Defendants seek the following specific relief:

(i) Dismissal of the First Cause of Action (for alleged violations of the Computer Fraud and Abuse Act, 18 U.S.C. §1030) as to defendant DIGITAL POINT SOLUTIONS, INC. on the grounds that the First Amended Complaint fails to state a claim upon which relief can be granted under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6) and fails to allege fraud with sufficient particularity under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 9(b).

5 Defendants' motion will be based on this Notice of Motion and Motion, the Memorandum of 6 Points and Authorities set forth below, the accompanying Request for Judicial Notice and attached
 7 exhibit, the Declaration of Seyamack Kouretchian, the records and file herein, and upon such other oral 8 and documentary evidence as may be presented at the hearing on this motion.

9 MEMORANDUM OF POINTS & AUTHORITIES

10 Defendants Digital Point Solutions, Inc. and Shawn Hogan ("Defendants") respectfully submit 11 the following Memorandum of Points & Authorities in support of their Motion to Dismiss:

12 I. SUMMARY OF MOTION

13 Through this lawsuit, Plaintiff eBay, Inc. (Plaintiff) seeks to transform what amounts to a simple
 14 breach of contract claim into an expansive, multi-count federal action based on entirely inapplicable
 15 criminal statutes, including the Computer Fraud and Abuse Act (CFAA) and Racketeer Influenced and 16 Corrupt Organizations Act (RICO). Specifically, Plaintiff alleges that Digital Point Solutions, Inc. and 17 Shawn Hogan engaged in a "cookie stuffing" scheme to defraud Plaintiff of commissions over a three 18 and a half year period, from December 2003 through June 2007.

19 In doing so, however, Plaintiff failed to conduct a reasonable pre-suit investigation of the 20 underlying facts. Indeed, as a simple search of the California Secretary of State's on-line database would 21 have disclosed, Digital Point Solutions, Inc. did not exist until May 14, 2007 - the date its articles of 22 incorporation were filed. This fact is definitively established by certified records from the Secretary of 23 State filed and served herewith. (See Defendants' Request for Judicial Notice (RJN), Exhibit 1). As 24 such, the First Amended Complaint is subject to partial dismissal because Plaintiff's first four causes of 25 action fail to state a claim upon which relief can be granted.

26 Defendants' motion should be granted for the following reasons:

27 First, Plaintiff's CFAA, RICO, common law fraud and Penal Code section 502 claims are all 28 based on the same fraudulent "cookie stuffing" scheme. Because those claims are grounded in fraud,

1 they are subject to the heightened pleading requirements of Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 9(b). In that
2 regard, the First Amended Complaint (FAC) is legally deficient because it fails to recognize that Digital
3 Point Solutions, Inc. was in existence for just the last six weeks of the alleged time frame and fails to set
4 forth any factual basis explaining how the corporation became involved in the final month of the alleged 5 scheme.

6 Nor does the FAC allege any specific misconduct by Digital Point Solutions, Inc. during the 7 brief, six-week period from mid-May to June 2007. Instead, from the outset, the FAC simply groups Mr.
8 Hogan and Digital Point Solutions, Inc. into a single, generic unit referred to as “DPS” and proceeds to 9 allege all wrongdoing based on that acronym. In doing so, Plaintiff failed to satisfy Rule 9(b)’s 10 minimum pleading requirements.

11 In addition, the RICO claim is deficient as to defendant Shawn Hogan because Plaintiff failed to 12 adequately allege a RICO enterprise. In that regard, Digital Point Solutions, Inc. cannot serve as the 13 enterprise because it only existed for six weeks (or less than four percent) of the alleged three and a half 14 year scheme. Further, with respect to the brief period the corporation was in existence, the FAC fails to 15 adequately allege a “pattern of racketeering” from mid-May to June 2007 or a sufficient nexus between 16 Digital Point Solutions, Inc. and any such wrongful activity.

