IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

MANUEL CABRERA and MILA CABRERA, individually and on behalf of the general public,

No. C 11-4869 SI

Plaintiffs,

ORDER GRANTING IN PART AND DENYING IN PART DEFENDANTS' MOTION TO DISMISS

v.

COUNTRYWIDE FINANCIAL, et al.

Defendants.

Currently before the Court is a motion to dismiss plaintiffs' First Amended Complaint, filed on behalf of "defendants named as 'Countrywide Financial,' 'Countrywide Home Loans Inc., dba America's Wholesale Lender,' 'Countrywide Bank FSB,' and 'Bank of America Inc.' (collectively 'Defendants')." Pursuant to Civil Local Rule 7-1(b), the Court finds this matter suitable for disposition without oral argument, and therefore VACATES the hearing currently scheduled for November 2, 2012. Having considered the parties' papers, and for good cause appearing, the motion is GRANTED IN PART and DENIED IN PART, for the reasons set forth below.

BACKGROUND

In July 2007, Manuel Cabrera received a home mortgage loan from Countrywide Home Loans, Inc., dba America's Wholesale Lender ("Countrywide"). First Amended Complaint ("FAC") ¶ 23, Exh. C. The Adjustable Rate Note was issued on July 13 for $1,875,000 at an initial interest rate of 5.875%. Id. at Exh. C. The interest rate would become adjustable starting in July 2008 to a rate based on the LIBOR Index, but the rate was never to exceed 11.875%. Id. On July 17, 2007, Manuel Cabrera

1 executed a Construction Note Addendum, which “amends and supplants” the Adjustable Rate Note.
2 Id. The Construction Note Addendum states that “[t]he initial Interest Rate is 11.250%.” Id. The 3 interest rate could change each month in a formula tied to the highest Prime Rate, but it could not exceed 4 11.875%. Id. The Cabrerias state that they relied on “the representation that the initial interest rate of 5 the loan was 5.875% . . . but in actuality the initial rate was 11.235%.” Id. The originator of the loan,
6 Diablo Funding Inc., received a bounty for the loan that was not disclosed to the Cabrerias. Id. at ¶ 33.

7 Two years later, Manuel Cabrera and Mila Cabrera,¹ his wife, executed an Adjustable Rate
8 Mortgage (“ARM”) with Countrywide that modified their original loan. Id. at ¶ 21, Exh. A. The ARM
9 stated, “The current Note Rate of 5.375% will continue through June 30, 2009 in accordance with the 10 Addendum to Note, executed July 13, 2009. . . . Subject to the terms of the Construction Loan Note
11 Addendum.” Id. (emphasis in original). The ARM was signed on June 26, 2009. Id. The Cabrerias 12 allege that “the loan modification represented that the original note term was 5.375% when in fact it 13 exceeded 11% [and] representations contained in the loan modification concealed the true nature of the 14 loan.” Id. They also allege that they “reasonably relied upon the representations of the 5.875% rate as 15 being fixed until June 2008 as a significant factor in agreeing to the loan modification in 2009.” Id. at 16 ¶ 23.

17 In the fall of 2009, the Cabrerias obtained a “forensic loan audit.” Id. at ¶ 21. In November 18 2009, the Cabrerias obtained the services of eModify to write a letter informing Bank of America of its 19 loan servicing violations. Id. at ¶ 22, Exh. B.

20 On June 30, 2011, the home was foreclosed. Id. page 1. At the time of foreclosure, the Cabrerias 21 had a loan modification pending. Id. The Cabrerias are Hispanic. Id.

22 The Cabrerias also allege that Countrywide discriminated against Hispanic borrowers by giving
23 them subprime loans when they actually qualified for prime loans. Id. at ¶ 99. However, the Cabrerias
24 do not allege that when they were given a subprime loan, they were qualified for a prime loan.

25 On September 30, 2011, the Cabrerias filed this action.

LEGAL STANDARD

Under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6), a district court must dismiss a complaint if it fails to state a claim upon which relief can be granted. To survive a Rule 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss, the plaintiff must allege “enough facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face.” Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 570 (2007). This “facial plausibility” standard requires the plaintiff to allege facts that add up to “more than a sheer possibility that a defendant has acted unlawfully.” Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 129 S.Ct. 1937, 1949 (2009). While courts do not require “heightened fact pleading of specifics,” a plaintiff must allege facts sufficient to “raise a right to relief above the speculative level.” Twombly, 550 U.S. at 544, 555.

