Epic Games, Inc. v		Apple Inc. Doc. 437 Case 4:20-cv-05640-YGR Document 437 Filed 04/12/21 Page 1 of 4
	1
	2	UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
3		NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
	4
United States District Court Northern District of California	5	Epic Games, Inc.,	Case No. 4:20-cv-05640-YGR
	6	Plaintiff,	ORDER DENYING DEFENDANT APPLE
	7	VS.	INC.'S MOTION FOR PRETRIAL SANCTIONS
	8	APPLE INC.,	Dkt. No. 419
	9	Defendant.
	10	Apple Inc.,
	11	Counterclaimant,
	12	v.
	13	Epic Games, Inc.,
	14	Counter-Defendant.
	15	Before the Court is defendant and counterclaimant Apple Inc.'s motion for pretrial
	16	sanctions against plaintiff and counter-defendant Epic Games, Inc. (Dkt. No. 419.) Epic Games
	17	filed an opposition to the motion on an expedited schedule. (Dkt. No. 431.) ¹ Having considered
	18	the parties' briefing and the record in this matter, Apple's motion for pretrial sanctions is DENIED .
	19	The Court expedites the issuance of this Order due to the impending bench trial
	20	commencing May 3, 2021, and provides only a brief summary of the parties' positions. Thus:
	21	Apple avers that under Federal Rules of Civil Procedure 26 and 37, the Court should
	22	exclude three third-party witnesses who will be testifying for Epic Games-namely, Vivek
	23	Sharma of Facebook Inc., Lori Wright of Microsoft Corporation, and Benjamin Simon of Yoga
	24	Buddhi Co. ² Specifically, Apple asserts that Epic Games' Rule 26(a) disclosures were deficient
	25
	26	 ¹ The Court granted the parties' stipulated expedited schedule, that permitted no reply brief from Apple, but modified the proposed order to indicate that the motion would be decided on the papers unless oral argument was necessary. (See Dkt. No. 418.) Having reviewed the parties' briefing, the Court determines that oral argument is not necessary for the resolution of this motion. ² As discussed by Apple in its motion, a fourth individual, Shelley Gould of Neuro-Fin
	27
	28

Case 4:20-cv-05640-YGR Document 437 Filed 04/12/21 Page 2 of 4

United States District Court

1

2

3

4

5

6

7

8

9

because Epic Games did not disclose these individual witnesses, instead listing the general employing entities (e.g. Facebook, Microsoft, and Yoga Buddhi). Apple acknowledges the existence of a related agreement amongst the parties, but contends that the agreement related "only to witnesses who have 'not already been deposed,' not witnesses who were not previously disclosed." (Dkt. No. 419 at 12 (emphasis in original).) Apple further highlights that Epic Games' failure to properly disclose the three individual witnesses under Rule 26 is not harmless under the relevant authority. Finally, Apple also asserts in this motion and in an earlier motion before Magistrate Judge Thomas Hixson that Epic Games has been coordinating with these thirdparty witnesses in an effort to obstruct Apple from obtaining additional documents for these specific identified individuals.

Epic Games refutes Apple's arguments. Epic Games categorically rejects that it has been coordinating with the third-party witnesses above to prevent Apple from obtaining additional documents. Moreover, Epic Games asserts that it promptly disclosed the above individuals when it first learned of and confirmed their identifies, that its disclosures were sufficient under Rule 26, and that the parties' agreement allowed such general disclosure for a entities and organizations. Epic Games further highlights that the appropriate sanction would be not to exclude the witnesses, but to depose these individuals-which Apple is already scheduled to do. Finally, Epic Games 17 18 emphasizes that, should the Court find a Rule 26 violation, such a violation was harmless where 19 the parties' had an agreement in place, and where Apple did not move with more urgency when it 20 first learned of these three individuals who would be testifying on behalf of their employing entities. Epic Games' otherwise characterizes Apple's attempt to prevent these individuals from testifying is a ploy to exclude what it contends is highly relevant evidence. 22

Having reviewed the record, and the parties' briefing, the Court concludes that there has been no violation of the Rule 26 disclosure requirements. Epic Games promptly disclosed the individual identities of Mr. Sharma, Ms. Wright, and Mr. Simon when Epic Games learned that

26

27

28

25

21

23

24

Inc. d/b/a SmartStops has agreed to comply with Apple's request to produce additional documents in advance of Gould's deposition.

