22 Before the Court are five motions to dismiss: (1) defendant Experian Information 23 Solutions, Inc.'s ("Experian") motion, filed November 15, 2016, in Case No. 16-5687; (2)
24 defendant Equifax, Inc.'s ("Equifax") motion, filed December 19, 2016, in Case No. 16-25 5687; (3) defendant Wells Fargo Bank, National Association's ("Wells Fargo") motion, 26 filed December 19, 2016, in Case No. 16-5693; (4) Equifax's motion, filed December 27, 27 2016, in Case No. 16-5693; and (5) Equifax's motion, filed December 27, 2016, in Case 28 No. 16-6347. All five motions have been fully briefed. Having considered the parties'

1 written submissions, the Court rules as follows.¹

2 BACKGROUND

3 In the above-titled actions, brought, respectively, by plaintiffs Rudolph Jugoz 4 (“Jugoz”), Teresa Robles (“Robles”), and Janet Perkins (“Perkins”), each plaintiff has filed 5 a complaint alleging defendants failed to report his/her debts accurately in light of a 6 pending bankruptcy. In particular, each plaintiff alleges the following:

7 Plaintiff filed for bankruptcy pursuant to Chapter 13 of the Bankruptcy Code and 8 his/her plan was confirmed. (See Jugoz Compl. ¶¶ 93, 97; Robles Compl. ¶¶ 93, 97; 9 Perkins Compl. ¶¶ 87, 94.) Thereafter, plaintiff ordered a three bureau credit report and 10 noticed numerous tradelines therein contained “inaccurate, misleading, or incomplete 11 information that did not comport with credit reporting industry standards.” (See Jugoz 12 Compl. ¶¶ 98-99; Robles Compl. ¶¶ 98-99; Perkins Compl. ¶¶ 105-106.)

13 Plaintiff “disputed the inaccurate tradelines via certified mail with” credit reporting 14 agencies (“CRAs”) Experian, Equifax, and TransUnion, LLC, which dispute letter plaintiff 15 is “informed and believes” was sent to the creditors in question. (See Jugoz Compl.
16 ¶¶ 100, 102; Robles Compl. ¶¶ 100, 102; Perkins Compl. ¶¶ 107, 109.) Thereafter, 17 plaintiff ordered another three bureau report and noticed “some of the inaccuracies had 18 not been updated.” (See Jugoz Compl. ¶¶ 103-04; Robles ¶¶ 103-04; Perkins Compl.
19 ¶ 110.) In particular, defendants continued to report outstanding and past due balances 20 on plaintiff’s debts, which reporting did not reflect the terms of plaintiff’s Chapter 13 plan, 21 and continued to fail to “comport[] with Metro 2 industry standards” by “not listing the 22 correct CII D indicator.”² (See Jugoz Compl. ¶¶ 105-06; Robles Compl. ¶¶ 106-09; 23 Perkins Compl. ¶¶ 111-13.)

24
25 ¹ By order filed May 15, 2017, the Court took the matter under submission.

26 ² Use of “CII Metro 2 Code ‘D’ indicates that a Chapter 13 plan has been filed, is 27 active, but no discharge entered,” which “alerts any potential lender that the account is no 28 longer in a collectible status but is being handled by a Chapter 13 trustee.” (See Jugoz Compl. ¶ 59; Robles Compl. ¶ 59; Perkins Compl. ¶ 59.)

1 Based thereon, each plaintiff asserts two causes of action against multiple 2 defendants, comprising creditors of plaintiff (hereinafter, "Creditor Defendants") and two 3 of the three CRAs (hereinafter, "CRA Defendants"). In each of the three cases, the first 4 cause of action is asserted against all defendants under the Fair Credit Reporting Act 5 ("FCRA"), and the second cause of action is asserted against the Creditor Defendants 6 under the California Consumer Credit Reporting Agencies Act ("CCRAA").