In deciding whether the plaintiff has stated a claim upon which relief can be granted, the court must assume that the plaintiff’s allegations are true and must draw all reasonable inferences in the plaintiff’s favor. See Usher v. City of Los Angeles, 828 F.2d 556, 561 (9th Cir. 1987). However, the court is not required to accept as true “allegations that are merely conclusory, unwarranted deductions of fact, or unreasonable inferences.” In re Gilead Scis. Sec. Litig., 536 F.3d 1049, 1055 (9th Cir. 2008).

DISCUSSION

1. Civil RICO Claims

Plaintiffs assert three claims under § 1962(c) of the Racketeering Influenced and Corrupt Organizations (“RICO”) Act. Under this provision, it is “unlawful for any person employed by or associated with any enterprise engaged in, or the activities of which affect, interstate or foreign commerce, to conduct or participate, directly or indirectly, in the conduct of such enterprise’s affairs through a pattern of racketeering activity or collection of unlawful debt.” 18 U.S.C. § 1962(c). In order to state a valid RICO claim under § 1962(c), a plaintiff must allege “(1) conduct, (2) of an enterprise, (3) through a pattern, (4) of racketeering activity.” Jarvis v. Regan, 833 F.2d 149, 151-52 (9th Cir. 1987) (citations omitted). “Racketeering activity” is any act indictable under several provisions of Title 18 of the United States Code. “In alleging fraud or mistake, a party must state with particularity the circumstances constituting fraud or mistake.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 9(b). The Ninth Circuit has interpreted this rule to require pleadings to specify “the time, place, and nature of the alleged fraudulent activities.”

1 Moore v. Kayport Package Exp., Inc., 885 F.2d 531, 540 (9th Cir. 1989). “Rule 9(b) demands that the 2 circumstances constituting the alleged fraud be specific enough to give defendants notice of the 3 particular misconduct . . . so that they can defend against the charge and not just deny that they have 4 done anything wrong.” Sanford v. MemberWorks, Inc., 625 F.3d 550, 558 (9th Cir. 2010) (quoting
5 Kearns v. Ford Motor Co., 567 F.3d 1120, 1124 (9th Cir.2009)).

6 Plaintiffs’ first three causes of action allege a RICO violation, a conspiracy to violate RICO, and 7 aiding and abetting a RICO violation, all stemming from defendants’ allegedly fraudulent loan practices.
8 Defendants argue that plaintiffs’ RICO claims are barred by the statute of limitations. They also argue
9 that plaintiffs have failed to and cannot allege facts sufficient to establish (1) the predicate acts of mail
10 and wire fraud, and (2) that there has been a pattern of racketeering activity.

11
12 A. Statute of Limitations

13 The statute of limitations for a civil RICO action is four years. Agency Holding Corp. v.
14 Malley-Duff & Associates, Inc., 483 U.S. 143, 156 (1987). This limitations period “begins to run when 15 a plaintiff knows or should know of the injury which is the basis for the action.” Living Designs, Inc.
16 v. E.I. Dupont de Nemours & Co., 431 F.3d 353, 365 (9th Cir. 2005). A plaintiff has constructive 17 knowledge of a defendant’s fraud when “it had enough information to warrant an investigation which, 18 if reasonably diligent, would have led to discovery of the fraud.” Pincay v. Andrews, 238 F.3d 1106, 19 1110 (9th Cir. 2001).

20 The Construction Note Addendum, which changed the initial interest rate from 5.9% to 11.3%, 21 was signed on July 17, 2007. This action was filed more than four years later on September 30, 2011.
22 Defendants argue, therefore, that the RICO claims are barred by the statute of limitations.

23 Plaintiffs make three arguments in opposition. First, they argue that the operative contract for 24 determining when the statute of limitations begins to run is not the original loan, but the ARM loan
25 modification, which occurred two years later. They argue that because the ARM loan modification 26 “represented that the original note term was 5.375%,” it perpetuated the fraud of the original loan.
27 However, all of plaintiffs’ causes of action stem from the original loan, and therefor the statute of 28 limitations began to run in July 2007. Furthermore, the plain terms of the contract state that the initial

1 interest rate was “[s]ubject to the terms of the Construction Loan Note Addendum,” which belies the 2 claim that the ARM perpetuated the fraud of the first mortgage.

