

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

ROBERT H. O'CONNOR,

No. C-14-00211 DMR

Plaintiff,

ORDER GRANTING DEFENDANT'S MOTION TO DISMISS FIRST
AMENDED COMPLAINT [DOCKET
NO. 31]

v.

WELLS FARGO, N.A.,

Defendant.

Defendant Wells Fargo, N.A. ("Wells Fargo") moves the court to dismiss the First Amended Complaint ("FAC") [Docket No. 1] pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6) for failing to state a claim upon which relief can be granted. [Docket No. 31.] The court conducted a hearing on the motion on September 25, 2014. Plaintiff proceeds pro se. For the reasons stated below and at the hearing, Defendant's motion is granted.

I. Background*A. Procedural History

Plaintiff Robert H. O'Connor filed this lawsuit on January 14, 2014, alleging four causes of action: (1) violation of the Fair Credit Reporting Act ("FCRA"), 15 U.S.C. § 1681s-2(b); (2) violation of the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act ("FDCPA"), 15 U.S.C. § 1692; (3) invasion of

1 privacy; and (4) “negligent, wanton, and/or intentional hiring and supervision of incompetent
2 employees or agents.” Compl. [Docket No. 1] ¶¶ 13-39.<sup>1</sup>

3 On July 3, 2014, this court issued an order dismissing the Complaint. Mot. Dismiss Order
4 [Docket No. 25]. The court dismissed Plaintiff’s FCRA and FDCPA claims with leave to amend
5 “only to the extent he can cure the deficiencies noted in this order.” Id. at 9. The court dismissed
6 Plaintiff’s state law claims without leave to amend because it found that amendment would be futile.
7 Id.

8 On July 17, 2014, Plaintiff filed the FAC. Although the court granted leave only to amend
9 the FCRA and FDCPA claims, the FAC realleges the FDCPA claim and alleges two new FCRA
10 claims and six additional state law claims: (1) intentional infliction of emotional distress; (2)
11 violation of the Rosenthal Fair Debt Collection Practices Act (“RFDCPA” or “Rosenthal Act”); (3)
12 violation of the California Consumer Credit Reporting Agencies Act (“CCRAA”); (4) declaratory
13 judgment/quiet title; (5) wrongful foreclosure; and (6) injunctive relief.<sup>2</sup>

14 B. Factual Allegations

15 The FAC is a confusing, non-linear 28-page document that combines allegations with legal 16 argument and recitations of statutory language, and bears little resemblance to the original 17 Complaint. The FAC also omits basic details. For example, the first allegation in the “Factual
18 Background” section of the FAC states that “On or around November 2011, Plaintiff made his last 19 payment to the alleged creditor at the time.” But Plaintiff fails to set forth who the “alleged creditor 20 at the time” was, the reason Plaintiff was required to make payments to that alleged creditor, or the 21 amount of payment. See FAC at ¶ 15. Plaintiff also points to “the loan referred to in this complaint”
22 but does not ever clearly identify a loan by any party to another. FAC at ¶ 21. Plaintiff alleges that

---

24 <sup>1</sup> Plaintiff has filed at least six other virtually identical complaints in the following cases:
25 O’Connor v. Sabadell United Bank, NA, N.D. Cal. Case No. CV-14-0180 JCS; O’Connor v. Nationstar
26 Mortgage, N.D. Cal. Case No. CV-13-5874-NC; O’Connor v. Capital One, N.D. Cal. Case No. CV-14-
27 0209 KAW; O’Connor v. Capital One, N.D. Cal. Case No. CV-14-0177 KAW; O’Connor v. JP Morgan
Chase, N.D. Cal. Case No. CV-14-0178 KAW; and O’Connor v. Carrington Mortgage Services, LLC, N.D. Cal. Case No. CV-14-0210 CW.

28 <sup>2</sup> Although this disobeys the court’s order granting limited permission to amend, the court nonetheless considers Plaintiff’s new claims in the interest of efficiency and justice.

1 he owns real property located at 147 Avenida Barbera in Sonoma, California that “is the subject of 2 this litigation,” but none of his allegations clearly explain how his property is related to his claims.
3 FAC at ¶ 5.

