

1 RONALD RUS, #67369
rrus@rusmiliband.com
2 LEO J. PRESIADO, #166721
lpresiado@rusmiliband.com
3 RUS, MILIBAND & SMITH
A Professional Corporation
4 Seventh Floor
2211 Michelson Drive
5 Irvine, California 92612
Telephone: (949) 752-7100
6 Facsimile: (949) 252-1514

7 Attorneys for Defendants
8 THUNDERWOOD HOLDINGS, INC.,
BRIAN DUNNING, and BRIANDUNNING.COM
9

10 UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
11 NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
12 SAN JOSE DIVISION

13 EBAY INC.,

14 Plaintiff,

15 vs.

16 DIGITAL POINT SOLUTIONS, INC.;
17 SHAWN HOGAN; KESSLER's FLYING
CIRCUS; THUNDERWOOD HOLDINGS,
18 INC.; TODD DUNNING; DUNNING
ENTERPRISES, INC.; BRIAN DUNNING;
19 BRIANDUNNING.COM; and DOES 1-20,

20 Defendants.
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

CASE NO. C 08-4052

REPLY BY DEFENDANTS
THUNDERWOOD HOLDINGS, INC.,
BRIAN DUNNING AND BRIANDUNNING.COM TO OPPOSITION TO MOTION TO DISMISS PLAINTIFF'S FIRST
AMENDED COMPLAINT

DATE: December 12, 2008
TIME: 9:00 a.m.
CTRM: 3

Hon. Jeremy Fogel presiding

TABLE OF CONTENTS

1.	EBAY HAS FAILED TO MEET ITS BURDEN OF PROOF THAT VENUE IS PROPER IN THE NORTHERN DISTRICT	1
2.	THE VENUE SELECTION CLAUSE REQUIRES THAT THE CASE BE DISMISSED AND NOT TRANSFERRED	4
3.	EBAY DOES NOT EFFECTIVELY REFUTE THAT IT HAS FAILED TO SUFFICIENTLY ALLEGE THAT DEFENDANTS ACCESSED EBAY'S COMPUTERS	5
4.	EBAY DOES NOT EFFECTIVELY REFUTE THAT IT HAS FAILED TO SUFFICIENTLY ALLEGE DAMAGE OR LOSS UNDER THE CFAA	8
5.	EBAY DOES NOT EFFECTIVELY REFUTE THAT IT HAS FAILED TO SUFFICIENTLY ALLEGE A RICO CLAIM	11
6.	THE REMAINDER OF EBAY'S VENUE RELATED ARGUMENTS FAIL	13
7.	CONCLUSION	15

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

FEDERAL CASES

1
2
3
4	Al-Abood v. El-Sfiamari ,
	217 F.3d 225 (4th Cir. 2000)	13
5	American Soda, LLP v. U.S. Filter Wastewater Group, Inc. ,
	428 F.3d 921 (10th Cir. 2005)	4
6
7	Civic Center Motors Ltd v. Mason Street Import Cars, Ltd ,
	387 F. Supp. 2d, 378 (S.D. N.Y. 2005)	10
8	Creative Computing v. Getloaded.com LLC ,
	386 F.3d 930 (9th Cir. 2004)	9
9
10	Da Cruz v. Princess Cruise Lines, Inc. ,
	2000 WL 1585695 (N.D. Cal. 2000)	1, 14
11	Diaz v. Gates ,
	420 F.3d 897 (9th Cir. 2005)	11
12
13	EF Cultural Travel BV v. Explorica, Inc. ,
	274 F.3d 577 (1st Cir. 2001)	7
14	Flip Mortgage Corp. v. McElhone ,
	841 F.2d 531 (4th Cir. 1988)	13
15
16	Garelli Wong & Associates, Inc. v. Nichols ,
	551 F. Supp. 2d 704 (N.D. Ill 2008)	9, 10
17	Gulf Offshore Co. v. Mobile Oil Corp. ,
	453 U.S. 473 (1981)	4, 5
18
19	H&R Block Tax Services, Inc. v. Riviera-Alicea ,
	570 F. Supp. 255 (D.P.R. 2008)	5
20	Hope v. Otis Elevator Co. ,
	389 F. Supp. 2d 1235 (E.D. Cal. 2005)	1
21
22	Hugel v. The Corporation of Lloyd's ,
	999 F.2d 206 (7th Cir. 1993)	3
23	Hunter v. J. Craig Constr. Co. ,
	51 F.3d 275 1995 WL 141359 (7th Cir. Marc. 30, 1995)	12
24
25	Ikuna v. Yip ,
	912 F.2d 306 (9th Cir. 1990)	12
26	International Airport Centers, LLC v. Citrin ,
	440 F.3d 418, on subsequent appeal 455 F.3d 749 (7 th Cir. 2006)	8
27
28	Lou v. Belzberg ,
	834 F.2d 730 (9th Cir. 1987)	5

