UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

VLADI ZAKINOV, et al.,
Plaintiffs,
v.
RIPPLE LABS, INC., et al.,
Defendants.

Case No. 18-cv-06753-PJH

ORDER DENYING MOTIONS TO REMAND

Re: Dkt. No. 17, 18

On December 7, 2018, plaintiffs Vladi Zakinov and David Oconer moved to remand this action to the San Mateo County Superior Court. On the same day, in a separately filed motion, plaintiff Avner Greenwald also moved to remand this action to the San Mateo County Superior Court. Those motions came on for hearing before this court on February 13, 2019. Plaintiffs Zakinov and Oconer appeared through their counsel, Stephen Oddo and Brian O'Mara. Plaintiff Greenwald appeared through his counsel, Tom Laughlin. Defendants Ripple Labs, Inc. ("Ripple"), XRP II, LLC, a subsidiary of Ripple, and various individual defendants¹ appeared through their counsel, Peter Morrison. Having read the papers filed by the parties and carefully considered their arguments and the relevant legal authority, and good cause appearing, the court hereby DENIES plaintiffs' motions, for the following reasons.

BACKGROUND

This is the third action premised on the same theory of liability that this court has ¹ The individual defendants are executives or directors of Ripple: Bradley Garlinghouse, Christian Larsen, Ron Will, Antoinette O'Gorman, Eric Van Miltenburg, Susan Athey, Zoe Cruz, Ken Kurson, Ben Lawsky, Anja Manuel, and Takashi Okita.

1 considered. On two prior occasions, this court has detailed plaintiffs’ theory of liability at 2 length. See Coffey v. Ripple Labs Inc., 333 F. Supp. 3d 952, 954 (N.D. Cal. 2018);
3 Greenwald v. Ripple Labs, Inc., No. 18-CV-04790-PJH, 2018 WL 4961767, at *1 (N.D.
4 Cal. Oct. 15, 2018). As was the case with those orders, which also addressed motions to 5 remand, this order does not turn on the substance of plaintiffs’ allegations. Accordingly, 6 the court only briefly recites plaintiffs’ theory of liability:

7 Plaintiffs allege that Ripple created a digital currency called XRP and that 8 defendants and their affiliates have been engaged in an ongoing scheme to sell XRP to 9 the general public. Plaintiffs further allege that because XRP qualifies as a “security” 10 under either the California or federal securities laws, Ripple’s past and ongoing sales of 11 XRP constitute the selling of unregistered securities in violation of federal or state law.

12 Like Coffey and Greenwald, defendants removed the present action under the 13 Class Action Fairness Act (“CAFA”), 28 U.S.C. § 1453, and plaintiffs now move to 14 remand.

15 DISCUSSION

16 A. Legal Standard

17 This court has previously explained

18 The right to remove a case to federal court is entirely a creature 19 of statute. See Libhart v. Santa Monica Dairy Co., 592 F.2d 20 1062, 1064 (9th Cir. 1979). In general, the Ninth Circuit “strictly 21 construe[s] the removal statute against removal jurisdiction,” 22 and “[f]ederal jurisdiction must be rejected if there is any doubt 23 as to the right of removal in the first instance.” Gaus v. Miles, 24 Inc., 980 F.2d 564, 566 (9th Cir. 1992) (discussing 28 U.S.C. § 25 1441). “The ‘strong presumption’ against removal jurisdiction 26 means that the defendant always has the burden of 27 establishing that removal is proper.” Id. If a defendant fails to 28 meet this burden, the action must be remanded.

24 CAFA “relaxed” the diversity requirements for putative class 25 actions. See Dart Cherokee Basin Operating Co., LLC v.
26 Owens, — U.S. —, 135 S.Ct. 547, 551, 190 L.Ed.2d 495 27 (2014). [And,] [c]ontrary to the Ninth Circuit’s general rule for 28 removal, “[n]o antiremoval presumption attends cases invoking CAFA, which Congress enacted to facilitate adjudication of certain class actions in federal court.” Id. at 554. Pursuant to CAFA, a defendant may remove an action under § 1453 if the

1 amount in controversy exceeds $5 million, the putative class 2 has more than 100 members, and the parties are minimally diverse. Id. at 552; 28 U.S.C. §§ 1332(d), 1453.

