28UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIAJERRY WAYNE YOUNG,
Plaintiff,
v.
DANIEL PARAMO,
Defendant.

Case No. 16-cv-01220-JST (PR)

ORDER OF DISMISSAL; DENYING MOTION FOR RECUSAL

Re: Dkt. No. 7

Plaintiff, Jerry Wayne Young, is incarcerated at Mule Creek State Prison following a conviction in the San Diego County Superior Court. Young commenced this action, while housed at the R.J. Donovan Correctional Facility, by filing a “writ of injunction” seeking to prevent his transfer to a different institution. He has been granted leave to proceed in forma pauperis by separate order. His complaint is now before the Court for review under 28 U.S.C. § 1915A.

DISCUSSIONI. Standard of Review

A federal court must engage in a preliminary screening of any case in which a prisoner seeks redress from a governmental entity or officer or employee of a governmental entity. 28 U.S.C. § 1915A(a). In its review the court must identify any cognizable claims, and dismiss any claims which are frivolous, malicious, fail to state a claim upon which relief may be granted, or seek monetary relief from a defendant who is immune from such relief. 28 U.S.C. § 1915A(b)(1),(2). Pro se pleadings must be liberally construed. Balistreri v. Pacifica Police Dep’t, 901 F.2d 696, 699 (9th Cir. 1990).

Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 8(a)(2) requires only “a short and plain statement of the claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief.” “Specific facts are not necessary; the

1 statement need only ‘give the defendant fair notice of what the . . . claim is and the grounds upon
2 which it rests.’” Erickson v. Pardus, 551 U.S. 89, 93 (2007) (citations omitted). Although in
3 order to state a claim a complaint “does not need detailed factual allegations, . . . a plaintiff’s
4 obligation to provide the ‘grounds’ of his ‘entitle[ment] to relief’ requires more than labels and
5 conclusions, and a formulaic recitation of the elements of a cause of action will not do. . . .
6 Factual allegations must be enough to raise a right to relief above the speculative level.” Bell
7 Atlantic Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 555 (2007) (citations omitted). A complaint must 8 proffer “enough facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face.” Id. at 570.

9 To state a claim under 42 U.S.C. § 1983, a plaintiff must allege two elements: (1) that a
10 right secured by the Constitution or laws of the United States was violated; and (2) that the 11 violation was committed by a person acting under the color of state law. West v. Atkins, 487 U.S.
12 42, 48 (1988).

13 II. Analysis

14 It is well-settled that prisoners have no constitutional right to incarceration in a particular 15 institution. See Olim v. Wakinekona, 461 U.S. 238, 244-48 (1983); Meachum v. Fano, 427 U.S.
16 215, 224 (1976). A prisoner’s liberty interests are sufficiently extinguished by his conviction that 17 the state may generally confine or transfer him to any of its institutions, to prisons in another state,
18 or to federal prisons, without offending the Constitution. See Rizzo v. Dawson, 778 F.2d 527, 530
19 (9th Cir. 1985) (citing Meachum, 427 U.S. at 225) (intrastate prison transfer does not implicate
20 Due Process Clause), and Olim, 461 U.S. at 244-48 (interstate prison transfer does not implicate
21 Due Process Clause)). Accordingly, the instant action will be dismissed for failure to state a 22 claim. Dismissal is without leave to amend as it appears amendment would be futile.

23 III. Motion for Recusal

24 Plaintiff has also filed a motion to recuse the undersigned judge on the grounds of judicial 25 bias. He argues that bias is evident from the rulings made against him in Young v. Knipp, C 14-
26 2092 JST (PR) (N.D. Cal.). In that action, plaintiff filed a petition for a writ of mandamus seeking 27 an order compelling the state to provide him with a free transcript of his state criminal
28 proceedings. The Court dismissed the action with prejudice on the ground that federal courts are

1 without power to issue mandamus to direct state courts, state judicial officers, or other state
2 officials in the performance of their duties. See Demos v. U.S. District Court, 925 F.2d 1160,
3 1161-62 (9th Cir. 1991); In re Campbell, 264 F.3d 730, 731-32 (7th Cir. 2001).

4 Motions to disqualify, or recuse, a judge fall under two statutory provisions, 28 U.S.C.
5 § 144 and 28 U.S.C. § 455. Section 144 provides for recusal where a party files a timely and
6 sufficient affidavit averring that the judge before whom the matter is pending has a personal bias
7 or prejudice either against the party or in favor of an adverse party, and setting forth the facts and
8 reasons for such belief. See 28 U.S.C. § 144. Similarly, § 455 requires a judge to disqualify
9 himself “in any proceeding in which his impartiality might reasonably be questioned,” 28 U.S.C.
10 § 455(a), including where the judge “has a personal bias or prejudice concerning a party,” id. §455
11 (b)(1).

12 A judge finding a § 144 motion timely and the affidavits legally sufficient must proceed no
13 further and another judge must be assigned to hear the matter. See id.; United States v. Sibla, 624
14 F.2d 864, 867 (9th Cir. 1980). Where the affidavit is not legally sufficient, however, the judge at 15 whom the motion is directed may determine the matter. See id. at 868 (holding judge challenged 16 under § 144 properly heard and denied motion where affidavit not legally sufficient).

17 The substantive test for personal bias or prejudice is identical under §§ 144 and 455. See
18 Sibla, 624 F.2d at 867. Specifically, under both statutes recusal is appropriate where “a reasonable 19 person with knowledge of all the facts would conclude that the judge’s impartiality might 20 reasonably be questioned.” Yagman v. Republic Ins., 987 F.2d 622, 626 (9th Cir. 1993) (citation
21 omitted). Consequently, an affidavit filed under § 144 will raise a question concerning recusal
22 under §§ 455(a) and (b)(1) as well. Sibla, 642 F.2d at 867.

23 Here, plaintiff’s allegations categorically fail to establish any basis, under either § 144 or 24 § 455, for a determination that the Court’s impartiality might reasonably be questioned herein, and 25 consequently are insufficient as a matter of law. Motions for recusal are “limited by the 26 ‘extrajudicial source’ factor which generally requires as the basis for recusal something other than 27 rulings, opinions formed or statements made by the judge during the course of trial.” United 28 States v. Holland, 519 F.3d 909, 913-14 (9th Cir. 2008); see also Sibla, 624 F.2d at 868 (holding

1 affidavit not legally sufficient unless it alleges facts demonstrating bias or prejudice that “stems
2 from an extrajudicial source”). Judicial rulings may constitute grounds for appeal, but are not a
3 valid basis for a motion for recusal. See Liteky v. United States, 510 U.S. 540, 555-56 (1994).

4 Plaintiff’s motion is legally insufficient to require recusal and will therefore be DENIED.

5 IV. Other Requests

6 Plaintiff also appears to seek an injunction that would order his unconditional release and 7 would void certain judgments against him in his San Diego County Superior Court case. These 8 requests have already been addressed in a previous action, Young v. Knipp, 15-0493 SI (PR)
9 (N.D. Cal.), and are dismissed here on the same basis as in the previous action, i.e., as filed in the 10 wrong venue.

11 CONCLUSION

12 For the foregoing reasons, the complaint is DISMISSED for failure to state claim under the 13 authority of 28 U.S.C. § 1915A(b) and as filed in the wrong venue.

14 The Clerk shall enter judgment in accordance with this order, terminate all pending
15 motions as moot, and close the file.
