

For more info on Malaysia's strengths click here.

Kashmir Hill

THE NOT-SO PRIVATE PARTS

MY PROFILE MY HEADLINE GRABS MY RSS FEED

Sep. 1 2010 - 11:33 AM | 6,939 views | 0 recommendations | 20 comments

Maryland Woman Sues After Being Banned by Facebook

Update (Sept. 8): The judge appears skeptical of Karen Beth Young's complaint.

I've quipped before that "nowadays, if you're not on Facebook, it's possible you don't actually exist." It's become a (nearly worldwide) directory — instead of exchanging contact information these days, most people just friend each other. It's an essential forum for professional and social interactions. And for playing Lexulous and Farmville.

If Facebook signifies existence, then being banned by the network can feel like a death sentence. When my friend and Above the Law colleague David Lat was expunged from the network in 2008, he penned a column for The Observer calling it one of the worst weeks of his life. Lat was eventually reinstated after appealing his case through "Facebook's Kafkaesque justice system."

After being banned in July, Karen Beth Young of Maryland also tried to appeal her case to Facebook. After not getting any responses to her emails to the company, and not being able to talk to anyone on the phone, she went so far as to drive her 10-year-old station wagon across country to Facebook's headquarters in California. After a brief two-day reinstatement, her account was disabled again. Now she's taking her case to state court...

Young filed a complaint against Facebook in California (Hattip: tech law professor Eric Goldman for sending my way). In the August complaint, she alleges breach of contract, violation of her constitutional rights, and violation of the Americans with Disabilities Act — Young has bipolar disorder. Since it's a pro se complaint — Young does not have a lawyer — it's a bit messy, but according to Goldman, there's been "a groundswell of ADA litigation against websites and a court could have sympathy for the plaintiff." Young wants her account reinstated and appropriate damages.

What did Young do to get banned? Part of her frustration with Facebook stems from its opacity on the issue. Typically, Facebook disables people's accounts when they violate site policies and almost always after complaints from other users. Lat got kicked off the site after a law-student-beauty-queen-turned criminal complained that he used her Facebook photos in a blog post on Above the Law. Other violations might include sending messages that others deem "spammy," harassing, or vote now

4 diggsdigg

submit

176

SHARE

37 tweets

replying at

Karen Beth Young's Facebook profile photo pre-exile

Get the 2010 IBM Global CFO Study.

MY ACTIVITY FEED

Show all activity

KASHMIR'S HEADLINE GRAB 3 hours ago
Microsoft's chief privacy officer opens up
THEINQUIRER.NET

KASHMIR'S HEADLINE GRAB 7 hours ago
Yahoo reminds analytics customers over privacy
RESEARCH.LIVE.CO.UK

INTERESTED COMMENTS 4 days ago
"The first time "Facebook" is mentioned in a Supreme Court decision is going to be an exciting day for me."

Related to CALIFORNIA JUDGE SCOFFS AT KAREN BETH YOUNG'S FACEBOOK BANNING LAWSUIT

KASHMIR CALLED OUT 4 hours ago
 pacifcreporter
<http://www.scribd.com>

Commented on CALIFORNIA JUDGE SCOFFS AT KAREN BETH YOUNG'S FACEBOOK BANNING LAWSUIT
"I predict that this case will go to the Supreme Court, and that RBG will write an opinion holding that..."

RECOMMENDED BY FOLLOWERS 5 hours ago

MOST POPULAR

- 1. Dengair CEO's $11-million Victory in Online Defamation Lawsuit is Short-lived, as She Sued the Wrong Site
- 2. Maryland Woman Sues After Being Banned by Facebook
- 3. Anonymous Comments on TechCrunch To Blame for Skype Executive's Resignation?

otherwise offensive, especially if sent to non-friends. (Luckily, using Facebook to obsessively monitor the pages of exes is not a violation, or many, many users would be banned.)

