UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

KEVIN L. HOPKINS,
Plaintiff,

v.

THE SALVATION ARMY,
Defendant.

Case No. 14-cv-01494-JD

ORDER DENYING DEFENDANT’S
MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT
WITHOUT PREJUDICE

Re: Dkt. No. 23

Plaintiff, a former state prisoner proceeding pro se, has brought an action pursuant to Title II of the Americans with Disabilities Act (“ADA”). Defendant has filed a motion for summary judgment. Plaintiff has filed an opposition. The motion is denied in part.

BACKGROUND

Plaintiff’s original complaint was filed while he was incarcerated at California State Prison - Solano.¹ Liberally construing the complaint, the Court found that plaintiff was bringing a claim pursuant to Title II of the ADA against Defendant Salvation Army’s Adult Rehabilitation Program, a Contra Costa County superior court judge, and plaintiff’s appointed trial attorney.² Plaintiff only sought money damages. He contended that he was in the Salvation Army Adult Rehabilitation Program when he injured his knee and that the Salvation Army did not allow him to return to the program due to the injury. As a result, according to plaintiff, his probation was revoked and he was sent to prison. The Court dismissed the claims against the judge and the appointed attorney and dismissed the complaint with leave to amend to provide more information

¹ Plaintiff appears to have been released from custody several months after this motion was filed.
² Plaintiff stated he was bringing the action under articles one and two of the ADA. Original Complaint at 3.

1 regarding his ADA claim against the Salvation Army.

2 Plaintiff filed an amended complaint, again only seeking money damages, and stated that
3 his cause of action was pursuant to Title II of the ADA (although both complaints were filed on 4 the Court’s form complaint for prisoners entitled, “Complaint Under the Civil Rights Act, 42
5 U.S.C. § 1983”). The Court found that, liberally construed, plaintiff’s claim was sufficient to
6 demonstrate a violation of Title II of the ADA for purposes of screening. The Court also noted
7 that for purposes of screening and based on the allegations in the complaint, it appeared that the 8 Salvation Army was an appropriate public entity pursuant to Title II of the ADA. Defendant was 9 served and has filed this motion.

10 ANALYSIS

11 Defendant argues in this motion for summary judgment that plaintiff has brought this
12 action pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983, but the Salvation Army is not a state agency and did not act
13 under color of state law. Defendant also argues that plaintiff failed to exhaust administrative 14 remedies pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1997e. Defendant asserts that as part of a separate parole
15 agreement between plaintiff and the State of California, plaintiff agreed to voluntarily participate
16 in the Salvation Army Adult Rehabilitation Program.³ Defendant contends that the Salvation
17 Army was not party to this agreement and is unrelated to the State of California, the Department of 18 Corrections, or the Parole Board. Defendant maintains that there was no color of state action or 19 privity of contract, and that they were not state actors. Defendant also states that its services are 20 provided free of charge.⁴

21 Plaintiff states in his opposition that he is proceeding under the ADA and that this action is 22 not brought pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983.⁵ Because plaintiff has expressly stated that he is not
23 proceeding under § 1983, and to the extent he has made any claims under § 1983, all those claims
24 are dismissed from this action. However, his claim under the ADA continues and has not been 25

26 ³ Defendant states that plaintiff has alleged three separate personal injury claims during his time in 27 the program and filed a civil action in the superior court.

28 ⁴ It is unclear if the Salvation Army program at issue receives any funding from the county or state for its rehabilitation services.

⁵ Defendant did not file a reply addressing plaintiff’s opposition.

1 addressed in Defendant’s motion. The motion for summary judgment is dismissed without
2 prejudice and defendant may file an additional motion for summary judgment regarding the ADA
3 claim.

4 Title II of the ADA “prohibit[s] discrimination on the basis of disability,” Lovell v.
5 Chandler, 303 F.3d 1039, 1052 (9th Cir. 2002), and provides that “no qualified individual with a 6 disability shall, by reason of such disability, be excluded from participation in or be denied the 7 benefits of the services, programs, or activities of a public entity, or be subjected to discrimination
8 by any such entity.” 42 U.S.C. § 12132. Title II of the ADA applies to inmates within state
9 prisons. Pennsylvania Dept. of Corrections v. Yeskey, 524 U.S. 206, 213 (1998).

10 In order to state a claim that a public program or service violated Title II of the ADA, a 11 plaintiff must show: he is a “qualified individual with a disability;” he was either excluded from 12 participation in or denied the benefits of a public entity’s services, programs, or activities, or was 13 otherwise discriminated against by the public entity; and such exclusion, denial of benefits, or 14 discrimination was by reason of his disability. McGary v. City of Portland, 386 F.3d 1259, 1265
15 (9th Cir. 2004).

