PROSTAR WIRELESS GROUP, LLC, Plaintiff,
v.
DOMINO'S PIZZA, INC.,
Defendant.

Case No. 3:16-cv-05399-WHO

ORDER ON DISCOVERY DISPUTES

Re: Dkt. Nos. 61, 62

In accordance with the last scheduling order (Dkt. No. 60), the parties submitted two discovery disputes on July 13, 2018 (Dkt. Nos. 61, 62). The first concerns whether Prostar statutorily waived the attorney-client privilege with respect to communications concerning the parties' 2015 Non-Disclosure Agreement (NDA) and other purported contracts between Prostar, IBM, and Domino's ("Joint St. No. 1")(Dkt. No. 1"), and the second relates to Prostar's Requests for Production Numbers 22, 23, and 33 ("Joint St. No. 2")(Dkt. No. 62).

I. WHETHER PROSTAR STATUTORILY WAIVED ATTORNEY-CLIENT PRIVILEGE WITH RESPECT TO CERTAIN COMMUNICATIONS

When federal courts exercise diversity jurisdiction over a case, "questions of privilege are controlled by state law." In re California Pub. Utilities Comm'n, 892 F.2d 778, 781 (9th Cir. 1989); see Fed. R. Evid. 501. California law provides that certain privileges, including the lawyer-client privilege, are "waived with respect to a communication protected by the privilege if any holder of the privilege, without coercion, has disclosed a significant part of the communication or has consented to disclosure made by anyone." Cal. Evid. Code § 912(a). The rule does not require that "all of a communication between attorney and client must be disclosed before a waiver occurs," in part because "it makes no sense to hold that no waiver occurs when

1 what is disclosed is the most important part of the privileged communication, but not the details.”
2 Electro Sci. Indus., Inc. v. Gen. Scanning, Inc., 175 F.R.D. 539, 543 (N.D. Cal. 1997). “[A] 3 sophisticated party who intentionally discloses the most significant part of an otherwise privileged 4 communication, in an act calculated to advance that party’s commercial interests, cannot establish, 5 as the law would require, that the party reasonably believed that it would be able to preserve the 6 confidentiality of the other parts of that communication.” Id.

7 But the federal rule governing the “[l]imitations on [w]aiver” of the attorney-client 8 privilege “applies even if state law provides the rule of decision.” See Fed. R. Evid. 502(f).
9 Domino’s seizes on the federal rule in an attempt to expand the scope of waiver under the 10 California rule. The federal rule provides that “[w]hen a disclosure is made in a federal 11 proceeding ... the waiver extends to an undisclosed communication or information ... only if: (1) 12 the waiver is intentional; (2) the disclosed and undisclosed communications or information 13 concern the same subject matter; and (3) they ought in fairness to be considered together.” Fed. R.
14 Evid. 502(a); see also Weil v. Inv./Indicators, Research & Mgmt., Inc., 647 F.2d 18, 24 (9th Cir.
15 1981)(“[I]t has been widely held that voluntary disclosure of the content of a privileged attorney 16 communication constitutes waiver of the privilege as to all other such communications on the 17 same subject.”).

18 Domino’s argues that Prostar’s owner Joe Olsen and legal counsel Allan Cory “divulged 19 significant content of attorney-client communications” concerning the 2015 NDA in their 20 respective depositions. See Joint St. No. 1 at 2 (citing deposition testimony from Olsen and Cory).
21 Domino’s cites to Olsen’s testimony regarding Cory’s advice concerning the NDA’s liquidated 22 damages provision and Cory’s testimony that Olsen asked him to reply “immediately,” which 23 purportedly resulted in a “rush job” review. Id. It further cites to Cory’s testimony about 24 information communicated to him by Olsen concerning meetings between Prostar and Domino’s, 25 including Olsen’s assertion that “we’ve got a deal.” Id. at 3 (citing Cory deposition testimony). It 26 insists that these disclosures warrant waiver of the attorney-client privilege with respect to 27 documents regarding the 2015 NDA and other contracts with Domino’s and/or IBM, which 28 Prostar is currently withholding on the basis of attorney-client privilege.

