Techcrunch Tablet Prototype B

January 19th, 2009

Goto comments Leave a comment

There is an air of excitement permeating through Fusion Garage at the moment. Michael Arrington of Techcrunch just wrote an update on the Techcrunch Tablet Prototype B.

It's our software that is running on the tablet as demonstrated in the videos embedded in the article. We continue to work with Louis Monier on the feature set and the user experience. We are thrilled with this progress and would like to take the opportunity to thank Michael and Louis for giving us the opportunity to work with them on the Techcrunch Tablet.

Its early days yet but we are big believers of the Browser As An Operating System and the Techcrunch Tablet Initiative.

A nice way to begin 2009 here at FusionGarage !

Nice work guys! Expect a (semi?) "Techcrunch" effect soon. I'd love to get my hands on one of these prototypes.

Hi,

Nice work. I've been watching this project for a long time and would love to be a part of it.

How about the world's first-ever in-kitchen professional cooking school - a great application to promote the product with 1/3rd of the total internet population visiting cooking sites.

Here's the school: <http://rouxbe.com/school>

Let me know what you think.

Cheers

Joe

I saw in their post they mention that it is a WebKit browser. Which WebKit port is your browser based on?

I hope the Crunchpad don't lose USB master and the ability for the unit to run custom apps including those written in perl or python.

Nice work

Fusiongarage is 1 yr old!

February 4th, 2009

Goto comments Leave a comment

Today is officially Fusiongarage's 1st birthday!

The last year was pretty eventful. Though we started discussing about the team and company sometime in early January 2008, finding a name for the startup (with a url that was available!), getting a convenient office space, bringing together the initial team etc took us a bit of time. February 2008, we were just setting up fusiongarage's office space. By day, we were assembling furniture we bought from IKEA and by afternoon we were busy brainstorming our product idea. Once we settled on the core product idea, we set out to build a prototype application. We ended up building some really cool stuff in the next few months.

When we eventually had a demo-able version of our idea (it had a 'grander' vision of what we are building right now), it was also that time of the year, when TechCrunch had started accepting applications for the TechCrunch50 2008 conference.

We decided to send our entry and a few weeks later, we found ourselves at the demopit in the conference venue. We didn't really launch our product/startup there, the plan was to showcase the concept to the attendees, gauge their interest and gather feedback. People seemed to like our idea, and some interesting meetings were scheduled for the next few days.

The week following TC50, we also attended Mobilize '08 - a conference targeting the mobile web space, organized by GigaOm network. People liked our product idea there as well; we even won the audience choice award! There were a few very interesting observations made here as well.

So after a fruitful 3 weeks at SFO, we were back to Singapore, only to start preparing our software for the Intel Developer Forum, at Taipei, Taiwan. What better place to present our software to Intel based hardware manufacturers, than the IDF! So off, we went. (More of that later, as things get 'declassified' )

The collaboration with the Crunchpad project happened as a result of meetings we had with Mike Arrington and co, subsequent to TC50. We worked closely with Louis Monier in getting the software in shape for the hardware prototype B. We continue to work with them in getting the software in shape to make crunchpad a easy to use device. This is where we stand as of prototype-B: (Details over at TechCrunch's update)

As I said, the last year had been a very exciting year for FusionGarage. We expect that 2009 is gonna be no less exciting!

That said, I still remain really excited about your software that powers the CrunchPad. But is it really so hard to make it available for download or to set up a forge for community development? If you want to make business, you still can in providing support and implementation for specific hardware. Just open the shop... the rest will come.

Hi,

This is great. Make it cheaper than the iPhone and I'm sold. I'll be following this closely with keen interest.

If you're looking for a distributor in Australia, please let me know.
