

In re Google Buzz User Privacy Litigation, No. 5:10-cv-00672-JW

November 2, 2010

Dear Sir/Ma'am,

This is my notice that I believe the Court should not Approve the settlement. I have been using Google services since their inception and have absolutely had no issue with my personal privacy. In all services provided by Google, there is a very well defined privacy policy available to whomever uses the individual services. There is a User Agreement which exceeds the length of the Constitution of the United States. All people are required to agree to the User Agreement(s) prior to using the services.

Being realistic, many people, like myself, choose not to read the agreements and documents provided by Google. This has as much to do with my trust of Google as it does any laziness. Somebody claiming, "I didn't know," is basing that on not reading the agreements. Ignorance by choice is not grounds for a legal proceeding.

In my personal experience and opinion, Google has always acted with all due diligence in their dealings with the public. The instant an issue is identified, Google deals with it. Everything is always dealt with immediately.

With the well defined documents and agreements provided and required by Google, everybody has always had the ability to opt in or out of any Google service for any reason including privacy.

I own and control numerous domains which I manage with Google Apps. Google Apps virtually incorporates all Google services under one roof. These include, but are not limited to, greglambert.com, reooasis.com, eliselambert.com, ashleylambert.com, cjduffy.com, and many more. I also have a number of gmail accounts most notable, gbert.500@gmail.com

I am not employed by Google, nor is any of my income derived from Google. Additionally I own no Google stock.

Respectfully,

Gregory L. Lambert