Young joined Facebook in February 2010 and accumulated friends quickly. Just a few months later, at the time her account was disabled, the Shepherd University student says she had over 4,000 friends. She used the site to help promote her cancer awareness efforts and freely admits that she friended people she did not know in real life but who she thought would be interested in the cancer awareness cause. When her account was disabled, she reached out to Facebook and got this response from "The Facebook Team":

Your account was disabled because your behavior on the site was identified as harassing or threatening to other people on Facebook. Prohibited behavior includes, but is not limited to:

- Sending friend requests to people you don't know
- Regularly contacting strangers through unsolicited Inbox messages
- Soliciting others for dating or business purposes

After reviewing your situation, we have determined that your behavior violated Facebook's Statement of Rights and Responsibilities. You will no longer be able to use Facebook. This decision is final and cannot be appealed.

Young did appeal though, in person. She drove cross country to Facebook's offices, where a receptionist was unimpressed. "She told me, 'Oh, people have driven farther than you, from Canada,'" said Young. Young filled out a form, and soon discovered her account was reinstated. But when she got back to Maryland, she tried to sign in and was banned again. "I just started crying," Young said.

A Facebook spokesperson says that the company "take[s] the privacy of the people who use Facebook very seriously, including those whose accounts we've acted on in some way" and so would not comment on why Young's account was disabled.

"This lawsuit is without merit, and we will fight it vigorously," said the spokesperson. Facebook's lawyers at Orrick have filed a motion to dismiss the case.

I asked Young why she doesn't just start a new account. "That's violating Facebook law," she said. (Facebook rule: "If we disable your account, you will not create another one without our permission.") Plus, she wants all the friends and profile information back from her old account, along with the cancer awareness groups that she had set up.

With 500 million users, Facebook is increasingly a country of its own. But its legal system is a murky one, so be careful of running afoul of its laws -- by, for example, exporting your data or using the site to sleep around.

If banning does happen to you, this Facebook help page is where you go to plead your case. Hopefully, Facebook won't ignore your friend request.

Recommend Buzz Up! Reddit StumbleUpon Facebook Twitter Email this

Previous Post: Can Twitter Conversations Prove That People Don't Care about Facebook Privacy?

Next Post: In Social Media, Privacy Now Has To Be Part of the Sales Pitch

4. An airport worker (with a small penis) gets upset over revealing full-body scanners 1,112 views
5. The TSA scanner porn hoax lingers on 1,581 views

ABOUT ME

I'm a privacy pragmatist, writing about the intersection of law, technology, social media and our personal information. If you have story ideas or tips, e-mail me at khill@forbes.com.

I've hung out in quite a few newsrooms over the last few years. Most recently, I was an editor at Above the Law, a legal blog. In the past, I've been found in midtown Manhattan at The Week Magazine, in Hong Kong at the International Herald Tribune, and in D.C. at the National Press Foundation and the Washington Examiner.

I have few illusions about privacy -- feel free to follow me on Twitter: kashill. Or friend me on Facebook... though I might put you on limited profile. See my profile »

Followers: 35
Contributor Since: August 2010
Location: New York, NY

MY PROFILE MY RSS FEED
MY HEADLINE GRABS EMAIL ME TIPS

WHAT I'M UP TO

Past Work

You can check out my digital dossier here at Forbes or previously at Above The Law. In addition, these are some of the magazines and newspapers that I've written for:

- The Washington Post
- Washingtonian Magazine
- Time Out New York
- The Orange County Register
- The Washington Examiner
- Assembly Journal
- Next American City

Dividend Stocks for 2010 Turn on the Spicket and let the Income Flow from these 3 Stocks.

Dallas Coupons 1 ridiculously huge coupon a day. Get 50-90% off Dallas's best!

Best share investment 2 CORE Stocks that you need to Own as the Retail Industry Shifts.

Is Your Bank In Trouble? Free list Of Banks Doomed To Fail. The Banks and Brokers X List. Free!

Ads by Google

More on Forbes Right Now

Related Posts

California Judge Scoffs at Karen Beth Young's Facebook Banning Lawsuit

Facebook Scrambles After Bug Allowed Users To Read Private Chats

Anonymous Facebook employee dishes the privacy dirt

Facebook Gave Advertisers Names And Ages Of People Who Clicked Ads

How I use Facebook for reporting (And what I won't do)

Comments

DISPLAY

Active Conversation

Called-Out Comments All comments

7 Called-out Comments, 30 Total Comments

Post your comment »

1:52 pm on 09/01/10

Johnmx

There is no Constitutional right to Facebook.