1	M/S Breman v. Zapata Off-Shore Co. ,	1
2	407 U.S. 1 (1972)
3	Manetti-Farrow, Inc. v. Gucci America, Inc. ,	1
4	858 F.2d 509 (9th Cir. 1988)
5	Medallion Television Ent. v. SelecTV of California, Inc. ,	12
6	833 F.2d 1360 (9th Cir. 1988)
7	Milk N' More Inc. v. Beavert ,	4
8	963 F.2d 1342 (10th Cir. 1992)
9	Miller v. Glen & Helen Aircraft, Inc. ,	11
10	777 F.2d 496 (9th Cir. 1985)
11	Myers v. Bennett Law Offices ,	14
12	238 F.3d 1068 (9th Cir. 2000)
13	Nexans Wires S.A. v. Sark-USA, Inc., et al ,	10
14	319 F. Supp. 2d, 468 (S.D. N.Y. 2004)
15	Noerr Motor Freight, Inc. v. Eastern R.R. Presidents Conference ,	1
16	113 F. Supp. 737 (E.D. Pa. 1953)
17	Pacific Aerospace & Electronics, Inc. v. Taylor ,	8, 9
18	295 F. Supp. 2d 1188 (E.D. Wash. 2003)
19	Panavision International LP v. Toeppen ,	14
20	945 F. Supp. 1296 (C.D. Cal. 1996)
21	Pesnell v. Arsenault ,	11
22	543 F.3d 1038 (9th Cir. 2008)
23	Royce International Broadcasting Corp. v. Field ,	12
24	2000 WL 236434, 4 (N.D. Cal. 2000)
25	Scott v. Boos ,	12
26	215 F.3d 940 (9th Cir. 2000)
27	Shurgard's Storage Centers, Inc. v. Safeguard Self Storage, Inc. ,	10
28	119 F. Supp. 2d, 1121 (W.D. Wash. 2000)
	TAAG Linhas Aereas de Angola v. Transamerica Airlines, Inc. ,	3
	915 F.2d 1351 (9th Cir. 1990)
	Therapeutic Research Faculty v. NBTY, Inc. ,	10, 11
	488 F. Supp. 2d 991 (E.D. Cal. 2007)
	Ticketmaster LLC v. RMG Technologies, Inc. ,	7
	507 F. Supp. 2d 1096 (C.D. Cal. 2007)
	United States v. Sablan ,	8
	92 F.3d 865 (9th Cir. 1996)

1	ViChip Corp. v. Lee ,
2	438 F. Supp. 2d 1087 (N.D. Cal. 2006)	8
3	Woodke v. Dahm ,
4	70 F.3d 983 (8th Cir. 1985)	14

FEDERAL STATUTES

5	18 U.S.C. § 1030(e)	8
6	18 U.S.C. § 1030(g)	8
7	28 U.S.C. § 1391(b)	13

8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19 20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

Defendants Brian Dunning, Thunderwood Holdings, Inc. and Briandunning.com (collectively, "Defendants") reply to the Consolidated Opposition to Motions to Dismiss First Amended Complaint filed by Plaintiff eBay, Inc. ("Plaintiff" and/or "eBay") as follows:

1. EBAY HAS FAILED TO MEET ITS BURDEN OF PROOF THAT VENUE IS PROPER IN THE NORTHERN DISTRICT

eBay does not dispute that forum selection clauses are presumed valid under federal law and enforcement will be ordered unless it clearly would be "unreasonable and unjust, or the clause was invalid for such reasons as fraud or over-reaching." M/S Breman v. Zapata Off-Shore Co., 407 U.S. 1, 15 (1972); Manetti-Farrow, Inc. v. Gucci America, Inc., 858 F.2d 509, 512 (9th Cir. 1988). Rather, eBay argues that the venue selection clause contained in the Publisher Service Agreement ("PSA") does not govern because "eBay is not a party to the PSA and has never agreed to be bound by its terms." (Opposition at 17:20-21). eBay's argument fails.

eBay has the burden of proving that venue is proper in this District. Da Cruz v. Princess Cruise Lines, Inc., 2000 WL 1585695, fn. 2 (N.D. Cal. 2000) (Plaintiff bears burden of establishing that venue is proper in the forum in which the case is filed), citing, Ariola v. King, 505 F.Supp. 30, 31 (D.Az. 1980); see also, Hope v. Otis Elevator Co., 389 F. Supp. 2d 1235, 1243 (E.D. Cal. 2005).^{1/} eBay does not (and cannot) meet its burden overcoming the presumed validity of the forum selection clause contained in the PSA. In the Complaint eBay admits that "eBay used the services of CJ, a subsidiary of ValueClick, Inc., in administering the Affiliate Marketing Program." (Complaint at ¶ 20). In addition, eBay admits that on its behalf "CJ was responsible for, among other things, recruiting affiliates, tracking affiliate traffic, monitoring compliance with affiliates, preventing and detecting fraudulent activity, and paying affiliates using funds remitted by eBay." (Complaint at ¶ 20). Moreover, every aspect

^{1/} The Court can consider facts and evidence outside the pleadings and need not accept the pleadings as true in consideration of a Rule 12(b)(3) motion. Ordinarily, the question of proper venue is resolved through submission of evidence by affidavit or declaration. See Noerr Motor Freight, Inc. v. Eastern R.R. Presidents Conference, 113 F. Supp. 737, 745 (E.D. Pa. 1953).

1 of eBay's claims against Defendants arise from Defendants' participation in eBay's Affiliate
2 Marketing Program. (Complaint at ¶¶ 19 to 32). Indeed, only because Defendants were 3 "affiliates" in eBay's "Affiliate Marketing Program" pursuant to the PSA were Defendants
4 able to receive monies from eBay for "Revenue Actions," which eBay alleges Defendants
5 fraudulently manipulated. (Complaint at ¶ 19). Simply put, without Defendants' participation
6 as an affiliate in eBay's Affiliate Marketing Program via the PSA, the claims alleged by eBay
7 in the Complaint would not exist—there would have been no basis for eBay to make the very
8 payments to Defendants it now seeks to disgorge from Defendants by this Action.