3 Coffey, 333 F. Supp. 3d at 955-56; 28 U.S.C. § 1453.

4 Further,

5 [t]he Supreme Court has explained that CAFA's " 'provisions 6 should be read broadly, with a strong preference that interstate 7 class actions should be heard in a federal court if properly 8 removed by any defendant.' " Dart Cherokee, 135 S.Ct. at 554 9 (discussing legislative history and quoting S. Rep. No. 109–14 10 at 43 (2005)); Standard Fire Ins. Co. v. Knowles, 568 U.S. 588, 11 595, 133 S.Ct. 1345, 185 L.Ed.2d 439 (2013) ("CAFA's primary 12 objective" is to "ensur[e] Federal court consideration of 13 interstate cases of national importance." (internal quotation 14 marks omitted)). "The Senate Report on CAFA explains that 15 '[b]ecause interstate class actions typically involve more 16 people, more money, and more interstate commerce 17 ramifications than any other type of lawsuit, the Committee 18 firmly believes that such cases properly belong in federal court.'
19 " Jordan [v. Nationstar Mortg. LLC], 781 F.3d 1178, 1182 (9th 20 Cir. 2015)] (quoting S. Rep. No. 109-14 at 5). There can be 21 little doubt that the present action—involving a proposed 22 international class and issues of first impression regarding the 23 federal securities laws['] applicability to a nascent technology—24 falls into that category of class actions.

25 Coffey, 333 F. Supp. 3d at 962 (discussing similar XRP-related allegations).

26 B. Analysis

27 1. Coffey, Greenwald, and In re Ripple

28 As noted, the above-captioned action is the third Ripple-related action assigned to this court. Along with Coffey and Greenwald, both of which this court previously addressed on motions to remand, plaintiffs Zakinov and Oconer filed separate state court actions on June 5, 2018, and June 27, 2018, respectively. The Zakinov and Oconer actions were subsequently consolidated, pursuant to stipulation, into "In re Ripple" by Judge Richard DuBois of the San Mateo County Superior Court. While all three actions share the same legal theory of liability, they are dissimilar in ways that affect the propriety of removal under CAFA—defendants' sole basis for removal in each of the three actions.

a. Coffey

In Coffey, plaintiff was a California resident who asserted four causes of action for violations of §§ 5 & 12(a)(1) of the federal Securities Act and §§ 25110 & 25503 of the 1 California Corporation Code for the unregistered offer and sale of securities, and for 2 control person liability under the Securities Act and the California Corporation Code.

3 Coffey, 333 F. Supp. 3d at 955. The Coffey plaintiff brought the action on behalf of all 4 persons or entities that purchased XRP. Id. The Coffey defendants removed the action 5 on June 1, 2018, contending that plaintiff's state law claims independently satisfied 6 CAFA's jurisdictional requirements. This court agreed and denied the Coffey plaintiff's 7 motion to remand. Id. at 965-966. In doing so, the court found the Ninth Circuit's 8 decision in Luther v. Countrywide Home Loans Servicing LP, 533 F.3d 1031 (9th Cir.
9 2008), inapplicable because Luther only "considered whether an action that solely 10 alleged Securities Act claims could be removed under CAFA[.]" whereas the Coffey 11 defendants "removed th[e] action based on plaintiff's California claims." Id. at 957-58.²
12 The Coffey plaintiff voluntarily dismissed the action on August 22, 2018.

13 b. Greenwald

14 Greenwald was initially removed on August 8, 2018, from the San Mateo County 15 Superior Court. Greenwald, a resident of Israel, asserts only Securities Act claims for the 16 unregistered offer and sale of securities and for control person liability. Greenwald, 2018 17 WL 4961767, at *1. As was the case in Coffey, Greenwald brings his action on behalf of 18 all persons or entities who purchased XRP. Id. On October 15, 2018, the court 19 remanded the action to the San Mateo County Superior Court because Luther directly 20 applied to Greenwald's complaint alleging only Securities Act claims. Id. at *3.

21 c. In re Ripple

22 As noted, the In re Ripple action is the result of Judge DuBois consolidating two 23 actions: Oconer v. Ripple Labs Inc. et al., 18-CIV-3332 (Cal. Super. Ct. San Mateo Cty.), 24 and Zakinov v. Ripple, 18-CIV-2845 (Cal. Super. Ct. San Mateo Cty.). In those actions, 25 Oconer and Zakinov, both California residents, sought to represent all citizens of 26

27 _____
28 ² The court also held that § 22(a) of the Securities Act did not bar removal despite the presence of Coffey's Securities Act claims. Coffey, 333 F. Supp. 3d at 958-966.