This falls along the same lines of having your drivers license revoked.

It was fun to read though.

Log in to Reply

Flag for abuse

1:02 pm on 09/01/10

KASHMIR HILL
The Not-So Pr...

She won't get anywhere with the constitutional claims (that's a mistake made by a lawyer-less plaintiff), but the contractual and discrimination claims are interesting.

Plus, I'm impressed by the lengths she's gone to after being exiled, and I'm always happy to relate a good horror story — which is what I would call any story that involves being banned from Facebook.

Log in to Reply

Flag for abuse

Kashmir Hill: Maryland Woman Sues After Being Banned by Facebook

Facebook: Bipolar Are Us » Blog Archive » Maryland Woman Sues After Being Banned

3:58 pm on 09/01/10

FRANCESCA LEVY
Orb News

Getting banned from FB would be a nightmare. Gmail can also disable your account without explanation, and has an appeal process that is just as opaque. It happened to me not long ago.

I sympathize with Young — getting disconnected can send you into a tailspin. I eventually got my email account back (it had been hacked), but not before several anxiety-ridden days spent contemplating all the info I had stored over five years.

Young's case seems a little thin, but were she to succeed, I wonder if it would set a precedent for companies like Google?

Log in to Reply

Flag for abuse

6:11 pm on 09/01/10

evrenseven

How about not getting sucked in in the first place? I have no FB account, and I don't ever plan on making one either.

Log in to Reply

Flag for abuse

5:03 pm on 09/01/10

When I signed up with facebook three years ago, "Kitty" was not an "acceptable name" so I joined as "kittyspud™ Singleton.

They recently deactivated my account saying I have a fake profile. They have provided no information showing how I have violated TOS, that I am fake or why my account was targeted and deactivated. I have been a daily user for nearly 3 years.

They now want government documents sent via email to confirm that I am "real" I find this highly objectionable since FB is not privacy conscious what-so-ever and I have no faith that they are not simply building their "facial recognition" data base. I find this highly offensive and would like to issue a complain to the highest authorities on privacy. I'd join in this law suit, but I live in AUSTRALIA and can't make the trip to the US to make a formal law suit.

They also have not explained what is a "real name" and therefore how can I have a fake name when they themselves do not know what a real name is. I am not imaginary. Their automated systems suck and accepted kittyspud without any problem years ago...That's become my name on facebook and in other venues. I run support groups for trauma survivors and these people are suffering as well. My posts, my pictures, my daily logs are just gone. There was no warning. If they would enable the account so I could retrieve my data, I would gladly do so and move on, but they've not offered me that option either. I want my voice back!

Log in to Reply

Flag for abuse

6:09 pm on 09/01/10

"But ITS legal system is a murky one." I see Elie is still proofreading your columns?

Sorry, had to do it.

Anyone who drives cross country for a facebook account is bona fide crazy. Someday soon we going to turn on the news and what happened at the Discovery Channel today will be happening at Facebook HQ.

Log in to Reply

Flag for abuse

8:14 pm on 09/01/10

Nice to have you back.

Log in to Reply

Flag for abuse

7:47 pm on 09/01/10

I think it is important to appreciate different perspectives. But, communication can never exist if the parties don't make a genuine effort towards resolve or understanding. And, even what evrenseven noted with the tragedy at Discovery is very relevant. No one should ever wish those sort of things. The bona fide crazy comment really wasn't necessary but I can appreciate the concern behind it. The hostages could have been a part of anyone's family or loved ones and no one should ever be complacent in a lack of concern. This case has been very upsetting for a variety of reasons. The Cancer Forum page which helped approximately 1400 people had great meaning to a lot of people terminally ill. As did, the Cartesian Plane For The Cure site which was founded in mathematics and scientific research for cancer patients. The field of mathematics is rudimentary in tumor growth research and treatment options. Mathematics is the root of all branches of science and unquestionably has the ability to help save lives. That to include the lives of all people whether they are members of Facebook or not. That page had about 2700 people who cared about cancer research and the fight for life. Cancer does not discriminate; it divides and it doesn't know scientific limits. My mother and sister fight breast cancer. I've seen my grandfather die. No one should have to suffer from this disease and everyone should always try to do all they can to help save a life. Even if that means driving a 10 y/o car to FB. If headquarters was located elsewhere and there was no water, I would have driven further. Life is too precious.

