7 Plaintiff,

8 v.

9 APPLE INC.,

10 Defendant.

Case No. 13-cv-04700-EMC (KAW)

ORDER TERMINATING JOINT DISCOVERY LETTER BRIEF

Re: Dkt. No. 143

12
13 The parties to the above-captioned case have filed a joint discovery letter brief. (Joint Ltr., 14 Dkt. No. 143.) They dispute whether Apple's Rule 30(b)(6) deponents were adequately prepared
15 to testify on Topic No. 11, which concerns "[t]he design, development, function, operation and use
16 of AirPlay." (Id. at 2.)

17 Aylus specifically requests that Apple be compelled to designate a witness who is prepared
18 to give competent testimony or to provide a complete response to Interrogatory No. 13. (Id. at 5.)
19 Apple asserts that Aylus has waived its right to request further deposition testimony, or 20 alternatively, that Aylus' request should be denied because it is impossible to provide the requested
21 testimony. (Id. at 9.)

22 The parties' filing, however, does not conform to this Court's General Standing Order. As 23 the Court has previously explained, the parties must address disputes concerning different 24 discovery devices in separate joint letters. (See Feb. 25, 2015 Order at 1 n.1 ("To avoid any 25 confusion in the future, the parties are on notice that disputes concerning distinct discovery
26 devices should be briefed in separate joint letters.") (citing Judge Westmore's General Standing 27 Order ¶ 13 ("The parties shall file a separate joint letter for each discovery dispute (i.e. if the 28 parties have disputes regarding specific interrogatories and requests for production, they must file

1 two letters.")).) Additionally, neither party cites any legal authority for its respective position.
2 (See Judge Westmore's General Standing Order ¶ 13(c) ("With respect to each issue relating to the
3 unresolved dispute, a detailed summary of each party's final substantive position and their final
4 proposed compromise on each issue, including relevant legal authority.")) Aylus also does not
5 propose a compromise¹ or substantively respond to Apple's proposed compromise, which is to 6 provide supplemental interrogatory responses to identify certain exemplary scenarios. (See Joint
7 Letter.) Accordingly, the parties' joint letter is TERMINATED.

8 If Aylus seeks responses in addition to those which Apple has agreed to provide in their 9 above-referenced compromise, the parties shall address the issues noted above in a further joint
10 letter, and only after lead trial counsel have met and conferred on Apple's proposed compromise.
11 (See Judge Westmore's General Standing Order ¶ 12.) Apple shall also consider whether the 12 individual who will provide the supplemental interrogatory responses should be made available
13 for deposition.

14 The parties are reminded that any filing must conform to the Court's General Standing
15 Order. It shall also include a copy of the deposition notice at issue and a copy of the stipulation
16 which purportedly limited the scope of one of the Rule 30(b)(6) depositions.

17 IT IS SO ORDERED.

¹ This is not the first time Aylus has failed to include a proposed compromise in a discovery letter.