7 Defendants Experian, Equifax, and Wells Fargo (hereinafter, "Moving 8 Defendants"), have, as noted, filed the above-referenced five motions to dismiss; 9 specifically, Equifax seeks dismissal of all three plaintiffs' complaints, Experian seeks 10 dismissal of Jugoz's complaint,³ and Wells Fargo seeks dismissal of Robles' complaint.⁴

11 LEGAL STANDARD

12 Dismissal under Rule 12(b)(6) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure "can be 13 based on the lack of a cognizable legal theory or the absence of sufficient facts alleged 14 under a cognizable legal theory." See Balistreri v. Pacifica Police Dep't, 901 F.2d 696, 15 699 (9th Cir. 1990). Rule 8(a)(2), however, "requires only 'a short and plain statement of 16 the claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief.'" See Bell Atlantic Corp. v.
17 Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 555 (2007) (quoting Fed. R. Civ. P. 8(a)(2)). Consequently, "a 18 complaint attacked by a Rule 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss does not need detailed factual 19 allegations." See id. Nonetheless, "a plaintiff's obligation to provide the grounds of his 20 entitlement to relief requires more than labels and conclusions, and a formulaic recitation 21 of the elements of a cause of action will not do." See id. (internal quotation, citation, and 22 alteration omitted).

24 ³ Robles and Perkins have filed notices advising the Court that their claims against 25 Experian have been resolved and will be dismissed.

26 ⁴ As to the remaining defendants: American Honda Finance Corporation has filed 27 an answer to Jugoz's complaint; Robles and Perkins have voluntarily dismissed Bank of 28 America N.A., Enhanced Recovery Company, LLC, Credit First, N.A., and Sterling Jewelers, Inc; and Jugoz has filed a notice advising the Court that his claim against Credit One Bank, N.A. has been resolved and will be dismissed.

1 In analyzing a motion to dismiss, a district court must accept as true all material 2 allegations in the complaint, and construe them in the light most favorable to the 3 nonmoving party. See NL Indus., Inc. v. Kaplan, 792 F.2d 896, 898 (9th Cir. 1986). “To 4 survive a motion to dismiss, a complaint must contain sufficient factual material, accepted 5 as true, to ‘state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face.’” Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S.
6 662, 678 (2009) (quoting Twombly, 550 U.S. at 570). “Factual allegations must be 7 enough to raise a right to relief above the speculative level[.]” Twombly, 550 U.S. at 555.
8 Courts “are not bound to accept as true a legal conclusion couched as a factual 9 allegation.” See Iqbal, 556 U.S. at 678 (internal quotation and citation omitted).

10 DISCUSSION

11 At the outset, the Court notes that over 170 complaints nearly identical to the three 12 complaints at issue herein have been filed in the Northern District of California over the 13 past year by the same law firm. Consequently, a number of other judges in this District 14 have ruled on the issues raised by Moving Defendants, and the Court has considered 15 those decisions in connection with the below analysis.⁵

16 A. First Cause of Action – “Violation of Fair Credit Reporting Act 15 U.S.C.
17 § 1681s-2(b)”

18 In the First Cause of Action, plaintiffs allege that defendants violated the FCRA by 19 failing to investigate and remedy the allegedly inaccurate reporting raised in plaintiffs’ 20 dispute letters. In that regard, plaintiffs allege that the Creditor Defendants, which include 21 Wells Fargo, violated 15 U.S.C. § 1681s-2(b) by “failing to conduct a reasonable 22 investigation and re-reporting misleading and inaccurate account information” and that 23 the CRA Defendants, namely, Experian and Equifax, violated 15 U.S.C. § 1681i-(a)1 by 24 failing to “conduct a reasonable investigation and fail[ing] to correct the misleading and/or 25 inaccurate statements on the account within the statutory time frame or at all.” (See

26
27 _____
28 ⁵ Jugo, Experian, and Wells Fargo have all filed Statements of Recent Decision, in which they attach various orders by other judges in the District.

1 Jugoz Compl. ¶¶ 111, 120, 122; Robles Compl. ¶¶ 114, 123, 125; Perkins Compl. ¶ 118, 2 127, 129.)

3 Moving Defendants seek dismissal of the First Cause of Action for failure to plead 4 either an inaccuracy or damages, and Wells Fargo additionally argues that Robles' 5 claims are barred by judicial estoppel.