4 The court has a duty to interpret pro se pleadings liberally. See Hughes v. Rowe, 449 U.S. 5, 5 9 (1980); Bernhardt v. Los Angeles Cnty., 339 F.3d 920, 925 (9th Cir. 2003). Thus, while the FAC
6 omits key details in the story, the court turns to judicially noticeable facts to interpret Plaintiff’s
7 allegations. In its previous order, the court took judicial notice<sup>3</sup> of the following facts presented by 8 Wells Fargo: Plaintiff’s and Wells Fargo’s relationship arises from a $320,000 mortgage loan
9 secured by a Deed of Trust on Plaintiff’s property at 147 Avenida Barbera in Sonoma. Plaintiff
10 originally obtained this loan from World Savings Bank, FSB in August 2007. The Deed of Trust
11 identifies Plaintiff’s lender as “WORLD SAVINGS BANK, FSB, ITS SUCCESSORS AND/OR 12 ASSIGNEES.” Shortly after World Savings Bank originated the loan, it changed its name to 13 Wachovia Mortgage, FSB, which later merged into Wells Fargo Bank, NA in November 2009. On 14 April 11, 2012, the Official Recorder of Sonoma County recorded a Notice of Default and Election
15 to Sell Under the Deed of Trust for Plaintiff’s property. The Notice of Default lists Wells Fargo as 16 the entity to contact to arrange for payment or stop the foreclosure. The Payoff Statement that 17 Plaintiff received from Wells Fargo and attached to his original Complaint references the same loan 18 number as the number originally included on his Deed of Trust with World Savings Bank. See Mot.
19 Dismiss Order at 2-3.

20 The court has attempted to separate the factual allegations<sup>4</sup> from Plaintiff’s legal argument
21 and recitations of statutory language in the FAC. The allegations are as follows. On December 1, 22 2010, Plaintiff began receiving what Plaintiff refers to as “dunning notices” from Wells Fargo. FAC

---

23
24 <sup>3</sup> “[A] court may take judicial notice of ‘matters of public record,’” Lee v. City of Los Angeles, 25 250 F.3d 668, 689 (9th Cir. 2001) (citing Mack v. S. Bay Beer Distrib., 798 F.2d 1279, 1282 (9th Cir.
26 1986)), and the court need not accept as true allegations that contradict facts that are judicially noticed.
See Mullis v. United States Bankruptcy Ct., 828 F.2d 1385, 1388 (9th Cir. 1987). The court documented record citations for the judicially noticeable facts in this paragraph in its previous order. See Mot.
Dismiss Order at 2-3.

27 <sup>4</sup> When reviewing a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim, the court must “accept as true
28 all of the factual allegations contained in the complaint.” Erickson v. Pardus, 551 U.S. 89, 94 (2007)
(per curiam) (citation omitted).

1 at ¶ 16. Plaintiff does not allege what these “dunning notices” stated, and does not attach them to 2 the FAC. Plaintiff notes only that the documents indicated that Wells Fargo was attempting to 3 collect a debt. FAC at ¶ 19. At this time, Plaintiff was in default on the debt. FAC at ¶ 19. Plaintiff
4 alleges that he “does not have a contract with [Wells Fargo].” FAC at ¶ 35. Plaintiff also alleges
5 that Wells Fargo obtained Plaintiff’s credit report and made an inquiry on this report, FAC at ¶¶ 73-
6 74, and is “attempting to foreclose on a property they have no right to foreclose on.” FAC at ¶ 95.

7 The gist of the FAC is the same as the original Complaint: Plaintiff alleges that Wells Fargo
8 does not own Plaintiff’s debt. As a result, Plaintiff claims that Wells Fargo violated the FCRA, the 9 FDCPA, and various state laws by attempting to collect the debt from Plaintiff, by communicating 10 with credit reporting agencies about the debt, and by attempting to foreclose on Plaintiff’s property.
11 See generally FAC at ¶¶ 15-113. Additional allegations relevant to Plaintiff’s claims will be noted 12 below as appropriate.

13 II. Legal Standards

14 A motion to dismiss under Rule 12(b)(6) tests the legal sufficiency of the claims alleged in 15 the complaint. See Parks Sch. of Bus. v. Symington, 51 F.3d 1480, 1484 (9th Cir. 1995). When 16 reviewing a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim, the court “accept[s] as true all of the 17 factual allegations contained in the complaint,” Erickson v. Pardus, 551 U.S. 89, 94 (2007) (per 18 curiam) (citation omitted), and may dismiss the case “only where there is no cognizable legal theory 19 or an absence of sufficient facts alleged to support a cognizable legal theory.” Shroyer v. New 20 Cingular Wireless Servs., Inc., 622 F.3d 1035, 1041 (9th Cir. 2010) (citation and quotation marks 21 omitted). When a complaint presents a cognizable legal theory, the court may grant the motion if 22 the complaint lacks “sufficient factual matter to state a facially plausible claim to relief.” Id. (citing 23 Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 678 (2009)). A claim has facial plausibility when a plaintiff “pleads
24 factual content that allows the court to draw the reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for 25 the misconduct alleged.” Iqbal, 556 U.S. at 678 (citation omitted).