1           The waiver sought by Domino’s is far too expansive. Of the examples upon which it 2           relied, only the testimony concerning the liquidated damages provision entails the contents of 3           purportedly protected communications. While some of the other comments appear to be protected 4           by the privilege, they do not go to significant issues and Prostar has represented that it will not rely 5           on Cory’s testimony. So the question is whether these disclosures constitute a “significant part” of 6           a protected communication thereby triggering statutory waiver.<sup>1</sup> The answer is no.

7           In Southern Cal. Gas Co. v. Public Utilities Com., 50 Cal. 3d 31 (1990), the California
8           Supreme Court decided that “revealing the fact and the conclusion of a communication” did not 9           qualify as a statutory waiver of the attorney-client privilege under California law. Id. at 46–47; id.
10          at 49 (“[W]e conclude that SoCalGas’s disclosure of the fact of its attorneys’ review of the Getty 11          agreement and the conclusions arrived at by its attorneys to members of the commission was not 12          an express waiver of the attorney-client privilege.”). The testimony regarding the NDA’s 13          liquidated damages provision revealed “the fact and the conclusion of a communication,” but 14          Domino’s has not established that it constitutes a significant part of the entire communication such 15          that Prostar has waived the privilege with respect to that communication.

16          To the extent that Domino’s relies on the federal rule to expand the scope of Prostar’s
17          purported waiver beyond a particular communication to ensnare an entire “subject matter,” I am 18          not convinced that “subject matter” should be construed as broadly as Domino’s would like. See 19          Nemirofsky v. Seok Ki Kim, 523 F. Supp. 2d 998, 1001 (N.D. Cal. 2007), as amended (Nov. 24, 20          2007)(noting that confidential communication are “zealously protected” and are “worthy of 21          maximum protection”). For this reason, I will consider the “subject matter” for purposes of an 22          intentional waiver stemming from Olsen’s testimony about Cory’s advice on the liquidated 23          damages provision of the NDA to be limited to the liquidated damages provision of the NDA. If

24 _____
25 <sup>1</sup> It does not appear that Domino’s is arguing for implied waiver as well, see Joint St. No. 1 at 1 26 (indicating that “Prostar has statutorily waived the attorney-client privilege”), but even if it is, 27 implied waiver does not apply since Prostar will not be relying on Cory’s testimony at trial. See 28 Transamerica Title Ins. Co. v. Superior Court, 188 Cal. App. 3d 1047, 1053 (Ct. App.
1987)(“[I]mplied waivers are limited to situations where the client has placed into issue the decisions, conclusions, and mental state of the attorney who will be called as a witness to prove such matters.”); Joint St. No. 1 at 5 (“Prostar did not proactively advance Mr. Cory, Prostar’s legal counsel, as a witness in this case and has no intention of relying on his testimony.”).

1 Prostar is withholding any documents within this narrow subject matter, it should produce them.

2 II. PROSTAR’S RFP NOS. 22, 23, AND 33 (DKT. NO. 62)

3 A. RFP Nos. 22 and 23

4 These requests pertain to “[a]ll internal communications within Domino’s relating to any 5 GPS, driver, and/or order tracking product from January of 2010 through the present[,]” and “[a]ll 6 documents relating to the development of any GPS, driver, and order tracking product for 7 Domino’s from January of 2010 through the present.” Requests 22 and 23 (Ex. A, Prostar’s 8 Request for Production of Documents, Set One).

9 Domino’s initially objected to producing any documentation of its own system, but 10 following a meet and confer in May 2018, agreed to produce documents using agreed upon search 11 terms and agreed upon custodians. Joint St. No. 2 at 1. Apparently, “[t]he handful of 12 communications produced were only those that directly referenced Prostar or its sister company 13 Teldan[,]” but Domino’s withheld other communications concerning the development of its 14 delivery driver tracking system (“Domino’s Solution”) on the basis that they did not “relate” to 15 communications and documents concerning Prostar’s system. Id. at 1–2.

16 Prostar highlights produced emails and testimony from Domino’s principal software 17 developer that Prostar’s technical documentation was transmitted to the team developing 18 Domino’s solution to support its contention that it is entitled to supplemental production of the 19 following:

- 20 (1) All non-privileged documents, which hit on the search terms and 21 are from all custodians and document sources previously agreed 22 upon by the parties, related to any driver tracking technology, 23 notwithstanding whether they mention Prostar, or appear to relate to 24 Prostar or its technology, including, all non-privileged documents
25 related to Ms. Anderzak and Mr. Kennedy’s work on the 26 development of the Domino’s Solution, including all documents
27 related, in any way, to their receipt and use of Prostar’s 28 technological documentation; and
(2) Any unproduced documents sufficient to describe and identify the technology used in the DXP and/or Domino’s autonomous car projects.