Case 4:20-cv-05640-YGR Document 437 Filed 04/12/21 Page 3 of 4

United States District Court Northern District of California 1

2

3

4

5

6

7

8

9

10

11

12

13

14

15

16

17

18

19

20

21

22

23

these three individuals were confirmed to be appearing at the bench trial in this action. The Court cannot determine how there could be a Rule 26 violation in this instance when Epic Games promptly disclosed the identities of these third-party individual witnesses to Apple.³ Moreover, as Epic Games correctly notes, a sanction imposed under Rule 37 for Rule 26 violations are remedied by providing the party an opportunity for a deposition, which Apple is already scheduled to undertake for these witnesses. (See Dkt. No. 431 at 26 (citing Jang Sool Kwon v. Singapore Airlines, No. C02–2590 BZ, 2003 WL 25686535, at *1 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 7, 2003) (denying motion in limine for Rule 37 sanctions seeking to preclude testimony of witnesses as long as plaintiff makes witnesses available for deposition); Ortiz v. CVS Caremark Corp., No. C-12-05859-EDL, 2013 WL 6236743, at *8 n.1 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 2, 2013) (holding Rule 37 sanctions not appropriate because "any failure to disclose was harmless because Plaintiffs were able to depose nine of the declarants, and these declarations alone support Defendants' arguments"); Maionchi v. Union Pac. Corp., No. C 03-0647 JF PVT, 2007 WL 2022027, at *1 (N.D. Cal. July 9, 2007) (holding that defendants' delay in disclosing expert and report did not warrant Rule 37 sanctions because it did not cause harm to plaintiffs because "[p]laintiffs may still depose" the witness); Bookhamer v. Sunbeam Prod. Inc., No. C 09-06027 ECM, 2012 WL 6000230, at *3 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 30, 2012) (finding that even though failure to disclose was not justified and did cause harm, the harm could be remedied by allowing defendants to depose the seven non-retained experts if they chose to do so)).) Thus, the Court finds no violation of Rule 26 by Epic Games.

All of the above said, however, the Court reiterates the following to the parties as well as the above third-party witnesses: the Court has repeatedly instructed that trial is not an opportunity for surprises. Instead, it is an opportunity for the Court to measuredly consider and weigh the relevant evidence to reach a final determination. This dispute presents no exception. To the

24

25

The Court further notes that while the parties' understanding of the agreement is muddled, Epic Games was otherwise substantially justified in relying on the agreement and promptly providing the individual names of the third-party witnesses when it learned of and confirmed their appearances. See MediaTek Inc. v. Freescale Semiconductor, Inc., No. 11-cv 5341-YGR, 2014 WL 2854773, at *5 n.2 (N.D. Cal. June 20, 2014) (explaining that exclusion is not warranted "when a failure to disclose is substantially justified").

3

extent that examination by the Court or the parties indicates that the above testifying witnesses (Mr. Sharma, Ms. Wright, and Mr. Simon⁴) have failed to make a sufficient production of relevant documents to both parties, the Court will weigh such a failure against the credibility of the testifying witness. In other words, the failure to produce relevant documents, including documents relevant to the individual testifying witness, to both parties (here, to Apple) will be factored into the individual witness' credibility, and, if necessary, may warrant the striking of testimony. To the extent that the third-party witnesses are concerned with an adverse credibility determination at the bench trial, they should ensure that they adequately and timely⁵ produce such documents in advance of their depositions.

Accordingly, the motion for pretrial sanctions is DENIED.

This Order terminates Docket Number 419.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Dated: April 12, 2021

VONNE GONZALEZ ROGERŠ

UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE

- ⁴ The Court provides a specific comment with regard to Mr. Simon and Yoga Buddhi 21 based on the record and the parties' briefing. It is hard for the Court to determine what, if any, documents are left for Mr. Simon of Yoga Buddhi to produce where Yoga Buddhi has previously 22 already produced documents to Apple in this litigation. Unlike either Microsoft or Facebook, Yoga Buddhi is a company of five people, and, per Epic Games' representations to the Court, 23 every single one of the documents already produced either involves Mr. Simon or relates to a part of an operation that Mr. Simon controls. (See also Dkt. No. 436 (letter brief from Yoga Buddhi 24 Co.).) Apple could have already anticipated and then requested relevant documents for Mr. Simon given the small size of Yoga Buddhi, and it is unclear what further documents Apple needs at this 25 point that it could not have previously and timely requested. This contrasts to Mr. Sharma and Ms. Wright, where Facebook's and Microsoft's prior productions to Apple may not have produced 26 documents, if any, relevant to these specific individuals. The Court makes no express determination at this juncture as to the appropriateness of the additional document requests. 27
- 28

1

2

3

4

5

6

7

8

9

10

11

12

13

14

15

16

17

18

19

20

4

⁵ At least three (3) days prior to the date of the deposition.