Case No. 5:07-cv-05378 JF

DEFENDANT FACEBOOK, INC.’S REPLY TO PLAINTIFF ABRAMS’S OPPOSITION TO
 FACEBOOK INC.’S EX PARTE
 APPLICATION (A) TO CONTINUE
 HEARING ON PLAINTIFF’S APPLICATION FOR ATTORNEY’S FEES AND (B) FOR LEAVE TO CONDUCT DISCOVERY THEREFOR.

29 Plaintiff Lindsey Abrams’s (“Abrams” or “Plaintiff”) conclusion that the Stipulated Entry
 30 of Judgment Of Dismissal With Prejudice And General Release (“Order”) grants Abrams an 31 uncontested award of enormous legal fees without ever having to conduct a Lodestar analysis is 32 senseless and belies the express text of the Order. Abrams’s counsel’s vehement refusal to 33 produce their billing records only underscores the vast disconnect between the arbitrary $5
 34

1 million it seeks and the actual costs and fees incurred as part of the representation.

2 The arguments Abrams puts forth in opposition to Facebook’s motion are meritless. For 3 instance:

- 4 ○ Abrams’s contention that Facebook is trying to “rewrite” the Order borders on the 5 absurd. The word “percentage” does not appear anywhere in the Order, nor was a
6 percentage calculation ever contemplated during settlement discussions. Abrams’s 7 method of calculating the award is entirely novel and results from a strained and 8 nonsensical reading of the Order. The plain words of the Order provide that the 9 amount of the fee award – which the parties agreed will be determined by the 10 Court – will be based not solely on the relief obtained for the plaintiff, but also on 11 the benefits conveyed more generally through the settlement. Therefore, the Order
12 intends for the Court to apply a traditional fee award analysis and allows the Court
13 to also consider in that process the benefits of the settlement to the individual 14 plaintiff and the purported class.
- 15 ○ Abrams’s suggestion that she is the only party permitted to take discovery is 16 ludicrous and would lead to manifestly unjust results. The Order expressly grants
17 to Facebook the right to challenge the fee award both at an evidentiary hearing and 18 in written submissions. Without the ability to review Abrams’s counsel’s billing 19 records and conduct a deposition of the experts whose opinions have been 20 proffered, Facebook’s right to challenge the arbitrary and immense figure of $5
21 million would be rendered a nullity. Nowhere does the Order state that only
22 Abrams can take discovery and an attempt to read such a limitation into the Order
23 is a disingenuous effort to rewrite its terms.
- 24 ○ By filing this motion, Facebook has in no way “acknowledged” that the Order only 25 allows discovery by Abrams. Indeed, Facebook’s counsel has repeatedly
26 requested discovery from Abrams’s counsel, but Abrams’s counsel has made it
27 abundantly clear that it will not provide any such discovery. As post-judgment 28 discovery is not allowed as a matter of right, Facebook had no choice but to petition this Court by filing the subject application.

- o In the subject application, Facebook seeks merely a fair opportunity to confront the evidence presented by Abrams to justify the enormous attorneys’ fee award. While Abrams’s counsel flatly rejected as irrelevant all requests for such evidence, Abrams’s counsel have now apparently reversed course and say they will provide the Court (but apparently not Facebook) with their invoices. Of course, Facebook expects to see more than mere invoices; rather, Facebook seeks all billing records relevant to these proceedings, as well as the opportunity to depose Abrams’s expert witnesses.

In addition, Facebook’s ex parte application was proper because this Court has the intrinsic authority to control its docket and because there was no assurance of being able to timely notice the motion if Facebook proceeded under traditional motion practice. In the event this Court deems that Facebook’s application is more properly styled as a motion to compel, Facebook respectfully submits that the Court should grant the motion and compel Abrams to respond to Facebook’s discovery requests and interrogatories to Abrams, which are attached hereto as Exhibits 1 and 2 to the declaration of Michael G. Rhodes.

Accordingly, Facebook respectfully requests the Court to grant limited post-judgment discovery into the matters raised by the fee application (including production of the salient billing records and depositions of the experts supporting the application), and rescheduling of the July 11th hearing to enable Facebook (and the Court) to have a more plenary debate on the merits of the $5 million fee.

June 9, 2008

Respectfully submitted,
