Weil Patent Litigation Partners Named Top IP Lawyers in California

(April 7, 2011, Weil News)

Jared Bobrow, Matthew D. Powers and Edward Reines, litigation partners in Weil, Gotshal & Manges LLP's Silicon Valley office, were selected as Top Intellectual Property Lawyers in California for 2011 by The Los Angeles and San Francisco Daily Journal. The Daily Journal is a leading provider of print and online legal news and information in California. All were cited for their expertise in patent litigation matters over the past year.

Bobrow, co-head of Weil's Patent Litigation practice, was cited for obtaining dismissal of a major patent infringement suit filed against Micron Technology, Inc. and for his work on behalf of clients C.R. Bard, Inc. and Dell Inc.

Powers, who is co-chair of the firm's Litigation Department, was recognized for his role as co-counsel for Microsoft Corp. in a closely-watched matter that centers on establishing the evidentiary standard sufficient to invalidate a patent claim at trial, as well as his high-stakes win on behalf of Merck and Co., successfully protecting its patent on brain cancer drug Temodar®.

Reines was designated a top IP lawyer, recognizing, among other things, his appointment by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit to chair its advisory council. He has held similar positions in the patent law field, including past president of the Federal Circuit Bar Association and chairman of the Patent Rules Advisory Committee of the Northern District of California. This latest appointment is particularly noteworthy because Reines is based in California, rather than in Washington, DC where the court sits.

Weil's Patent Litigation practice, with more than 100 lawyers in five offices nationwide, has received extensive recognition as the leading patent litigation practice in the United States.