9 Despite having the burden of proof as to venue, eBay presents absolutely no
10 evidence that CJ and Defendants did not enter into the PSA as alleged by CJ in CJ's complaint
11 filed in state court. Presumably eBay would have such evidence at its fingertips if such 12 evidence existed. Rather, eBay argues that "the KFC Defendants provide no basis for their 13 contention that eBay ever 'required' them to enter into the PSA, as none of the Defendants
14 claim that eBay demanded that they sign the 'T&C Supplement,' or that they ever signed the 15 document." eBay attempts to turn the burden of proof on its head. eBay submits no evidence 16 of the naked assertions it makes – more specifically, eBay presents no evidence that CJ and 17 Defendants did not enter into the PSA, no evidence that Defendants were not required to 18 enter into the PSA in order to operate as affiliates in eBay's Affiliate Marketing Program, no
19 evidence that eBay's T&C Supplement does not incorporate and supplant the PSA by its 20 terms (see Defendants' Exhibit "3"), no evidence that Defendants were not required to affirm
21 and/or agree to the T&C Supplement, no evidence that Defendants did not affirm and/or 22 agree to the T&C Supplement, and no evidence that CJ is not eBay's agent for the purposes
23 of eBay's Affiliate Marketing Program.^{2/} If such evidence exists there can be no question that

24
25
26 ^{2/} Likewise eBay submits no evidence supporting its argument that "the User Agreements
27 between eBay and the individual Defendants were violated and provide for venue in Northern 28 California." Despite the fact that this statement makes no sense in light of the myriad allegations as to the Affiliate Marketing Program contained in the Complaint, eBay does not so much as attach the alleged "User Agreements" to its papers, much less explain how purported User Agreements (i.e., presumably agreements entered into by those who use eBay's services) have anything to do with its claims.

1 it would be in the hands of eBay. Yet eBay's Opposition is completely devoid of any evidence
2 challenging the presumed validity of the subject forum selection clause.

3 It is important to note that eBay does not challenge the existence of the PSA, but
4 rather that it is not a party to the PSA. Yet, eBay ignores well established Ninth Circuit law 5 that a forum selection clause binds and can be enforced against non-signatories to the 6 agreement "so closely related" that they "should benefit from or be subject to" the clause.
7 TAAG Linhas Aereas de Angola v. Transamerica Airlines, Inc., 915 F. 2d 1351, 1354 (9th Cir.
8 1990) (A forum selection clause restricts a third-party beneficiary to the designated forum).
9 eBay admits in the Complaint that it benefits from the PSA and is, at the very least "closely
10 related" to the PSA. Defendants are part of eBay's Affiliate Marketing Program only as a
11 result of the PSA. As set forth above, every aspect of eBay's claims against Defendants arise 12 from Defendants' participation in eBay's Affiliate Marketing Program. (Complaint at ¶¶ 19 to 13 32). Indeed, in the T&C Supplement eBay expressly refers to "[Defendants'] participation in 14 the Affiliate Program maintained by eBay, Inc. through Commission Junction, Inc." and that 15 the T&C Supplement supplements the PSA.^{3/} Indeed, it cannot be reasonably disputed that 16 eBay was a third party beneficiary of the PSA if not a direct party to it on account of its agency
17 relationship with CJ and/or the express terms of the T&C Supplement. Nevertheless, as set
18 forth in Hugel v. The Corporation of Lloyd's, 999 F. 2d 206, 209-210 (7th Cir. 1993), third
19 party beneficiary status need not be found before binding a third party to a forum selection
20 clause although such a finding will suffice. The test is "closely related" and the foreseeability of 21 the enforcement of the clause on a third party. At the very least, eBay is closely related to the 22 PSA – directly receiving the benefits of the Affiliate Marketing Program while obligated to 23 pay commissions for "Revenue Actions."

24 / / /

25 / / /

26
27 ^{3/} The T&C Supplement expressly provides that "[i]f any of these Terms and Conditions 28 conflict with those of the PSA, then these Terms and Conditions will control." In addition, the T&C Supplement provides that the capitalized terms in the PSA and the T&C Supplement have the same meaning.

1 In sum, eBay has failed to, and cannot, meet its burden that venue is proper in
2 the Northern District in light of the forum selection clause contained in the PSA and subsumed
3 by the T&C Supplement.

4 2. THE VENUE SELECTION CLAUSE REQUIRES THAT THE CASE BE 5 DISMISSED AND NOT TRANSFERRED

6 The wording of a forum selection clause may properly limit litigation to 7 particular courts within a state: e.g., to state courts rather than federal district courts located in 8 the state. American Soda, LLP v. U.S. Filter Wastewater Group, Inc., 428 F. 3d 921, 926
9 (10th Cir. 2005) (“Courts of the State of Colorado” meant meant state courts not federal 10 courts); see also, Milk N’ More Inc. v. Beavert, 963 F. 2d 1342, 1345 (10th Cir. 1992). The 11 forum selection clause at issue in this case limits litigation to state courts except to the extent
12 “federal courts have exclusive jurisdiction.” Paragraph 9(d) of the PSA provides as follows:

13 This Agreement is governed by the laws of the State of California
14 (USA), except for its conflict of law provisions. The exclusive 15 forum for any actions related to this Agreement shall be in the 16 state courts, and, to the extent that federal courts have exclusive 17 jurisdiction, in Los Angeles, California. The parties consent to 18 such venue and jurisdiction and waive any right to a trial by 19 jury. (Emphasis added.)

20 Federal courts do not have exclusive jurisdiction over the federal claims alleged 21 by eBay in the Complaint. As such, the claims alleged by eBay can only be brought in state
22 court in Los Angeles. There are some matters that are within the exclusive jurisdiction of the 23 federal courts, but these are very few. Most claims, including most federal question claims, 24 are subject o the concurrent jurisdiction of federal and state courts. Gulf Offshore Co. v.
25 Mobile Oil Corp., 453 U.S. 473, 478 (1981). Indeed, in considering the propriety of state
26 court jurisdiction over any federal claim, it is presumed that state courts enjoy concurrent
27 jurisdiction. That presumption can only be rebutted by an explicit statutory directive confining

28 / / /

1 jurisdiction to federal courts or by clear incompatibility between state court jurisdiction and 2 federal interests. Gulf Offshore, supra, 453 U.S. at 478.