Joint St. No. 2 at 2.

Domino’s indicates that “Prostar voluntarily proposed and entered into” an agreement that “Domino’s most recent production would satisfy its discovery obligations.” Id. at 3. According to 1 Domino's, in the email exchange, Prostar agreed that the supplementary production "will satisfy

2 Domino's document production obligations in this matter, and, without prejudice to Prostar's
3 ability to seek discrete, specifically identified documents of which it may become aware, Prostar 4 will not move to compel on the basis of the custodians and/or search terms utilized in this matter."
5 Joint St. No. 2 at 4 (quoting May 25, 2018 emails between J. Pierson and M. Nash).
6 Domino's indicates that it relied on Prostar's representations, produced the agreed upon 7 documents, and "produced for depositions the leader of its driver tracking project, Kelly Garcia; 8 its lead developer, Jason McMann; and the project manager, Aaron Nilsson[.]" without restricting 9 the scope of these day-long depositions.

10 The precise timing of the email agreement (May 25, 2018) and the produced emails (May 11 2018) that Prostar relies on as evidence that its technical documentation was transmitted to the 12 Domino's Solution development team is unclear, but Domino's indicates that Prostar knew since 13 the deposition of its 30(b)(6) witness in mid-March that Domino's Solution "leverages the API
14 software code that Domino's wrote and first employed in its point-of-sale system when testing 15 Prostar's solution." Joint St. No. 2 at 4. This is purportedly the "technical documentation" that 16 Prostar relies on to support its claim to supplemental production. But even if it knew that limited 17 piece of information, the McMann deposition testimony in June seems to suggest that Prostar 18 should be entitled to additional production, at least with respect to the first category listed above.

19 Accordingly, Domino's should produce the following:

20 All non-privileged documents, which hit on the search terms and are 21 from all custodians and document sources previously agreed upon 22 by the parties, related to any driver tracking technology, 23 notwithstanding whether they mention Prostar, or appear to relate to 24 Prostar or its technology, including, all non-privileged documents
25 related to Ms. Anderzak and Mr. Kennedy's work on the 26 development of the Domino's Solution, including all documents
27 related, in any way, to their receipt and use of Prostar's
28 technological documentation.

Prostar has not convinced me that its second request is warranted.

Prostar also requests an additional day of deposition "to address the documents that have not yet been produced." Joint St. No. 2 at 3. I will allow one more day for it to depose Domino's on documents that have yet to be produced.

B. RFP No. 33

1 Prostar's Request 33 sought "items sufficient to demonstrate the functionality
2 and user interface of the current delivery driver tracking system being tested by Domino's in areas 3 including but not limited to the San Diego market." Prostar's Request for Production of 4 Documents, Set Three (Ex. C). Prostar indicated that it "understands production of such things 5 would be difficult and is willing to travel to a store where the system is in use and inspect it onsite
6 without removal of any items." Id. In response, Domino's produced "screen shots and other 7 documentation created during the development of the system[,]" but "has not made any 8 items related to its driver tracking product available for inspection, including the cell phone 9 devices being used, or the terminals used at the franchise locations." Joint St. No. 2 at 3.

10 Domino's responds that Prostar has not explained why the documents produced by 11 Domino's are insufficient to meet its request, and its last minute focus on cell phone devices and 12 terminals amount to "post hoc rationalization." It also emphasizes that its witnesses answered 13 questions on these topics.

14 Prostar provides no justification for seeking this information so late in the discovery 15 process. Its request is denied.

CONCLUSION

17 In accordance with the forgoing, the parties are ordered to produce the remaining 18 documents as soon as reasonably possible, and no later than August 17, 2018. If the additional 19 day of deposition allowed by this Order cannot be accomplished by the current fact discovery 20 deadline, the parties may conduct the deposition as soon as practicable after August 17, 2018. See 21 Stipulation and Order regarding Modification of Scheduling Order (Dkt. No. 60).