3 Second, plaintiffs argue for equitable tolling under the doctrine of fraudulent concealment,
4 because plaintiffs could not have discovered the 11.3% interest rate until 2009 when they conducted a
5 forensic loan audit. However, the plain terms of the contract state that “[t]he initial Interest Rate is 6 11.250%.” Although plaintiffs state that they did not learn the true interest rate until the loan audit, a 7 reasonably diligent investigation of the loan documents would have revealed the initial interest rate of 8 11.25%.

9 Third, plaintiffs in their opposition aver facts concerning an attorney’s failure to provide 10 competent legal services, urging this failure as a further ground for equitable tolling. However, these 11 facts were not alleged in the FAC, and so the Court cannot consider them in a 12(b)(6) motion. Thus,
12 based on the facts alleged in the FAC, the Court finds that the RICO claims are barred by the statute of 13 limitations.

15 B. Predicate Acts of Mail and Wire Fraud

16 Even if the RICO claims were not time-barred, the Court finds that there has been insufficient
17 pleading to allege the predicate acts required for a RICO claim. In the FAC, plaintiffs argue that the 18 predicate acts for the RICO violation were mail and wire fraud, in violation of 18 U.S.C. § 1341. FAC
19 ¶ 78. Specifically, they allege that defendants “placed in post offices and/or in authorized repositories 20 matter and things to be sent or delivered by the Postal Service . . . including but not limited to 21 promotional materials, applications, agreements, manuals, and correspondence.” Id. at ¶ 80. They also 22 allege that defendants “transmitted and received by wire matter and things, including but not limited to 23 promotional materials, applications, agreements, manuals, and correspondence, and made or caused to 24 be made false statements over the telephone, electronic mail, and internet.” Id. at ¶ 81.

25 Plaintiffs fail to allege the specific content of the “matter and things” transferred through the 26 mail and over wires, who made and received the matter and things, and when the transmissions
27 occurred. Rule 9(b) requires particularity that plaintiffs have failed to provide. They have not specified 28 “the time, place, and nature of the alleged fraudulent activities.” Moore, 885 F.2d at 540.

1 C. Pattern of Racketeering Activity

2 At minimum, there must be at least two acts of racketeering activity within ten years of one
3 another to constitute a “pattern.” 18 U.S.C. § 1961(5). However, a “‘pattern’ of racketeering activity
4 also requires proof that the racketeering predicates are related and ‘that they amount to or pose a threat
5 of continued criminal activity.’” Turner v. Cook, 362 F.3d 1219, 1229 (9th Cir. 2004) (quoting H.J. Inc.
6 v. Northwestern Bell Tel. Co., 492 U.S. 229, 239(1989)).

7 Here, plaintiffs allege that the pattern of deceit is evident from the first loan that hid the true
8 initial interest rate, from the undisclosed payment to Diablo Funding Inc., and from the ARM that 9 continued to misrepresent the true initial interest rate. Opposition 13. However, the initial interest rate
10 of the loan is apparent from the clear terms of the Construction Note Addendum, and that rate is also 11 clearly referenced in the ARM modification. Additionally, plaintiffs have failed to allege that Diablo
12 Funding Inc. had a duty to disclose their payment to the Cabreras, or that they could not have discovered
13 this payment with reasonable diligence. Furthermore, plaintiffs fail to allege facts that would show that 14 the interest rate “misrepresentation” poses a threat of continued criminal activity.

15 Therefore, the Court GRANTS WITH LEAVE TO AMEND defendants’ motion to dismiss
16 plaintiffs’ RICO claims.

17
18 2. ECOA Claim

19 Plaintiffs’ fifth cause of action alleges that defendants violated the Equal Credit Opportunity Act 20 (“ECOA”). ECOA makes it unlawful “for any creditor to discriminate against any applicant, with 21 respect to any aspect of a credit transaction on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex or 22 marital status, or age (provided the applicant has the capacity to contract).” 15 U.S.C. § 1691(a).
23 Plaintiffs allege that they are Hispanic, and that non-Hispanic white borrowers similarly situated would 24 have received a more favorable loan. FAC ¶¶ 127-29. Defendants moved to dismiss this claim because 25 it is barred by the statute of limitations and because plaintiffs fail to state a claim.

