CLASS ACTION

20 vs.

21 APPLE, INC., a California corporation,

22 Defendant.

1 The parties jointly submit this Case Management Statement.

2 I. DESCRIPTION OF THE CASES

3 The Apple iPod iTunes Anti-Trust Litigation and Somers v. Apple, Inc., are proposed 4 antitrust class actions brought against Apple, Inc. (“Apple” or “Defendant”) alleging tying and 5 monopoly claims involving iTunes files and iPods. Plaintiffs Melanie Tucker, Somtai
6 Charoensak, and Mariana Rosen (collectively “Direct Plaintiffs”) filed their consolidated
7 complaint on April 17, 2007 on behalf of themselves and all other similarly situated direct
8 purchasers of iPods. Plaintiff Stacie Somers filed her complaint on December 31, 2007 on behalf
9 of herself and all other similarly situated indirect purchasers of iPods and iTunes files
10 (collectively “Indirect Plaintiffs”).

11 Both Direct and Indirect Plaintiffs allege that Apple violates Sections 1 and 2 of the 12 Sherman Act, the Consumer Legal Remedies Act, and engages in unlawful common law
13 monopolization by tying its iPod portable digital media player to online digital music and video 14 files sold through its iTunes Store (“iTunes”). Direct and Indirect Plaintiffs also allege Apple has 15 unlawfully monopolized or attempted to monopolize the markets for the online legal sales of 16 digital music and video files and for portable digital media players.

17 Apple denies all material allegations.

18 II. STATUS OF THE CASES

19 On May 12, 2008, the Court held a Case Management Conference with all parties and 20 ordered discovery coordinated between the Direct and Indirect Purchaser cases. The Court set
21 hearing dates for motions for class certification in both cases, and a further Case Management
22 Conference for August 25, 2008, based on tentative briefing schedule in which Apple's opposition
23 to the motion for class certification was due before that date. The purpose of the Conference was 24 to consider whether Plaintiffs will need additional discovery prior to filing their reply brief and 25 whether a technology tutorial would be appropriate prior to the class certification hearings.
26 Dkt. 158. Following that conference, the Court approved stipulated briefing and hearing
27 schedules for the Direct and Indirect Plaintiffs’ motions for class certification. Dkt. 161.

1 On July 21, 2008, the parties held their first mediation session with JAMS mediators the 2 Honorable Daniel Weinstein (Ret.) and Cathy Yanni, Esq. On the same date, the Direct 3 Plaintiffs filed their Motion for Class Certification and Appointment of Class Counsel. On 4 August 20, 2008, the Court approved the parties' stipulation to extend the briefing and hearing
5 schedules for that motion in light of the ongoing mediation. Dkt. 167. Under the new schedule,
6 Apple's opposition papers are due October 17, 2008, and Direct Plaintiffs' reply is due November
7 17, 2008, with a hearing on December 15, 2008. Indirect Plaintiffs' motion for class certification
8 is due December 1, 2008; Apple's opposition thereto is due February 12, 2009; and Indirect
9 Plaintiffs' reply brief due March 30, 2009, with the hearing on April 20, 2009.

10 The Interim Case Management Conference, originally set for August 25, 2008, was 11 continued by stipulation and order to October 6, 2008. Dkt. 167-168. The parties now file this 12 Joint Statement to report on three matters.

13 1. Status of Mediation Efforts

14 As noted, on July 21, 2008, the parties began mediation with JAMS mediators Honorable
15 Daniel Weinstein (Ret.) and Cathy Yanni, Esq. Discussions have continued since that date but no 16 resolution has been found to date.

17 2. Discovery re Class Certification Motion

18 A. Direct Plaintiffs' Position

19 Direct Plaintiffs note that additional discovery may be need prior to the class certification 20 hearing, depending on the arguments made and evidence presented by Apple in its opposition to 21 class certification. The Court expressly contemplated Direct Plaintiffs' need for such discovery 22 when it originally ordered discovery bifurcated.

