IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
SAN JOSE DIVISION

Intel Corp.,

NO. C 08-03578 JW

Plaintiff,

ORDER GRANTING PLAINTIFF'S
MOTION FOR DEFAULT JUDGMENT AND PERMANENT INJUNCTION

v.

Intelsys Software, LLC,

Defendant.

I. INTRODUCTION

Intel Corporation ("Plaintiff") brings this action against Intelsys Software, LLC ("Defendant") alleging, inter alia, trademark infringement and unfair competition. Plaintiff alleges that, despite its attempts to resolve this matter out of court, Defendant persists in infringing Plaintiff's "INTEL" mark through its use of the trade name and trademark "Intelsys Software."

Presently before the Court is Plaintiff's Motion for Default Judgment and Permanent Injunction.<sup>1</sup> The Court conducted a hearing on January 16, 2009. Based on the papers submitted to date and oral argument, the Court GRANTS Plaintiff's Motion for Default Judgment and Permanent Injunction.

II. BACKGROUND

In a Complaint filed July 25, 2008, Plaintiff alleges as follows:

Plaintiff owns numerous United States, California and common law trademarks for the mark "INTEL," and uses this mark as a trade name, trademark and service mark on

1 virtually its entire line of products and services. (Complaint for Damages and Civil Relief ¶¶
2 10, 13, 17, hereafter, “Complaint,” Docket Item No. 1.) Plaintiff regularly uses its “INTEL”
3 mark with generic terms to identify products and services that originate from Plaintiff. (Id. ¶
4 12.) In addition, Plaintiff owns and uses numerous trademarks that incorporate its INTEL
5 mark as a prominent component. For example, Plaintiff owns the following additional
6 trademarks: “INTEL INSIDE,” “INTEL SPEEDSTEP,” “INTEL XEON,” and “INTEL
7 NETMERGE.” (Complaint ¶¶ 14-16.)

8 Defendant develops software applications, websites and computer security products,
9 including software applications for network utilities, wireless applications and enterprise
10 solutions. (Complaint ¶ 20.) Defendant maintains a website at www.intelsysus.com.
11 Defendant also uses the mark “Intelsys Software,” which incorporates Plaintiff’s INTEL
12 trademark and adds the generic term “sys”—a common abbreviation for “systems”—and the 13 generic term “software.” (Id. ¶ 21.) Defendant markets its products and services through
14 similar channels of trade and to similar customers as Plaintiff. (Id.)

15 Despite Defendant’s knowledge of Plaintiff’s rights, and Plaintiff’s numerous
16 attempts to resolve its dispute outside of court, Defendant has persisted in using the Intelsys
17 Software trade name and trademark. (Complaint ¶¶ 22, 26, 43, 48.) Defendant’s
18 unauthorized use of the Intelsys Software name and trademark falsely indicates to consumers
19 that Defendant’s products and services are in some manner connected with, or related to,
20 Plaintiff. (Id. ¶ 27.) Defendant’s use of the mark allows it to benefit from the goodwill
21 established by Plaintiff. Defendant also has caused, and will likely continue to cause, 22 consumers to be confused regarding the source, nature and quality of the products and 23 services it is promoting or selling. (Id. ¶¶ 28, 31.) Defendant’s conduct has, and will
24 continue to have, an adverse effect on the value of and distinctive quality of the INTEL
25 mark. (Id. ¶¶ 39, 41.)

1 On the basis of the allegations outlined above, Plaintiff brings seven causes of action: (1)
2 Trademark Infringement pursuant to the Lanham Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1114; (2) False Designation of 3 Origin pursuant to the Lanham Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1125(a); (3) Federal Trademark Dilution pursuant
4 to the Lanham Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1125(c); (4) Dilution and Injury to Business Reputation pursuant to
5 Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code § 14247; (5) Trademark Infringement pursuant to Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code §
6 14245; (6) Common Law Unfair Competition (Passing Off); and (7) Unfair Competition pursuant to 7 Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200.

8 Defendant was served on August 1, 2008. (See Docket Item No. 8.) On August 29, 2008,
9 the Clerk of Court entered default as to Defendant. (See Docket Item No. 13.)

10 Presently before the Court is Plaintiff's Motion for Default Judgment and Permanent 11 Injunction.

12 III. STANDARDS

13 Pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(b)(2), a party may move the court for an entry of default
14 judgment. The grant of a default judgment is within the discretion of the court. Draper v. Coombs,
15 792 F.2d 915, 924 (9th Cir. 1986). In the Ninth Circuit, the district court must consider which of 16 seven factors supports the entry of a default judgment: (1) the possibility of prejudice to the plaintiff;
17 (2) the merits of plaintiff's substantive claim; (3) the sufficiency of the complaint; (4) the sum of 18 money at stake in the action; (5) the possibility of a dispute concerning material facts; (6) whether
19 the default was due to excusable neglect; and (7) the strong policy underlying the Federal Rules of 20 Civil Procedure favoring decisions on the merits. Eitel v. McCool, 782 F.2d 1470, 1471-72 (9th Cir.
21 1986).