17 Finally, the FAC fails to establish an association-in-fact enterprise as Plaintiff cannot satisfy its 18 pleading obligations by simply grouping Mr. Hogan with DOES 1 through 10 and referring to it as the 19 “Hogan Group.” In attempting to establish an association-in-fact in this manner, Plaintiff circumvented
20 its statutory obligation to identify an enterprise distinct from the RICO defendant.

21 II. STATEMENT OF FACTS

22 Relevant for purposes of the present motion, the FAC alleges the following:

23 At all relevant times, defendant Digital Point Solutions, Inc. was a California corporation, doing
24 business in the State of California, and Shawn Hogan was an individual residing and doing business in 25 California - the defendants are collectively referred to as “DPS” throughout the FAC. (FAC ¶¶2-4).

26 Plaintiff operates an on-line trading forum through which sellers list items for sale and buyers bid
27 on and purchase items of interest. Plaintiff earns revenue from these transactions. (FAC ¶18).

1 Plaintiff maintains an affiliate program which is intended to increase traffic to Plaintiff's website.
2 Affiliates are third parties that independently market Plaintiff's business. Affiliates receive commissions
3 for directing business to Plaintiff's website when referred users engage in actions that generate, or are 4 likely to generate, revenue for Plaintiff (such as purchasing an item listed for sale). (FAC ¶19).

5 Plaintiff tracks which affiliates are entitled to commissions through the use of "cookies," digital
6 tags that store information in the user's browser. (FAC ¶21). When a user is directed to Plaintiff's
7 website, Plaintiff's website site places a cookie on the user's computer. The cookie allows Plaintiff to 8 identify the affiliate responsible for directing the traffic to Plaintiff's website. (FAC ¶22). Plaintiff pays 9 affiliates on a periodic basis (usually monthly) based on the number of revenue generating actions taken 10 by users referred by the those affiliates. (FAC ¶13).

11 "Cookie Stuffing" involves the forced placement of a cookie on a computer. Plaintiff alleges 12 DPS engaged in a fraudulent "cookie stuffing" scheme, as follows: (i) DPS used software programs or 13 code that redirected users to Plaintiff's website without the users realizing it, (ii) Plaintiff's website then 14 placed a cookie on the browser of each such user, (iii) any subsequent revenue generating actions were 15 improperly credited to DPS, and (iv) as a result, DPS received commissions based on users who had not
16 been referred by DPS. (FAC ¶¶24-27).¹

17 Based on the above, the FAC alleges six causes of action as follows: (i) violations of the 18 Computer Fraud and Abuse Act, 18 U.S.C. §1030; (ii) violations of the Racketeer Influenced and 19 Corrupt Organizations Act, 18 U.S.C. §1962(c); (iii) common law fraud; (iv) violations of California
20 Penal Code §502; (v) unjust enrichment; and (iv) unfair business practices under California Business &
21 Professions Code §17200.

22 III. STANDARD OF REVIEW

23 To survive a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim under Rule 12(b)(6), the plaintiff must 24 allege "enough facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face." Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly
25

26 ¹ While the FAC alleges that Mr. Hogan entered into a "User Agreement" with Plaintiff, no such 27 allegation is made with respect to Digital Point Solutions, Inc. Notably, Plaintiff did not attach the User
28 Agreement to the FAC or otherwise set forth its substantive terms other than to establish venue. (FAC ¶16).

1 (2007) 127 S.Ct. 1955, 1974; Weber v. Dep't of Veterans Affairs (9th Cir. 2008) 521 F.3d 1061, 1065.
2 In general, the inquiry is limited to the allegations in the complaint, which are accepted as true and
3 construed in the light most favorable to the plaintiff. Sprewell v. Golden State Warriors (9th Cir. 2001)
4 266 F.3d 979, 988. However, these principles do not apply to allegations that contradict matters
5 properly subject to judicial notice. Id. “Nor is the court required to accept as true allegations that are 6 merely conclusory, unwarranted deductions of fact, or unreasonable inferences.” Id.