1 California who purchased XRP, and asserted claims under only the California
 2 Corporation Code. In addition, those actions named as defendants only Garlinghouse 3 (Ripple’s CEO), Ripple, and XRP II; all of whom are also citizens of California. The 4 Oconer and Zakinov defendants did not remove either Zakinov or Oconer because 5 (presumably) those actions did not satisfy CAFA’s minimal diversity requirement and/or 6 were exempt under CAFA’s local controversy exception.³

7 On August 30, 2018, pursuant to stipulation, Judge DuBois consolidated Zakinov 8 and Oconer for all purposes as In re Ripple Labs Inc. Litig, 18-CIV-2845 (“In re Ripple”).
 9 Dkt. 2-1, Ex. E (the “First Consolidation Order” or “First Consol. Order”). As relevant

8. Plaintiffs shall either designate a complaint as operative or file a Consolidated Complaint ("Consolidated Complaint") within 45 days after entry of this order, unless otherwise agreed upon by the parties. If filed, the Consolidated Complaint shall be the operative complaint and shall supersede all complaints filed in any of the actions consolidated herein. Defendants shall respond to the operative complaint or Consolidated Complaint within 45 days after service, unless otherwise agreed by the parties. In the event that Defendants file any motions directed at the operative complaint or Consolidated Complaint, the opposition and reply briefs shall be filed within 45 and 20 days, respectively, of the motions, unless otherwise agreed upon by the parties. Counsel agrees to confer to select a hearing date.

RELATED MATTERS

14. This Order shall apply to each case, arising out of the same or similar transactions and/or events as the Related Actions which is currently pending in, subsequently filed in, remanded to, or transferred to this Court.

15. When a case which properly belongs as part of the In re Ripple Labs Inc. Litigation, Lead Case No. 18-CIV-02845, is hereafter or has been filed in, remanded to, or transferred to this Court, counsel for the parties shall call such filing, remand, or transfer to the attention of the clerk of this Court for purposes of moving the Court for an order consolidating such case(s) with In re Ripple Labs Inc. Litigation, Lead Case No. 18-CIV-02845. Counsel for the parties will further assist in assuring that counsel for the parties in such subsequent action(s) receive notice of this Order.

First Consol. Order ¶¶ 6, 8, 14-15.

On October 15, 2018, pursuant to paragraph eight of that order, the Zakinov and Oconer plaintiffs (henceforth, the "In re Ripple plaintiffs") filed a consolidated complaint. Dkt. 2-1, Ex. A (the "Consolidated Complaint" or "Consol. Compl."). The Consolidated Complaint alleged the same causes of action, against the same defendants, on behalf of the same class as alleged in the Zakinov and Oconer complaints. Consol. Compl. ¶¶ 10-14, 80, 86-98. Thus, like Zakinov and Oconer, In re Ripple was not eligible for removal pursuant to CAFA.

2. The Present Action

On October 25, 2018, ten days after this court remanded Greenwald, defendants filed a Notice of Related Case (the "Notice") in San Mateo County Superior Court,

1 indicating that, at least in defendants' view, Greenwald was related to In re Ripple 2 because the actions involved the same parties, the same or similar claims, and arose 3 from the same or substantially identical events. Dkts. 21-1, Exs. 2-3. Defendants filed 4 the Notice in both Greenwald and In re Ripple. Id. Under Cal. R. Ct. 3.3000(g), the 5 parties had five days to file a "response supporting or opposing the notice." Neither 6 Greenwald nor the In re Ripple plaintiffs filed a response.

7 Six days after defendants filed the Notice, on October 31, 2018, Judge DuBois 8 ordered Greenwald related to and consolidated with In re Ripple. Dkt. 2-1, Ex. F (titled 9 "Order Deeming Case Related and Consolidating Action Into Master File No.
10 18CIV02845") (henceforth, the "Second Consolidation Order" or "Second Consol.
11 Order"). As relevant here, the Second Consolidation Order stated:

- 12 1. Notice of Related Case having been filed and served, and 13 no opposition or objection filed and served, the case of 14 Greenwald vs. Ripple Labs Inc[.] 18CIV03461 is deemed 15 "related" to the pending consolidated class actions entitled 16 In re Ripple Labs Inc Litigation, Master File No.
17 18CIV02845.
- 18 2. Pursuant to the order in Master File No. 18CIV02845 19 consolidating related class actions[—i.e., the First 20 Consolidation Order—], and having been previously 21 assigned for all purposes to Department 16, the case of 22 Greenwald vs. Ripple Labs Inc[.] 18CIV03461 is ordered 23 CONSOLIDATED as part of Master File No. 18CIV02845.

