, the Hospital is not suing defendants based on any assignment from the patient of his rights under his ERISA plan pursuant to § 502(a)(1)(B); rather, it is suing in its own right pursuant to an independent obligation.

4 Marin General Hospital, 581 F.3d at 948; see also Blue Cross of California v. Anesthesia Care Assocs.
5 Med. Group Inc., 187 F.3d 1045, 1050 (9th Cir. 1999) (holding claims of medical providers against 6 health care plan for breach of provider agreements were not completely preempted by ERISA because 7 “the Providers’ claims, which arise from the terms of their provider agreements and could not be 8 asserted by their patient-assignors, are not claims for benefits under the terms of ERISA plans, and 9 hence do not fall within § 502(a)(1)(B).”). Here, as in Marin General Hospital and Blue Cross, plaintiff 10 is not suing as the assignee of an ERISA plan participant or beneficiary under § 502(a)(1)(B), and 11 plaintiff is not seeking benefits under an ERISA plan. Thus, plaintiff could not have brought the instant 12 claims under § 502(a)(1)(B).

13 Defendants contend that this case is governed by Cleghorn v. Blue Shield of California, 408
14 F.3d 1222 (9th Cir. 2005). In Cleghorn, the plaintiff was a participant in his employer’s ERISA health 15 plan offered by Blue Shield. The plaintiff had sought and received emergency medical treatment, and 16 Blue Shield denied coverage. The plaintiff filed a lawsuit in state court alleging state law causes of 17 action, including an allegation that Blue Shield had violated an emergency care provision in California 18 Health and Safety Code section 1371.4(c). Blue Shield removed the case to federal court, asserting 19 complete preemption under § 502(a). The plaintiff amended his complaint, deleting his individual claim 20 for damages and refusing to allege a claim under ERISA, and sought remand. The district court found 21 that the plaintiff’s claims were completely preempted under § 502(a) of ERISA. The Ninth Circuit 22 affirmed, holding, “[w]hen Cleghorn sought benefits under the plan and did not receive them, he did not 23 pursue his ERISA remedy but instead brought the present state-law claims. These are precisely the kind 24 of claims that the Supreme Court in Davila held to be pre-empted.” Id. at 1225. The Ninth Circuit 25 rejected Cleghorn’s argument that his claims no longer implicated ERISA because he had deleted his 26 individual claim for damages:

27 Artful pleading does not alter the potential for this suit to frustrate the objectives of 28 ERISA. The only factual basis for relief pleaded in Cleghorn’s complaint is the refusal of Blue Shield to reimburse him for the emergency medical care he received. Any duty

1 or liability that Blue Shield had to reimburse him “would exist here only because of 2 [Blue Shield’s] administration of ERISA-regulated benefit plans.” Davila, 124 S.Ct. at 2498.

3 Cleghorn, 408 F.3d at 1226.

4 Unlike Cleghorn, plaintiff is not a health plan participant or beneficiary, and plaintiff’s claim 5 does not challenge the denial of benefits under an ERISA plan. The Ninth Circuit found that Cleghorn
6 had engaged in “artful pleading,” and that Cleghorn’s amended claims were really challenging the denial 7 of benefits under an ERISA plan — claims that he could have brought under ERISA. Here, in contrast, 8 plaintiff does not challenge the denial of benefits to ERISA beneficiaries. Rather, plaintiff brings suit 9 to enforce state law duties independent of ERISA that apply to insurance companies operating in 10 California.<sup>2</sup>

11 Defendants also contend that plaintiff “seeks restitution of amounts owed to medical care 12 providers who would be entitled to such payments only by virtue of an assignment of insurance rights 13 under, among others, ERISA-governed benefit plans.” Opp’n at 17:15-18. As a result, defendants 14 contend, plaintiff’s remedies are necessarily limited to those available under ERISA. However, as 15 plaintiff argues, while the complaint alleges as a background fact that SFGH typically receives an 16 assignment of patient’s right to receive insurance benefits as a condition of admission, Compl. ¶ 22, the 17 complaint does not allege that defendants are liable for breaching those assignments. Moreover, Blue
18 Cross and Marin General Hospital hold that a provider that has been assigned rights by an ERISA plan
19 beneficiary has the option of electing to sue under ERISA to enforce those rights, but that the provider 20 is not precluded from opting instead to enforce an independent right to reimbursement available under

22 <sup>2</sup> Plaintiff also contends that the first prong of Davila is not satisfied – and cannot ever be 23 satisfied – in a case brought by the People because the People do not have standing to sue under ERISA.
24 Neither party cites any authority specifically addressing this question in the ERISA preemption context, 25 although plaintiff cites several cases that are persuasive. See Connecticut v. Physicians Health Services 26 of Connecticut, Inc., 287 F.3d 110, 120-22 (2d Cir. 2002), cert. denied, 537 U.S. 878 (2002) (holding the State did not have standing as an enumerated party under § 502(a)(1)(B), and therefore could not bring suit under ERISA on behalf of the public); see also Franchise Tax Bd. v. Construction Laborers Vacation Trust, 463 U.S. 1, 27 (1983) (stating “ERISA carefully enumerates the parties entitled to seek relief under § 502(a)(1)(B). . . . A suit for similar relief by some other party does not ‘arise under’ that provision”).