7 In addition, a complaint that fails to meet Rule 9(b)'s heightened pleading requirements is subject 8 to dismissal under Rule 12(b)(6). Vess v. Ciba-Geigy Corp. USA (9th Cir. 2003) 317 F.3d 1097, 1107.
9 Rule 9(b) mandates that “in all averments of fraud or mistake, the circumstances constituting fraud or 10 mistake shall be stated with particularity.” See e.g. Desai goudar v. Meyercord (9th Cir. 2000) 223 F.3d 11 1020, 1022-1023 (complaint sounding in fraud must be pled “with a high degree of meticulousness”).
12 The Ninth Circuit has interpreted Rule 9(b) to mean that “[a]verments of fraud must be accompanied by 13 ‘the who, what, when, where, and how’ of the misconduct charged.” Vess, supra, 317 F.3d at p. 1106.

14 In addition, Rule 9(b) “does not allow a complaint to merely lump multiple defendants together 15 but require[s] plaintiffs to differentiate their allegations when suing more than one defendant . . . and 16 inform each defendant separately of the allegations surrounding his alleged participation in the fraud.”
17 Swartz v. KPMG LLP, 476 F.3d 756, 764-65 (9th Cir. 2007) (quotation omitted). “In the context of a 18 fraud suit involving multiple defendants, a plaintiff must, at a minimum, ‘identif[y] the role of [each] 19 defendant [] in the alleged fraudulent scheme.’” Id. at 765 (quoting Moore v. Kayport Package Express,
20 Inc. (9th Cir. 1989) 885 F.2d 531, 541.

21 Rule 9(b) requires the plaintiff “to conduct a pre-complaint investigation in sufficient depth to 22 assure that the charge of fraud is responsible and supported, rather than defamatory and extortionate.”
23 Ackerman v. Northwestern Mut. Life Ins. Co. (7th Cir. 1999) 172 F.3d 467, 469. These rules ensure that 24 defendants have sufficient “notice of the particular misconduct which is alleged to constitute the fraud
25 charged so that they can defend against the charge and not just deny that they have done anything
26 wrong.” Semegen v. Weidner (9th Cir. 1985) 780 F.2d 727, 731.

IV. ARGUMENT

The FAC alleges a number of fraud-based claims against defendants Shawn Hogan and Digital Point Solutions, Inc., including violations of the Computer Fraud and Abuse Act (CFAA), the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act (RICO), California Penal Code section 502, and common law fraud. As noted above, each of these claims is premised on an alleged “cookie stuffing” scheme that spanned from December 2003 to June 2007.

However, as certified records from the California Secretary of State definitively establish, Digital Point Solutions, Inc. did not exist until May 14, 2007 - just six weeks before the termination of the alleged three and a half year “cookie stuffing” scheme. Because Plaintiff failed to recognize this fact, the FAC contains a number of fatal pleading defects as to defendant Digital Point Solutions, Inc. Further, as explained below, the FAC has failed to allege facts sufficient to constitute a RICO claim as to both Digital Point Solutions, Inc. and Shawn Hogan.

A. The FAC fails to Allege a Violation of the Computer Fraud and Abuse Act as to Defendant Digital Point Solutions, Inc.

Plaintiff’s first cause of action alleges violations of the federal Computer Fraud and Abuse Act, 18 U.S.C. §1030 (CFAA), which was originally enacted in 1984 to punish “destructive hacking.” In re DoubleClick Privacy Litig. (SDNY 2001) 154 F. Supp. 2d 497, 526. The statute provides a private right of action to any person who suffers “damage or loss” by reason of a violation of the Act’s substantive provisions. 18 U.S.C. §1030(g).

In that regard, the CFAA prohibits a variety of computer-related acts where the defendant: (i) intentionally accesses, (ii) a computer or computer system used in interstate commerce, (iii) without authorization (or exceeds authorized access), and (iv) thereby causes certain harms (such as, inter alia, obtaining information, defrauding the computer owner/operator, or transmitting a program that causes computer damage). 18 U.S.C. §1030 (a)(2)(C), (a)(4), and (a)(5)(A). However, a private action only lies where the alleged misconduct involves one of five enumerated factors. Id. The only factor potentially applicable to the present case requires “loss to 1 or more persons during any 1-year period . . . aggregating at least $5,000 in value.” 18 U.S.C. §1030(c)(4)(a)(i)(I).