26 III. Analysis

27 A. Plaintiff’s FDCPA Claim

28

1 Plaintiff's first claim is for violation of FDCPA, 15 U.S.C. § 1692. As the court noted in its
2 earlier order, a plaintiff must show that the defendant is a debt collector in order to state a claim for 3 violation of FDCPA. See Freeman v. ABC Legal Servs. Inc., 827 F. Supp. 2d 1065, 1071 (N.D. Cal.
4 2011) ("To state a claim alleging violation of the . . . FDCPA . . . a plaintiff must show . . . that the 5 defendant is a debt collector."); 15 U.S.C. §§ 1692a(6) and 1692g. The court's earlier order stated
6 the following:

7 The FDCPA defines the phrase "debt collector" to include: (1) "any person who uses any 8 instrumentality of interstate commerce or the mails in any business the principal purpose of 9 to collect, directly or indirectly, debts owed or due or asserted to be owed or due another." 15 U.S.C. § 1692a(6) (emphasis added).

10 According to the allegations in the complaint and judicially noticeable facts, Plaintiff took 11 out a mortgage loan from Wells Fargo's predecessor, and Wells Fargo attempted to collect
12 funds related to that loan. These facts do not make Wells Fargo a debt collector for purposes
13 of the FDCPA. The complaint fails to allege facts that Wells Fargo's principal purpose is the 14 collection of debts or that Wells Fargo collected these debts for another. See Schlegel v.
15 Wells Fargo Bank, NA, 720 F.3d 1204, 1209 (9th Cir. 2013) (dismissing FDCPA claims
16 brought by mortgagors against mortgagee Wells Fargo as Wells Fargo was not a "debt
17 collector" because complaint "establishe[d] only that debt collection is some part of Wells
18 Fargo's business" and did not allege that Wells Fargo "collects debts owed to someone other 19 than Wells Fargo") (emphasis added); see also Lyons v. Bank of Am., NA, No. 11-01232 CW, 20 2011 WL 3607608, at *12 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 15, 2011) (after acquiring plaintiffs' mortgage 21 loan, defendants who initiated foreclosure proceedings were not "debt collectors" because 22 "FDCPA applies to those who collect debts on behalf of another; it does not encompass 23 creditors who are collecting their own past due accounts.")<sup>6</sup>.

24 [Footnote 6] To the extent that Plaintiff argues that Wells Fargo is collecting the debt from 25 another because the debt was originally owned by other lenders, the Ninth Circuit has also 26 rejected this argument in Schlegel. There, plaintiffs contended that because Wells Fargo was 27 in the business of collecting not only the debts it originated, but also debts that were 28 originated by others, it should fit within the FDCPA's second definition of debt collector.
Schlegel, 720 F.3d at 1209. The Ninth Circuit rejected that argument because it is not supported by the statutory text of the FDCPA. Id.

Mot. Dismiss Order at 7. The court stated that "Plaintiff may amend this claim only if he is able to plausibly and sufficiently allege that Wells Fargo is a debt collector." Id.

The new allegations in the FAC do not suffice to show that Wells Fargo is a debt collector.
Plaintiff alleges that Wells Fargo "regularly attempts to collect debts alleged to be due to another,"
FAC at ¶ 28, "meets the definition of debt collector under the FDCPA" and "is not a creditor or a lender," id. at ¶ 32. These allegations are conclusory.

1 Plaintiff also raises several arguments in his opposition to the motion, each of which is
2 deficient. First, Plaintiff claims that Wells Fargo has “clearly held [itself] out” to a be a debt
3 collector, citing only to the statement on a payoff statement purportedly sent by Wells Fargo that
4 “Wells Fargo Home Mortgage may be attempting to collect a debt and any information obtained
5 may be used for that purpose.” See Opp. [Docket No. 41] at 3, Ex. C. However, the statement that 6 Wells Fargo “may be attempting to collect a debt” does not render it “any person who uses any 7 instrumentality of interstate commerce or the mails in any business the principal purpose of which is 8 the collection of any debts,” or any person “who regularly collects or attempts to collect, directly or 9 indirectly, debts owed or due or asserted to be owed or due another,” which are the statutory 10 definitions of “debt collector.”

