Case No. 5:07-CV-01389-RS

PLAINTIFFS' RESPONSE TO FINNEGAN'S MOTION TO WITHDRAW AS COUNSEL FOR WINSTON WILLIAMS

Date: January 23, 2008
 Time: 9:30 A.M.
 Judge: Honorable Richard Seeborg

1 I. INTRODUCTION

2 Plaintiffs do not, as a general proposition, oppose Finnegan, Henderson, Farabow, Garrett 3 & Dunner’s Motion to Withdraw as Counsel for Defendant Winston Williams, if the withdrawal 4 is subject to conditions limiting prejudice to Plaintiffs. If conditions are not imposed, Plaintiffs 5 oppose the request.

6 Courts will condition withdrawal of counsel in order to reduce prejudice to the opposing 7 party. Here, conditions are particularly appropriate. In light of Finnegan’s inability to 8 communicate with Williams, he likely is unaware of the present motion. As such, he may attempt 9 to re-establish communication with Finnegan – the firm he believes to be representing him.
10 Under the circumstances, and in order to avoid prejudice to Plaintiffs, any withdrawal must be 11 subject to 1) Finnegan’s acceptance of service of papers in this matter pursuant to Local Rule 11-12 5, 2) Finnegan’s filing of an affidavit detailing any further attempts to contact Williams and a list 13 of addresses at which Williams has been known to live or otherwise occupy, 3) Finnegan’s 14 notification to the Court and Plaintiffs immediately upon contact with Williams, 4) the other 15 Defendants’ compliance with discovery obligations, 5) an adverse inference being drawn against 16 Defendants’ if they use Williams’ unavailability as a basis to avoid responding to discovery, 17 6) Defendants’ agreement not to seek further delays in this case based on Williams’ 18 disappearance, and 7) Defendants’ agreement not to seek to avoid liability by claiming only 19 Williams is responsible.

20 Absent these conditions, the Court and Plaintiffs will be unfairly prejudiced. Defendants 21 will continue to use Williams as an excuse to refuse to provide substantive responses to discovery 22 and will likely seek to delay this matter pending Williams’ inevitable return. Further, Plaintiffs 23 will be prejudiced by the delay these issues will bring to their ability to resolve a case that has 24 been pending for over two years.

25 II. BACKGROUND

26 In May 2007, the Court authorized expedited jurisdictional discovery related to a Motion 27 to Dismiss filed by Winston Williams and Pacific Northwest Software (“PNS”). Doc. No. 74. As 28 part of that discovery, Plaintiffs served four interrogatories on each defendant related to their

1 contacts with California. Decl. of Theresa Sutton in Supp. of Resp. to Mot. to Withdraw (“Sutton
2 Decl.”), Ex. A. Plaintiffs took limited depositions of each defendant for approximately four hours
3 each. Dissatisfied with PNS’ and Williams’ responses to the interrogatories, on October 17, 4 2007, Plaintiffs moved to compel further responses to Interrogatory Nos. 3 and 4. Doc. No. 212.

5 On November 7, 2007, Plaintiffs served a set of interrogatories on all Defendants. Sutton 6 Decl., Ex. B. This set of interrogatories seeks identification of the user accounts and passwords 7 used by the defendants to access the Facebook website, as well as the number of emails sent to 8 invite Facebook users to join ConnectU. On December 5, 2007, a month after Williams 9 purportedly disappeared, Finnegan requested a 30-day extension of time for all defendants to 10 respond to this set of interrogatories. Id., Ex. C. Finnegan’s request did not explain that it was 11 not able to communicate with Williams, nor did Finnegan cite the failure of communication as a 12 basis for the extension. Plaintiffs offered to condition the month-long extension on Defendants’ 13 promise to provide full and complete responses. Id., Ex. D. Finnegan did not respond to this 14 offer. Instead, on December 10, 2007, 35 days after Williams’ alleged disappearance, Finnegan 15 served on behalf of all Defendants, including Williams, responses to this set of interrogatories.¹ 16 Id., Ex. E. Williams’ responses make no reference to his unavailability, but instead indicate that 17 the interrogatories cannot be answered because they purportedly did not understand the 18 definitions in the requests. Id.

