No. C 09-0216 CW

Plaintiff,

ORDER PROVIDING
NOTICE TO PRO SE PLAINTIFF OF
REQUIREMENTS FOR OPPOSING MOTION
FOR SUMMARY
JUDGMENT

v.

WELLS FARGO & CO.

Defendants.

Defendants have informed the Court of their intention to file a summary judgment motion in this case. If Defendants choose to file the motion, they must do so by serving Plaintiff with a notice of the motion and a copy of the motion, indicating the time of the scheduled hearing on the motion. They must do so at least 35 days before the date of the hearing. Plaintiff's opposition, including any supporting documents, must be filed by 21 days before the date of the hearing. Defendants' reply to Plaintiff's opposition, should they choose to file one, is due 14 days before the hearing.

The Ninth Circuit in Klinge v. Eikenberry, 849 F.2d 409, 411-12 (9th Cir. 1988), held that when a defendant in a case involving a pro se plaintiff moves for summary judgment, the district court must inform the plaintiff of his or her rights and

1 obligations under Rule 56 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.
2 See also Rand v. Rowland, 154 F.3d 952 (9th Cir. 1998) (en banc)
3 (the Klinge notice must be phrased in understandable language
4 aimed at apprising plaintiff of rights and obligations under Rule 5 56).<sup>1</sup>

6 Rule 56 of Federal Rule of Civil Procedure governs summary 7 judgment motions. A summary judgment motion is a request for an 8 order of judgment, without a trial, in favor of the party bringing 9 the motion, Defendants here. In such a motion, the party moving 10 for summary judgment presents the facts that are not disputed and 11 argues that these facts entitle it to judgment as a matter of law.
12 In other words, Defendants will be arguing that there does not need 13 to be a trial in the case against it because undisputed facts show

14
15 <sup>1</sup>The advice required by the 9th Circuit in prisoner pro se cases is as follows:

16 The defendants have made a motion for summary judgment by which they 17 seek to have your case dismissed. A motion for summary judgment under 18 Rule 56 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure will, if granted, end your case.

19 Rule 56 tells you what you must do in order to oppose a motion for 20 summary judgment. Generally, summary judgment must be granted when there 21 is no genuine issue of material fact--that is, if there is no real dispute 22 about any fact that would affect the result of your case, the party who 23 asked for summary judgment is entitled to judgment as a matter of law, 24 which will end your case. When a party you are suing makes a motion for 25 summary judgment that is properly supported by declarations (or other 26 sworn testimony), you cannot simply rely on what your complaint says.
27 Instead, you must set out specific facts in declarations, depositions, 28 answers to interrogatories, or authenticated documents, as provided in Rule 56(e), that contradict the facts shown in the defendant's declarations and documents and show that there is a genuine issue of material fact for trial. If you do not submit your own evidence in opposition, summary judgment, if appropriate, may be entered against you.
If summary judgment is granted, your case will be dismissed and there will be no trial.

29 Rand, 154 F.3d at 963.

1 that they are entitled to a judgment in their favor.

2 The relevant parts of Rule 56 are as follows:

3 (c) Motion and Proceedings Thereon. The motion shall 4 be served at least 10 days before the time fixed for the 5 hearing. The adverse party prior to the day of hearing 6 may serve opposing affidavits. The judgment sought shall 7 be rendered forthwith if the pleadings, depositions, 8 answers to interrogatories, and admissions on file, 9 together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is 10 no genuine issue as to any material fact and that the 11 moving party is entitled to a judgment as a matter of law.
12 A summary judgment, interlocutory in character, may be 13 rendered on the issue of liability alone although there is 14 a genuine issue as to the amount of damages.

15 . . . . .
16 (e) Form of Affidavits; Further Testimony; Defense 17 Required. Supporting and opposing affidavits shall be 18 made on personal knowledge, shall set forth such facts as 19 would be admissible in evidence, and shall show 20 affirmatively that the affiant is competent to testify to 21 the matters stated therein. Sworn or certified copies of 22 all papers or parts thereof referred to in an affidavit
23 shall be attached thereto or served therewith. The court 24 may permit affidavits to be supplemented or opposed by 25 depositions, answers to interrogatories, or further 26 affidavits. When a motion for summary judgment is made 27 and supported as provided in this rule, an adverse party 28 may not rest upon the mere allegations or denials of the adverse party's pleading, but the adverse party's response, by affidavits or as otherwise provided in this rule, must set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue for trial. If the adverse party does not so respond, summary judgment, if appropriate, shall be entered against the adverse party.

29 . . . . .
30 (g) Affidavits Made in Bad Faith. Should it appear 31 to the satisfaction of the court at any time that any of 32 the affidavits presented pursuant to this rule are 33 presented in bad faith or solely for the purpose of delay, 34 the court shall forthwith order the party employing them
35 to pay to the other party the amount of the reasonable 36 expenses which the filing of the affidavits caused the 37 other party to incur, including reasonable attorney's 38 fees, and any offending party or attorney may be adjudged guilty of contempt.

39 Rule 56 (emphasis added).

1           Although the actual text of Rule 56, cited above, controls in 2 any dispute as to its interpretation, the Court provides the 3 following brief explanation of Plaintiff's rights and obligations
4 under the Rule: If Plaintiff does not file an opposition 5 supported by evidence, the Court may enter summary judgment in 6 favor of Defendants. If Plaintiff does not contradict the 7 Defendants' evidence with evidence of his or her own, the Court 8 might take Defendants' evidence as true and enter judgment against 9 Plaintiff on his or her claims against Defendants. Under Federal 10 Rule of Civil Procedure 56(e), the following types of evidence may 11 be submitted:

- 12           1. Statements made in the complaint if the complaint (a) 13           was signed under penalty of perjury and (b) shows 14           personal knowledge (i.e., "first-hand" or "non-hearsay" 15           knowledge) of the matters stated;
- 16           2. Affidavits or declarations. Any person signing 17           an affidavit or declaration must have personal knowledge 18           of the facts stated. At the end of a declaration or 19           affidavit, the document must state, "I declare under 20           penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and 21           correct," and be signed by the individual who has the 22           required personal knowledge. Any declarations or 23           affidavits that are unsigned will not be considered.
- 24           3. Copies of documents so long as they are submitted with 25           proof that the records are what they purport to be.
26           Specifically, Plaintiff must declare under penalty of 27           perjury that the documents are true and correct copies 28           of the documents, and must specify how the documents were obtained; and

1 4. Transcripts of depositions, answers to interrogatories, 2 or admissions obtained in this proceeding.

3 To defeat a summary judgment motion, Plaintiff must present
4 evidence that, when viewed together with Defendants' evidence, 5 convinces the Court that his or her claims should go to trial.

6 If Plaintiff has a good reason why facts are not available to 7 him or her at the time required to oppose the summary judgment 8 motion, the Court may consider a request to postpone ruling on the 9 Court and opposing counsel with an affidavit or declaration 10 (signed under penalty of perjury) setting forth the reasons the 11 facts are unavailable and indicating how those facts would support 12 his or her claims.

13 Plaintiff is reminded that if he or she does not file and 14 serve a written opposition with supporting documents or a request
15 to postpone with a supporting affidavit or declaration, the Court 16 may deem this failure to act to be consent to the granting of 17 Defendants' summary judgment motion.

18 This notice shall constitute the only such notice from the 19 Court concerning the Defendants' summary judgment motion. The 20 Court will not provide any further information regarding the 21 interpretation of Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 56 and will not 22 answer unsolicited questions about the applicable rules of 23 procedure.
