FACTS AND BACKGROUND

- 8. On October 9, 2009, USEI sued Apple in the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Texas, Case No. 6:09-cv-448, alleging that Apple and other Defendants infringe the '313, '459, '872, and '094 Patents. USEI filed its First Amended Complaint for Patent Infringement on May 4, 2010 ("Amended Complaint"), maintaining its allegations of infringement against Apple for infringement of the USEI Asserted Patents.
- 9. In paragraph 32 of the Amended Complaint, USEI alleges that Apple "infringed and continues to infringe one or more claims of the '459 Patent, directly, contributorily, and/or by inducement, by importing, making, using, offering for sale, and/or selling products and devices which embody the patented invention."
- 10. In paragraph 41 of the Amended Complaint, USEI alleges that Apple "infringed and continues to infringe one or more claims of the '872 Patent, directly, contributorily, and/or by inducement, by importing, making, using, offering for sale, and/or selling products and devices which embody the patented invention."
- 11. In paragraph 50 of the Amended Complaint, USEI alleges that Apple "infringed and continues to infringe one or more claims of the '094 Patent, directly, contributorily, and/or by inducement, by importing, making, using, offering for sale, and/or selling products and devices which embody the patented invention."

- 12. In paragraph 59 of the Amended Complaint, USEI alleges that Apple "infringed and continues to infringe one or more claims of the '313 Patent, directly, contributorily, and/or by inducement, by importing, making, using, offering for sale, and/or selling products and devices which embody the patented invention."
- 13. On April 28, 2010, USEI served Apple with Plaintiff U.S. Ethernet Innovations, LLC's First Supplemental Infringement Contentions to the Apple Defendants ("Supplemental Infringement Contentions"). USEI's Supplemental Infringement Contentions identify Oracle Ethernet technology, including the "Sun GEM Ethernet Controller Family," as the bases for USEI's alleged infringement of certain Apple products for the '459 Patent (USEI Claim Chart Number 30), the '872 Patent (USEI Claim Chart Number 31), the '094 Patent (USEI Claim Chart Number 32), and the '313 Patent (USEI Claim Chart Number 33).
- 14. On or about May 20, 1998, Apple entered into an agreement (the "Technology License Agreement") with Sun Microsystems Inc. ("Sun"), contractually obligating Sun to indemnify, defend, and hold harmless Apple as a result of any claim or proceeding alleging intellectual property infringement of the Ethernet technology supplied by Sun to Apple.
- 15. Subsequent to May 20, 1998, Oracle has become the party and successor-in-interest to all of Sun's rights and obligations under the Technology License Agreement.
- 16. Upon information and belief, on or about January 27, 2010, Oracle announced that it had finalized its acquisition of Sun. On information and belief, as part of Oracle's acquisition of Sun, Sun assigned all rights, obligations, and liabilities under the Technology License Agreement to Oracle.

	17.	Apple gave notice to Oracle of the Lawsuit and made written and oral requests for indem	nificatio	on and defense with respect to the Lawsuit. Apple has complied in all respects with any ol	oligation	ns of Apple under the Technology License Agreement.

- 18. Oracle has provided no assurance that it will meet its indemnification obligations and has not met such obligations to date.
- 19. Oracle has not defended or indemnified Apple in the Lawsuit and has not paid any costs or expenses in association with the defense of USEI's claims to date.
- 20. Any and all damages recoverable or recovered by USEI, and any and all costs and expenses, including attorneys' fees and expenses, paid or incurred by Apple for its defense of the Lawsuit relating to USEI's claims that involve Oracle Ethernet technology are encompassed by the Technology License Agreement.