19 On November 21, 2007, Plaintiffs served a set of Requests for Production of Documents 20 on each of Williams and PNS. Id., Ex. F. Their responses were due on December 24, 2007.
21 Finnegan did not, on Williams’ behalf, seek an extension to respond to these requests, despite 22 Finnegan’s apparent concerns about its inability to communicate with Williams. Instead, 23 Williams served a response on December 26, 2007, in which he refuses to produce any responsive 24 documents – not because he is not available, but largely because to do so would be “expensive.”
25 Id., Ex. G.

26 _____
27 ¹ Each defendant served a separate response to these interrogatories. Nothing about Williams’ 28 responses differs from the other defendants’ responses. Williams’ responses make no mention of his unavailability and, in fact, offers to meet and confer regarding his responses. See, e.g., Sutton Decl., Ex. E, 5:1-3.

1 On December 12, 2007, two days after Williams served responses to interrogatories, the 2 Court issued an Order Granting Plaintiffs' Motion to Compel Supplemental Responses to 3 Interrogatories ("Order"). Doc. No. 234. Two days later, Finnegan notified Plaintiffs for the first 4 time of its inability to communicate with Williams. Sutton Decl., Ex. H.

5 Numerous discovery disputes currently exist. The parties met and conferred on 6 December 24, 2007, in an effort to resolve Defendants' objections to Plaintiffs' November 7 7 Interrogatories. The parties were unable to resolve all of the deficiencies in Defendants' 8 responses. At no time during the discussion about Defendants' responses did counsel for 9 Williams indicate that he would not be able to provide further responses for Williams.

10 III. ARGUMENT

11 A. If Finnegan's Withdrawal Can Be Accomplished Without Further Prejudice 12 to Plaintiffs, They Do Not Oppose The Motion

13 While Plaintiffs have serious questions about Williams' current discovery responses by 14 his current counsel, Plaintiffs are not generally opposed to Finnegan's request to withdraw as 15 counsel for Williams, so long as the withdrawal is conditioned so as not to further prejudice 16 Plaintiffs' ability to move this case forward. California v. M & P Invs., No. CIV. 00-2441 17 FCD/JFM, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 81131, *13 (E.D. Cal. Oct. 22, 2007) ("Leave to withdraw 18 may be granted subject to such appropriate conditions as the Court deems fit.").

19 To avoid any prejudice, withdrawal must be conditioned on Finnegan's agreement to 20 accept service of papers in this matter unless or until Williams appears by other counsel, as 21 required by the Local Rules. Civ. L. R. 11-5(b); see also Britesmile, Inc. v. Discus Dental, Inc., 22 No. C02-03220 JSW, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 30871, *1 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 15, 2005); El Hage v.
23 United States Sec. Assocs., No. C06-7828 TEH, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 93633 (N.D. Cal. Dec.
24 10, 2007) (where court imposed conditions on withdrawal, the failure of which to comply would 25 result in denial of the motion). Because Finnegan has been unable to communicate with 26 Williams, he presumably is unaware of the present motion. Williams' lack of knowledge and 27 inability to assent to the withdrawal, however, should not result in prejudice to Plaintiffs' ability 28 to serve all parties when necessary. Civ. L. R. 11-5(b) (notice required "reasonably in advance");

1 Rule 3-700(A)(2) of the Rules of Prof'l Conduct of the State Bar of California (notice required).

2 Finnegan also must be required to provide Williams' contact information to Plaintiffs.
3 See, e.g., California v. M & P Invs., 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 81131, *12 (where local rule required 4 that the attorney to "provide an affidavit stating the current or last known address or addresses of 5 the client"). And, should Finnegan learn of Williams' location at any time while this matter is 6 pending, it must bring his whereabouts to the Court's and Plaintiff's attention immediately.

7 Finnegan's withdrawal also must be conditioned on Defendants' diligent compliance with 8 their discovery obligations. Withdrawal by counsel should not enable Defendants, who are 9 represented by Finnegan, to claim Williams is the only person capable of providing discovery 10 responses and, therefore, they cannot respond adequately. See, e.g., Sutton Decl., Ex. I (PNS' 11 response to Interrogatory Nos. 3 and 4). Based on the evidence collected to date, at least 12 defendants Chang, Gucwa and PNS were as involved in the development of the software used to 13 breach Facebook's security, steal data and spam users as Williams was. Id., Exs. J, K.
14 Defendants also must not seek any further delays in this matter on the ground that Williams is 15 incommunicado.