1 With respect to the FAC, Plaintiff does not identify the particular subsection(s) upon which the 2 CFAA claim is predicated. However, as a simple review of the FAC indicates, Plaintiff's theory is based 3 on the same "cookie stuffing" scheme alleged throughout the FAC. For instance, the FAC alleges:
4 "Through their cookie stuffing schemes as described above, DPS and KFC each knowingly, intentionally
5 and with intent to defraud accessed eBay's computers in order to further their fraudulent schemes."²
6 (FAC ¶34). The FAC further alleges that "DPS's . . . access of eBay's computers was unauthorized 7 because the only purpose of that access was to defraud eBay." (FAC ¶35).

8 However, the FAC is devoid of any specific facts explaining how defendant Digital Point
9 Solutions, Inc. was involved in the alleged scheme. In that regard, claims based on a "unified course of 10 fraudulent conduct" are said to be "grounded in fraud" and must therefore be pled with particularity 11 under Rule 9(b). Vess v. Ciba-Geigy Corp. USA (9th Cir. 2003) 317 F.3d 1097, 1103-1104. Because 12 Plaintiff's CFAA claim is predicated on the same fraudulent cookie stuffing scheme underlying the 13 entire FAC, it must be plead with particularity under Rule 9(b). For the reasons set forth below, it fails 14 to do so.

15 First, the FAC alleges on information and belief that "at all relevant times herein defendant 16 Digital Point Solutions, Inc. was a California corporation, doing business in the State of California" and 17 that DPS "caused harm to eBay's computers and caused loss to eBay in each year from at least 18 December 2003 through June 2007, aggregating more than $5,000." (FAC ¶¶ 2, 37; emphasis added).
19 However, these allegations are directly contradicted by judicially noticeable facts, as Digital Point
20 Solutions, Inc. did not exist until May 14, 2007.

21 Under California law, the corporate existence begins when the entity's articles of incorporation
22 are filed with the Secretary of State. Cal. Corps. Code §200(c); Brodsky v. Seaboard Realty Co. (1962)
23 206 Cal. App. 2d 504, 516-517. Here, as a simple business search on the Secretary of State's online
24 database would have disclosed to Plaintiff, the articles of incorporation for Digital Point Solutions, Inc.
25 were filed on May 14, 2007. (See Defendants' RJN, Ex. 1, certified copy of Articles of Incorporation of 26 Digital Point Solutions, Inc.). Thus, the corporation simply did not exist for the vast majority of the 27

28 ² "KFC" refers to a group of entirely unrelated defendants.

1 alleged time frame. Indeed, Digital Point Solutions, Inc. was only in existence for approximately six
2 weeks (or less than four percent) of the three and a half year period alleged in the FAC.

3 Notwithstanding the above, the FAC fails to identify any specific facts upon which its belief was 4 based. For instance, the FAC is devoid of any allegations that Digital Point Solutions, Inc. was ever a
5 member of the affiliate program, that it entered into any user agreements with Plaintiff (as was alleged 6 with respect to Shawn Hogan), that payments were ever made to a corporate bank account, and so on.

7 Instead, at the outset, the FAC improperly groups Mr. Hogan and Digital Point Solutions, Inc.
8 into a single, generic unit referred to as “DPS” (FAC ¶4), and then alleges all subsequent wrongdoing
9 based on the actions of that acronym. Plaintiff’s attempt to clump Defendants together in this manner
10 violates Rule 9(b)’s minimum pleading requirements. See Yung v. Integrated Transp. Network Group
11 (S.D.N.Y. 2001) 2001 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 24715 at 62 (complaint deficient because vast majority of 12 allegations “refer only to ‘BDO’ -- plaintiffs’ shorthand reference for the fictitious amalgam of BDO
13 International, BDO Binder and BDO Seidman. It is precisely this ‘clumping together’ that the 14 overwhelming weight of authority cited above condemns. There are no specific allegations that BDO
15 Seidman committed any acts giving rise to plaintiffs’ fraud claims.”).