6 1. Inaccuracy

7 "To state a claim for violation of 15 U.S.C. § 1681i or § 1681s-2(b), a plaintiff must 8 demonstrate "that an actual inaccuracy exist[s]." Mensah v. Experian Info. Sols., Inc., No.
9 16-cv-05689 WHO, 2017 WL 1246892, at *5 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 5, 2017) (alteration in 10 original) (quoting Carvalho v. Equifax Info. Servs., LLC, 629 F.3d 876, 890 (9th Cir.
11 2010)). If a plaintiff is unable to make a "prima facie showing of inaccurate reporting," his 12 or her claim "fail[s] as a matter of law." See Carvalho, 629 F.3d at 890 (internal quotation 13 and citation omitted). An item on a credit report is inaccurate under § 1681i or § 1681s-14 2(b) either where "it is patently incorrect" or "it is misleading in such a way and to such an 15 extent that it can be expected to adversely affect credit decisions." Id. (internal quotation 16 and citation omitted) (setting forth standard under § 1681s-2(b)); Mensah, 2017 WL 17 1246893, at *5 (applying standard to § 1681i).

18 In the instant cases, plaintiffs rely on two separate theories to support their 19 allegation that defendants' reporting is inaccurate, both of which theories, Moving 20 Defendants argue, fail to plead a claim under the FCRA.

21 a. Chapter 13 Confirmation

22 Plaintiffs allege, as noted above, that defendants' reporting was incorrect or 23 misleading because, after plaintiffs' Chapter 13 plans were confirmed, defendants did not 24 alter their reporting to reflect the terms of the confirmed plans, which plans, plaintiffs 25 further allege, provided for a reduced balance or no balance owed on certain debts.
26 Moving Defendants contend their continuing to report the full outstanding balance of 27 those debts and/or the delinquency of those debts is not incorrect or misleading, 28 particularly where, as here, the debt has not yet been discharged by a bankruptcy court.

1 The judges in this District who have had occasion to address the issue have, with 2 one exception, agreed with Moving Defendants. See Lugo v. Experian Info. Sols., Inc., 3 No. 5:16-cv-06467-EJD, 2017 WL 2214641, at *4 n.5 (N.D Cal. May 19, 2017) (collecting 4 cases); but see Aulbach v. Experian Info. Sols., Inc., No. 16-cv-05716-VC, 2017 WL 5 1807612, at *1 (N.D. Cal. May 4, 2017) (holding “failure to report changes in the nature of 6 debt stemming from a Chapter 13 confirmation can indeed violate the [FCRA]”; noting “at 7 least 11 judges” in district have ruled otherwise). This Court, as set forth below, is in 8 accord with the majority.⁶

9 Under Chapter 13, a debtor proposes a plan to “repay creditors in part, or in 10 whole, over the course of a three- to-five-year period,” which plan is confirmed by a 11 bankruptcy court pursuant to 11 U.S.C. § 1325, and, “[i]f the debtor complies with his 12 obligations under the confirmed plan and makes all the required payments, the 13 [bankruptcy] court will grant the debtor a discharge—if appropriate—and close the case.”
14 See In re Blendheim, 803 F.3d 477, 485, 487 (9th Cir. 2015); see also 11 U.S.C. § 1328 15 (setting forth conditions under which discharge may be granted). “A discharge releases 16 debtors from personal liability on claims and enjoins creditors from taking any action 17 against the debtor in the debtor’s personal capacity.” In re Blendheim, 803 F.3d at 486.
18 “Many debtors, however, fail to complete a Chapter 13 plan successfully,” and, in the 19 event of such failure, may convert their bankruptcy case “under a different chapter, or 20 dismiss their case entirely.” See id. at 487. Both conversion and dismissal “return[] 21 to the creditor all the property rights he held at the commencement of the Chapter 13 22 proceeding and render[] him free to exercise any nonbankruptcy collection proceedings.”
23 Id.

24 As a debt subject to a Chapter 13 confirmation plan is only fully extinguished after 25 it is discharged by a bankruptcy court, this Court finds persuasive the reasoning of the 26

27 ⁶ In light thereof, the Court does not address herein Experian and Equifax’s 28 argument that, even if a report is deemed inaccurate, CRAs are not required under the FCRA to resolve the legal validity of plaintiffs’ debts and thus cannot be held liable.