3 It is well settled that both federal law claims alleged by eBay in the Complaint
4 are subject to the concurrent jurisdiction of the state and federal courts. First, the CFAA does 5 not contain an explicit directive conferring exclusive jurisdiction and it has otherwise been held
6 that no exclusive federal jurisdiction exists as to civil actions under the CFAA. H&R Block
7 Tax Services, Inc. v. Riviera-Alicea, 570 F. Supp. 255, fn. 5 (D.P.R. 2008), citing, Prominent
8 Consulting LLC v. Allen Bros., 543 F. Supp. 2d 877, 884 (N. D. Ill. 2008). Likewise, civil 9 RICO claims are not within the exclusive jurisdiction of the federal courts. The seminal Ninth
10 Circuit case on the issue is Lou v. Belzberg, 834 F. 2d 730, 735 (9th Cir. 1987). The Lou court
11 determined that although there are persuasive arguments both for and against concurrent
12 jurisdiction, “the stronger arguments favor concurrent jurisdiction” as to civil RICO claims.

13 Therefore, the subject venue selection clause requires that the case be dismissed
14 since it cannot be brought in the federal court of any District. To the extent eBay re-files the 15 claims alleged in the Complaint against Defendants, such claims can only be brought in 16 Superior Court located in Los Angeles.

17 3. EBAY DOES NOT EFFECTIVELY REFUTE THAT IT HAS FAILED TO
18 SUFFICIENTLY ALLEGE THAT DEFENDANTS ACCESSED EBAY’S
19 COMPUTERS

20 As set forth in the Motion, a violation under subsection (a)(4) of the CFAA
21 involves someone who “knowingly and with intent to defraud, accesses a protected computer
22 without authorization, or exceeds authorized access, and by means of such conduct furthers the 23 intended fraud and obtains anything of value, unless the object of the fraud and the thing
24 obtained consists only of the use of the computer and the value of such use is not more than 25 $5,000 in any 1-year period.” (Emphasis added.) According to eBay’s Complaint, the “cookie
26 stuffing” scheme alleged involved the alleged placing of “cookies” by Defendants on internet
27 users’ computers, not on eBay’s computers. (Complaint at ¶¶ 21-28, 34 and 38 as set forth
28 above.) More specifically, eBay alleges that “cookies” are “stored in the user’s web browser”

1 (Complaint at ¶ 21), and that “cookie stuffing” is a term to describe the forced placement of a 2 cookie on a computer, typically by causing a cookie from a particular website to be placed on
3 the user’s computer. . . .” (Complaint at ¶ 24.) eBay alleges that “the cookie was stuffed on 4 the user’s computer by one or more Defendants. . . .” (Complaint at ¶ 27), and that 5 “[Defendants] used technology that would stuff cookies on only those computers that had not
6 previously been stuffed.” (Complaint at ¶ 28.)

7 In its Opposition eBay does not dispute that Defendants did not access its
8 computers. Rather eBay argues that Defendants caused unauthorized access to eBay’s 9 computers “through their agents” – the “unsuspecting web users.” (Opposition at 4:28 and 10 5:25-26). In other words, eBay argues that “unsuspecting web users” acted as agents for 11 Defendants by somehow accessing eBay’s computers. However, this contention is belied by 12 eBay’s description of the mechanics of the alleged “cookie stuffing scheme.” More 13 specifically, eBay alleges that the “cookie stuffing scheme” involved a three step process:
14 (1) Defendants drop a cookie on a web user’s browser when the web user visits Defendants’
15 website (Complaint at ¶¶ 21 and 24), (2) the web user subsequently visits (or is directed to)
16 eBay’s website and buys something (a “Revenue Action”) (Complaint at ¶¶ 22, 24 and 25), and 17 (3) while the user is at eBay’s site “eBay’s site drops a cookie on the user’s computer” for the 18 purpose of tracking which affiliate referred the user to eBay (Complaint at ¶ 22). As such,
19 according to eBay’s own allegations, Ebay accessed the web user’s computer, not the other
20 way around.^{4/}

21 Notwithstanding the alleged mechanics of the purported “cookie stuffing
22 scheme,” eBay’s argument that Defendants caused unauthorized access to eBay’s computers
23

24 ^{4/} Moreover, eBay’s allegations reveal that it may not have been eBay that dropped the 25 tracking cookie on the web user’s browser but rather CJ, i.e., “Ebay and/or Commission
26 Junction, Inc. (“CJ”) tracks this information using information placed in the new user’s
27 browser.” (Complaint at ¶ 19, 5:1-3, emphasis added). This allegation has two important 28 implications. First, any access alleged by eBay was to CJ’s computers and not eBay’s computers. Second, eBay cannot deny that CJ is its agent to the extent it brings its CFAA claim based on access to CJ’s computers. This being the case, there can be no question the PSA applies and that the case can only be heard in state court in Los Angeles. See, sections 1 and 2 above.

1 “through their agents” – the “unsuspecting web users,” fails on substantive grounds. eBay cites
2 only two cases for the proposition that the phrase “access a protected computer” set forth at 3 subsection (a)(4) of the CFAA can mean access not by the defendant, but by an “unsuspecting 4 agent” of the defendant. Neither of the cases cited by eBay support this unfounded position.