23 While Direct Plaintiffs believe that class certification issues are narrow and do not 24 necessarily require the presentation of further evidence, Plaintiffs will be severely disadvantaged
25 if Apple attempts to introduce evidence in its opposition not previously produced to Direct 26 Plaintiffs. Apple pressed numerous times, over Direct Plaintiffs' objections, for the discovery 27 limitations which bind the parties on this motion. In particular, in addition to requesting that 28 discovery be bifurcated, Apple insisted that its data production be limited to exemplar data, on the

1 theory that exemplar data only is needed for class certification purposes. Therefore, Apple should 2 be limited in its presentation of new evidence at class certification. To any extent Apple attempts
3 to use previously un-produced evidence, Direct Plaintiffs may need additional discovery or 4 additional time to respond to Apple's arguments and evidence.

5 B. Indirect Plaintiffs' Position

6 The Indirect Plaintiffs were not official participants in the mediation discussion that took 7 place at JAMS San Francisco in July, but they were invited to the table and did attend the 8 mediation. As such, the Indirect Plaintiffs, like the Direct Plaintiffs, were asked to delay active 9 litigation of their case pending the mediation at JAMS. In a good faith attempt to resolve this 10 matter early on, Indirect Plaintiffs agreed to Defendant's request. Because Indirect Plaintiffs 11 understand that mediation talks are currently stalled, Indirect Plaintiffs have begun to actively 12 litigate the matter towards class certification. However, the Indirect Plaintiffs will need 13 additional discovery prior to filing their motion for class certification.

14 C. Apple's Position

15 The foregoing discussion by plaintiffs is unnecessary and premature. Apple's opposition 16 to the Direct Plaintiffs' class certification motion is due on October 17, 2008. If, upon review of 17 that opposition, plaintiffs believe that they need additional discovery or time to prepare their 18 reply, Apple has already agreed to meet and confer promptly and, if agreement cannot be reached,
19 any disagreement may be presented to the Court at that point. Nothing further is needed at this 20 point, and plaintiffs are not requesting anything further.

21 3. Technology Tutorial

22 At the May 12, 2008 Case Management Conference, the Court discussed the possibility of 23 a technology tutorial. In its May 14, 2008 Case Management Order, the Court asked the parties
24 to address at this Interim Case Management Conference whether a technology tutorial would be 25 appropriate before the hearing on class certification.

26 A. Direct and Indirect Plaintiffs' position: Direct and Indirect Plaintiffs do not 27 believe that a technology tutorial is necessary or would be helpful to the Court for purposes of 28 class certification. Apple patronizingly insists that Plaintiffs (and their expert) do not "understand

1 how the technology works” and that somehow Plaintiffs’ alleged lack of knowledge is 2 determinative on class certification. To say the least, Plaintiffs strongly disagree with Apple’s
3 mischaracterization. It is clear from the depositions taken by Apple that what Apple means when 4 it argues that Plaintiffs’ are technologically deficient is that Plaintiffs disagree with Apple over 5 the time and complexity involved in class members “ripping and burning” a song from iTunes to 6 a CD and on whether the technology involved is anticompetitive. Such a debate is not a 7 technologically complicated issue requiring a tutorial by Apple on class certification issues, rather 8 a merits debate on whether Apple’s conduct is ultimately deemed to be anticompetitive. The 9 issues on class certification are very straightforward and do not turn on the merits of Plaintiffs’
10 claim that the technology involved is anticompetitive. Allowing Apple to stage a technology 11 tutorial would raise issues beyond those properly heard at the class certification stage and would 12 only serve to further delay the Court’s ruling on Direct Plaintiffs’ Motion for Class Certification.

13 B. Apple’s position: Apple continues to believe that this case is absolutely without 14 legal or factual support, and that plaintiffs simply do not understand how the technology works --
15 all of which was vividly confirmed by the deposition of plaintiffs’ economist, Roger Noll, taken 16 last Friday. It was for that reason that Apple raised the possibility of a technology tutorial at the 17 previous status conference. At a minimum, as part of the hearing on the class certification
18 motion, Apple believes a demonstration of the products at issue will be useful to the Court. It 19 will be directly relevant to issues raised by plaintiffs’ class certification motion in which they 20 continue to allege – inaccurately and contrary to their own testimony and their experts’ testimony
21 – that music from Apple’s online digital store cannot be played on iPod competitors. For this 22 purpose, we request that the Court schedule the hearing on the class certification motion
23 separately from the Court’s regular motion calendar, and set aside additional time for the hearing.