Log in to Reply

Flag for abuse

7:55 pm on 09/01/10

ROTFLMAO!!! I don't care if I "don't exist" for Mark Zuckerberg and Facebook. I've had many accounts in different social networks. I've closed them all. Lots of irrelevant things, stupid games, lots of high school style gossip, spam, scams, malware, misunderstandings, plenty of foolishness to go around for centuries and many, many stupid people searching for relevance, spilling their guts but nobody listening or giving a damn.

Facebook fulfilled it's purpose for me long ago: to find old high school and college friends... and you know what? I regret finding some (many to tell the truth) of them. Facebook is overrated and I'm using other methods to stay in touch with my people, like lots of phone calls, email, Live Messenger and my private profile at Windows Live when I really want to share pictures or video or simply write a note to tell my friends that I care about them.
You wanna be relevant and remembered by the people that really matter in your life? Just pick up the phone and call them to say "Hey, I was just thinking about you. How's your life going?" It's that simple. 😊

Log in to Reply Flag for abuse

2:44 pm on 09/02/10

I agree. It is so disappointing to see people seemingly unable to function without Facebook or texting. I think I am the only one that doesn't do either.

Log in to Reply Flag for abuse

3:37 pm on 09/01/10

If Facebook was considered more of a utility would it be less likely people would be able to get banned? It's hard to tell exactly what Facebook's problem is and that makes it really scary.

Log in to Reply Flag for abuse

8:59 am on 09/02/10

There are actually thinkers out there suggesting that the site should be regulated like a utility, notably danah boyd: <http://www.zephoria.org/thoughts/archives/2010/05/15/facebook-is-a-utility-utilities-get-regulated.html>

Log in to Reply Flag for abuse

3:37 am on 09/01/10

Zuckerberg has predicted that Facebook is on its way to being an essential utility, like clean water or electricity. Already, for many, it counts for a lot more than land line telephone service, which is heavily regulated.

As it achieves that status, the pressure to regulate Facebook will increase. Whether it can avoid that, with the costs inherent in being regulated, depends in part on whether it continues to be high handed and cavalier in the way it treats users, or whether it grows up and treats its users responsibly.

Given that Zuckerberg seems like a punk from the day he allegedly stole the idea, and that the GC seems to be a right wing ideologue, my bet is that they will continue to be irresponsible, and that pressures to put them under some meaningful regulation will continue.

Log in to Reply Flag for abuse

10:49 am on 09/02/10

As we become more deeply invested in our online representation of our selves, we value them more highly. That the value, care and maintenance of them isn't yet recognized by the law may simply be a marker that the law hasn't caught up. That has happened before.

Another part of the problem here is that she was using Facebook as a publishing platform to strangers, not just physical-world friends. The strangers complained, even though they had accepted her as a "friend." Do they bear any responsibility for the spam they receive from her? Or are there already unwritten rules about the expectations of "friending" strangers?

Full confession: I accept requests from strangers. And several of them mass email me their gunk. But I sort of feel like I asked for it by taking them on.

Log in to Reply Flag for abuse

1:13 am on 09/02/10

The real issue here goes beyond social online networking.

"The Cartesian Plane For the Cure" was a scam, and Karen solicited donations for her non-existent "non-profit" group. Anyone who dared to ask, "What does CPFTC actually do?" was given a non-answer. Here is an actual response from Ms. Young after an inquiry asking, "What does CPFTC do?":

"Thanks for your note and you have great questions. Currently, I have been overwhelmed with an outreach of support based on the concept of saving lives in general founded in basic scientific principles of mathematics. As we speak, I have a list of volunteers that I can not get back to because the official administrative outline has not been finalized. The essential nature of the cause has everything to do with that. I believe a long and slow process for all the right reasons has validity now, and I do not want to push anything. I look forward to sharing all new administrative developments ongoingly as they are procured. I believe the solid foundation of any cause is essential to the long term success of its goals. There is a lot to be said for the topics you mentioned and many more as well. I can guarantee you that the end result is life. I hope that helps for now and I appreciate your concern and support. Please feel free to post any comments or links that you believe are important from a general concern standpoint at this time. Look forward to speaking with you again and sharing more.