5 First, EF Cultural Travel BV v. Explorica, Inc., 274 F. 3d 577, 579 (1st Cir.
6 2001) does not support eBay’s argument. In EF Cultural the defendant was a competitor of the 7 plaintiff that hired a third party to develop a computer program to infiltrate the plaintiff’s
8 computers for the purpose of gathering proprietary information. As such, the relationship 9 between the defendant and the third party was a knowing agency relationship originated for the 10 purpose (known to both principal and agent) of infiltrating the plaintiff’s computer system.
11 eBay concedes that this is not the case here. eBay concedes that the web users had no idea of 12 the use to which their computers were allegedly being put. (Opposition at 5:25-26). Moreover,
13 as explained above, eBay concedes that it accessed web users’ computers as opposed the web
14 users accessing their computers. The link is not complete. The EF Cultural case is not on 15 point and certainly does not stand for the proposition that unsuspecting web users can serve as 16 agents for the purpose of “access” under the CFAA.

17 Ticketmaster LLC v. RMG Technologies, Inc., 507 F. Supp. 2d 1096, 1102-1103
18 (C.D. Cal. 2007) is likewise inapposite. Again, the third party doing the accessing in 19 Ticketmasters was not without knowledge of the alleged access. Indeed, the third party 20 accessors knew that the very purpose of the software sold to them by the defendant was to 21 access and manipulate the plaintiff’s computer system. Like the EF Cultural case,
22 Ticketmasters is not on point and certainly does not stand for the proposition that unsuspecting
23 web users can serve as agents for the purpose of “access” under the CFAA.

24 eBay does not dispute the authority cited by Defendants in the Motion that the 25 cases where the CFAA has been held to apply generally apply the standard, everyday meaning 26 of accessing a computer. For example, a substantial number of cases involving application of 27 the CFAA involve an employee of the plaintiff accessing by physically logging-on the 28 computers of the plaintiff to obtain or delete information on the employer’s computer system.

1 E.g., United States v. Sablan, 92 F.3d 865 (9th Cir. 1996); ViChip Corp. v. Lee, 438
2 F.Supp.2d 1087 (N.D. Cal. 2006); International Airport Centers, LLC v. Citrin, 440 F.3d 418, 3 on subsequent appeal 455 F.3d 749 (7th Cir. 2006); Pacific Aerospace & Electronics, Inc. v.
4 Taylor, 295 F.Supp.2d 1188 (E.D. Wash. 2003). As far as Defendants' research has revealed,
5 no case law exists where a scheme such as that alleged by eBay has been deemed an 6 "accessing" of computers within the contemplation of the CFAA.

7 Therefore, based on eBay's allegations, eBay has not (and cannot) allege that 8 Defendants accessed its computers as required to state a claim under the CFAA.

9 4. EBAY DOES NOT EFFECTIVELY REFUTE THAT IT HAS FAILED TO 10 SUFFICIENTLY ALLEGE DAMAGE OR LOSS UNDER THE CFAA

11 In order to state a cause of action under the CFAA, a plaintiff must allege 12 "damage" or "loss," as those terms are defined under the CFAA. 18 U.S.C. § 1030(g).
13 "Damage" is defined as "impairment to the integrity or availability of data, a program, a 14 system or information." 18 U.S.C. § 1030(e)(8). Loss is defined as "any reasonable cost to 15 any victim, including the cost of responding to an offense, conducting a damage assessment, 16 and restoring the data, program, system or information to its condition prior to the offense, and 17 any revenue lost, cost incurred, or other consequential damages incurred because of 18 interruption of service." 18 U.S.C. § 1030(e)(11). eBay does not effectively refute that it has 19 failed to sufficiently allege damage or loss under the CFAA.

20 In the Complaint, eBay relies on its allegations of improper payment of 21 commissions to KFC to satisfy the pleading requirement of "loss," but the Complaint lacks 22 allegations to meet the statutory requirement of "damage" even if, assuming arguendo, the 23 allegations of overpayment of commissions meet the requirement for pleading a "loss." The 24 Complaint does not contain allegations describing "any impairment to the integrity or 25 availability" of anything related to eBay's computer system. In fact, the Complaint does not 26 even attempt to allege "damage." Rather, the Complaint contains only vague allegations of 27 "harm" as a result of Defendants' alleged conduct. (Complaint, ¶¶ 37 and 38, 9:17 and 24).

28 / / /

1 eBay attempts to excuse its failure to plead “damage” by arguing that “no
2 authority requires eBay to plead damage with particularity.” (Opposition at 7:3-4). The 3 question is not whether “particularity” in pleading damage under the CFAA is required; the 4 Complaint lacks any pleading whatsoever regarding the statutorily required element of 5 “damage.” All elements of a claim for relief must be pleaded, and here the Complaint lacks
6 any allegations to meet the requirement of “damage” as defined in CFAA to state a claim under 7 Section (5)(A)(i).

8 The court in Creative Computing v. Getloaded.com LLC, 386 F.3d 930 (9th Cir.
9 2004) analyzed the meaning of “damage” under CFAA along with other issues. In Creative 10 Computing “damage” as defined by CFAA occurred because of impairment to the integrity of 11 the plaintiff’s computer system caused by hacking, an examination of the plaintiff’s valuable
12 source code, and piercing a security gap in its software system. Clearly, such conduct raises 13 the inference that the integrity of a computer’s database has been impaired as required by 14 CFAA. The Complaint contains no allegations that provide a similar inference of an 15 impairment of the integrity of eBay’s computer or database.

