4 UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
5 FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
6 OAKLAND DIVISION

7 ZIPTRONIX, INC.,

8 Plaintiff,

9 vs.

10 OMNIVISION TECHNOLOGIES, INC.,
11 TAIWAN SEMICONDUCTOR
12 MANUFACTURING COMPANY LTD., and 13 TSMC NORTH AMERICA CORP.,

14 Defendants.

Case No: C 10-05525 SBA

ORDER GRANTING MOTION FOR LEAVE TO FILE A SECOND AMENDED COMPLAINT

Docket 78.

15 Plaintiff Ziptronix, Inc. ("Plaintiff") brought the instant patent infringement action
16 against Omnivision Technologies, Inc., Taiwan Semiconductor Manufacturing Company
17 Ltd., and TSMC North America Corp. (collectively, "Defendants") pursuant to 35 U.S.C. § 18 271. Compl., Dkt. 1. The parties are presently before the Court on Plaintiff's motion for 19 leave to file a second amended complaint ("SAC") under Rule 15 of the Federal Rules of 20 Civil Procedure. Dkt. 78. Defendants Taiwan Semiconductor Manufacturing Company 21 Ltd. and TSMC North America Corp. (collectively, "TSMC") oppose the motion. Dkt. 81.
22 Defendant Omnivision Technologies, Inc., ("Omnivision") also opposes the motion. Dkt.
23 83.¹ Having read and considered the papers filed in connection with this matter and being 24 fully informed, the Court hereby GRANTS Plaintiff's motion, for the reasons stated below.
25 The Court, in its discretion, finds this matter suitable for resolution without oral argument.
26 See Fed.R.Civ.P. 78(b); N.D. Cal. Civ. L.R. 7-1(b).

27 _____
28 ¹ Omnivision's opposition incorporates by reference the evidence and arguments set forth in TSMC's opposition.

1 I. DISCUSSION

2 A. Applicable Legal Standard

3 As a threshold matter, the parties dispute whether Rule 15 or Rule 16 of the Federal 4 Rules of Civil Procedure governs the instant motion. Plaintiff contends that its motion is 5 governed by Rule 15, while Defendants contend that the motion is governed by Rule 16.
6 The Court agrees with Plaintiff.

7 Under Rule 15, a "court should freely give leave [to amend] when justice so 8 requires." Fed.R.Civ.P. 15(a). In contrast, under Rule 16(b), once the deadline for 9 amending pleadings established in a court's pretrial scheduling order passes, a party may 10 amend its pleadings "only for good cause and with the judge's consent." See Fed.R.Civ.P.
11 16(b)(4); Amerisourcebergen Corp. v. Dialysist West, Inc., 465 F.3d 946, 952 (9th Cir.
12 2006); Coleman v. Quaker Oats Co., 232 F.3d 1271, 1294 (9th Cir. 2000); Johnson v.
13 Mammoth Recreations, Inc., 975 F.2d 604, 609 (9th Cir. 1991).

14 Here, Defendants have failed to demonstrate that Rule 16 governs the instant 15 motion. The initial Case Management Conference in this action was held on February 1, 16 2012. Dkt. 75. On February 6, 2012, the Court issued a pretrial scheduling order 17 ("Scheduling Order"), which does not provide a deadline for amending the pleadings. Id.
18 Rather, the Order states that "the Court adopts the administrative provisions of the parties' 19 Amended Joint Case Management Statement and [Proposed] Order, Dkt. No. 70 to the 20 extent they do not contradict the provisions set forth in this Order." Id. Paragraph 11 of the 21 parties' joint statement provides that "[o]ther than the dates listed above, at this time the 22 parties do not believe it is appropriate to establish any cut-off dates for amending 23 pleadings, discovery, motions, expert disclosures, pretrial conference and trial, or 24 otherwise." Dkt. 70 (emphasis added). Accordingly, because the Court's Scheduling Order 25 does not establish a deadline for amending pleadings, Plaintiff's motion for leave to amend 26 is governed by Rule 15(a), not Rule 16(b). See Amerisourcebergen, 465 F.3d at 952 27 (holding that Rule 15(a) governs a motion for leave to amend when the motion is filed 28 within the deadline for amending the pleadings set by the district court in the court's pretrial

1 scheduling order).