27 The Court finds it unnecessary to resolve this question because here, regardless of whether the 28 People theoretically have standing to sue under ERISA, the claims alleged in this lawsuit are based on non-ERISA obligations stemming from state law, and thus could not have been brought under § 502(a)(1)(B).

1 state law. See Blue Cross, 187 F.3d at 1052 (“[W]e find no basis to conclude that the mere fact of 2 assignment converts the Providers’ claims into claims to recover benefits under the terms of an ERISA
3 plan.”); Marin General Hospital, 581 F.3d at 948 (noting that the Hospital had already recovered
4 payments in its capacity as an assignee of the patient’s rights under the ERISA plan, and the Hospital’s
5 breach of contract claims were distinct). Similarly, defendants contend that because one of the remedies 6 sought by plaintiff – the payment of money – is the same as a possible remedy under § 502(a)(1)(B), 7 plaintiff’s suit is really a claim under § 502(a)(1)(B). That argument was also rejected in Marin General
8 Hospital, 581 F.3d at 950.

9 Accordingly, the Court finds that plaintiff does not meet Davila’s first prong requirement for 10 complete preemption because it could not have brought its claims under ERISA.

11 12 B. Independent legal duty

13 The second-prong for complete preemption under Davila is met “where there is no other 14 independent legal duty that is implicated by a defendant’s actions.” Davila, 542 U.S. at 210. State law 15 legal duties are not independent of ERISA where “interpretation of the terms of [the] benefit plan forms 16 an essential part” of the claim, and legal liability can exist “only because of [the] administration of 17 ERISA-regulated benefit plans.” Id. at 211.

18 In Davila, the plaintiff sued under a state statute that provided, inter alia, “[t]he standards in 19 Subsections (a) and (b) create no obligation on the part of the health insurance carrier, health 20 maintenance organization, or other managed care entity to provide to an insured or enrollee treatment 21 which is not covered by the health care plan of the entity.” § 88.002(d).” Davila, 542 U.S. at 213. The 22 Court held that the state statute did not impose duties independent of ERISA because “a managed care 23 entity could not be subject to liability under the THCLA if it denied coverage for any treatment not 24 covered by the health care plan that it was administering.” Id. In contrast, in Marin General Hospital, 25 the Ninth Circuit held that the state-law claims all arose out of an alleged oral contract between the 26 parties and “are in no way based on an obligation under an ERISA plan, and since they would exist 27 whether or not an ERISA plan existed, they are based on ‘other independent legal duties.’” Marin 28 General Hosp., 581 F.3d at 950.

1 Here, plaintiff brings suit under state law, including California Health and Safety Code section 2 1371.4, which mandates that all health care service plans reimburse providers for emergency services
3 rendered to their insureds. California Health and Safety Code section 1371.4(b) provides that “A health 4 care service plan . . . shall reimburse providers for emergency services and care provided to its enrollees, 5 until the care results in stabilization of the enrollee.” “Subdivision (b) of section 1371.4 was enacted 6 in 1994 to impose a mandatory duty upon health care plans to reimburse non-contracting providers for 7 emergency medical services.” Bell v. Blue Cross of California, 131 Cal. App. 4th 211, 216 (2005).

8 The Court finds that the second prong of Davila is not met here because plaintiff’s claims arise
9 from independent state law duties and do not depend on any duties imposed by an ERISA plan. Plaintiff 10 alleges that defendants have violated state law imposing the duty to pay public hospitals based on the 11 full amount charged for emergency medical services provided to their insureds. Plaintiff does not allege 12 that defendants are miscalculating benefits owed to public hospitals under the express terms of any 13 ERISA policy. Thus, plaintiff’s claims depend on an interpretation of state law, including the Knox-14 Keene Act, and do not in any way involve the interpretation of any ERISA plans administered by 15 defendants. The Court notes that several courts have held that similar claims brought by medical 16 providers are not subject to ordinary conflict preemption under § 514 of ERISA. See Coast Plaza
17 Doctors Hosp. v. Blue Cross of California, 173 Cal. App. 4th 1179, 1186-89 (2009); Clark v. Group
18 Hosp. and Med. Servs., No. 10-CV-333-BEN (BLM), 2010 WL 5093629, at *4-6 (S.D. Cal. Dec. 10, 19 2010) (addressing both complete § 502 preemption and § 514 conflict preemption).

21 CONCLUSION

22 For the foregoing reasons, the Court concludes that plaintiff’s claims are not completely 23 preempted by ERISA § 502(a)(1)(B), and therefore this Court lacks jurisdiction. The Court hereby 24 GRANTS plaintiff’s motion for remand. Docket 15.
