28UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

In Re.

No. C 13-4020 SI (pr)

CESAR ALCANTAR,

ORDER OF DISMISSALPetitioner.

INTRODUCTION

Cesar Alcantar, an inmate at Pelican Bay State Prison, commenced this action by filing a petition for writ of habeas corpus in which he urged that his constitutional rights were violated during proceedings in 2008 to validate him as a gang affiliate and his resulting placement in the security housing unit ("SHU"). His petition is now before the court for review pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §2243 and Rule 4 of the Rules Governing Section 2254 Cases. The court will dismiss this action without prejudice to Alcantar filing a civil rights action.

DISCUSSION

"Federal law opens two main avenues to relief on complaints related to imprisonment: a petition for habeas corpus, 28 U.S.C. § 2254, and a complaint under the Civil Rights Act of 1871, Rev. Stat. § 1979, as amended, 42 U.S.C. § 1983. Challenges to the validity of any confinement or to particulars affecting its duration are the province of habeas corpus." Hill v. McDonough, 547 U.S. 574, 579 (2006) (quoting Muhammad v. Close, 540 U.S. 749, 750

1 (2004)). "An inmate's challenge to the circumstances of his confinement, however, may be 2 brought under § 1983." Id.

3 Where a successful challenge to a prison condition will not necessarily shorten the 4 prisoner's sentence, a civil rights action under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 is proper and habeas jurisdiction
5 is absent. See Ramirez v. Galaza, 334 F.3d 850, 859 (9th Cir. 2003). In addition, the preferred 6 practice in the Ninth Circuit has been that challenges to conditions of confinement be brought 7 in a civil rights complaint. See Badea v. Cox, 931 F.2d 573, 574 (9th Cir. 1991) (civil rights
8 action proper method of challenging conditions of confinement); Crawford v. Bell, 599 F.2d 890, 9 891-92 & n.1 (9th Cir. 1979) (affirming dismissal of habeas petition because challenges to terms 10 and conditions of confinement must be brought as civil rights complaint).

11 In this action, Alcantar challenges prison officials' decision to validate him as a gang 12 affiliate and place him in the SHU. The petition does not attempt to challenge either the fact 13 of his conviction or the length of his sentence. Rather, it goes entirely to the conditions of his 14 confinement, and success in this action would not result in his release from prison nor shorten 15 his stay in prison.¹ Alcantar's claims must be pursued in a civil rights action if they are to be 16 pursued in federal court. See Palma-Salazar v. Davis, 677 F.3d 1031, 1038-39 (10th Cir. 2012)
17 (federal prisoner's challenge to transfer to ad-seg must be brought pursuant to Bivens, rather than 18 as a habeas action).

19 Although a district court may construe a habeas petition by a prisoner attacking the 20 conditions of his confinement as pleading civil rights claims under 42 U.S.C. § 1983, 21 Wilwording v. Swenson, 404 U.S. 249, 251 (1971), the court declines to do so here. The 22 difficulty with construing a habeas petition as a civil rights complaint is that the two forms used 23 by most prisoners request different information and much of the information necessary for a civil 24 rights complaint is not included in the habeas petition filed here. Examples of the potential

26 ¹A prisoner serving a set term of years who loses credit-earning eligibility under 27 California Penal Code § 2933.6 when he is placed in the SHU due to his gang validation might 28 be able to show that such placement affects the duration of his confinement and therefore might be able to pursue a claim in habeas. The same cannot be said for a prisoner serving an indeterminate sentence, such as Alcantar. See Docket # 1 at 5-6 (sentenced to 50-years-to-life in 2004).

1 problems created by using the habeas petition form rather than the civil rights complaint form
2 include the potential omission of intended defendants, potential failure to link each defendant
3 to the claims, and potential absence of an adequate prayer for relief. Additionally, there is doubt 4 whether the prisoner is willing to pay the civil action filing fee of $ 350.00 (plus a $50.00
5 administrative fee) rather than the $5.00 habeas filing fee to pursue his claims. The habeas 6 versus civil rights distinction is not just a matter of using different pleading forms. A habeas 7 action differs in many ways from a civil rights action: (1) a habeas petitioner has no right to a 8 jury trial on his claims, (2) the court may be able to make credibility determinations based on 9 the written submissions of the parties in a habeas action, (3) state court (rather than 10 administrative) remedies must be exhausted for the claims in a habeas action, (4) the proper 11 respondent in a habeas action is the warden in charge of the prison, but he or she might not be 12 able to provide the desired relief when the prisoner is complaining about a condition of 13 confinement, and (5) damages cannot be awarded in a habeas action. While a prisoner may think 14 he has found a loophole that allows him to save hundreds of dollars – by filing a habeas petition 15 with a $5.00 fee rather than the usual $350.00 fee (plus $50.00 administrative fee) for a civil 16 action – the loophole proves unhelpful because he ultimately cannot proceed in habeas and will 17 be charged the regular civil action filing fee to challenge conditions of confinement. It is not in 18 the interest of judicial economy to allow prisoners to file civil rights actions on habeas forms 19 because virtually every such case, including this one, will be defective at the outset and require 20 additional court resources to deal with the problems created by the different filing fees and the 21 absence of information on the habeas form.

22 23 CONCLUSION

24 For the foregoing reasons, this action for a writ of habeas corpus is DISMISSED without 25 prejudice to Alcantar filing a civil rights action under 42 U.S.C. § 1983, preferably using the 26 court's civil rights complaint form.