2 B. Motion for Leave to File A SAC

3 The instant action was commenced on December 6, 2010. Dkt. 1. A first amended 4 complaint ("FAC") was filed on April 20, 2011. Dkt. 44. The original complaint and the 5 FAC both allege infringement by Defendants of six of Plaintiff's patents. Dkt. 1, 44. On 6 April 24, 2012, Plaintiff filed a motion for leave to file a SAC to add allegations of patent 7 infringement for three additional patents: (1) U.S. Patent No. 8,153,505 (issued on April 10, 8 2012); (2) U.S. Patent No. 8,043,329 (issued on November 8, 2011); and (3) U.S. Patent 9 No. 7,871,898 (issued on January 18, 2011). Dkt. 78. According to Plaintiff, all three of 10 the new patents relate to similar subject matter as the patents already at issue in this case; 11 namely, bonded structures and innovative methods for forming such structures. Pl.'s Mot.
12 at 1, Dkt. 79. In addition, Plaintiff asserts that all three of the patents stem from 13 continuations of applications that led to the issuance of the patents already at issue, and thus 14 are substantially related to the patents at issue. Id. at 4. Plaintiff also asserts that the 15 patents have the same inventors as the patents at issue, are directed to similar subject 16 matter, and will be asserted against the same infringing products. Id.

17 1. Legal Standard

18 A party may amend its pleading once as a matter of course within 21 days after 19 serving it, or if the pleading is one to which a responsive pleading is required, 21 days after 20 service of a responsive pleading or 21 days after service of a motion under Rule 12(b), (e), 21 or (f), whichever is earlier. Fed.R.Civ.P. 15(a) (1).² "In all other cases, a party may amend 22 its pleading only with the opposing party's written consent or the court's leave."

23 Fed.R.Civ.P. 15(a)(2). The court should freely grant leave when justice so requires. Id.
24 "This policy is to be applied with extreme liberality." Eminence Capital, LLC v. Aspeon,

26 ² Here, because Plaintiff filed its motion for leave to file a SAC more than 21 days 27 after both Omnivision and TSMC filed an answer to the FAC, and because Omnivision and 28 TSMC do not consent to amendment of the FAC, Plaintiff cannot file a SAC without leave of Court.

1 Inc., 316 F.3d 1048, 1051 (9th Cir. 2003) (quotation marks omitted).

2 The United States Supreme Court has identified the following factors a district court 3 should consider in deciding whether to grant leave to amend:

4 In the absence of any apparent or declared reason—such as undue delay, bad 5 faith dilatory motive on the part of the movant, repeated failure to cure 6 deficiencies by amendments previously allowed, undue prejudice to the 7 opposing party by virtue of allowance of the amendment, futility of 8 amendment, etc.—the leave sought should, as the rules require, be 'freely 9 given.'

10 Foman v. Davis, 371 U.S. 178, 182 (1962).

11 Not all of the factors merit equal weight; it is the consideration of prejudice to the 12 opposing party that carries the greatest weight. Eminence Capital, 316 F.3d at 1052 13 ("Prejudice is the 'touchstone of the inquiry under rule 15(a).' "). "Absent prejudice, or a 14 strong showing of any of the remaining Foman factors, there exists a presumption under 15 Rule 15(a) in favor of granting leave to amend." Id. (emphasis in original).

16 The party opposing the amendment carries the burden of showing why leave to 17 amend should not be granted. DCD Programs, Ltd. v. Leighton, 833 F.2d 183, 187 (9th 18 Cir. 1987). The decision to grant or deny a request for leave to amend rests in the 19 discretion of the trial court. See California v. Neville Chem. Co., 358 F.3d 661, 673 (9th 20 Cir. 2004).