16 Given the date Digital Point Solutions, Inc. was formed, at a minimum, Plaintiff must allege 17 some factual basis to explain how the corporation became involved in the alleged scheme at such a late 18 date, as well as the role it played in May or June of 2007. Because the FAC fails to provide this basic 19 information, Plaintiff simply has not pled the CFAA claim with the requisite degree of particularity.

20 Further, even if Plaintiff could overcome the foregoing, the FAC fails to adequately allege that 21 Digital Point Solutions, Inc.’s actions resulted in a loss “aggregating at least $5,000 in value” during the 22 six-week period from the date the corporation was formed to the date the alleged scheme came to an end.
23 18 U.S.C. §1030(g); (c)(4)(a)(i)(I). The allegation that DPS caused loss “in each year from at least 24 December 2003 through June 2007, aggregating more than $5,000” is entirely insufficient in this regard.

25 Because the CFAA claim is defective as set forth above, Defendants’ motion to dismiss should 26 be granted.

B. The FAC fails to Adequately Allege a RICO Claim as to both Defendants because it has Not Established the Enterprise Element.

The Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act, 18 U.S.C. §§ 1961-1968 (“RICO”), sets forth a private right of action for treble damages, which states:

Any person injured in his business or property by reason of a violation of section 1962 of this chapter may sue therefor in any appropriate United States district court and shall recover threefold the damages he sustains and the cost of the suit, including a reasonable attorney's fee. 18 U.S.C. §1964(c).

Section 1962 contains RICO's criminal prohibitions. Pertinent here, Plaintiff's RICO claim is predicated on section 1962(c) (FAC ¶42), which provides in relevant part:

It shall be unlawful for any person employed by or associated with any enterprise engaged in, or the activities of which affect, interstate or foreign commerce, to conduct or participate, directly or indirectly, in the conduct of such enterprise's affairs through a pattern of racketeering activity . . .

To state a valid RICO claim under that section, the plaintiff must have standing and must allege "(1) conduct (2) of an enterprise (3) through a pattern (4) of racketeering activity." Sedima, S.P.R.L. v. Imrex Co. 473 U.S. 479, 496 (1985).³ Here, the FAC's "enterprise" allegations are legally deficient.

The statute defines "enterprise" as "any individual, partnership, corporation, association, or other legal entity, and any union or group of individuals associated in fact although not a legal entity." 18 U.S.C. §1961(4). While ambiguously phrased, it is now well established that the foregoing sets forth two distinct categories covered by the statute; the latter is not a more general description of the former. United States v. Turkette (1981) 452 U.S. 576, 581-582.

Thus, to sufficiently allege a RICO enterprise, plaintiffs must either plead (i) the existence of a distinct "legal entity" through which the RICO defendant effectuated the requisite criminal acts, or (ii) the RICO defendant engaged in a course of criminal conduct as part of an organized group of persons through an "association-in-fact." Cedric Kushner Promotions, Ltd. v. King (2001) 533 U.S. 158, 161; Turkette, supra, 452 U.S. at p. 583.

³ In addition, the alleged misconduct must be the actual ("but for") and proximate cause of plaintiff's injury. Anza v. Ideal Steel Supply Corp. (2006) 547 U.S. 451, 457, 464.

1 To satisfy the above, the Supreme Court has explained that a plaintiff must “allege and prove the
 2 existence of two distinct entities: (1) a ‘person’; and (2) an ‘enterprise’ that is not simply the same
 3 ‘person’ referred to by a different name.” King, supra, 533 U.S. at p. 161. Relevant here, “the Act says
 4 that it applies to ‘persons’ who are ‘employed by or associated with’ the ‘enterprise.’ §1962(c). In 5 ordinary English one speaks of employing, being employed by, or associating with others, not oneself.”
 6 Id. In other words, liability depends on establishing distinctness - showing the defendant participated in 7 the enterprise’s affairs, not just their own affairs. Id. at 163.