24 Second Consol. Order ¶¶ 1-2. Thus, creating the present action (henceforth, Ripple III).

25 On November 7, 2018, defendants removed Ripple III, on the theory that the 26 Second Consolidation Order rendered both the Greenwald complaint and the 27 Consolidated Complaint operative in Ripple III. According to defendants, Ripple III was 28 thus removable because the Greenwald complaint, brought on behalf of worldwide XRP purchasers and against non-California defendants, created the minimal diversity In re Ripple alone was lacking.⁴

⁴ Alternatively, In re Ripple's state law causes of action plus Greenwald's minimal diversity independently satisfy CAFA's jurisdictional requirements. Thus, Luther no longer bars removal of Ripple III.

1 On December 7, 2018, Greenwald and the In re Ripple plaintiffs separately moved 2 to remand the action (or actions, according to plaintiffs) to state court. According to 3 plaintiffs, defendants should not have removed Ripple III because the parties had a CMC 4 with Judge DuBois scheduled for November 16, 2018, at which time plaintiffs intended on 5 challenging or clarifying Judge DuBois' Second Consolidation Order.⁵ More 6 substantively, plaintiffs argue that the Second Consolidation Order was improper and, 7 even if it was proper, did not create a single action with two operative complaints.

8 Thus, the thrust of the parties' remand dispute is the effect of Judge DuBois' two 9 consolidation orders.

10 3. Judge DuBois Had the Authority to and Did Consolidate In Re Ripple
11 and Greenwald For All Purposes

12 a. Judge DuBois' Authority to Consolidate the Actions

13 Plaintiffs first contend that consolidation may only occur through a noticed motion 14 or stipulation and thus a judge may not sua sponte consolidate two actions. The court 15 disagrees.

16 California Civil Procedure Code § 1048(a), entitled "Consolidation of actions; 17 separate trial of any cause of action, or of any separate issues, or causes of action or 18 issues," states:

19 (a) When actions involving a common question of law or fact 20 are pending before the court, it may order a joint hearing or trial 21 of any or all the matters in issue in the actions; it may order all 22 the actions consolidated and it may make such orders concerning proceedings therein as may tend to avoid unnecessary costs or delay.

23 See also Cal. R. Ct. 3.767(a)(4), "Orders in the conduct of class actions," ("the court may 25 ⁵ Plaintiffs also argue that Judge DuBois inadvertently or erroneously issued the Second 26 Consolidation Order. The court has little doubt that defendants' hasty removal—which 27 federal law no doubt allows and, indeed, encourages—was a strategic decision that precipitated the present issues. That said, the court is not in the habit of declining subject-matter jurisdiction based on a party's speculation that another judge did not 28 understand what he or she was doing. Nor have plaintiffs pointed to any authority allowing the court to do so.

1 make orders that . . . [f]acilitate the management of class actions through consolidation”).

2 A leading treatise on the matter has observed, that “In General. No procedure to 3 obtain an order of consolidation is indicated by C.C.P. 1048, and it may be made on the 4 court's own motion, [but] preferably on stipulation or at least acquiescence of the parties.”

5 4 Witkin, Cal. Proc. 5th Plead § 344 (2008) (emphasis added); see also Dkts. 26-2 6 through 26-5, Exs. A-C (state court orders consolidating actions “on the court’s own 7 motion”).⁶

8 In the face of that authority, plaintiffs’ citation to Sutter Health Uninsured Pricing 9 Cases, 171 Cal. App. 4th 495, 514 (2009), is unpersuasive. While Sutter does advise 10 that “[a]bsent a stipulation to consolidate, consolidation requires a noticed and written 11 motion to consolidate,” id. (emphasis omitted), Sutter neither addressed sua sponte 12 consolidation nor analogous facts. On appeal, the Sutter plaintiff complained that the trial 13 court judge failed to exercise appropriate discretion because the judge failed to treat his 14 motion to intervene as a motion to consolidate. Id. With the above-quoted statement, the 15 appellate court rejected that argument and held that the “trial court properly treated the 16 Motion to Intervene as a motion to intervene.” Id. Effectively, Sutter stands for the 17 uncontroversial proposition that a motion to intervene is not a substitute for a stipulation 18 or motion to consolidate. That says nothing about whether a court has the power to sua 19 sponte consolidate actions.⁷

20 Plaintiffs next argue that removal jurisdiction can only be created by a plaintiff’s 21 voluntary act. That argument, conflating several disparate rules, fails.