21 Here, as pointed out by Plaintiff, because two of the three patents Plaintiff seeks to 22 add to this lawsuit were issued after the filing of the FAC, the instant motion is governed, 23 in part, by Rule 15(d). Under Rule 15(d), "the court may . . . permit a party to serve a 24 supplemental pleading setting out any transaction, occurrence, or event that happened after 25 the date of the pleading to be supplemented." Fed.R.Civ.P. 15(d); Planned Parenthood of 26 So. Arizona v. Neely, 130 F.3d 400, 402 (9th Cir. 1997). "Rule 15(d) is intended to give 27 district courts broad discretion in allowing supplemental pleadings." Keith v. Volpe, 858 28 F.2d 467, 473 (9th Cir. 1988). Supplemental pleadings are generally favored because they promote judicial economy and convenience by permitting courts to dispose of related claims and issues in one matter. Keith, 858 F.2d at 473-474. The legal standard for 1 granting or denying a motion to supplement under Rule 15(d) is the same as the standard 2 for granting or denying a motion under Rule 15(a). Paralyzed Veterans of America v.

3 McPherson, 2008 WL 4183981, at *25 (N.D. Cal. 2008) (Armstrong, J.) (citing Glatt v.
4 Chic. Park Dist., 87 F.3d 190, 194 (7th Cir. 1996); Lewis v. Knutson, 699 F.2d 230, 239
5 (5th Cir. 1983)).

6 2. Analysis

7 Though Defendants incorrectly argue that the good cause standard under Rule 16(b) 8 governs the instant motion, they nonetheless have made arguments implicating two of the 9 Foman factors that courts consider in evaluating whether leave to amend is appropriate 10 under Rule 15. Specifically, Defendants argue that leave to amend should be denied 11 because Plaintiff has not been diligent in seeking leave to amend and because Plaintiff's 12 proposed SAC would cause significant prejudice by dramatically expanding the scope of 13 this litigation. TSMC's Opp. at 7-9. More specifically, Defendants contend that the filing 14 of Plaintiff's proposed SAC would "necessitate additional discovery," which is a 15 "significant source" of prejudice. Id. According to Defendants, in order to adequately 16 defend against the claims Plaintiff seeks to add, they would need to "conduct a further 17 round of typical patent discovery" and "conduct additional non-infringement analysis, 18 invalidity analysis (including prior-art searching), and claim construction analysis." Id. at 19 10. In addition, Defendants contend that Plaintiff's lack of diligence prejudices them 20 because Plaintiff should have added these patents months ago so that Defendants could 21 have accounted for them in the non-infringement and invalidity contentions they made in 22 connection with the patents already at issue in this case. Id.

23 Defendants' argument that merely granting leave to amend the FAC is prejudicial 24 because it will cause a delay in the proceedings due to the need to conduct additional 25 discovery and patent analysis is completely unavailing under the circumstances. See SAP
26 Aktiengesellschaft v. i2 Technologies, Inc., 250 F.R.D. 472, 473-474 (N.D. Cal. 2008) 27 (Armstrong, J.) (rejecting argument that adding an additional patent to the complaint after 28 the parties had served preliminary infringement and invalidity contentions, but before the

1 deadline to amend pleadings had passed, would cause undue prejudice merely because it
2 would cause a delay in the proceedings); see also Aten Intern. Co., Ltd v. Emine 3 Technology Co., Ltd., 2010 WL 1462110, at *4 (C.D. Cal. 2010) (rejecting argument that 4 adding new patents to the complaint would cause defendant to suffer prejudice because the 5 alleged prejudice - the three new patents would add new legal theories, require proof of 6 additional facts, and delay the pending litigation - amounts to defending a lawsuit; noting 7 that amended and supplemental patent claims are frequently added to existing lawsuits) 8 (citing cases). Defendants' argument that Plaintiff's lack of diligence in seeking leave to 9 amend justifies denying Plaintiff's motion is also without merit. Indeed, as the Ninth 10 Circuit has explained, while a district court may consider the factor of undue delay, 11 "[u]ndue delay by itself . . . is insufficient to justify denying a motion to amend." Bowles
12 v. Reade, 198 F.3d 752, 757-758 (9th Cir. 1999); DCD Programs, 833 F.2d at 186.³ 13 Accordingly, Defendants have failed to satisfy their burden to demonstrate that leave to 14 amend should not be granted. DCD Programs, 833 F.2d at 187.