11 Second, Plaintiff argues that “[n]one of the documents [showing that Wells Fargo owns 12 Plaintiff’s debt] have been properly authenticated under the Federal Rules of Evidence.” Opp. at 3.
13 Plaintiff also raised this argument in his opposition to the motion to dismiss the original Complaint.
14 This argument fails for the same reasons it failed earlier, because, as stated in the court’s earlier
15 order, “judicially noticeable facts show that Plaintiff’s mortgage loan was transferred from 16 Plaintiff’s original lender, World Savings Bank, to its successor, Wells Fargo.” Mot. Dismiss Order
17 at 6.

18 Third, Plaintiff cites to cases purportedly supporting the argument that Wells Fargo can be a 19 “debt collector” under the facts alleged, along with judicially noticeable facts. In Williams v. Wells
20 Fargo Bank, No. 10-cv-5880-BHS, 2012 WL 72727 (W.D. Wash. Jan. 10, 2012), the plaintiffs took 21 out a mortgage loan secured by a deed of trust on their property. Several years later, an assignment
22 of deed of trust was recorded that named Wells Fargo as the new beneficiary on the deed of trust.
23 The plaintiffs defaulted on the loan, and the trustee recorded a notice of trustee’s sale. The plaintiffs
24 then sued Wells Fargo for, inter alia, violation of the FDPCA. Id. at *1-2. Wells Fargo sought
25 dismissal of the FDCPA claim on the basis that they were not debt collectors. The court declined to 26 dismiss on that basis, holding that “the FDCPA treats assignees as debt collectors if the debt sought
27 to be collected was in default when acquired by the assignee” and that “although the Court is aware 28 of district court cases that have held that the act of foreclosing on property is not ‘debt collection’

1 under the FDCPA, this Court has not adopted such a per se holding and it will not do so here.” Id. at 2 *5. The problem with Plaintiff’s reliance on Williams is that it is an unpublished out of district case
3 directly contradicted by the Ninth Circuit’s more recent published opinion on matters analogous to 4 those presented here. In Schlegel, which the court cited in its earlier order, the Ninth Circuit found
5 that Wells Fargo was not a “debt collector” even though it had acquired the mortgage loan when the 6 plaintiffs were in default under the loan agreement. Schlegel, 720 F.3d at 1206. See also Schlegel v.
7 Wells Fargo Bank, N.A., 799 F. Supp. 2d 1100, 1102 (N.D. Cal. 2011) (plaintiffs had alleged that 8 “[a]t the time of reassignment, Plaintiffs ‘were delinquent on their loan payments and in default
9 under the loan agreement.’”). The other cases cited by Plaintiff are simply inapposite. See Santoro
10 v. CTC Foreclosure Serv., 12 F. Appx 476, 480 (9th Cir. 2001) (declining to determine “whether 11 [the loan servicer] is a debt collector under the FDCPA because we hold that the conduct, as alleged, 12 does not constitute ‘debt collecting’”); Kee v. R-G Crown Bank, 656 F. Supp. 2d 1348, 1355 (D.
13 Utah 2009) (holding that “a loan servicer . . . is only a ‘debt collector’ within the meaning of the 14 FDCPA if it acquires the loan after it is in default” and that “the holder of the Note, which in this
15 case is Fannie Mae, is not a ‘debt collector’ within the meaning of section 1692(a)(6) of the FDCPA
16 because Fannie Mae is not attempting to collect the debt of another, and thus, as a matter of law, the 17 FDCPA allegation against Fannie Mae is also dismissed”) (emphasis added); Alibrandi v. Fin.
18 Outsourcing Servs., Inc., 333 F.3d 82, 86 (2d Cir. 2003) (noting that the FDCPA creates an 19 exception to the definition of “debt collector” if the collection attempt concerns a debt that is not yet 20 in default).

21 Neither Plaintiff’s new allegations nor arguments cure the deficiency that the court noted in 22 its earlier order, and Plaintiff has again failed to plausibly and sufficiently allege that Wells Fargo is 23 a debt collector under the FDCPA. For this reason, Plaintiff’s FDCPA claim is dismissed without 24 leave to amend.<sup>5</sup>

---

25
26 <sup>5</sup> Because the court dismisses the FDCPA claim on this basis, it declines to reach Wells Fargo’s
27 alternative argument, i.e., that the claim is barred by the doctrine of res judicata because a California
28 court entered judgment on March 6, 2014 stating that “Wells Fargo National Association does not owe [Plaintiff Robert O’Connor] any money on plaintiff’s claim [for violation of the FDCPA].” See Motion at 3.