22 First, plaintiffs cite a series of cases that stand for the proposition that in CAFA

24 _____
25 ⁶ Plaintiffs argue that these orders are distinguishable because they are case 26 management orders and present non-analogous facts. As to the former, plaintiffs provide 27 no reason to conclude that a California judge’s authority to sua sponte consolidate 28 actions depends on the form (or title) of the order. As to the latter, plaintiffs do not show why the purported factual differences render the sua sponte consolidation orders invalid.

⁷ Plaintiffs citation to Cal. R. Ct. 3.350 fails for a similar reason. While that rule addresses the form and effect of a motion to consolidate, it does not address whether a motion is the exclusive method of consolidation.

1 “mass actions,” the proposal to try claims jointly must come from the plaintiffs, not from 2 the defendants. “In addition to requiring that a ‘mass action’ include the claims of at least 3 one hundred plaintiffs ‘proposed to be tried jointly,’ § 1332(d)(11) specifically provides 4 that ‘the term ‘mass action’ shall not include any civil action in which ... the claims are 5 joined upon motion of a defendant.” Tanoh v. Dow Chem. Co., 561 F.3d 945, 953 (9th 6 Cir. 2009) (emphasis in original) (quoting 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(11)(B)(ii)(II)). That rule 7 stemmed from a concern that defendants might try to consolidate several smaller actions 8 consisting of less than 100 plaintiffs, into a removable “mass action.” Id. That is not a 9 concern here because both the Greenwald putative class and the In re Ripple putative 10 class easily exceed CAFA’s one hundred plaintiff threshold.

11 More fundamentally, the “mass action” removal limitations, see 28 U.S.C. § 12 1332(d)(11), do not apply here because plaintiffs “seek to represent interests of parties 13 not before the court.” See Tanoh, 561 F.3d at 952-53. That is, plaintiffs bring a class 14 action, which the relevant “mass action” statute expressly excludes from its purview. See 15 id. at 952; 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(11)(B)(i); 28 U.S.C. § 1711(2) (defining class action).
 16 Thus, the “mass action” removal limitations that plaintiffs rely on—including the limitation 17 that an action will not be removable if “the claims are joined upon motion of a defendant,” 18 see 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(11)(B)(i)(II)—are not applicable here.

19 Second, plaintiffs cite the so-called “voluntary-involuntary” rule. The Ninth Circuit 20 has explained that that rule, however, “applies to the diversity requirement under 28 21 U.S.C. § 1332” and finds its origin in a line of Supreme Court cases holding that an 22 originally nonremovable complaint “cannot be converted into a removable one by 23 evidence of the defendant or by an order of the court upon any issued tried upon the 24 merits[.]” Self v. Gen. Motors Corp., 588 F.2d 655, 658-60 (9th Cir. 1978) (emphasis 25 added) (instructing district court to remand where state court had rendered judgment 26 against a non-diverse defendant and remaining diverse defendant removed the action 27 based on diversity); Thompson v. Target Corp., No. EDCV1600839JGBMRWX, 2016 WL 28 4119937, at *8 (C.D. Cal. Aug. 2, 2016) (“The rule is typically applied in a situation where

1 a properly joined non-diverse defendant is dismissed for reasons beyond the control of 2 the plaintiff.”). Thus, on its face that rule does not apply here because removal-3 jurisdiction in this case was not the product of a decision on the merits or evidence 4 presented by defendants. Nor does that rule clearly apply to CAFA-based removal 5 which, as this court has discussed at length, is distinct from removal based on § 1332.
6 See generally Coffey, 333 F. Supp. 3d at 958-965.⁸

7 Accordingly, the court finds that Judge DuBois had the authority to and in fact did 8 consolidate Greenwald and In re Ripple.

9 b. Judge DuBois Consolidated the Actions “For All Purposes”

10 Plaintiff next argues that even if Judge DuBois did consolidate the actions, they 11 were only consolidated for purposes of trial and, according to plaintiffs, the pleadings 12 therefore remained separate.