8 Further, to adequately plead an enterprise as an association-in-fact, the plaintiff must identify “a 9 group of persons associated together for a common purpose of engaging in a course of conduct.” Odom
 10 v. Microsoft Corp. (9th Cir. 2007) 486 F.3d 541, 552. “To establish the existence of such an enterprise,
 11 a plaintiff must provide both ‘evidence of an ongoing organization, formal or informal,’ and ‘evidence
 12 that the various associates function as a continuing unit.’ Id. (citing Turkette, supra, 452 U.S. at p. 583).

13 As the courts have explained, the foregoing rules are in place to ensure run-of-the-mill state law
 14 claims are not inappropriately transformed into RICO claims:

15 In practice, the dual requirements of (1) distinctness and (2) the proof needed to 16 demonstrate an association-in-fact, work in tandem to weed out claims dressed up as 17 RICO violations but which are not in fact. Specifically, the distinctness doctrine requires
 18 a plaintiff to demonstrate that the RICO person is legally separate from the RICO
 19 enterprise, while the association-in-fact requirements help ensure that distinctness is not 20 achieved by simply tacking on entities to the enterprise which do not in fact operate as a 21 “continuing unit” or share a “common purpose.” City of New York v. Smokes-
 22 Spirits.com, Inc. (2nd Cir. 2008) 541 F.3d 425, 2008 U.S. App. LEXIS 18930, at 49-50.

23 Here, as detailed below, Plaintiff has failed to adequately allege an enterprise under either theory.
 24 The RICO claim should therefore be dismissed.

25 1. The FAC Fails to Adequately Allege a Distinct Legal Entity.

26 Plaintiff’s primary theory in attempting to establish a RICO enterprise is that defendant Shawn
 27 Hogan and DOES 1 through 10 engaged in the alleged “cookie stuffing” scheme, including multiple acts
 28 of wire fraud, through defendant Digital Point Solutions, Inc. The FAC alleges the following:

Defendant Shawn Hogan and Does 1-10 (the “Hogan Group”) engaged in activities through the company Digital Point Solutions, Inc., which constitutes an enterprise under RICO. Through Digital Point Solutions, Inc., the Hogan Group associated with each other and others for the common purpose of defrauding eBay of commission fees by

1 designing and implementing the cookie stuffing scheme described above. Upon
 2 information and belief, the Hogan Group's activities were ongoing, and Digital Point
 3 Solutions, Inc. functioned as a continuing unit in operating the fraudulent cookie stuffing scheme from approximately December 2003 through June 2007. (FAC ¶43).

4 As a preliminary matter, it is unclear whether Digital Point Solutions, Inc. is a named RICO
 5 defendant. Per the above, it appears the FAC only seeks relief as to Shawn Hogan and DOES 1 through 6 10.⁴ However, to the extent Digital Point Solutions, Inc. is an alleged RICO defendant, the FAC fails to 7 satisfy the distinctness requirements set forth above, as the corporation cannot at once be a RICO
 8 defendant and the RICO enterprise. See Schreiber Distributing v. Serv-Well Furniture Co. (9th
 9 Cir.1986) 806 F.2d 1393, 1396 (“The courts have consistently held that in an action under section 10 1962(c) the ‘person’ must be a separate and distinct entity from the ‘enterprise.’”).⁵

11 Further, the FAC fails to set forth a claim as to Shawn Hogan because, as noted above, 12 Digital Point Solutions, Inc. was not formed until the alleged scheme was coming to an end. Thus, the 13 enterprise upon which Plaintiff relies simply did not exist for the vast majority of the alleged time frame.
 14 Again, Digital Point Solutions, Inc. was only in existence for approximately six weeks of the three and a 15 half year period alleged in the FAC, and Plaintiff does not identify any other legal entity sufficient to 16 satisfy the enterprise element under RICO.

