Case No. 13-cv-03826-EMC

Case No. 15-cv-0262-EMC

ORDER GRANTING IN PART AND DENYING IN PART PLAINTIFFS'
ADMINISTRATIVE MOTION TO FILE
UNDER SEAL

O'Connor, Docket No. 516
Yucesoy, Docket No. 204

I. INTRODUCTION

On April 21, 2016, Plaintiffs in O'Connor v. Uber Technologies, Inc. and Yucesoy v. Uber Technologies, Inc. filed a motion for preliminary approval of a settlement. O'Connor, Docket No. 518. Plaintiffs also filed an administrative motion to file under seal certain portions of the motion and attached declarations and exhibits. O'Connor, Docket No. 516. The Court subsequently issued an Order to Show Cause, requesting further briefing on the motion to file under seal given that “a significant portion of the information that the parties seek to file under seal is highly material to an assessment of whether Plaintiffs’ settlement falls within the range of possible approval.” O'Connor, Docket No. 531 at 2. Having reviewed the parties’ filings, the Court GRANTS in part and DENIES in part Plaintiffs’ motion to file under seal.

1 II. DISCUSSION

2 A. Applicable Legal Standard

3 In determining whether to grant a motion to file under seal, the Court “must 4 conscientiously balance the competing interests of the public and the party who seeks to keep
5 certain judicial records secret.” Kamakana v. City & Cnty. of Honolulu, 447 F.3d 1172, 1179 (9th
6 Cir. 2006) (citation and internal modifications omitted). Where the records pertain to a dispositive
7 motion, sealing must be justified by a compelling reason and supported by an articulated factual
8 basis. Id. “Compelling reasons sufficient to outweigh the public’s interest in disclosure and 9 justify sealing court records exist when such court files might have become a vehicle for improper
10 purposes, such as the use of records to gratify private spite, promote public scandal, circulate
11 libelous statements, or release trade secrets.” Id.

12 In order to grant a motion to seal documents when applying the “compelling reasons”
13 standard, this Court must “base its decision on a compelling reason and articulate the factual basis
14 for its ruling, without relying on hypothesis or conjecture.” Id. at 1179 (citations omitted). As a 15 number of courts in this district have suggested, “only documents of exceptionally sensitive
16 information” will be kept from the public. Apple, Inc. v. Samsung Elecs. Co., Ltd., No. 11-cv-
17 1846-LHK, 2012 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 99188, 2012 WL 2913669, at *2 (N.D. Cal. July 17, 2012)
18 (emphasis added); see also Oracle Am. v. Google, Inc., No. 10-cv-3561-WHA, at ECF No. 540
19 (noting that sealing motions “will be denied outright” unless counsel identified “a limited amount 20 of exceptionally sensitive information that truly deserves protection”).

1 B. Application of the Compelling Reasons Standard¹

2 1. Information Related to Value of the Settlement

3 The Court DENIES the request to redact information about the potential value of each of 4 Plaintiffs' claims.² As this Court noted in its Order to Show Cause, this information is highly 5 relevant to assessing whether Plaintiffs' settlement falls within the range of possible approval. By 6 contrast, Uber's reasons for keeping this information under seal are largely hypothetical. For 7 example, Uber suggests that information on the value of the claims could be used to determine the 8 trends of usage or the effect of competitor's marketing efforts from 2010 to 2016. See O'Connor,
9 Docket No. 523-5 (Barnes Dec.), at ¶ 7. However, Uber does not explain how an aggregate
10 number of all miles driven or fares received over a period of several years could result in a 11 determination of trends of usage, particularly when the information is not broken down by year or 12 any other period. Similarly, Uber theorizes that competitors "could compare the mileage
13 information for the O'Connor class with the mileage information for California as a whole to 14 quantify the breakdown of Uber's vehicle classes." See Barnes Dec. at ¶ 6; O'Connor, Docket
15 No. 558. Again, Uber provides no explanation for how this is possible, given that the non-16 certified class members were not based on vehicle class but whether an individual signed up to 17 drive directly with Uber under their individual name, or were paid directly and in their individual
18 name. See O'Connor, Docket No. 342 (Class Certification Ord.). This definition crosses vehicle
19 classes, such that the non-certified class members could very well include numerous individuals
20 who signed up under fictitious or corporate names but drove solely for uberX. More importantly,

21 _____
22 ¹ The parties do not suggest that the Court should apply the standard applicable for non-dispositive
23 motions. See Kamakana, 447 F.3d at 1179; see also O'Connor, Docket No. 523 (Uber
24 Memorandum in Support of Plaintiffs' Administrative Motion to File Under Seal) (applying 25 compelling reasons standard). Given the significant public interest in this case, and the effect the 26 settlement will have on a number of on-going litigation, the Court finds that the compelling reasons standard is appropriate. See also Keirsev v. eBay, Inc., Case No. 12-cv-1200-JST, 2013
U.S. Dist. LEXIS 147573, at *7 (N.D. Cal. Oct. 11, 2013) (explaining that "a motion seeking the Court's preliminary approval of the settlement of the case may be effectively dispositive," and concluding that "the 'compelling reasons' standard is the appropriate standard.").

27 ² In their response to the Order to Show Cause, Uber withdrew its request to seal Plaintiffs'
28 estimates of the aggregate value of their claims. See O'Connor, Docket No. 558. Uber did not withdraw its request to seal Plaintiffs' estimates of the individual claims, i.e., the value of the expense reimbursement claim for vehicle use or the tips claims.

1 the information about the potential value of each claim is highly material to the assessment of the 2 fairness and adequacy of the settlement.

3 The Court therefore finds that Uber has failed to provide a compelling reason for why this
4 information should remain under seal, particularly when balanced against the public's significant
5 interest in this information.

6 2. Uber's Valuation

7 The Court DENIES the request to redact Uber's most recent valuation because this 8 information is publicly available. A simple Google search of "Uber valuation" yields numerous
9 articles and websites that provide the same valuation. See Eric Newcomer, Uber Raises Funding
10 at $62.5 Billion Valuation, Bloomberg Techn., Dec. 3, 2015; Mike Isaac & Leslie Picker, Uber
11 Valuation Put at $62.5 Billion After a New Investment Round, N.Y. Times, Dec. 3, 2015; Uber
12 (company), Wikipedia, https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Uber_\(company\)) (last visited May 6, 2016).

13 3. Number of Opt-Outs

14 The Court GRANTS the request to redact the number of opt-outs that would trigger
15 Uber's option to rescind and revoke the settlement.

16 III. CONCLUSION

17 For the reasons stated above, the Court GRANTS the request to file under seal the number
18 of opt-outs that would trigger Uber's option to rescind and revoke the settlement, and DENIES
19 the remainder of the motion to file under seal. Plaintiffs must file their motion for preliminary 20 approval and the accompanying declarations and exhibits, redacted consistent with this Order, by 21 Monday, May 9, 2016.