26
27 A. Statute of Limitations

28 ECOA provides a two-year statute of limitations from the date of the violation. 15 U.S.C.

1 § 1691e(f) (2007).² But ECOA allows for the applicant to have an additional year to file a claim after 2 the commencement of an enforcement proceeding by either an agency or the Attorney General, if the 3 enforcement proceeding is commenced within two years of the date of the violation. Id.

4 Defendants argue that plaintiffs' ECOA claim is barred by the statute of limitations because it
5 was brought more than two years after the initial loan was signed in July 2007. Even if the exception
6 applied, that would still at maximum create a three-year statute of limitations, which is exceeded in this 7 case.

8 Plaintiffs argue that the ECOA claim is not barred by the statute of limitations because 9 Countrywide agreed to a suspension of the statute of limitations for ECOA violations in an agreement
10 with the United States. Oppo. 12. They argue that this agreement allows them to make an ECOA claim
11 because they filed their suit within one year of the Department of Justice enforcement action. However,
12 plaintiffs fail to allege these facts in the FAC, and only assert them in their Opposition. Thus, based on 13 the facts of the FAC, the Court finds that the ECOA claim is barred by the statute of limitations.

14
15 B. Failure to State a Claim

16 Even if the ECOA claim were not barred by the statute of limitations, defendants argue that 17 plaintiffs fail to state a claim under ECOA. Plaintiffs argue that a similarly situated white borrower 18 would have received a more favorable loan than they did, because they are Hispanic. To support the 19 allegation, they offer statistical evidence showing that Hispanics were given worse loans than white
20 borrowers with the same borrower risk, and that Hispanic borrowers, otherwise qualified for prime 21 loans, were steered into subprime loans at rates between 2.6 and 3.5 times higher than similarly situated 22 white borrowers. FAC ¶¶ 98-99. However, the Cabreras fail to allege that they themselves were 23 qualified for a prime loan or better loan terms than the ones that they received. Thus, plaintiffs fail to 24 state a claim that defendants gave them a subprime loan because they are Hispanic in violation of 25 ECOA.

26 Therefore, the Court GRANTS WITH LEAVE TO AMEND defendants' motion to dismiss 27

28

²The statute was revised in 2010, the 2007 provisions are operative in this case.

1 plaintiffs' ECOA claim.

3 3. California's Unfair Competition Law Claim

4 Plaintiffs' fourth cause of action alleges that defendants violated California's Unfair Competition
5 Law ("UCL"), which prohibits any "unlawful, unfair, or fraudulent business act or practice." Cal. Bus.
6 & Prof. Code § 17200. Plaintiffs allege that defendants acted unlawfully by violating RICO, ECOA,
7 and California Civil Code § 2923.5; they acted unfairly by foreclosing on a home with a pending loan
8 modification; and they acted fraudulently by making "misleading representations to borrowers." Oppo.
9 ¶¶ 120-26.

10 Defendants move to dismiss the UCL claim on the following grounds: (1) the UCL claim is 11 barred by the statute of limitations; (2) the predicate unlawful act of violating RICO is flawed because 12 plaintiffs failed to state a claim under RICO; (3) the predicate unlawful act of violating ECOA is flawed
13 because plaintiffs failed to state a claim under ECOA, and ECOA bars pursuit of a separate state law
14 remedy; (4) the predicate unlawful act of violating California Civil Code § 2923.5 is flawed because 15 plaintiffs fail to state a claim; (5) public policy at the time of foreclosure did not prohibit a foreclosure
16 with a pending modification; and (6) plaintiffs fail to plead with particularity any fraudulent or false 17 statements.

18
19 A. Statute of Limitations

20 The statute of limitations for a Section 17200 claim is four years. Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code
21 § 17208. Defendants argue that the UCL claims based on the original loan, which was executed more
22 than four years before this action was filed, are barred by the statute of limitations. Plaintiffs argue that 23 under the equitable tolling doctrine, they did not and could not have discovered the violations until 24 2009. The Court has already addressed and rejected this argument. See supra Section I.A.

25 Additionally, plaintiffs argue that the delayed discovery rule applies to UCL claims. The Ninth
26 Circuit has previously held that the statute of limitations for UCL claims runs on the date of the violation
27 and not the date of discovery. See In Karl Storz Endoscopy-Am., Inc. v. Surgical Tech., Inc., 285 F.3d
28 848, 857 (9th Cir.2002). The California Court of Appeal subsequently disagreed in Broberg v.