13 The California Supreme Court has explained:

14 Under the statute and the case law, there are [] two types of 15 consolidation: a consolidation for purposes of trial only, where 16 the two actions remain otherwise separate; and a complete 17 consolidation or consolidation for all purposes, where the two actions are merged into a single proceeding under one case number and result in only one verdict or set of findings and one judgment.

18 Hamilton v. Asbestos Corp., 22 Cal. 4th 1127, 1147, 998 P.2d 403 (2000).

19 The court finds that the Second Consolidation Order consolidated Greenwald and 20 In re Ripple for all purposes. In Hamilton, the California Supreme Court considered 21 whether an ambiguous order consolidated actions for trial or for all purposes. The 22 California Supreme Court held that “The court's order granting the motion was not limited 23 to a consolidation for trial: rather the court declared that ‘It Is Ordered that Action[s] Nos.

26 ⁸ The only decision plaintiffs cite applying the voluntary-involuntary rule to CAFA removal 27 was vacated and remanded by the Ninth Circuit. Goodman v. Wells Fargo Bank, N.A., 28 No. CV 14-3171-JFW (RZX), 2014 WL 12626334, at *2 (C.D. Cal. July 1, 2014) vacated and remanded 602 F. App'x 681 (9th Cir. 2015). Nor did the district court’s decision apply the voluntary-involuntary rule to a situation like the one here. See Goodman, 2014 WL 12626334 (holding change of law did not satisfy voluntary requirement).

1 955576 and 975884 are consolidated as Action No. 955576. . . . This is the language of 2 complete consolidation.” Hamilton, 22 Cal. 4th at 1148 (emphasis in original); see also 3 Sanchez v. Superior Court, 203 Cal. App. 3d 1391, 1396 (1988) (pointing to two actions 4 “retain[ing] [] separate numbers” as evidence that consolidation was not complete.); City 5 of Oakland v. Abend, No. C 07 2142 EMC, 2007 WL 2023506, at *4 (N.D. Cal. July 12, 6 2007) (“proceed[ing] under only one case number” evidenced complete consolidation).
 7 The same is true here. The Second Consolidation order “was not limited to a 8 consolidation for trial” and consolidated Greenwald under the same case number as In re 9 Ripple. See Second Consol. Order ¶ 2 (“18CIV03461 is ordered CONSOLIDATED as 10 part of Master File No. 18CIV02845.”).

11 In addition, the Second Consolidation order consolidates Greenwald “pursuant to” 12 the First Consolidation Order. Id. ¶ 2. It is undisputed that the latter order consolidated 13 Zakinov and Oconer “for all purposes.” First Consol. Order ¶ 6. That at least suggests 14 that the consolidation of Greenwald was also for all purposes.

15 4. The Second Consolidation Order Rendered the Action Removable

16 a. The Effect of Judge DuBois Consolidating Greenwald and In re
 17 Ripple for All Purposes

18 The parties next dispute the effect of the Second Consolidation Order. Plaintiffs 19 argue that, the First and Second Consolidation Orders, read together, extinguish the 20 Greenwald complaint because Judge DuBois’ “inadvertent” consolidation renders the 21 Greenwald complaint “superseded[ed]” by the Consolidated Complaint.

22 As relevant here, the First Consolidated Order states: The Oconer and Zakinov 23 “[p]laintiffs shall either designate a complaint as operative or file a Consolidated 24 Complaint . . . If filed, the Consolidated Complaint shall be the operative complaint and 25 shall supersede all complaints filed in any of the actions consolidated herein.” First 26 Consol. Order ¶ 8. Plaintiffs’ argument ignores the “herein,” which modifies the 27 underlined clause. “Herein” means “here within, in here; in this place; in this passage, 28 book, etc.” The Oxford English Dictionary, <http://www.oed.com/view/Entry/86180> (last

1 visited February 25, 2019); Merriam-Webster, https://www.merriam-webster.com/ 2 dictionary/herein (last visited February 25, 2019) (“herein” defined as “in this”). Thus, 3 “herein” refers to the actions listed in and consolidated by the First Consolidated Order—4 i.e., the Oconer and Zakinov actions. That makes sense, as the order exclusively 5 discusses those two actions in the paragraphs directly preceding (and in the same 6 section as) paragraph eight of the First Consolidation Order. First Consol. Order ¶¶ 6-7 7 (listing Zakinov and Oconer for consolidation). It does not apply, as plaintiffs argue, to all 8 actions consolidated in the future. Cf. Merriam-Webster, https://www.merriam- 9 webster.com/dictionary/henceforth (last visited February 25, 2019) (“henceforth” means 10 “from this point on”).