16 eBay also tries to circumvent its pleading requirement by citing Pacific
17 Aerospace & Electronics, Inc. v. Taylor, 295 F. Supp. 2d 1188 (E.D. Wash. 2003) to suggest 18 that pleading “damage” under CFAA can be done so easily because of the low monetary
19 threshold. However, even Pacific Aerospace does not suggest that pleading the damage
20 element of a CFAA claim can be completely ignored as eBay has done in the Complaint.
21 Moreover, in Garelli Wong & Associates, Inc. v. Nichols, 551 F. Supp. 2d 704 (N.D. Ill 2008)
22 the Court said that the Pacific Aerospace case “does not take into account that a civil violation
23 of CFAA requires ‘impairment to the integrity or availability of data, a program, a system or 24 information’ and ‘interruption and service.’”

25 In Garelli Wong there was alleged misuse of confidential and proprietary
26 information by the defendant, the Court nevertheless held that “integrity” as used in CFAA
27 means impairment of the “completeness, usability or availability of data” on the plaintiff’s 28 computer. Id. at 709. The Court dismissed plaintiff’s complaint under CFAA for failing to

1 “sufficiently plead damage under the CFAA.” Id at 710. The Garelli Wong case also 2 questioned the continuing reliability of Shurgard’s Storage Centers, Inc. v. Safeguard Self
3 Storage, Inc., 119 F. Supp. 2d, 1121 (W.D. Wash. 2000), on which eBay relies, by pointing
4 out “that the CFAA was amended after the decision” and “is no longer compelling in light of 5 the statutory amendments and other cases decided post-amendment.” Garelli Wong, supra at 6 710.

7 Two other important cases out of the Southern District of New York considered
8 the question of the pleading requirements for “damage” and “loss” under CFAA in response to 9 a motion to dismiss. The cases are Nexans Wires S.A. v. Sark-USA, Inc., et al, 319 F. Supp.
10 2d, 468 (S.D. N.Y. 2004) and Civic Center Motors Ltd v. Mason Street Import Cars, Ltd, 387
11 F. Supp. 2d, 378 (S.D. N.Y. 2005). In Nexans, on a motion to dismiss the Court observed
12 that plaintiff’s complaint “simply tracks the language of the statute.” Id. at 472. The Court
13 issued an order “directing plaintiffs to submit the facts upon which the alleged loss is based”
14 thus converting the motion to dismiss into a summary judgment motion. The evidence offered
15 by the plaintiff was not sufficient to satisfy the “loss” requirement of CFAA because it was 16 “unrelated to interruption of computer service” resulting in summary judgment in favor of 17 defendants. Id at 478. Similarly, the Civic Center Motors case said that CFAA requires 18 “damage to, or the inoperability of, the accessed computer system” and “costs not related to 19 computer impairment or computer damages are not compensable under the CFAA.” Id. at 381 20 & 382.

21 Finally, eBay attempts to argue that Therapeutic Research Faculty v. NBTY, Inc.
22 488 F. Supp. 2d 991 (E.D. Cal. 2007) provides guidance for this Court to resolve the issue of 23 pleading “damage” under the CFAA. However, Therapeutic Research does not provide the 24 support that eBay suggests. Therapeutic Research involved a limited access license to 25 plaintiff’s database purchased by one person for personal use being improperly used as a site
26 license for multiple users to access the database and which would have cost defendant much 27 more money. The defendant’s actions revealed a weakness in the plaintiff’s security and

28 / / /

1 software system resulting in a “disclosure of its information” that impaired the integrity of the 2 plaintiff’s database. Id. at 996.

3 eBay’s complaint does not raise similar issues. In eBay’s complaint, the issue is 4 not “impairment” of a computer or database; the issue is the interpretation of data provided by 5 the “cookies” on the internet users’ computer when they visit eBay’s website. In the words of 6 the Complaint at ¶ 25, the internet user is allegedly directed “to the eBay website without the 7 user actually clicking on an eBay advertisement link” created by defendant. Complaint, ¶ 25, 8 6:20-21. Then, when the internet user “later visited eBay intentionally, and not as a result of 9 any advertisement placed by Defendants,” eBay’s computer interpreted that a commission was 10 due Defendants. Complaint, ¶ 27, 7:6-9. eBay claims that this data incorrectly generated a 11 commission for the Defendants, whereas Defendants claim the information accurately entitled 12 them to a commission. This is a contractual dispute over the interpretation of the data from 13 “cookies” and does not come within the scope of CFAA as a question of impairment to the 14 integrity or availability of data on eBay’s computer.

15 For these reasons, the motion to dismiss the claim under CFAA must be
16 dismissed because eBay has failed to allege that Defendants improperly accessed eBay’s
17 computers or that Defendants caused damage to eBay as defined in CFAA.

18 5. EBAY DOES NOT EFFECTIVELY REFUTE THAT IT HAS FAILED TO 19 SUFFICIENTLY ALLEGE A RICO CLAIM

20 eBay does not dispute that the its RICO claim is based on a single alleged 21 scheme against a single alleged victim arising from a contractual relationship between the 22 parties. Rather, eBay argues, contrary to the cases cited by Defendants, that there is no
23 prohibition against RICO claims that involve only a single victim and a single scheme. In 24 support of this argument eBay sets forth a string of case citations without analysis. eBay does 25 not analyze, or otherwise explain the application of the cases cited because the cases simply 26 are not instructive on the issue.