16 Plaintiff may bring a claim under Title II of the ADA against state entities for injunctive
17 relief and damages. See Phiffer v. Columbia River Correctional Institute, 384 F.3d 791, 792 (9th
18 Cir. 2004). The standard for recovery of damages is deliberate indifference to plaintiff’s rights
19 under the ADA. Duvall v. County of Kitsap, 260 F.3d 1124, 1138 (9th Cir. 2001). “Deliberate
20 indifference requires both knowledge that a harm to a federally protected right is substantially
21 likely, and a failure to act upon that likelihood.” Id. at 1139. Plaintiff cannot seek damages
22 pursuant to the ADA against defendants in their individual capacities. Vinson v. Thomas, 288 F.3d
23 1145, 1156 (9th Cir. 2002).

24 While defendant argues that the Salvation Army is not a state actor and that there was no
25 color of state action on its part pursuant to § 1983, defendant has not addressed whether it is a
26 public entity pursuant to Title II of the ADA. Assuming arguendo that defendant is not a public
27
28

1 entity, plaintiff could perhaps still proceed with this case pursuant to another title of the ADA.⁶
2 However, if plaintiff proceeded under Title III, the only remedy available to him would be
3 injunctive relief. See Antoninetti v. Chipotle Mexican Grill, 643 F.3d 1165, 1174 (9th Cir. 2010).

4 Defendant also alleged that plaintiff failed to exhaust his administrative remedies. The 5 Prison Litigation Reform Act of 1995, Pub. L. No. 104-134, 110 Stat. 1321 (1996) (“PLRA”),
6 amended 42 U.S.C. § 1997e to provide that “[n]o action shall be brought with respect to prison
7 conditions under [42 U.S.C. § 1983], or any other Federal law, by a prisoner confined in any jail,
8 prison, or other correctional facility until such administrative remedies as are available are 9 exhausted.” 42 U.S.C. § 1997e(a). In his complaint, plaintiff indicated that he did not exhaust his 10 administrative remedies, and in his opposition he states that he is “suing outside the scope of the 11 State of California and the Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation, hence, making
12 exhaustion remedies moot.” Opposition at 2-3. However, plaintiff was incarcerated when he filed 13 the complaint and appeared to be a parolee when the underlying events occurred and when he was 14 released. The California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation provides that, “any inmate
15 or parolee under the department’s jurisdiction may appeal any policy, decision, action, condition,
16 or omission by the department or its staff that the inmate or parolee can demonstrate as having a
17 material adverse effect upon his or her health, safety, or welfare.” Cal. Code Regs. tit. 15, §
18 3084.1(a). Thus, parolees have administrative remedies available to them, and a prisoner suing
19 under the ADA must exhaust prison administrative remedies, notwithstanding the absence of a 20 federal administrative exhaustion requirement in those statutes. See O’Guinn v. Lovelock
21 Correctional Center, 502 F.3d 1056, 1061 (9th Cir. 2007). Yet, the PLRA only applies to actions
22 brought “with respect to prison conditions” in a jail, prison or other correctional facility. If 23 defendant seeks to dismiss the case for failure to exhaust it must address if the claim in the action
24 arose with respect to prison conditions and if it occurred in a correctional facility where the claim
25 would be subject to exhaustion.

28 ⁶ The ADA contains five titles: Employment (Title I), Public Services (Title II), Public Accommodations and Services Operated by Private Entities (Title III), Telecommunications (Title IV), and Miscellaneous Provisions (Title V).

1 CONCLUSION

2 1. Any claim brought pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983 is dismissed from this action. The 3 motion for summary judgment (Docket No. 23) is DENIED without prejudice in all other
4 respects. Defendant may file an additional dispositive motion regarding the ADA claim within 60
5 days. If defendant is of the opinion that this case cannot be resolved by summary judgment, it
6 shall so inform the Court prior to the date that the summary judgment motion is due. All other
7 aspects of the Court’s order of service (Docket No. 12) remain in effect.

8 2. It is the plaintiff’s responsibility to prosecute this case. Plaintiff must keep the Court
9 informed of any change of address by filing a separate paper with the clerk headed “Notice of 10 Change of Address,” and must comply with the Court’s orders in a timely fashion. Failure to 11 do so may result in the dismissal of this action for failure to prosecute pursuant to Federal Rule of 12 Civil Procedure 41(b).