1 Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Am., 171 Cal. App. 4th 912, 920–21, 90 Cal. Rptr.3d 225, review denied
2 (2009). But see Snapp & Assocs. Ins. Servs., Inc. v. Robertson, 96 Cal. App. 4th 884, 891 (Cal. Ct. App.
3 2002) (delayed discovery rule does not apply to UCL causes of action). The California Supreme Court 4 has not decided the issue.

5 Even assuming that the delayed discovery rule applies to UCL claims, plaintiffs fail to plead
6 adequate facts to avail themselves of the delayed discovery rule. A plaintiff seeking to take advantage 7 of the delayed discovery rule must “specifically plead facts to show (1) the time and manner of 8 discovery and (2) the inability to have made earlier discovery despite reasonable diligence. The burden
9 is on the plaintiff to show diligence, and conclusory allegations will not withstand demurrer.” E-Fab,
10 Inc. v. Accountants, Inc. Services, 153 Cal. App. 4th 1308, 1319 (2007) (quoting McKelvey v. Boeing
11 North American, Inc., 74 Cal. App. 4th 151, 160 (1999)). Here, the face of the Construction Loan Note
12 Addendum states that the initial interest rate for the loan is 11.250%. Plaintiffs allege that they did not 13 discover this interest rate until they had a forensic loan audit in the fall of 2009. However, plaintiffs fail
14 to allege sufficient facts to show that they were unable to discover the interest rate despite reasonable 15 due diligence. Thus, the UCL claims based on the alleged misrepresentation in the initial loan are 16 barred by the statute of limitations.

17
18 B. “Unlawful” Business Practices

19 Plaintiffs allege that defendants violated the UCL by committing “unlawful” business practices
20 through violations of RICO, ECOA, and California Civil Code § 2923.5. First, the RICO claim is based 21 on the alleged misrepresentation in the initial loan, the undisclosed payment to Diablo Funding Inc., and 22 the alleged continued misrepresentation of the initial loan on the ARM. As discussed supra, Part I, the 23 RICO claim is barred by the statute of limitations and fails to adequately plead facts to support a claim.

24 Second, the ECOA claim is based on defendants allegedly discriminated against the Cabrerias
25 by offering them a subprime loan because they are Hispanic. As discussed supra Section II, the ECOA 26 claim is barred by the statute of limitations and plaintiffs have failed to plead specific facts alleging an 27 ECOA violation. Additionally, ECOA bars pursuit of state law claims if the plaintiff also pursues relief
28 under ECOA. 15 U.S.C. § 1691d(e).

1 Finally, plaintiffs allege that “defendants did not comply with Cal. Civ. Code § 2923.5’s due
2 diligence requirement with respect to loan modification.” FAC ¶ 124. Section 2923.5 requires a 3 mortgage lender to exert “due diligence” in attempting to contact the borrower before filing a notice of 4 default. Cal. Civ. Code § 2923.5(g). Plaintiffs fail to allege any facts required to make a claim under 5 § 2923.5. They do not allege whether they were served a notice of default or how defendants failed to 6 properly attempt to contact them. Moreover, § 2923.5 applies to default notices instead of loan
7 modifications, as alleged in the FAC. Thus, plaintiffs have failed to plead a claim of “unlawful”
8 business practices under the URL.

10 C. “Unfair” Foreclosure

11 An “unfair” business practice under the UCL is “one that either offends an established public 12 policy or is immoral, unethical, oppressive, unscrupulous, or substantially injurious to consumers.”
13 McDonald v. Coldwell Banker, 543 F.3d 498, 506 (9th Cir. 2008). However, “the public policy which 14 is a predicate to the action must be ‘tethered’ to specific constitutional, statutory or regulatory 15 provisions.” Gregory v. Albertson’s, Inc., 104 Cal. App. 4th 845, 854 (2002).