11 Plaintiffs also point to paragraphs 14 and 15 of the First Consolidation Order, 12 which, according to plaintiffs, evidence that the order applies to all future related and 13 consolidated cases. While those two paragraphs set out procedures for bringing related 14 cases to the San Mateo County Superior Court’s attention, they do not suggest that 15 future complaints consolidated with In re Ripple would be extinguished. See Second 16 Consol. Order ¶¶ 15.

17 More practically, plaintiffs fail to offer a coherent explanation regarding the effect 18 of, as plaintiffs argue, Judge DuBois disappearing the Greenwald complaint. Did the 19 order dismiss Greenwald’s federal causes of action with or without prejudice? Is 20 Greenwald still a plaintiff? If not, on what basis did he file a separate motion to remand?⁹

21 The more sensible result accords with the plain language of the order, as 22 discussed above, and Ninth Circuit and California law. “Under California law, when two 23 actions are consolidated ‘for all purposes,’ ‘the two actions are merged into a single 24 proceeding under one case number and result in only one verdict or set of findings and 25

26
 27 ⁹ Indeed, the court finds it ironic that in the same breath that plaintiffs argue Judge 28 DuBois committed a grave error by sua sponte consolidating the two actions, plaintiffs also contend that Judge DuBois must have sua sponte dismissed a plaintiff and multiple claims from the action entirely.

1 one judgment.” Bridewell-Sledge v. Blue Cross of California, 798 F.3d 923, 930 (9th Cir.
2 2015) (quoting Hamilton). That rule applies regardless of whether a consolidated 3 complaint has been filed. Id. at 929-31; see also People ex rel. Camil v. Buena Vista 4 Cinema, 57 Cal. App. 3d 497, 500 (Ct. App. 1976) (“Where actions are consolidated [] 5 the allegations of the complaints can be treated as one pleading.”).

6 The Ninth Circuit has held that that rule continues to apply after removal pursuant 7 to CAFA. See Bridewell, 798 F.3d at 926-930. In Bridewell, the state court consolidated 8 two actions, the Crowder and Bridewell-Sledge actions, “for all purposes.” Bridewell, 798 9 F.3d at 924-25. After plaintiffs in both actions filed amended complaints that named a 10 non-California citizen, “[d]efendants filed two separate notices of removal—one for the 11 Bridewell–Sledge complaint and one for the Crowder complaint.” See id. at 926. After 12 consolidating the actions in federal court, the district court issued an order to show cause 13 as to why the Bridewell-Sledge action should not be remanded under CAFA’s local 14 controversy exception. Id. For that exception to apply, “[p]laintiffs were required to show 15 that during the 3–year period preceding the filing of that class action, no other class 16 action has been filed asserting the same or similar factual allegations against any of the 17 defendants on behalf of the same or other persons.” Id. at 927 (internal quotation marks 18 omitted). Plaintiffs provided evidence “that the Bridewell–Sledge complaint had been 19 filed a few minutes prior to the Crowder complaint.” Id. Thus, “treating the two actions 20 separately,” the district court remanded the Bridewell-Sledge action—as the first-filed 21 action, it satisfied CAFA’s local controversy exception—and refused to remand 22 Crowder—as the second-filed action, the exception did not apply. Id.

23 The Ninth Circuit reversed, holding that the consolidated action was not removable 24 because “when examining whether [a court] ha[s] federal jurisdiction over [two 25 consolidated actions] . . . under CAFA, it is necessary to view [the actions] . . . as a 26 single consolidated class action that was united originally, rather than as two separate 27 class actions filed at different times.” Id. at 930. In Bridewell, that resulted in remand 28 because the consolidated action, made up of two complaints but viewed as “united

1 originally,” met all of CAFA’s local controversy requirements because no other similar 2 class action had been filed in state court. Id.