15 Defendants, for their part, have not cited controlling authority or provided 16 persuasive argument compelling a contrary result. For instance, Defendants failed to 17 demonstrate that Plaintiff inordinately delayed in seeking leave to amend, that the proposed 18 amendment is futile because the claims Plaintiff seeks to add lack merit, that the delay in 19 the resolution of this case caused by the proposed amendment (which Defendants calculate 20 as five months) amounts to substantial prejudice, or that the new allegations proposed by 21

22 ³ The Ninth Circuit has not precisely defined the meaning of "undue delay." In some 23 cases, the Ninth Circuit has indicated that the inquiry involves whether allowing an 24 amendment would cause delay in the operative trial schedule. See, e.g., Loehr v. Ventura 25 County Community College District, 743 F.2d 1310, 1320 (9th Cir. 1984) (permitting an 26 amendment "would have substantially complicated and delayed the case for new discovery, 27 responsive pleadings, and considerations of state law"). In other cases, the Ninth Circuit 28 has described the party's delay in moving to amend as the appropriate touchstone; undue delay has occurred when a party has filed a motion for leave to amend long after it should have become aware of the information that underlies that motion. See, e.g., Jackson v.
Bank of Hawaii, 902 F.2d 1385, 1388 (9th Cir. 1990) ("Relevant to evaluating the delay issue is whether the moving party knew or should have known the facts and theories raised by the amendment in the original pleading."). Defendants' arguments implicate both meanings of undue delay.

1 Plaintiff will cause substantial prejudice by radically shifting the direction of this case or by 2 greatly altering the nature of the litigation. See Morongo Band of Mission Indians v. Rose, 3 893 F.2d 1074, 1079 (9th Cir. 1990) (affirming denial of motion for leave to amend where 4 the proposed new claims posed a "radical shift in direction" of the litigation, were 5 "tenuous," would have required defendants to have undertaken, at a late hour, an entirely 6 new course of defense, and where moving party failed to request leave to amend for nearly 7 two years).

8 While Defendants contend that the new patent infringement allegations will 9 "dramatically expand the scope of this litigation" and necessitate additional discovery and 10 patent analysis, Defendants have not established that the delay in the proceedings caused by 11 the proposed amendment amounts to undue prejudice to overcome the strong policy of 12 permitting amendment under Rule 15. Eminence Capital, 316 F.3d at 1051 (the policy of 13 freely granting leave to amend when justice so requires is to be applied with "extreme 14 liberality"). In fact, Plaintiff has persuasively argued that Defendants will not suffer undue 15 prejudice if the proposed amendment is allowed because discovery in this case has just 16 begun.

17 Further, having reviewed the record in this matter, the Court finds that Defendants 18 are hard-pressed to legitimately claim that Plaintiff has unduly delayed in seeking leave to 19 amend. On January 19, 2012, the parties' filed a joint statement in advance of the initial 20 Case Management Conference, which expressly states that "at this time the parties do not 21 believe it is appropriate to establish any cut-off dates for amending pleadings, discovery, 22 motions, expert disclosures, pretrial conference and trial, or otherwise." Dkt. 70. The joint 23 statement also specifically states that Plaintiff intends on filing an amended complaint "to 24 assert at least three additional patents against the Defendants," including the patents it now 25 seeks to add. Id. Plaintiff filed the instant motion for leave to amend on April 24, 2012, 26 two weeks after the last of the three patents was issued and less than 3 months after the 27 initial Case Management Conference. Under these circumstances, the Court finds that 28 Plaintiff did not unduly delay in seeking leave to amend. If Defendants were concerned

1 about the prejudice that could result from the addition of patents to this case, they should 2 have requested that the Court establish a deadline for amending the pleadings either in the 3 parties' joint statement or at the initial Case Management Conference held on February 1, 4 2012. Defendants should have known that if the Court's Scheduling Order did not include a 5 deadline for amending pleadings, a motion requesting leave to amend the FAC would be 6 governed by the liberal amendment policy of Rule 15.