1 judges in this District who have concluded that, “at least prior to discharge, reporting a 2 loan balance and delinquent status per the original terms—as opposed to the modified 3 terms of the confirmed Chapter 13 plan—is neither inaccurate nor misleading under the 4 FCRA.” See Basconcello v. Experian Info. Sols., Inc., No. 16-cv-06307-PJH, 2017 WL 5 1046969, at *6 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 20, 2017).⁷

6 Plaintiffs’ arguments to the contrary are not persuasive. First, plaintiffs’ reliance on 7 the doctrine of res judicata is unavailing, as is plaintiffs’ citation to bankruptcy court cases 8 analogizing a confirmed plan to a new contract. See, e.g., id. at *6 (holding confirmation 9 order “constitutes a final judgment only as to the manner in which the debtor will 10 discharge his financial obligations, not the legal validity of the debt”; further holding new 11 contract “sets the conditions by which debtors may obtain a discharge,” not “how 12 historical credit information must be reported under FCRA”) (internal quotation and 13 citation omitted). Likewise unavailing is plaintiffs’ reliance on dicta in In re Luedtke, No.
14 02-35082-SVK, 2008 WL 2952530 (Bankr. E.D. Wis. July 31, 2008), which concerned 15 creditors’ obligations under § 1327 of the Bankruptcy Code, not under the FCRA. See id.
16 at *1; see also Mamisay v. Experian Info. Sols., Inc., No. 16-cv-05684-YGR, 2017 WL 17 1065170, at *5 n.5 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 21, 2017) (setting forth in detail reasons for rejecting 18 plaintiffs’ argument under Luedtke).

19 The Court acknowledges what “appears to be an open question” as to whether 20 such reporting could be misleading if it is “unaccompanied by any indication that the 21 consumer is in bankruptcy.” See Anderson v. Experian Info. Sols., Inc., No. 16-cv-03328-22 BLF, 2017 WL 914394, at *5 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 8, 2017). Plaintiffs, however, have not 23 alleged whether or not the reports in question indicated plaintiffs were in bankruptcy, the 24

25 ⁷ To the extent one judge in the district has found the change in the nature of a 26 debt after Chapter 13 confirmation can be “significant enough” to support a violation of 27 the FCRA, see Aulbach, 2017 WL 1807612, at *3, the Court disagrees. Although a plan 28 confirmation “may change a debtor’s payment obligations and dictate creditors’ abilities to collect, it does not change the fact of a debt’s delinquency, and . . . new creditors are undoubtedly interested in defaults on prior accounts when determining an applicant’s creditworthiness.” See Lugo, 2017 WL 2214641, at *4 n. 4.

1 sole allegation even obliquely touching on the subject being a reference to the content of 2 plaintiffs' dispute letter. (See Jugoz Compl. ¶ 101; Robles Compl. ¶ 101; Perkins Compl.
3 ¶ 108 (alleging plaintiff "put each [c]reditor on notice that [p]laintiff had filed for bankruptcy 4 and the account was not reporting the bankruptcy accurately or worse not at all").)

5 Accordingly, to the extent plaintiffs rely on the theory that defendants violated the 6 FCRA by failing to report plaintiffs' debts as reflected in plaintiffs' Chapter 13 confirmation 7 plans, the First Cause of Action is subject to dismissal. The Court will afford plaintiffs 8 limited leave to amend in order to allege, if they can, that their credit reports did not 9 contain any indication they were in bankruptcy and, if so, how such omission can be 10 expected to adversely affect credit decisions.

11 b. Metro 2 Standards

12 Plaintiffs next allege that defendants' reporting was incorrect or misleading 13 because defendants did not comport with Metro 2 industry standards. Moving 14 Defendants argue such failure does not violate the FCRA. For the reasons set forth 15 below, the Court agrees.

16 At the outset, the Court agrees with other courts in this District that have found 17 noncompliance with Metro 2 standards, standing alone, does not render a report 18 inaccurate. See, e.g., Basconcello, 2017 WL 1046969, at *7 (noting "FCRA does not 19 mandate compliance with Metro 2 or any other particular set of industry standards").
20 Although the Court also acknowledges that, in some instances, such noncompliance 21 might be misleading where, for example, a plaintiff could show that "those making credit 22 decisions . . . would expect that the [defendant] adheres to the Metro 2 format," see 23 Nissou-Rabban v. Capital One Bank (USA), N.A., No. 15cv1675 JLS (DHB), 2016 WL
24 4508241, at *5 (S.D. Cal. June 6, 2016), plaintiffs here have alleged that "creditors 25 intentionally and routinely ignore credit reporting industry standards for accurately 26 reporting bankruptcies and debts included in those bankruptcies." (See Jugoz Compl.
27 ¶ 7; Robles Compl. ¶ 7; Perkins Compl. ¶ 7.) Consequently, the standards upon which 28 plaintiffs rely "do not appear to actually operate as industry guidelines," and the Court

1 “fails to see how plaintiffs could allege that a lender looking at the credit report would 2 misconstrue the information based on an expectation that furnishers comply with Metro 2 3 guidelines for this particular type of report.” See Mamisay, 2017 WL 1065170, at *6 n.6.