1 B. Plaintiff’s FCRA Claim

2 In the original Complaint, Plaintiff brought a claim for violation of the FCRA, specifically 15
3 U.S.C. § 1681s-2(b), alleging that Wells Fargo violated this section by failing to reasonably
4 investigate Plaintiff’s dispute regarding the accuracy of the debt Wells Fargo reported about Plaintiff
5 to the credit reporting agencies. See Mot. Dismiss Order at 4-5. The court noted that “the complaint
6 does not describe any inaccuracies in Wells Fargo’s reporting other than to argue that ‘Plaintiff has 7 no contractual relationship with Defendant Wells Fargo’ and that Plaintiff ‘never applied for credit
8 or services’ with Wells Fargo.” Id. at 5. The court held that the “plain allegation that ‘the accounts
9 do not belong to’ Plaintiff is insufficient to state claim for inaccurate reporting.” Id. at 6 (citing
10 Iyigun v. Cavalry Portfolio Servs, LLC, No. CV–12–8682–MWF (JEMx), 2013 WL 950947, at *1
11 (C.D. Cal. Mar. 12, 2013)). Because “judicially noticeable facts show that Plaintiff’s mortgage loan 12 was transferred from Plaintiff’s original lender, World Savings Bank, to its successor, Wells Fargo .
13 . . . Plaintiff does not allege a plausible inaccuracy in Wells Fargo’s reporting as required to state a 14 claim for a violation of Section 1681s-2(b).” Id.

15 Instead of realleging his Section 1681s-2(b) claim, Plaintiff brings claims for violation of 16 different provisions of FCRA.

17 1. 15 U.S.C. § 1681b

18 Plaintiff alleges that Wells Fargo obtained Plaintiff’s credit report and made an inquiry on 19 this report. FAC at ¶¶ 73-74. According to Plaintiff, this violated 15 U.S.C. § 1681b, which defines 20 specific circumstances under which a consumer reporting agency may furnish a consumer report.

21 The problem with this claim is the same problem with the FCRA claim in the original 22 Complaint: Plaintiff fails to identify specifically what Wells Fargo has done. Plaintiff offers mostly 23 conclusory allegations, e.g., that Wells Fargo “obtain[ed] credit information without a ‘permissible
24 purpose,” and “obtained Plaintiff’s personal credit file, made inquiries and negative entries on his 25 credit report without permission and without a permissible purpose.” Id. at ¶ 74. Plaintiff also 26 alleges that “Defendant obtained the credit report by misrepresenting to the credit bureaus that they 27 had a right to run Plaintiff’s credit” even though Wells Fargo is “an unknown person.” FAC at ¶ 73, 28 75.

1 At the hearing, Plaintiff repeatedly confirmed that the premise of this claim, and of all of his
2 claims, is his enduring (but specious) belief that Wells Fargo has not proven that it owns Plaintiff's
3 debt, and therefore did not have a permissible purpose to obtain Plaintiff's credit report. As the 4 court ruled in the previous order, that argument is foreclosed by judicially noticeable facts showing
5 that the debt belongs to Wells Fargo. Plaintiff also confirmed at the hearing that he has no other
6 theories for his claims besides the above. Thus permitting Plaintiff to amend this claim would be 7 futile. Plaintiff's FCRA claim under Section 1681b is therefore dismissed without leave to amend.

8 2. 15 U.S.C. § 1681q

9 Plaintiff also alleges that Wells Fargo violated 15 U.S.C. § 1681q. Section 1681q provides 10 for criminal liability for any person who "knowingly and willfully obtains information on a 11 consumer from a consumer reporting agency under false pretenses." See also Hansen v. Morgan, 12 582 F.2d 1214, 1219 (9th Cir. 1978) (finding that Section 1681q may also form the basis of civil 13 liability). The "standard for determining when a consumer report has been obtained under false 14 pretenses will usually be defined in relation to the permissible purposes of consumer reports which 15 are enumerated in 15 U.S.C. § 1681b." Id. "This is because a consumer reporting agency can 16 legally issue a report only for the purposes listed in s 1681b. If the agency is complying with the 17 statute, then a user cannot utilize an account with a consumer reporting agency to obtain consumer 18 information for a purpose not permitted by s 1681b without using a false pretense." Id.