17 Thus, the FAC fails to satisfy the distinctness requirement for all but the brief, six-week period at 18 the end of the alleged scheme. However, even with respect to that time frame, the FAC is legally 19 deficient because it fails to establish a sufficient “pattern of racketeering” from mid-May to June 2007.
 20 See H. J. Inc. v. Northwestern Bell Tel. Co. (1989) 492 U.S. 229, 236, 239, 242 (RICO pattern requires 21 a minimum of two related predicate acts that amount to or pose a threat of continued criminal activity 22 rather than isolated occurrences; further noting that two such acts generally will not be sufficient).

23 Moreover, even if Plaintiff had sufficiently alleged a pattern of racketeering during the relevant 24 period, it must establish a nexus between the subject acts of wire fraud and the enterprise. Barker v.

26 ⁴ The FAC's headings fail to delineate which claims apply to which defendants. See William W.
 27 Schwarzer, et. al., Federal Civil Procedure Before Trial, ¶8:135, p. 8-66 (The Rutter Group 2008).

28 ⁵ See also Andrews Farms v. Calcot, Ltd. (E.D. Cal. 2007) 527 F. Supp. 2d 1239, 1257 (“RICO person may not be held directly liable under §1962(c), when it and the RICO enterprise are identical”).

1 Default Resolution Network (N.D. Cal. 2008) 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 65897, at 7 (citing Sedima S.P.R.L.
2 v. Imrex Company, Inc. et al. (1985) 473 U.S. 479. In that regard, Rule 9(b) applies to RICO claims that
3 include allegations of fraudulent activities as predicate acts of racketeering - including mail and wire
4 fraud. Odom v. Microsoft Corp. (9th Cir. 2007) 486 F.3d 541, 553.⁶

5 Here, as noted in the preceding section, the FAC fails to offer any explanation as to how Digital 6 Point Solutions, Inc. became involved in the alleged scheme and therefore provides no factual basis for 7 establishing a nexus between the corporate enterprise and any predicate acts alleged to have occurred
8 during the final six-week period of the alleged scheme.

9 Based on the foregoing Digital Point Solutions, Inc. cannot serve as the RICO enterprise for the 10 vast majority of the alleged scheme because the corporation did not exist until May of 2007. Further,
11 with respect to the brief time period during which the corporation did exist, the FAC fails to adequately
12 set forth a pattern of racketeering or otherwise establish a nexus between Digital Point Solutions, Inc.
13 and any predicate acts. The RICO claims is therefore legally deficient.

14 2. The FAC Fails to Adequately Allege an Association-In-Fact Enterprise.

15 To set forth an association-in-fact enterprise, the complaint must allege: (i) “a group of persons
16 associated for a common purpose of engaging in a course of conduct;” (ii) “an ongoing organization, 17 formal or informal;” and (iii) “the various associates function as a continuing unit.” Odom v. Microsoft
18 Corp. (9th Cir. 2007) 486 F.3d 541, 552-553. However, “the conclusory naming of a string of entities”
19 does not adequately allege an association-in-fact enterprise. First Capital Asset Mgmt. v. Satinwood,
20 Inc. (2nd Cir. 2004) 385 F.3d 159, 175. As such, a complaint is subject to dismissal if it fails to identify 21 the persons comprising the group. See Arndt v. Prudential Bache Secur., Inc. (S.D. Cal. 1984) 603 F.
22 Supp. 674, 676 (motion to dismiss granted where complaint failed to allege “who comprises the 23 enterprise.”); see also United States v. Int’l Longshoremen’s Ass’n (E.D.N.Y. 2007) 518 F. Supp. 2d

26 ⁶ Given the threat of treble damages and potential injury to reputation, Rule 9(b)’s pleading
27 requirements are particularly appropriate with respect to RICO claims. Farlow v. Peat, Marwick,
28 Mitchell & Co. (10th Cir. 1992) 956 F.2d 982, 989; see also Bernstein v. Misk (E.D.N.Y. 1997) 948 F.
Supp. 228, 239 (“When the predicate acts of a civil RICO claim are grounded in fraud, the concerns associated with pleading fraud with particularity take on even greater importance.”).