22 IV. DISCUSSION

23 A. Default Judgment

24 The decision to grant or deny a default judgment under Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(b) is within the 25 discretion of the Court. See Eitel, 782 F.2d at 1471-72. Although there is strong public policy
26

1 favoring decisions on the merits, it is only one factor among several to be considered. Thus, the
2 Court examines whether under the other factors, default judgment is appropriate in this case.

3 First, Defendant has failed to defend the action or otherwise communicate with the Court.
4 Thus, Defendant has made no showing of excusable neglect. Further, Plaintiff has attempted to 5 resolve this matter with Defendant outside of court and through litigation. (Complaint ¶ 22.) If
6 Plaintiff is not granted default judgment, it may be without any recourse for recovery. See Pepsico,
7 Inc. v. Cal. Sec. Cans, 238 F. Supp. 2d 1172, 1177 (C.D. Cal. 2002). The Court finds Defendant’s
8 failure to demonstrate excusable neglect, measured against the possibility of prejudice to Plaintiff,
9 favors default judgment.

10 Second, once the Clerk of Court enters default, all well-pled allegations regarding liability
11 are taken as true except as to the amount of damages. Fair Housing of Marin v. Combs, 285 F.3d
12 899, 906 (9th Cir. 2002). Here, the Clerk of Court entered default on August 29, 2008. Upon
13 review of Plaintiff’s Complaint, the Court finds that Plaintiff has adequately stated claims under the 14 Lanham Act, 15 U.S.C. §§ 1114, 1125(a), and 1125(c). Therefore, the merits of Plaintiff’s claims
15 are deemed valid. Since the allegations are taken as true, there is no possibility of a dispute
16 concerning material facts. These factors favor granting default judgment for Plaintiff.

17 Third, Plaintiff does not seek an award of damages. Plaintiff only seeks a permanent 18 injunction precluding Defendant from using the Intelsys Software trade name and mark. (See 19 Motion at 8.) Since the Lanham Act permits the Court to fashion any injunctive remedy the Court
20 deems reasonable to prevent the violation of a trademark holder’s rights, the Court finds Plaintiff’s
21 request permissible. See 15 U.S.C. §§ 1116(a), 1125(a). This factor favors default judgment for
22 Plaintiff.

23 In sum, the Court finds that the Eitel factors support the grant of default judgment.
24 Accordingly, the Court GRANTS Plaintiff’s Motion for Default Judgment.

26
27
28

1 B. Permanent Injunction

2 Plaintiff contends that it is entitled to a permanent injunction to prevent Defendant's future
3 infringement of its trademarks through the use of the trade name and mark Intelsys Software.
4 (Motion at 7.)

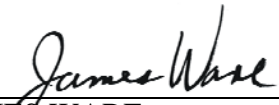

5 Under the Lanham Act, a district court has the power to grant injunctions according to the
6 rules of equity, and on such terms as the court deems reasonable, to prevent the violation of a
7 trademark holder's rights. See 15 U.S.C. §§ 1116(a), 1125(a); see also Levi Strauss & Co. v. Shilon,
8 121 F.3d 1309, 1314 (9th Cir. 1997); Interstellar Starship Services, Ltd. v. Epix, Inc., 304 F.3d 936,
9 948 (9th Cir. 2002). Injunctive relief is available even in a default judgment setting. See e.g., Philip
10 Morris USA, Inc. v. Castworld Products, Inc., 219 F.R.D. 494 (C.D. Cal. 2003). However, a
11 plaintiff is not entitled to an injunction as a matter of course; rather, where a trademark holder
12 demonstrates ongoing infringement of its marks, an injunction is appropriate. Pepsico Inc., 238 F.
13 Supp. 2d at 1177-78 (internal citations omitted).

14 In this case, Plaintiff alleges that Defendant "has persisted in using the Intelsys Software
15 trade name and trademark and has refused to voluntarily change its mark." (Complaint ¶ 22.)
16 Further, Plaintiff alleges that it "has been, is now, and will be irreparably injured and damaged . . .
17 and [unless Defendant is enjoined, Plaintiff] will suffer harm to its name, reputation and goodwill.
18 This harm constitutes an injury for which [Plaintiff] has no adequate remedy at law." (Id. ¶¶ 32, 35,
19 40.) Taking Plaintiff's allegations as true, the Court finds good cause exists to issue an injunction.

20 V. CONCLUSION

21 The Court GRANTS Plaintiff's Motion for Default Judgment and Permanent Injunction.
22 Judgment will be entered in favor of Plaintiff and against Defendant accordingly.