19 This claim fails for the same reasons that Plaintiff's Section 1681b claim fails. The 20 allegations are equally conclusory. See FAC at ¶ 75 ("As a result of Defendant's knowingly and 21 willfully [sic] request and receipt of information on the Plaintiff from consumer reporting agencies
22 under false pretenses, Defendant . . . is liable to Plaintiff under FCRA."). Plaintiff clarified at the 23 hearing that his only argument is that the "false pretenses" were that Wells Fargo represented that it 24 owned Plaintiff's debt when Plaintiff believes that Wells Fargo does not. Because that argument is 25 plainly deficient, and Plaintiff has no other theories for violation of Section 1681q, the claim is 26 dismissed without leave to amend.

27 C. Intentional Infliction of Emotional Distress
28

1 “To recover for intentional infliction of emotional distress a plaintiff must show: (1)
2 outrageous conduct by the defendant, (2) intention to cause or reckless disregard of the probability 3 of
4 causing emotional distress, (3) severe emotional suffering and (4) actual and proximate causation of 5 the emotional distress.” McDaniel v. Gile, 230 Cal. App. 3d 363, 372 (1991). Courts have 6 emphasized that extreme and outrageous conduct is conduct that “go[es] beyond all possible
7 [bounds] of decency, and [is] regarded as atrocious, and utterly intolerable in a civilized
8 community.” Mintz v. Blue Cross of Cal., 172 Cal.App.4th 1594, 1608 (2009) (internal quotation 9 marks omitted).

10 Plaintiff’s allegations here are minimal and conclusory. Plaintiff alleges that “Defendant’s
11 acts and/or omissions were done intentionally and/or with gross indifference to Plaintiff’s rights.
12 Plaintiff’s emotional distress includes, but is not limited to extreme humiliation, anxiety, and loss of 13 sleep. As a result of Defendant’s conduct, Plaintiff has suffered compensatory, general, and special 14 damages in an amount according to proof.” FAC at ¶¶ 92-93. The “outrageous conduct” forming 15 the basis of this claim is that Wells Fargo “attempt[ed] to take Plaintiff’s property through 16 foreclosure when they [sic] have no legal right to do so.” FAC at ¶ 93.

17 The problems with this claim are manifold. First, the FAC alleges no details about any 18 attempted foreclosure by Wells Fargo; it is only through judicially noticeable documents that the 19 story of the April 11, 2012 recordation of the Notice of Default and Election to Sell Under the Deed
20 of Trust emerges. Second, Plaintiff confirmed at the hearing that his theory for this claim is that 21 Wells Fargo had “no legal right” to foreclose because it was allegedly not the owner of Plaintiff’s
22 mortgage loan. Again, that argument fails for the reasons stated above. As such, Plaintiff’s 23 intentional infliction of emotional distress claim is dismissed without leave to amend.

24 D. Rosenthal Act

25 Plaintiff alleges that Wells Fargo violated the RFDCPA by (1) “attempt[ing] to collect a debt 26 that was not owed”; (2) “demand[ing] payment for an invalid debt”; (3) “communicating and 27 disclosing to credit bureaus Plaintiff’s information without Plaintiff’s consent, and having the credit
28

1 bureau[s] issue negative marks against the Plaintiff”; and (4) “trying to pass [itself] off as [a]
2 creditor[.]” when Wells Fargo is actually a debt collector.” FAC at ¶ 84.

3 Wells Fargo argues that it is not a “debt collector” under the RFDCPA. The RFDCPA
4 “prohibit[s] debt collectors from engaging in unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the collection of 5 consumer debts and to require debtors to act fairly in entering into and honoring such debts.” Cal.
6 Civ. Code § 1788.1. The RFDCPA defines a “debt collector” as “any person who, in the ordinary 7 course of business, regularly, on behalf of himself or herself or others, engages in debt collection.”
8 Cal. Civ. Code§ 1788.2(c). “As a number of courts have recognized, the definition of ‘debt
9 collector’ is broader under the Rosenthal Act than it is under the FDCPA, as the latter excludes
10 creditors collecting on their own debts.” Reyes v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A., C-10-01667 JCS, 2011
11 WL 30759 at *19 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 3, 2011) (summarizing cases). “Thus, a mortgage servicer may be 12 a ‘debt collector’ under the Rosenthal Act even if it is the original lender, whereas, such an entity 13 would be excluded from the definition of debt collector under the federal act.” Id.