16 Similarly, Defendants should not be permitted to avoid liability by claiming Williams is at 17 fault for all of the alleged wrongdoing. The evidence collected to date shows that all of the 18 defendants were involved, some as much as Williams. Id.

19 These conditions place no significant burden on Finnegan and do not change Defendants' 20 obligations. Yet, a withdrawal subject to these conditions, will provide Plaintiffs assurance that 21 Williams' disappearance and Finnegan's withdrawal will not prejudice Plaintiffs' ability to move 22 this case along and get it resolved on the merits.

23 B. Finnegan's Analysis Under the Guiding Principles for Addressing Motions To 24 Withdraw Is Incomplete

25 As noted in Finnegan's moving papers, some Northern District of California Courts have 26 used the following guidelines to determine whether to grant or deny a motion to withdraw:

- 27 (1) the reasons why withdrawal is sought; (2) the prejudice 28 withdrawal may cause to other litigants; (3) the harm withdrawal might cause to the administration of justice; and (4) the degree to which withdrawal will delay the resolution of the case.

1 Irwin v. Mascott, No. C97-4737 JL, 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 28264, *4 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 1, 2004).

2 While Plaintiffs believe that analysis of the present facts in light of these guidelines dictates 3 against withdrawal, if the withdrawal is subject to the conditions as described above to eliminate 4 the potential for prejudice, the motion may be granted. California v. M & P Invs., 2007 U.S. Dist.
5 LEXIS 81131.

6 1. Litigants May be Prejudiced if Finnegan is Permitted to Withdraw

7 Finnegan incorrectly argues that none of the parties will be prejudiced if it is permitted to 8 withdraw from representing Williams. Plaintiffs will be prejudiced. Plaintiffs will have no 9 means for contacting Williams, serving him as required by the Rules or ensuring the Court 10 maintains effective jurisdiction over him. Furthermore, history has shown that the other 11 defendants will seek to escape their discovery obligations by pointing to Williams as the source of 12 all relevant information. Sutton Decl., Exs. I, L-N. Finnegan currently is the only known direct 13 link to Williams. Even if Williams has not communicated over the last month or so, there is no 14 reason to believe he will not reappear and reach out to Finnegan – the firm Williams knows to be 15 representing him. Further, if Williams does contact Finnegan after it is permitted to withdraw, it 16 will have no obligation to inform the Court or the parties that the firm is in contact with him.

17 Plaintiffs also will be prejudiced if ConnectU's and PNS' prior assertions about Williams' 18 involvement in the acts giving rise to this action are accepted as true. Both ConnectU and PNS 19 have repeatedly argued that Williams developed the Importer and Social Butterfly programs and 20 that he, alone, has knowledge of the facts. Id. Plaintiffs believe substantial evidence exists to call 21 that assertion into question.

22 In addition, Williams himself will be prejudiced by Finnegan's withdrawal. He 23 presumably is unaware that such a request has been made and, given his financial status as 24 repeatedly argued by Finnegan, he likely will be unable to engage substitute counsel. If Finnegan 25 withdraws without condition, Williams will not be served with documents in this matter, will not 26 be advised of his rights and responsibilities, will not be notified of any settlement efforts, and will 27 run the risk of defaulting.

28 Finnegan argues that Plaintiffs have received all relevant documents that Williams had in 1 his possession. Mot. to Withdraw, 6:8-9. In fact, Mr. Williams has produced no documents. In 2 addition, Williams testified in his deposition that his laptop was stolen earlier this year.² Notably, 3 in its motion, Finnegan admits that Williams reviewed “files and documents he had in his 4 possession.” Id., 2:13-15. To the extent Finnegan has taken possession or control of these “files 5 and documents,” they must be produced. Finnegan and Williams should not be permitted to use 6 the proposed withdrawal to prevent Plaintiffs from obtaining relevant discovery.

7 Finnegan also erroneously contends that Williams’ four hour deposition related to 8 jurisdiction elicited all testimony Plaintiffs believe was necessary for this case. Id., 6:9-11. That 9 deposition was authorized by the Court as part of expedited discovery related to the then-pending 10 motion to dismiss. Doc. No. 74. The subject matter was limited, and all of the questions asked 11 were related to a single issue – jurisdiction. Plaintiffs are prepared to notice a general deposition 12 of Williams on all issues related to this case as soon as possible.