4 Accordingly, to the extent plaintiffs rely on the theory that defendants violated the 5 FCRA by failing to adhere to industry standards, the First Cause of Action will be 6 dismissed without leave to amend.

7 2. Damages

8 Under the FCRA, “[i]f a violation is negligent, the affected consumer is entitled to 9 actual damages.” See Safeco Ins. Co. of America v. Burr, 551 U.S. 47, 52 (2007) (citing 10 15 U.S.C. § 1681o). “If [such violation is] willful, however, the consumer may have actual 11 damages, or statutory damages ranging from $100 to $1,000, and even punitive 12 damages.” Id. (citing 15 U.S.C. § 1681n(a)).

13 Moving Defendants argue plaintiffs have not adequately pleaded facts to support 14 their allegations as to damages. In particular, Experian and Wells Fargo challenge the 15 sufficiency of Jugoz and Robles’ allegations as to actual damages,⁸ and the CRA 16 Defendants challenge the sufficiency of all three plaintiffs’ allegations as to willfulness, 17 the theory upon which plaintiffs’ entitlement to statutory and punitive damages is based.

18 a. Actual Damages

19 Plaintiffs allege they have “suffered actual damages including but not limited to 20 inability to properly reorganize under Chapter 13, [time] reviewing credit reports from all 21 three consumer reporting agencies, time reviewing reports with counsel, [time] sending 22 demand letters, diminished credit score, and such further expenses in an amount to be 23 determined at trial.” (See Jugoz Compl. ¶ 143; Robles Compl. ¶ 146; Perkins Compl.
24 ¶ 151.) Experian and Wells Fargo,⁹ in moving to dismiss Jugoz and Robles’ complaints, 26 ⁸ None of the Moving Defendants has moved to dismiss Perkins’ complaint for failure to plead actual damages.

27 ⁹ To the extent Wells Fargo argues Robles has alleged a “bare procedural 28 violation, divorced from any concrete harm,” and thus cannot “satisfy the injury-in-fact requirement of Article III,” see Spokeo, Inc. v. Robins, 136 S. Ct. 1540, 1549 (2016), the 1 argue plaintiffs' allegations are conclusory. For the reasons set forth below, the Court 2 agrees.

3 First, Jugoz and Robles plead no facts to support their allegation that they were 4 unable to properly reorganize under Chapter 13. In their oppositions, they argue they 5 incurred attorneys' fees in order to "reorganize and repair [their] credit" but have "not 6 received the benefit" of those expenditures. (See Opp. to Experian Mot. at 12:14-15; 7 Opp. to Wells Fargo Mot. at 20:19-20.) Jugoz and Robles may not, however, recover 8 costs they incurred before they notified defendants of the alleged inaccuracies. See, 9 e.g., Casella v. Equifax Credit Info. Servs., 56 F.3d 469, 474 (2d Cir. 1995) (holding 10 "expenses incurred merely to notify [CRAs] of inaccurate credit information" are not 11 recoverable as "actual damages" under the FCRA).

12 Although not alleged in their complaints, Jugoz and Robles also argue they 13 incurred the cost of obtaining a second credit report that each ordered after initiating the 14 dispute and after failing to receive such report from the CRA Defendants. See 15 U.S.C.
15 § 1681i(a)(6)(A) (requiring CRAs to provide consumer with "written notice of the results of 16 a reinvestigation . . . not later than 5 business days after the completion of the 17 reinvestigation"); id. § 1681i(a)(6)(B) (requiring CRAs, "[a]s part of, or in addition to, the 18 notice under subparagraph (A)," to provide "a consumer report that is based upon the 19 consumer's file as that file is revised as a result of the reinvestigation"). Jugoz and 20 Robles will be afforded leave to amend to allege additional facts to support a claim for 21 damages based on such costs.