Thanks again,
Karen ☺"

Anyone who asked, "Where do the donations go?" was deleted. Anyone who dared to push the issue and ask again about donations was threatened with legal action.

Ms. Young is not a scientist. Nor does she have a degree in Mathematics. However, she IS taking a math class at a local college. The phone number she listed on her CPFTC website traced back to a rental cabin in Western MD.

Ms. Young has a history of bogus lawsuits against people whom she feels have wronged her. Here is a link to one such article where her landlord tried to evict her, and she subsequently planted drugs in his car and filed a sexual assault complaint, thus nearly ruining his career. He was found innocent and was exonerated of the charges. http://www.fredericknewspost.com/sections/news/display\_comments.htm?StoryID=97839

(The interesting part is in the comments section where her mental state spirals into nonsensical garble as she tries to defend her stance.)

Yes, Ms. Young had thousands of "fans" for her "Cartesian Plane For the Cure," but it was more of a "build it and they will come" fanbase, rather than based on legitimate cancer research.

For someone to prey on the sympathies of anyone who has been touched by cancer (and who hasn't?) in order to solicit funds and fulfill a obvious lifelong need for respect and adoration, is disgusting. Facebook did us a favor.

Log in to Reply

Flag for abuse

2:43 pm on 09/01/10

 karenbethyoung

In coming forward to address the cancer issue, my love of mathematics and my desire to continue to help others, I knew that certain people would lash out against me. But, in life, if you live in fear of how or why someone else wants to interpret your own life struggles, you are not really being your best or being true to others. I can understand why people use the concept of judgement for its intellectual and technical meaning, but, when it is applied without true comprehension or merit it can be very negative. Words and actions not taken in their proper context can adapt a whole new meaning. And, it's easy for people to forget about that or to just not think about it. Annhan has said some things that are true and very valid. However, annhan has also misrepresented my life and my life circumstances to this forum. The quote she listed is true and was written by me. Every message I ever sent or received on FB I have asked to be saved by the court as evidence. Facebook is the one who is objecting to the preservation to evidence, not me. The Cartesian Plane For The Cure has never been, nor currently is a scam. The CPFTC is the most genuine non-profit ever listed with the business office in Baltimore, Md. I absolutely have no idea why annhan is lashing out at me, but she/he is very wrong in doing so. Annhan is absolutely correct that I didn't address the money issue. That is very true, I didn't set up the CPFTC to take money from people. When I started with FB I just did basic things like everyone else with an emphasis on liking pages that were scientifically and cancer based. In so doing, I met many people who were terminally ill and friended them. In so doing, I found some of the most beautiful and sincere friendships that had great meaning. One woman was suicidal and our conversations made her feel inspired and hopeful. People began to ask me to do more because I am so passionate about the cancer cause. While taking classes, I decided to start the Cancer Forum for more discussion and support for those with illness. Then, I started the CPFTC for my love of mathematics and science. The CPFTC was more technical in nature and sought to make others aware of mathematical research and ongoing efforts in this realm. Both pages took off very fast and people really wanted to do more and they wanted me to do more. I was tired and felt like I had a lot on my plate but still wanted to help. I started the Cartesian Plane For The Cure as a non-profit to hopefully be able to give back more when I was done with school. It was just an idea for something better for more people down the road. Some started asking about how to donate and I wasn't ready for that. And, I didn't know how to deal with my upset with money aspect with Facebook. So, I never took one penny (.01) from any person or business. That wasn't my goal. My goal was support for those fighting cancer and to work on my course work. I was told as a non-profit I had to address the money issue but I refused and ignored money. Also, and more importantly, I never deleted anyone for asking about donations. Any/all deletions are very, very important and that is something that Facebook needs to share with the court. Annhan's representation in this realm is totally wrong. The definition of a scientist includes - a person who studies or practices any of the sciences or who uses scientific methods. It might behoove annhan to try to apply the scientific method in her/his own life in the future so as to not flood the Internet with falsities. I do not have a mathematics or biochemistry degree. I never advertised that I had a mathematics or biochemistry degree. These are two life long areas of interest with the former being my greatest desire. I attended classes at Shepherd University and Hood College in both realms. While I have well over 100 credits, my course work is very spread out and diverse. And, I love to read books at home. While on financial aid and student loans I sought to work in exchange for housing. While in Frederick, Md. a local doctor offered me housing in exchange for work. I am anti-drug use or abuse. There is no one on the face of this planet that hates drugs and all of the effects of them that taint society, more than me. Annhan's statement that I planted drugs is a direct lie. While the doctor was pushing drugs and sex on me, I had no idea that he had drugs in his car. I called the police for help. Annhan should be aware that libel and slander are reasons for a lawsuit and that I have a history of standing up for myself, where others like to take an occasional crap. The cancer cause is not a joke nor is it a place for blatant misrepresentation by others. Annhan, please provide the forum with your real name, real phone number, and real address so I can call you as a witness in this case to testify. Thank you for being truly concerned about the cancer cause.

