UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

XIMPLEWARE CORP.,
Plaintiff,
v.
VERSATA SOFTWARE, INC., et al.,
Defendants.

Case No. 13-cv-05160-SI

ORDER RE: PLAINTIFF'S MOTION FOR PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION

Plaintiff XimpleWare's Motion for Preliminary Injunction is scheduled to come before the Court on November 21, 2014. XimpleWare argues that defendant Versata has failed to do the things it promised to do over ten months ago at the hearing on XimpleWare's motion for a temporary restraining order. Motion at 6; Reply at 2. At the previous hearing, Versata represented that it had no new sales of its DCM software; it did not anticipate any additional sales during the 2013 calendar year; that all references to XML in the previously-created versions of DCM were removed; and that a patch was created and would be sent to all of Versata's customers. Docket No. 46, pg. 37. The Court accepted Versata's representations and denied the requested preliminary injunction. The Court also stated that it would require, in the future, proof that Versata did in fact do what it promised it would. Id.

XimpleWare contends that to date, XimpleWare has not been provided with any evidence of Versata's delivery of a successful patch to its customers. Docket No. 103, Russo Decl. ¶ 8; Docket No. 104, Halliburton Decl. ¶ 5; Reply at 2. Versata maintains that all of its customers which are currently running its DCM have received a patch that eliminates any reference to or use of VTD-XML in the software. Opp. at 5. Versata also stated that it had not provided XimpleWare a list of customers to which the patch had been delivered, but would do so once a protective order was entered in this case. Id. n.1. The protective order in this case was issued on October 27, 2014. Docket No. 116.

At the motion hearing scheduled for November 21, 2014, Versata should be prepared to present to the Court and to XimpleWare proof that the patch is installed and functioning for all of Versata’s customers, as well as a statement from Ameriprise that the second patch provided by Versata is now functioning.

IT IS SO ORDERED.