22 As to their remaining damages claim, diminished credit scores, Jugoz and Robles 23 again fail to allege sufficient supporting facts. Jugoz, for example, alleges his pre-24 bankruptcy credit score was 472 and that he anticipated it would rise to 538 twelve 25

26 Court is not persuaded. See, e.g., Mamisay, 2017 WL 1065170, at *2-3 (holding plaintiffs 27 "alleged a sufficiently concrete injury for purposes of Article III standing"; finding 28 inaccurate reporting of debt "constitutes the precise harm Congress sought to protect against in enacting the FCRA, and thus cannot be classified as a mere procedural violation") (internal quotation and citation omitted).

1 months post-bankruptcy, but fails to explain how his credit score at the time he ordered 2 the second report, which he alleges was “below 600,” is inconsistent with his anticipated 3 credit score. (See Jugoz Compl. ¶¶ 90, 91, 104.)¹⁰ Jugoz and Robles also fail to allege 4 that it was defendants’ assertedly inaccurate reporting, rather than plaintiffs’ bankruptcy 5 filing or other event, that resulted in any lowered credit score.

6 Further, even if Jugoz and Robles had adequately pleaded a lowered credit score 7 attributable to Moving Defendants, they have not alleged any resulting harm. Although 8 “no case has held that a denial of credit is a prerequisite to recovery under the FCRA,” 9 see Guimond v. Trans Union Credit Info. Co., 45 F.3d 1329, 1333 (9th Cir. 1995), 10 multiple courts have held “a reduced credit score must proximately cause actual injury to 11 support a claim for actual damages under the FCRA,” see, e.g., Duarte v. JP Morgan 12 Chase Bank, No. CV 13-1104-GHK (MANx), 2014 WL 12561052, at *4 (C.D. Cal. Apr. 7, 13 2014) (collecting cases). Here, plaintiffs have not alleged they sustained any actual 14 injury as a result of their alleged diminished credit scores. See Young v. Harbor Motor 15 Works, No. 2:07-cv-31 JVB, 2009 WL 187793, at *5 (N.D. Ill. Jan. 27, 2009) (citing as 16 additional examples of actual damages “lost credit,” lowered “credit limits,” imposition of 17 “higher interest rate for credit”). Jugoz and Robles will be afforded leave to amend to 18 plead additional facts concerning their claims for damages based on their credit scores.¹¹

19 b. Willfulness

20 As set forth above, willful violations of the FCRA are subject to statutory and 21 punitive damages. Plaintiffs allege defendants’ “untrue communications” were “willful,” 22 but, as pointed out by the CRA Defendants, allege no facts in support of that legal 23

24 ¹⁰ Robles alleges her pre-bankruptcy and anticipated post-bankruptcy credit score 25 (see Robles Compl. ¶¶ 90-91), but does not allege her credit score at the time she ordered the second report.

26 ¹¹ Although, as noted above, Moving Defendants have not sought dismissal of 27 Perkins’ complaint on damages grounds, Perkins’ allegations as to that issue are 28 identical to those of Jugoz and Robles, and thus Perkins, in the event she files an amended complaint, likewise should plead additional facts to cure the above-identified deficiencies.

1 conclusion. (See Jugo Compl. ¶ 143; Robles Compl. ¶ 146; Perkins Compl. ¶ 151.)

2 “A plaintiff seeking to recover damages under a willfulness theory must allege, at a 3 minimum, that the defendant’s reading of the FCRA is objectively unreasonable.” See 4 Anderson, 2017 WL 914394, at *6 (internal quotation and citation omitted). Plaintiffs 5 have not alleged that defendants’ conduct was objectively unreasonable and, indeed, 6 may not be able to do so “[g]iven the body of law in this district against plaintiff[s]’ primary 7 theory of liability.” See Basconcello, 2017 WL 1046969, at *10. Nonetheless, the Court 8 will afford plaintiffs the opportunity to amend to plead a claim for statutory and/or punitive 9 damages. See Balistreri, 901 F.2d at 701.¹²

10 3. Judicial Estoppel

11 As an additional ground for dismissal, Wells Fargo contends Robles’ case is 12 barred by judicial estoppel because she did not list on her bankruptcy schedule the 13 claims raised in her complaint and “is now seeking to pursue these claims for [her] own 14 benefit to the exclusion of her creditors.” (See Wells Fargo Mot. at 15:27); see also 15 Hamilton v. State Farm Fire & Casualty Co., 270 F.3d 778, 783 (9th Cir. 2001) (“In the 16 bankruptcy context, a party is judicially estopped from asserting a cause of action not 17 raised in a reorganization plan or otherwise mentioned in the debtor’s schedules or 18 disclosure statements.”)