3 The Bridewell-rule mandates that this court view the Greenwald complaint and the 4 Consolidated Complaint as merged for the purposes of determining jurisdiction under 5 CAFA. See also City of Oakland, 2007 WL 2023506, at *3–4 (finding that the state court 6 consolidated the actions for all purposes and that though one of the operative complaints 7 did not “on [its] face” qualify for removal, the other operative complaint provided subject-8 matter jurisdiction for the consolidated action) cited with approval by Bridewell, 798 F.3d 9 at 929; Complete Consolidation Resulting in Single Action., 4 Witkin, Cal. Proc. 5th Plead 10 § 346 (2008) (“the actions are viewed as if the . . . plaintiffs had filed a single complaint).

11 b. Ripple III Was Removable Under CAFA and Coffey.

12 The parties do not dispute that if this court follows its ruling in Coffey, Ripple III 13 satisfies CAFA’s three jurisdictional requirements. The court agrees and sees no reason 14 to depart from its prior decision in Coffey. Coffey, 333 F. Supp. 3d at 966. In addition, 15 the court finds that Ripple III satisfies CAFA’s jurisdictional requirements. Greenwald 16 Compl. ¶¶ 14-17, 87 (alleging minimal diversity); Consol. Compl. ¶ 28 & ¶ E (alleging 17 amount in controversy over $5 million for Cal. Corp. Code claims); Consol. Compl. ¶¶ 80-18 81 (alleging over 100 class members); Greenwald Compl. ¶¶ 87, 89 (same).

19 Though plaintiffs do not dispute that Ripple III is removable under the Coffey 20 analysis, plaintiffs argue that the actions should nevertheless be remanded based on two 21 CAFA exceptions: (1) the local controversy exception and (2) the securities-related 22 exception. Those arguments fail.

23 To satisfy the local controversy exception, plaintiffs must show, inter alia, that 24 greater than two-thirds of the proposed class members are citizens of California. 28 25 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(4)(A)(i)-(ii). Ripple III does not satisfy that requirement because 26 Greenwald’s putative class does not include any geographic limitation and plaintiffs have 27 provided no basis to conclude that two-thirds of all XRP purchasers are California 28 citizens.

1 Plaintiffs latter argument also fails. CAFA’s removal provision, § 1453, provides 2 three exceptions to removal. See 28 U.S.C. § 1453(d). Plaintiffs invoke subsection 3 (d)(3), which excepts from removal class actions that solely involve a claim that “relates 4 to the rights, duties, . . . and obligations relating to or created by or pursuant to any 5 security[.]” That exception, however, applies to suits asserting that the promises made in 6 securities have not been honored but does not apply to suits asserting fraud or other 7 misconduct in the sale of securities. Estate of Pew v. Cardarelli, 527 F.3d 25, 31–33 (2d 8 Cir. 2008) (discussing the exception at length); Eminence Inv’rs, L.L.P. v. Bank of New 9 York Mellon, 782 F.3d 504, 508 (9th Cir. 2015) (discussing Cardaelli with approval; 10 explaining Cardarelli’s “key distinction was whether the plaintiffs were seeking to enforce 11 their rights as holders of the certificates or purchasers of the certificates . . .”).

12 Here, Ripple III alleges misconduct regarding defendants’ “unregistered sale of 13 XRP.” Consol. Compl. ¶ 1 (emphasis added); see also, e.g., id. ¶ 2 (“Under California 14 law, offers and sales of securities must be qualified with the Commissioner of 15 Corporations”); Greenwald Compl. ¶¶ 1, 94-102 (defendants violated the federal 16 Securities Act by selling unregistered securities). Indeed, the Ripple III complaints seek 17 to represent a class of all purchasers of XRP, not all holders of XRP. Consol. Compl.
 18 ¶ 80; Greenwald Compl. ¶ 87. Thus, the § 1453(d)(3) exception does not apply.

19 CONCLUSION

20 In short, the state court consolidated Greenwald and In re Ripple for all purposes.
 21 In doing so it rendered both complaints operative and, viewing those complaints together, 22 the consolidated action satisfies CAFA’s removal requirements. Accordingly, plaintiffs’
 23 motions to remand are DENIED.¹⁰

24 In addition, the court ORDERS as follows:

- 25 (1) Within 14 days of this order, the parties SHALL conduct a meet and 26

27 _____
 28 ¹⁰ Because the court denies plaintiffs’ motions to remand, the court also denies the In re Ripple plaintiffs’ request for attorneys’ fees.

- (2) Within 30 days of this order, plaintiffs SHALL file an amended consolidated complaint; and
 - (3) If defendants intend to move to dismiss that amended consolidated complaint, the parties SHALL file a stipulated briefing schedule for that motion within 30 days of this order.