7 In short, the Court concludes that Defendants have failed to make a sufficient 8 showing under the Foman factors to overcome the policy of granting leave to amend with 9 extreme liberality. Moreover, the Court finds that the interests of judicial economy and 10 convenience are best served by granting Plaintiff's motion for leave to amend. As 11 recognized by the Ninth Circuit, Rule 15(d), which provides for the filing of a supplemental 12 pleading, "is a useful device, enabling a court to award complete relief, or more nearly 13 complete relief, in one action, and to avoid the cost, delay and waste of separate actions 14 which must be separately tried and prosecuted." See Keith, 858 F.2d at 473. The Court 15 finds that allowing Plaintiff to amend the FAC to add three patents to this lawsuit that are 16 related to the patents already at issue in this case will serve the foregoing interests 17 articulated by the Ninth Circuit.⁴ It is axiomatic that judicial efficiency is maximized by 18 disposing of related claims in one matter. Further, adjudicating the related factual and legal 19 issues at the same time not only ensures that the patents are interpreted in a consistent 20 manner, but also avoids the possibility of inconsistent judgments. Indeed, Defendants 21 concede that if the claims Plaintiff seeks to add need to be brought at all, "they should be 22 tried in this action rather than a separate action." TSMC's Opp. at 10 n. 14.

23 Accordingly, because Defendants failed to satisfy their burden to demonstrate that 24 leave to amend should not be granted under the Foman factors, and because the Court finds 25 that granting Plaintiff's motion serves the interests of judicial economy and convenience,

26
27 ⁴ Defendants do not challenge Plaintiff's contention that the new patents it seeks to 28 add to this lawsuit are "substantially related" to the patents already at issue in this case or Plaintiff's contention that the new patents are being asserted against the same infringing methods and products.

1 Plaintiff's motion for leave to amend is GRANTED.

2 C. Modification of the Schedule

3 In the event the Court grants Plaintiff's motion for leave to amend, Defendants 4 request that the Court modify its February 6, 2012 Scheduling Order to mitigate the 5 resulting prejudice on Defendants. TSMC's Opp. at 11. Specifically, Defendants propose a 6 schedule that requests approximately five additional months to accommodate the new 7 claims. Id. at 12. Defendants also request that the Court provide mechanisms for the 8 parties to identify a reduced number (or at least a representative set) of claims to focus this 9 case for claim construction, and then to further reduce the number of claims following the 10 Court's Markman Order to focus the case for summary judgment and/or trial. Id. at 5, 11.
11 Defendants note that a Case Management Conference would be useful in determining how 12 best to manage this case. Id. at 12.

13 In response, Plaintiff indicates that it is amenable to modifying the current schedule 14 to accommodate the newly issued patents, but disagrees with Defendants' proposed 15 schedule, which it claims provides for two separate discovery deadlines related to claim 16 construction, two rounds of claim construction briefing, separate technology tutorials, and 17 two Markman hearings. Pl.'s Reply at 7. Instead, Plaintiff proposes to maintain the current 18 framework, with possible adjustments to the existing schedule if deemed necessary or 19 desirable by the Court. Id. Plaintiff contends that, contrary to Defendants' suggestion, the 20 addition of the three patents will not add significant burden to the Court from the standpoint 21 of claim construction because the parties already have agreed to limit the number of terms 22 proposed for construction to ten. Id. at 8. Plaintiff also contends that Defendants' attempt 23 to narrow the asserted claims is premature and improper. Id. at 8-9.

24 In light of the Court's ruling on Plaintiff's motion for leave to amend, the Court 25 directs the parties to meet and confer regarding the schedule in this case. The Court 26 recognizes that Plaintiff's amendment will add three new patents to this lawsuit. Thus, as 27 the parties acknowledge, the current case schedule will likely require modification in order 28 to provide adequate time to prepare for the new patents. The Court will set a Case

1 Management Conference where the issue of modifying the Scheduling Order can be 2 discussed.

3 II. CONCLUSION

4 For the reasons stated above, IT IS HEREBY ORDERED THAT:

5 1. Plaintiffs' motion for leave to amend is GRANTED. Plaintiff shall file a SAC 6 within seven (7) days of the date this Order is filed.

7 2. A Case Management Conference is scheduled for August 22, 2012 at 2:45
8 p.m. Prior to the date scheduled for the conference, the parties shall meet and confer and 9 prepare a joint Case Management Conference Statement outlining the parties' respective 10 positions regarding any changes to the schedule in this case. Plaintiff is responsible for 11 filing the joint statement no less than seven (7) days prior to the conference date. Plaintiff 12 is responsible for setting up the conference call, and on the specified date and time, shall 13 call (510) 637-3559 with all parties on the line.

14 3. This Order terminates Docket 78.