27 More specifically, three of the cases cited by eBay, namely Pesnell v. Arsenault, 28 543 F. 3d 1038 (9th Cir. 2008), Diaz v. Gates, 420 F. 3d 897 (9th Cir. 2005) and Miller v. Glen

1 & Helen Aircraft, Inc., 777 F. 2d 496 (9th Cir. 1985), do not involve a pre-existing contractual
2 relationship between the parties and contain absolutely no discussion of the one victim/ one
3 scheme issue. The simple fact that cases exist which seem to involve a RICO claim involving 4 one victim and one claim does not support the argument that such claims withstand challenge
5 on the one victim one claim issue. The cases provide no guidance whatsoever on the issue.
6 The remaining cases cited by eBay, namely Scott v. Boos, 215 F. 3d 940 (9th Cir. 2000) and 7 Ikuna v. Yip, 912 F. 2d 306 (9th Cir. 1990), are likewise inapplicable. Although the cases 8 involve pre-existing business relationships, the cases contain absolutely no discussion of the 9 one victim/ one scheme issue.

10 In the Motion Defendants cite several cases which provide that allegations of a 11 single scheme perpetrated on a single victim and arising from a contractual relationship do not
12 constitute the “pattern” of racketeering activity that is a prerequisite to a civil cause of action
13 under the Act. It is well grounded that the purpose of the pattern requirement is “to weed out
14 garden variety fraud allegations and to prevent RICO from being misused as a tool wherewith
15 a disgruntled party may exact disproportionate vengeance against his partners or associates
16 when their business dealings turn sour.” Hunter v. J. Craig Constr. Co., 51 F3d 275 (Table), 17 1995 WL 141359, at 1 (7th Cir. Marc. 30, 1995); see also Medallion Television Ent. v.
18 SelecTV of California, Inc., 833 F.2d 1360, 1363-1364 (9th Cir. 1988) (RICO claim 19 dismissed—“this case involved but a single alleged fraud with a single victim.”); Royce 20 International Broadcasting Corp. v. Field, 2000 WL 236434, 4 (N.D. Cal. 2000) (“RICO was 21 not intended to provide Federal remedy to ‘every common law cause of action available to 22 remedy business deals gone sour.’”)

23 In response to these cases which are directly on point eBay attempts to draw a 24 distinction between the “limited schemes” involved in the cases cited by Defendants and the 25 “numerous acts of wire fraud” purportedly underlying its RICO claim. This is a distinction 26 without a difference considering it does not undo the fact already conceded by eBay that its 27 RICO claim is bases on one alleged scheme on one alleged victim arising from a pre-existing 28 contractual arrangement.

Moreover, eBay does not even address the two most powerful cases cited by Defendants for the proposition that a single victim, single scheme, contract based claim is not viable under RICO. Indeed, a single alleged scheme, even if alleged to have taken place over years, directed against a single victim, simply cannot constitute a “pattern” of racketeering activity for RICO purposes. See, e.g., Al-Abood v. El-Sfiamari, 217 F.3d 225, 238 (4th Cir. 2000) (series of events against single victim, alleged to inflict injury over a period of years, does not constitute a pattern within the meaning of RICO); Flip Mortgage Corp. v. McElhone, 841 F.2d 531, 538 (4th Cir. 1988) (same; to find otherwise would transform every business dispute into a cause of action under RICO). These cases go uncontested by eBay.

As set forth in the Motion, and supported by the case law cited, would-be RICO plaintiffs cannot recast ordinary commercial disputes as racketeering activity, even were alleged fraud is involved. eBay is a prime example of a would-be RICO plaintiff who is trying to manufacture a RICO complaint out of nothing. Even the most generous reading of the Complaint results in the realization that eBay’s RICO claim is not warranted. eBay does not, and cannot, state a claim under RICO against Defendants. eBay’s RICO claim must be dismissed.

6. THE REMAINDER OF EBAY’S VENUE RELATED ARGUMENTS FAIL

As set forth above, the forum selection clause in the PSA governs the claims alleged by eBay and restricts venue to the state court in Los Angeles. Notwithstanding, venue is not proper in the Northern District. Pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1391(b) venue in federal question cases is proper in the following judicial districts and no others: (1) if all defendants reside in the same state, a district where any defendant resides, or (2) a district in which a substantial part of the events on which the claim is based occurred, or (3) if there is no district where the action can otherwise be brought, the district in which any defendant may be found. eBay’s argument that a substantial part of the events on which the claim is based occurred in the Northern District is not well taken.

It cannot be reasonably disputed that the alleged events upon which the action is based could only have occurred where the named defendants reside or are located, i.e., the

1 Central and Southern Districts. In protecting defendants from being haled into court in a
2 remote forum, Congress' reference to "events or omissions giving rise to the claim" requires
3 court's to focus on the relevant activities of the defendant, not the plaintiff. Woodke v. Dahm, 4 70 F. 3d 983, 985 (8th Cir. 1985). eBay disputes neither the application nor the substance of
5 the Woodke case in this regard. In the Complaint eBay alleges that Defendants' alleged cookie
6 stuffing scheme was "accomplished through software programs or code." (Complaint at § 25).
7 It is axiomatic that the development of any such software or code was done at the Defendant's
8 locations in the Central and Southern Districts. Again, having selected the forum, it is eBay's
9 burden to prove otherwise. Da Cruz, supra, 2000 WL 1585695, fn. 2 (N.D. Cal. 2000),
10 citing, Airola, supra, 505 F. Supp. at 31. Moreover, eBay alleges that CJ, as its agent
11 administered the Affiliate Marketing Program on behalf of eBay, monitored traffic, monitored
12 compliance by affiliates, paid affiliates and prevented and detected fraudulent activity.
13 (Complaint at § 20). eBay alleges that CJ's headquarters are located in Santa Barbara which is 14 located in the Central District. (Complaint at § 28).