14 Regardless of whether Wells Fargo is a “debt collector” under the RFDCPA, the FAC still 15 fails to state a claim because the vague allegations of Wells Fargo’s conduct are insufficient for the 16 court to determine whether Wells Fargo is liable for any violations of the RFDCPA. The conduct
17 which Plaintiff alleges constitutes violations of the RFDCPA are simply rephrasings of Plaintiff’s
18 fundamental premise that Wells Fargo does not own the alleged debt. Plaintiff confirmed as much at 19 the hearing. That premise is faulty. The RFDCPA claim is therefore dismissed without leave to 20 amend.

21 E. CCRAA

22 California Civil Code § 1785.25(a) provides that “[a] person shall not furnish information on 23 a specific transaction or experience to any consumer credit reporting agency if the person knows or 24 should know the information is incomplete or inaccurate.” Plaintiff alleges that Wells Fargo 25 violated this provision of the CCRAA. Yet the FAC contains no factual allegations in support of 26 this claim. Instead, Plaintiff simply recites the statutory language of Section 1785.25(a)-(c) and (f).
27 The claim is thus patently insufficient, as it is devoid of facts regarding Wells Fargo’s conduct, 28 including what information it furnished, to whom, when, and how it was inaccurate.

1 Furthermore, at the hearing, Plaintiff confirmed that the only basis of his CCRAA claim is 2 that Wells Fargo inaccurately reported to a credit reporting agency that it owned Plaintiff’s loan.
3 That argument is foreclosed for the reasons stated above. Accordingly, Plaintiff’s CCRAA claim is 4 therefore dismissed without leave to amend.

5 F. Quiet Title

6 Plaintiff alleges a quiet title cause of action.<sup>6</sup> “The purpose of a quiet title action ‘is to finally 7 settle and determine, as between the parties, all conflicting claims to the property in controversy, and 8 to decree to each such interest or estate therein as he may be entitled to.’” Martinez v. America’s
9 Wholesale Lender, No. 09-cv-5630 WHA, 2010 WL 934617 at *5 (N.D. Cal. Mar. 15, 2010)
10 (quoting Peterson v. Gibbs, 147 Cal. 1, 5 (1905)), rev’d in part on other grounds, 446 Fed. Appx.
11 940.

12 To bring a claim to quiet title, plaintiffs must show they “are the rightful owners of the 13 property, i.e., that they have satisfied their obligations under the Deed of Trust.” Kelley v. Mortgage
14 Elec. Registration Sys., 642 F.Supp.2d 1048, 1057 (N.D.Cal. 2009). “[I]t is well-settled in 15 California that ‘a mortgagor cannot quiet his title against the mortgagee without paying the debt
16 secured.’” Briosos v. Wells Fargo Bank, 737 F. Supp. 2d 1018, 1032 (N.D. Cal. 2010) (quoting 17 Shimpones v. Stickney, 219 Cal. 637, 649 (1934)).

18 Plaintiff’s allegations contradict his assertion that his is the rightful owner of the Property.
19 Plaintiff “does not dispute that he has failed to make payments on his mortgages since November 20 2010.” FAC at ¶ 95. The fact that Plaintiff’s mortgage loan has been in default for nearly four years
21 dooms his quiet title claim. See Tamburri v. Suntrust Mortgage, Inc., No. 11-cv-2899 EMC, 2011
22 WL 6294472 at *15 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 15, 2011) (“The problem with Plaintiff’s [quiet title] argument
23 is that, even if the proper party did not initiate foreclosure, Plaintiff does not allege that she is the 24 rightful owner as she admits that she is in default.”). At the hearing, Plaintiff confirmed that he is 25 unable to pay off his debt. No amendment can cure this fundamental defect. Thus Plaintiff’s quiet 26 title claim is dismissed without leave to amend.

27
28 <sup>6</sup> The FAC styles this claim as one for “Declaratory Judgment/Quiet Title.”

1 G. Wrongful Foreclosure

2 Courts have power to vacate a foreclosure sale where there has been “fraud in the 3 procurement of the foreclosure decree or where the sale has been improperly, unfairly or unlawfully
4 conducted, or is tainted by fraud, or where there has been such a mistake that to allow it to stand
5 would be inequitable to purchaser and parties.” Lona, 202 Cal. App. 4th at 104. The elements of a 6 wrongful foreclosure claim are: “(1) the trustee or mortgagee caused an illegal, fraudulent, or 7 willfully oppressive sale of real property pursuant to a power of sale in a mortgage or deed of trust;
8 (2) the party attacking the sale (usually but not always the trustor or mortgagor) was prejudiced or 9 harmed; and (3) in cases where the trustor or mortgagor challenges the sale, the trustor or mortgagor
10 tendered the amount of the secured indebtedness or was excused from tendering.” Id.