1 422, 475 (agreeing with defendants' argument that association-in-fact cannot be determined "without
2 specification as to who is actually part of the enterprise.").

3 Here, the FAC fails to satisfy the foregoing requirements. Indeed, other than defendant Shawn
4 Hogan, the only persons alleged to have participated in the "association" are DOES 1 through 10. While
5 the FAC creatively refers to Mr. Hogan and these DOE defendants as the "Hogan Group" (FAC ¶43),
6 such an allegation does not satisfy RICO's minimum statutory requirements. In that regard, the FAC's
7 boilerplate DOE allegations cannot serve as the basis for establishing a RICO enterprise.

8 For instance, the FAC alleges on information and belief "that each of the fictitiously named 9 defendants is responsible in some manner to pay the obligations described herein." (FAC ¶12; emphasis 10 added). These vague allegations do not set forth the requisite factual content. See Currier v. Whim Co.
11 (N.D. Cal. 2004) 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 9943, 11 ("In order to avoid dismissal for failure to state a 12 claim, a plaintiff must plead specific facts, not mere conclusory allegations, which establish the 13 existence of an enterprise.").

14 Moreover, the FAC violates the distinctness principles identified above. Again, a RICO
15 defendant cannot associate or conspire with himself, and Plaintiff cannot circumvent the statute's
16 express requirements "by simply tacking on entities to the enterprise which do not in fact operate as a 17 'continuing unit' or share a 'common purpose.'" See City of New York v. Smokes-Spirits.com, Inc. (2nd
18 Cir. 2008) 541 F.3d 425, 2008 U.S. App. LEXIS 18930, at 49-50. Here, Plaintiff's attempt to fabricate
19 an association-in-fact by tacking on DOES 1 through 10 violates RICO's distinctness rules and cannot 20 serve as a basis for accessing RICO's treble damages provision.

21 Based on the above, the FAC fails to establish an association-in-fact enterprise and the RICO
22 claim must be dismissed.

23 C. The FAC fails to Adequately Allege Common Law Fraud and Violations of 24 California Penal Code Section 502 as to Defendant Digital Point Solutions, Inc.

25 Plaintiff's third and fourth causes of action set forth state law claims for common law fraud and 26 violations of California Penal Code section 502, respectively. With respect to these claims, the 27 substantive elements are determined by state law but they must be pled with particularity in accordance 28

1 with Rule 9(b). Moore v. Brewster (9th Cir. 1996) 96 F.3d 1240, 1245-1246.⁷ Notably, Penal Code
 2 section 502 tracks the CFAA and seeks to protect against the same computer-related harms. As such, the 3 two are often considered together. See Hanger Prosthetics & Orthotics, Inc. v. Capstone Orthopedic,
 4 Inc. (E.D. Cal. 2008) 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 64756.

5 Here, the common law fraud and Section 502 claims are based on the same “cookie stuffing”
 6 allegations comprising the CFAA and RICO claims and therefore contain the same fundamental 7 pleading flaws as to Digital Point Solutions, Inc. (See e.g. FAC ¶¶ 50-53; 60-61 - incorporating prior 8 claims and setting forth repetitious allegations). Because the pleading defects identified in the preceding
 9 sections apply with equal force here, Defendants’ motion should be granted with respect to both state 10 law claims.

11 V. CONCLUSION

12 For the foregoing reasons, Defendants respectfully request that the Motion to Dismiss be granted
 13 on the grounds that the FAC: (i) fails to set forth Plaintiff’s fraud-based claims with sufficient
 14 particularity under Rule 9(b), and (ii) fails to state claims upon which relief can be granted under Rule 15 12(b)(6).