Log in to Reply

Flag for abuse

Pingback: Woman Sues After Getting Kicked Off Facebook | Rafael Marquez Online

Pingback: Moontown » Blog Archive » Booted from Facebook, woman sues

Pingback: billy » Blog Archive » Blind Drunk Justice, Episode 2

11:08 am on 09/04/10

karenbethyoung

Some people have asked about the Facebook attorneys. These are the attorney's I have worked with and have knowledge of.

Orrick, Herrington & Sutcliffe LLP
1000 Marsh Road Menlo Park, CA. 94025 - <http://www.orrick.com>

-List of Defense Counsel to date:

- 1) Attorney Julio Avalos - Intellectual Property - Managing Associate
- 2) Attorney Morvarid Metanat - Intellectual Property - Associate
- 3) Attorney Thomas Gray - Intellectual Property - Partner
- 4) Attorney Theresa Sutton - Intellectual Property - IP Litigation
- 5) Attorney Neel Chatterjee - Intellectual Property - Partner
- 6) Attorney Gary Weiss - Intellectual Property - Chair Partner

Log in to Reply

Flag for abuse

8:33 pm on 09/04/10

karenbethyoung

This post is for the people asking about administrative/motion paperwork;

History of Motions

1 - A. EX PARTE APPLICATION FOR PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION AND NOTICE OF MOTION FOR PERMANENT INJUNCTION, SUPPORTING DECLARATION OF KAREN BETH YOUNG

B. Motion denied by Judge Elfving - Improper paperwork procedure

C. Filed August 4, 2010 in Superior Court of California

2 - A. EX PARTE APPLICATION FOR PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION AND NOTICE OF MOTION FOR PERMANENT INJUNCTION, SUPPORTING DECLARATION OF KAREN BETH YOUNG

B. Temporary Restraining Order issued by Judge Elfving, Defendant ordered to appear in Superior Court of California, Dept. 21 on August 31, 2010. - Defense counsel missed hearing date

C. Filed August 9, 2010 in Superior Court of California

3 - A. DEFENDANT FACEBOOK, INC'S EX PARTE APPLICATION FOR AN ORDER VACATING, OR, IN THE ALTERNATIVE, MODIFYING COURT'S TEMPORARY RESTRAINING ORDER OF AUGUST 9, 2010 PURSUANT TO C.C.P. SECTIONS 532 AND 1008 & DECLARATION OF KAREN BETH YOUNG IN COMPLETE OPPOSITION OF DEFENDANTS MOTION TO VACATE OR MODIFY ORDER

B. Motion vacated per Judge Elfving - Defense advised of possible sanctions

C. Filed August 11, 2010 in Superior Court of California

4 - A. (Through the use of e-filing after plaintiffs email notice to defendant Thursday, August 12 at 12:16 pm and copy of motion delivered August 13 at 9:00 am regarding plaintiff's intent of filing - EX PARTE APPLICATION FOR RENEWED MOTION W/4 EXHIBITS) DEFENDANT FACEBOOK, INC'S NOTICE TO ADVERSE PARTY OF REMOVAL TO UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

B. Motion granted per general procedure rules of court per Judge Elfving – Plaintiff advised that EX PARTE APPLICATION FOR RENEWED MOTION W/4 EXHIBITS was unable to be heard at this time per jurisdiction rules of court.