11 Plaintiff’s wrongful foreclosure claim alleges that Wells Fargo “does not have standing to 12 enforce the Note because [it] is not the owner of the Note, [it] is not a holder of the Note, and [it] is 13 not a beneficiary under the Note” and it “does not own the loan and cannot identify the ‘true owner’
14 of the loan.” FAC at ¶¶ 111-114.

15 The primary reason the wrongful foreclosure claim must be dismissed is that the only
16 “wrongful” aspect of the foreclosure that Plaintiff alleges is that Wells Fargo did not own the loan
17 when it initiated foreclosure. As discussed above, this argument is specious. A second reason for 18 dismissal is that Plaintiff has not alleged that a foreclosure sale has occurred, which is a prerequisite
19 for a wrongful foreclosure claim. See Rosenfeld v. JPMorgan Chase Bank, N.A., 732 F. Supp. 2d 20 952, 961 (N.D. Cal. 2010) (“A lender or foreclosure trustee may only be liable to the mortgagor or 21 trustor for wrongful foreclosure if the property was fraudulently or illegally sold under a power of 22 sale contained in a mortgage or deed of trust. Here, there is no dispute that a foreclosure sale did not 23 take place. Accordingly, the Court finds that [the wrongful foreclosure] cause of action is 24 premature.”) (citing Munger v. Moore, 11 Cal. App. 3d 1, 7 (1970)). But see Nguyen v. JP Morgan
25 Chase Bank N.A., No. 12-CV-04183, 2013 WL 2146606 at *4 (N.D. Cal. May 15, 2013) (“If the 26 foreclosure is indeed wrongful, it seems artificial and counter to the rules of equity to require 27 Plaintiffs to wait for the inevitable to take place—the sale of their property—before bringing suit . . .
28 As the complaint prays for an injunction based on allegedly wrongful foreclosure, the court finds it

1 appropriate to examine the merits of the wrongful foreclosure claim, even though no sale has yet
2 taken place.”).

3 Plaintiff’s wrongful disclosure claim is dismissed without leave to amend.

4 H. Injunctive Relief

5 Plaintiff seeks injunctive relief to enjoin Wells Fargo’s “threatened conduct.” FAC at ¶¶ 6 104-109. This claim fails at the outset because “declaratory and injunctive relief are not causes of 7 action; rather, they are remedies.” Rosenfeld, 732 F. Supp. 2d at 975 (dismissing declaratory
8 judgment and injunctive relief causes of action but permitting plaintiff to replead those remedies in 9 the prayer for relief section because plaintiff might be able to “recover on these theories if he is able 10 to show the existence of the elements necessary to plead his remaining claims that would entitle him
11 to such relief”). See also Hayes v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A., No. 13-CV-0420 KAW, 2013 WL
12 4117050 at *7 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 12, 2013) (dismissing declaratory judgment and injunctive relief 13 causes of action because “[t]hese are not independent causes of action, but remedies”); Benefield v.
14 Bryco Funding, Inc., No. 14-cv-1459 PJH, 2014 WL 2604363 at *7 (N.D. Cal. June 10, 2014) 15 (dismissing injunctive relief claim with prejudice because “injunctive relief is a remedy, not an 16 independent cause of action”). In addition, even when considered as a remedy rather than a cause of 17 action, Plaintiff’s request for injunctive relief is insufficiently stated; Plaintiff does not specify what 18 the “threatened conduct” he seeks to enjoin is, i.e., whether the conduct relates to the alleged debt
19 collection letters, Plaintiff’s consumer credit reports, or Wells Fargo’s attempt to foreclose on the 20 property.

21 Plaintiff’s claim for injunctive relief is therefore dismissed without leave to amend.

22 //

23 //

24 //

25 //

26 //

27 //

28

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

IV. Conclusion

For the foregoing reasons, the motion to dismiss is granted. Because Plaintiff affirmed several times at the hearing that the only basis for this lawsuit is his belief that Wells Fargo does not own his debt, and that belief is belied by judicially noticeable facts, amendment would be futile. Accordingly, the FAC is dismissed without leave to amend. The Clerk of Court shall close this case.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Dated: September 26, 2014