13 2. Finnegan’s Withdrawal May Interfere with This Court’s
14 Administration of Justice

15 Finnegan incorrectly argues that this “case has little to do with Williams.” Indeed, 16 ConnectU and PNS repeatedly asserted that Williams developed the Importer and Social Butterfly 17 programs used to breach Facebook security and steal user data. Sutton Decl., Exs. L-1, 87:1-3, 18 106:10-15, 109:19-22; L-2, 86:1-16; M-1, 98:17-22, M-2, 61:25-62:4, ; see also Ex. K (“WW 19 took over the [Social Butterfly] project completely”). These facts are important to the case.
20 Notably, ConnectU and PNS repeatedly assert that Williams is the only person capable of 21 providing substantive discovery responses. Id., Exs. J (at 3 and 4); M-2, 89:2-25; M-1, 90:1, 22 116:9-16, 137:4-18, 204:6-20; N; see also Doc. No. 220, fn6.

23 In addition, the Court’s ability to maintain any meaningful jurisdiction over Williams will 24 be limited if he is not represented by counsel. Other courts have held that the 25 Court must balance the interests of Defendants, whose whereabouts 26 are unknown and who have shown little respect for the Court’s orders in the past, their attorneys, who are understandably reluctant

27 ² His failure to produce documents is particularly troublesome because Williams was served in 28 December 2006, with a subpoena for documents. One of the currently outstanding document requests seeks all documents collected and preserved in response to that subpoena. Sutton Decl., Ex. F at Request No. 26.

1 to continue to represent them, and Plaintiffs, who cannot obtain 2 even basic discovery

3 Irwin, 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 28264, *9. If the Court permits Finnegan to withdraw, Williams 4 “will effectively elude this Court’s jurisdiction and escape the consequences of violating both 5 federal law and the orders of this Court.” Id. at *10-11. The Irwin court found such a result to be 6 a “grave injustice to Plaintiffs and a mockery of the jurisdiction of this Court.” Id. at *11.

7 3. Finnegan’s Withdrawal Could Delay This Case

8 As noted above, if Finnegan is permitted to withdraw, Plaintiffs run the risk that discovery 9 will be stalled. Indeed, responses to the interrogatories that are subject to the Order have been 10 outstanding since June 2007. If Finnegan withdraws, discovery will only be delayed further. As 11 noted above, Finnegan admits in its motion that Williams has “files and documents ... in his 12 possession.” Mot. to Withdraw, 2:13-15. Finnegan’s withdrawal may mean that those files and 13 documents are never produced to Plaintiffs. Further, PNS is now likely to respond to the Order 14 requiring its and Williams’ collaboration in providing meaningful interrogatory responses by 15 indicating that it cannot possibly provide further information without Williams. If Williams is 16 represented, Finnegan continues to have a duty to this Court and his clients to ensure compliance 17 with the Order. If Finnegan withdraws, it will be permitted to wash its hands of this issue.

18 C. Plaintiffs Are Not To Blame for Williams’ Failure To Provide Adequate 19 Interrogatory Responses

20 Though irrelevant to the present motion, Finnegan devotes a fair amount of argument to 21 accusing Plaintiffs of “surprising” Williams with information that Defendants should have 22 initially included in their interrogatory responses. The “three (3) new documents” to which 23 Finnegan refers (Mot. to Withdraw, 2:23-27), consist of 1) excerpts from Williams’ deposition 24 testimony (a deposition defended by Finnegan), 2) documents produced in this litigation by 25 Defendant Gucwa and served upon Finnegan, and 3) documents produced by Finnegan on PNS’ 26 behalf. The “additional document” submitted in a supplemental declaration also was produced by 27 PNS in this litigation. Finnegan does not explain why PNS and Williams should not be 28 responsible for reviewing their own files to provide complete responses to interrogatories.
Finnegan’s attack is a red herring.

IV. CONCLUSION

If Finnegan, Henderson, Farabow, Garrett & Dunner’s withdrawal can be condition so as not to impose prejudice on Plaintiffs, Plaintiffs are not opposed to the request. Absent the above-described conditions, Plaintiffs will suffer prejudice by the proposed withdrawal and, thus, would oppose the motion to eliminate such prejudice.