19 Subsequent to the filing of Wells Fargo’s motion, however, Robles, on January 9, 20 2017, filed a Request for Judicial Notice, in which she attached two amended schedules, 21 each filed that same date with the bankruptcy court and each listing a “[c]ivil claim under 22 the FCRA based upon inaccurate credit reporting by creditors and the reporting bureaus.”
23 (See Robles’ Req. Judicial Notice, Ex. A at 3, 5.)¹³ Robles’ Request for Judicial Notice

24 _____
25 ¹² As Wells Fargo points out, plaintiffs’ allegations as to actual damages and 26 willfulness are pleaded exclusively in the portions of their complaints setting forth their 27 state law claims. (See Jugo Compl. ¶ 143; Robles Compl. ¶ 146; Perkins Compl.
28 ¶ 151.) Should plaintiffs choose to amend, they are directed to clarify that their damages allegations pertain to both of their two causes of action.

¹³ Robles’ unopposed request for judicial notice as to the two schedules is hereby GRANTED. See Rosales–Martinez v. Palmer, 753 F.3d 890, 894 (9th Cir. 2014) (“It is

1 was filed six days after the filing of Robles' opposition, which made no reference to any 2 intent to amend the bankruptcy schedules, and just one day before the filing deadline for 3 Wells Fargo's reply, which likewise contains no reference to the amended schedules.
4 Under such circumstances, the Court does not further address at this time the parties' 5 respective arguments as to judicial estoppel. If Robles elects to file an amended 6 complaint, the issue can be raised again, to the extent it remains relevant.

7 B. Second Cause of Action – “Violation of California Consumer Credit 8 Reporting Agencies Act California Civil Code § 1785.25(a)”

9 In the Second Cause of Action, plaintiffs allege that the Creditor Defendants 10 violated the CCRAA, specifically, § 1785.25(a) of the California Civil Code, by 11 “intentionally and knowingly report[ing] misleading and inaccurate account information to 12 the CRAs that did not comport with well-established industry standards,” later “re-13 report[ing]” that information,” and failing to notify Experian and Equifax “that the 14 information [d]efendants re-reported was inaccurate before the end of 30 business days.” 15 (See Jugo Compl. ¶¶ 136, 137, 141; Robles Compl. ¶¶ 139, 140, 144; Perkins Compl.
16 ¶¶ 144, 145, 149.)

17 Wells Fargo, the only Moving Defendant against whom the Second Cause of 18 Action is asserted, argues said cause of action is subject to dismissal for the same 19 reasons as the First Cause of Action. As set forth below, the Court agrees.

20 “[B]ecause the CCRAA is substantially based on the [FCRA], judicial interpretation 21 of the federal provisions is persuasive authority and entitled to substantial weight when 22 interpreting the California provisions,” see Carvalho, 629 F.3d at 889 (internal quotation 23 and citation omitted); consequently, a CCRAA claim ordinarily survives “only to the extent 24 that the FCRA claim survives,” see Basconcello, 2017 WL 1046969, at *11.

25 Accordingly, the Second Cause of Action will be dismissed on the same grounds 26

27 well established that [a court] may take judicial notice of judicial proceedings in other 28 courts.”)

1 as, and with limited leave to amend to the same extent afforded plaintiffs with respect to,
2 the First Cause of Action.

3 CONCLUSION

4 For the reasons stated, Moving Defendants' motions to dismiss are hereby 5 GRANTED, with limited leave to amend as set forth above. Should plaintiffs wish to file 6 an amended pleading, each such amended complaint shall be filed no later than July 7, 7 2017.

8 In light thereof, the Case Management Conferences in each of the three above-9 titled actions are hereby CONTINUED from July 14, 2017, to August 11, 2017, at 10:30 10 a.m. A Joint Case Management Statement shall be filed no later than August 4, 2017.
