UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

Case No. 13-cv-03366-JD

ORDER ON MOTIONS Re: Dkt. Nos. 44, 45, 50, 66, 68, 73

Plaintiff, a state prisoner, proceeds with a pro se civil rights action under 42 U.S.C. § 1983. Plaintiff alleges that he was denied access to the courts due to the denial of requests to correspond with inmates at another prison and he missed several court phone calls due to defendants. He also alleges that defendants' actions were in retaliation for his protected conduct. The parties filed several motions that the Court now addresses.

Motion to Compel

19 A party may bring a motion to compel discovery when another party has failed to respond 20 or respond adequately to a discovery request. Fed. R. Civ. P. 37(a)(3). A party may "obtain discovery regarding any nonprivileged matter that is relevant to any party's claim or defense" but 21 22 "for good cause, the court may order discovery of any matter relevant to the subject matter 23 involved in the action." Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(b). As the moving party, plaintiff bears the burden of informing the Court which discovery requests are the subject of his motion to compel and for each 24 disputed response, why defendants' objections are not justified or why the response provided is 25 deficient. 26

Plaintiff filed a motion compel that is more than 300 pages with exhibits. He seeks the Court to compel nearly every document and interrogatory request. Plaintiff's spends 100 pages discussing the discovery requests and 50 pages discussing the interrogatory requests. Defendants correctly argue that this extensive vastly exceeds Local Rule 7-2(b), which limits the arguments in a motion to 25 pages. Defendants still filed an opposition addressing the motion and the Court has reviewed the requests and responses by defendants and will look to the merits.

Defendants' responses to the discovery requests demonstrate that they provided documents and answers to many of plaintiff's requests. Defendants also note that they have continued to produce documents even after the motion to compel was filed. They have served supplemental responses to 49 of plaintiff's 115 requests, and many of the issues raised in the motion to compel are now moot. While plaintiff filed a letter after defendants opposed the motion to compel, plaintiff did not address defendants' arguments in opposition or that more information had been provided.

Defendants contend that the remaining document requests are overly broad, burdensome, and vague. For example, plaintiff requests a copy of the California Code of Regulations Title 15, the Department Operations Manual, and the Pelican Bay Operations Manual. Only small portions of these documents relate the subject matter of this case and these documents are available to plaintiff in the prison law library. Plaintiff requests that each defendant provide all documents or emails signed by each defendant in the course of their work that state plaintiff's name from 2012 to the present. This request is overly broad and burdensome. Plaintiff also requests that defendants provide all documents that support their contention that they did not violate his rights. This request is vague and ambiguous. The remaining requests are also overly broad, burdensome, or vague.

With respect to the interrogatory requests, defendants provided answers to many questions, but it appears that plaintiff is not satisfied with the answers. Plaintiff has failed to demonstrate the Court should compel additional answers. For all these reasons the motion to compel is denied.

Miscellaneous Motions

Plaintiff's motion for sanctions and motion to strike the motion to dismiss and motion for summary judgment are denied as meritless. Plaintiff's motion to file a lengthy opposition to the dispositive motion is granted and the Court will consider the filing.
