1 Plaintiffs Pravin Jain, Randy Holthaus, Dilip Kukreja, Mark Warner, and Douglas Tanner
2 (collectively “Plaintiffs”) and Defendant Wipro, Inc. (“Wipro”) agree as follows:

3 The parties have been working diligently to complete discovery before the current 4 February 28, 2011 deadline for non-expert discovery set forth in the modified Case Management
5 Scheduling Order entered on December 14, 2010 (“Scheduling Order”) (Docket No. 51). This 6 discovery included depositions of key witnesses located in India. During the first two weeks of 7 February, 2011, the parties traveled to and conducted nine depositions in India, including Wipro’s
8 corporate representatives, a plaintiff, and non-party witnesses who live in India.

9 During these depositions, the parties discovered additional discovery that needed to be 10 completed, including the exchange of additional electronically stored information (“ESI”) 11 maintained in India on back-up drives or tapes by Plaintiffs and Defendant, and depositions of 12 additional witnesses. The parties are retrieving this ESI and processing it for production. The 13 exchange of this additional ESI will complete the parties’ production of the large volume of ESI 14 that has already been exchanged through the parties’ initial disclosures and written discovery.
15 The parties have also been working to schedule the depositions of the additional witnesses.

16 The parties have also not received the transcripts for the witnesses whose depositions were 17 completed in India. These deposition transcripts are of key witnesses, and will be used in moving 18 and/or opposing the parties’ respective motions for summary judgment/adjudication. Under the 19 current Scheduling Order, the parties would not have the transcripts to use in support of their 20 respective motions, since dispositive motions would be filed on March 3, 2011.

21 To allow the parties to produce the additional ESI, accommodate the witnesses’ schedules, 22 obtain the transcripts of the witnesses whose depositions were taken in India, and leave sufficient 23 time for trial preparation, the parties agreed to a short continuance of all pre-trial and trial dates.
24 The parties further agree this will be the final modification of the scheduling order.

25 Consequently, IT IS HEREBY STIPULATED between Plaintiffs and Wipro, through 26 their respective counsel of record, and pursuant to Civil Local Rule 6-2, that, to the extent 27 allowed by the Court’s calendar, the dates set forth in the Scheduling Order be modified as