15 In addition, eBay's reliance on Panavision International LP v. Toeppen, 945 F.
16 Supp. 1296 (C.D. Cal. 1996) and Myers v. Bennett Law Offices, 238 F. 3d 1068 (9th Cir. 2000)
17 is misplaced. First, the Panavision case has absolutely no discussion of the venue issue.
18 Rather the case involved the propriety of granting summary judgment on issues of trademark
19 law. The only reference to venue is in the introduction paragraph of the opinion where the court 20 concludes in the final sentence (without any discussion or analysis) that "venue is proper under 21 28 U.S.C. 1391(b)(2) because a substantial part of the events giving rise to this litigation
22 occurred in California." This hardly supports eBay's position and does nothing to counter the 23 plain language of § 1391(b)(2) (i.e., "substantial part") nor the Woodke holding. Likewise, 24 Myers is of no aid to eBay. The Myers court's discussion of the venue issue in that case is 25 scant. In the very last substantive paragraph of the opinion, almost as an afterthought, the 26 court in conclusory fashion states that "at least one of the harms suffered by Plaintiffs...was 27 felt in Nevada. Accordingly, a substantial part of the events giving rise to the claim occurred
28 in Nevada." However, the Myers court does nothing to explain the inherent contradiction of this

1 statement. How is it that a single harm constitutes “a substantial part of the events giving rise
2 to the litigation?” Moreover, following the Myers court logic, the District in which the 3 plaintiff resides will always be the proper venue since a plaintiff will always allege to have
4 suffered harm. Section 1391(b)(2) does not provide that venue is proper where the Plaintiff
5 suffered harm, it states that venue is proper where a substantial part of the events on which the 6 claim is based occurred. The blip in Myers relied upon by eBay does not overcome the plain 7 language of the statute.

8 Finally, eBay fails to meet its burden with respect to the alleged residence of the 9 corporate Defendants. Once again, eBay argues conclusions and fails to submit any evidence of 10 its factual assertions as to the corporate Defendants’ alleged contacts with the Northern 11 District. As set forth above the burden is on eBay to factually establish the propriety of its 12 choice of venue and, in the context of a Rule 12(b)(3) motion, the court looks beyond the 13 pleadings and the matter is resolved by the submission of evidence by the party bearing the 14 burden of proof. eBay utterly fails in this regard.

15 Therefore, venue is not proper in the Northern District and the action should be 16 dismissed.

17 7. CONCLUSION

18 For each of the foregoing reasons, Defendants respectfully request that the Court
19 dismiss the Complaint with prejudice.

20
21 DATED: November 26, 2008

Respectfully submitted,

22 RUS, MILIBAND & SMITH
23 A Professional Corporation

24 By:
25 LEO J. RRESIADO
26 Attorneys for Defendants
27 Thunderwood Holdings, Inc., Brian Dunning
28 and BrianDunning.com

1 PROOF OF SERVICE

2 eBay, Inc. v. Digital Point Solutions, Inc., et al.
3 Northern District of California, San Jose Division
4 Case No. C 08-4052

5 STATE OF CALIFORNIA)
6) ss.
7 COUNTY OF ORANGE)

8 I am employed in the County of Orange, State of California. I am over the age
9 of 18 and not a party to the within action; my business address is 2211 Michelson Drive,
10 Seventh Floor, Irvine, California 92612.

11 On November 26, 2008, I served the foregoing documents described as 12 REPLY BY DEFENDANTS THUNDERWOOD HOLDINGS, INC., BRIAN DUNNING
13 AND BRIANDUNNING.COM TO OPPOSITION TO MOTION TO DISMISS
14 PLAINTIFF'S FIRST AMENDED COMPLAINT on the interested parties in this action by 15 placing a copy thereof enclosed in sealed envelopes addressed as follows:

16 SEE ATTACHED SERVICE LIST

17 ✓ As follows: I am "readily familiar" with the firm's practice of collection and processing
18 correspondence for mailing. Under that practice, it would be deposited with U.S.
19 Postal Service on that same day with postage thereon fully prepaid at Irvine, California
20 in the ordinary course of business. I am aware that on motion of the party served, 21 service is presumed invalid if postal cancellation date or postage meter date is more than 22 one day after date of deposit for mailing in affidavit.

23 — (By E-Mail) As follows: I caused the above-referenced document(s) to be transmitted to 24 the above-named persons.

25 — (By Facsimile) As follows: I caused the above-referenced document(s) to be transmitted 26 to the above-named persons by facsimile.

27 — (By Hand Delivery) As follows: I caused the above-referenced document(s) to be hand 28 delivered to the above-named persons.

— (By Overnight Delivery) As follows: By overnight delivery via Overnite Express and/or Federal Express to the office of the addressee noted on the attached service list.

Executed on November 26, 2008, at Irvine, California.

✓ (Federal) I declare that I am employed in the office of a member of the bar of this court at whose direction the service was made.

26
27 RHONDA RADFORD

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19 20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

SERVICE LIST

eBay, Inc. v. Digital Point Solutions, Inc., et al.
Northern District of California, San Jose Division
Case No. C 08-4052

David R. Eberhart
Sharon M. Bunzel
Colleen M. Kennedy
O'Melveny & Myers
Two Embarcadero, 20th Floor
San Francisco, CA 94111
Tel: (949) 984-8700
Fax: (949) 984-8701
Attorneys for Plaintiff eBay, Inc.

Stewart H. Foreman
Freeland, Cooper & Foreman, LLP
150 Spear Street, Suite 1800
San Francisco, CA 94105
Tel: (949) 541-0200
Fax: (949) 495-4332
Attorneys for Defendants Todd Dunning and Dunning Enterprises, Inc.

Seyamack Kouretchian
Coast Law Group. LLP
169 Saxony Road
Suite 204
Encinitas, CA 92024
Tel: (760) 942-8505
Fax: (760) 942-8515
Attorneys for Digital Point Solutions, Inc. and Shawn Hogan