16 Plaintiffs allege that defendants unfairly executed a foreclosure on their home when they had 17 a loan modification application pending. FAC ¶ 126. They argue that this violates public policy, as 18 reflected in the Homeowner Bill of Rights, which prohibits foreclosures while a modification is pending.
19 Cal. Code Civ. Pro. § 2924.11. Defendants argue that because this law was only signed in 2012, it
20 cannot be used to show that there was a public policy against this practice at the time of the Cabreras’
21 home foreclosure in 2011. Plaintiffs argue that, although the public policy was not codified until 2012,
22 it certainly existed in 2011 as part the general public policy against foreclosures that were occurring
23 without giving homeowners adequate opportunities to correct their deficiencies. See, e.g., Cal. Civ.
24 Code § 2923.5. Plaintiffs have sufficiently pled enough facts to make a claim of “unfair” business acts 25 under § 17200 that is plausible on its face.

26
27 D. “Fraudulent” Mortgage Loan Scheme

28 Finally, plaintiffs allege that defendants engaged in “fraudulent” business acts through a

1 fraudulent mortgage loan scheme that misled the Cabrerias and other borrowers into accepting loans that
2 they could not afford. But plaintiffs fail to allege specific acts of fraud or misstatement that induced
3 other homeowners into accepting loans they could not afford. Regarding their own mortgage, plaintiffs 4 allege that defendants misled them because they did not know that the initial interest rate was 11.250%,
5 and they were misled into believing that the initial interest rate was 5.875%. However, the 11.250%
6 interest rate was on the face of the Construction Loan Addendum, and so plaintiffs cannot claim that
7 they were defrauded by defendants. Additionally, the “fraudulent” loan claim cannot support a UCL
8 violation because it is barred by the UCL statute of limitations.

9 Thus, although plaintiffs fail to allege adequate facts to show that there were “unlawful” or 10 “fraudulent” business practices in violation of the UCL, they have alleged adequate facts to make a
11 claim that defendants engaged in “unfair” business practices. Therefore, defendants’ motion to dismiss
12 plaintiffs’ UCL claim is GRANTED WITH LEAVE TO AMEND as to “unlawful” and “fraudulent”
13 business practice claims, it is DENIED as to the “unfair” business practices claim.

14
15 4. Standing of Plaintiff Mila Cabrera

16 Defendants also move to dismiss Mila Cabrera as a plaintiff on the grounds that she lacks
17 standing, because only Manuel Cabrera was a signatory to the initial mortgage. Plaintiffs assert that 18 Mila Cabrera has standing because she has community property rights in the home, even though she is 19 not a party to the mortgage contract. However, the Ninth Circuit does not allow community property 20 rights to create standing when the spouse is not a signatory to the contract at issue. Bianchi v. Bank of 21 Am., N.A., 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 69260, at *5 (S.D. Cal. May 17, 2012) (holding that a wife did not 22 have standing to sue for fraud when she did not sign the mortgage loan, because “‘the presumption
23 under California law that property acquired during marriage is community property does not apply’ in 24 circumstances ‘where a spouse acquires property in his name alone.’”) (citing In re Jacobson, 676 F.3d 25 1193, 1201 (9th Cir. 2012)). Plaintiffs fail to cite any cases that support their position.

26 Accordingly, defendants’ motion to dismiss plaintiff Mila Cabrera is GRANTED. As plaintiff
27 has not argued that it can allege any facts to support Mila Cabrera’s standing, she is DISMISSED WITH 28 PREJUDICE.

1 5. Dismissing Defendants

2 In addition to the grounds for dismissal of the claims discussed above, defendants Countrywide
3 Financial, Countrywide Bank, and Bank of America argue that they should be dismissed from the suit
4 because the complaint makes no allegations against them. Plaintiffs failed to respond to this argument
5 in their Opposition. Thus, defendants' motion to dismiss defendants Countrywide Financial,
6 Countrywide Bank, and Bank of America is GRANTED and they are DISMISSED WITHOUT 7 PREJUDICE. As plaintiffs must allege facts to support a claim against these particular defendants in 8 their next amended complaint.

10 CONCLUSION

11 For the foregoing reasons, defendants' motion to dismiss plaintiffs' claims is GRANTED in part 12 WITH LEAVE TO AMEND and DENIED in part. Plaintiff Mila Cabrera is DISMISSED WITH 13 PREJUDICE. The Court DISMISSES WITHOUT PREJUDICE defendants Countrywide Financial, 14 Countrywide Bank, and Bank of America. Any amended complaint must be filed no later than 15 November 16, 2012. The Initial Case Management Conference is continued to January 18, 2013
16 at 2:30 p.m.