C. Filed August 13, 2010 at 11:22 am via electronic filing
Filing discussed August 16, 2010 per Judge Elfving during plaintiffs exparte hearing for RENEWED MOTION W/4 EXHIBITS

5 – A. DECLINATION TO PROCEED BEFORE A MAGISTRATE JUDGE AND REQUEST FOR REASSIGNMENT TO A UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE

B. Motion granted per general procedure rules of court per The Executive Committee. Case reassigned to Judge Jeremy Fogel for all further proceedings and Magistrate Judge Patricia V. Trumbull for all discovery matters.

C. Filed August 18, 2010 in United States District Court

6 – A. Motion For Order To Preserve Evidence And Supporting Papers

B. Motion unheard at this time

C. Filed August 23, 2010 in United States District Court

7 – A. APPLICATION TO PROCEED IN FORMA PAUPERIS AND SUPPORTING PAPERS

B. Motion unheard at this time

C. Filed August 23, 2010 in United States District Court

8 – A. DEFENDANT FACEBOOK, INC.'S NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION TO DISMISS PURSUANT TO FED. R. CIV. P. 12(b)(6)

B. Motion scheduled for October 15, 2010

C. Filed August 24, 2010 in United States District Court

9 – A. PLAINTIFF'S MOTION IN OPPOSITION TO, DEFENDANT FACEBOOK, INC.'S NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION TO DISMISS PURSUANT TO FED. R. CIV. P. 12(b)(6)

Log in to Reply

Flag for abuse

Facebook will remove this comment if you report it as abusive.

3:45 pm on 09/03/10

karenbethyoung

Thank you to all of the page members and supporters of the Cartesian Plane For The Cure. Thanks for your true concern and honest interest and dedication to the cancer cause. No one should ever have to suffer from this disease and all should do what ever they can to help alleviate it. Also, thanks to those who have done so much in the field of mathematics and science all the while caring about medical research, developments and the entity of life. Warm wishes to you all and special thanks to friends, mentors and contributors:

Professor Anil Nerode – Cornell University
Goldwin Smith Professor of Mathematics

Professor Neta Bahcall – Princeton University
Eugene Higgins Professor of Astrophysics

Professor John Bahcall – Institute of Advanced Study
National Medal of Science

Professor David Vogan – MIT
Professor of Mathematics

Also, appreciation for the heartfelt and earnest concern, friendship and support of:

The Tim McGraw Family -
To include, Mr. McGraw, Carl McGraw,
Henry McGraw and Mark McGraw

The Tug McGraw Foundation &
Team McGraw

Professor Tim Dalrymple – Harvard Univeristy
Ph.D. in Religion & efforts on behalf of distinguished
William Stuntz – Harvard University
Professor of Law

Dr. Brian Lawenda – Harvard Medical School
Clinical Director, Radiation Oncology, U.S. Naval Medical Center

Log in to Reply

Pingback: bily » Blog Archive » Blind Drunk Justice, Episode 2 - Again

10:30 pm on 09/07/10

Dear Facebook,
 I received a notice from the Better Buisness Bureau regarding the original complaint that I filed with them. It states that my account has generated activity and that a response is needed by me at this time. Here is the email -
 Complaint Description - Posted 8/19/2010
 Company's Response
 Company's Initial Response - Posted 09/05/2010
 We will do our best to assist you with this matter but will need additional information. Please provide as much of the following account information as possible: • Your full name as it appears on Facebook • Your date of birth (month/day/year) • Any school or work networks you were in (e.g., Stanford University network) • Email address originally associated with your account • A link (URL) to your profile on Facebook Once we have this information, we will take further steps to assist you. The Facebook Team

Just wanted to say thanks again for being so sincere and caring so much, Karen

Log in to Reply

Flag for abuse

Pingback: Facebook - No more friends, unless you advertise | ADVERTIFIC

Pingback: California Judge Scoffs at Karen Beth Young's Facebook Banning Lawsuit -

DISPLAY

Log in for notification options

Called-Out Comments All comments

Comments RSS