

United States District Court
For the Northern District of California

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
SAN JOSE DIVISION

PATRICK JOSEPH MCCABE,)	Case No.: 11-CV-00003-LHK
)
Petitioner.)	ORDER DENYING EX PARTE
v.)	MOTION AND DISMISSING PETITION
)	WITH LEAVE TO AMEND
UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,)
)
Respondent.)

On January 3, 2011, Petitioner, via counsel, submitted an “Ex Parte Motion to Take Judicial Notice and for Immediate Ruling on Petition for Writ of Habeas Corpus.”¹ The ex parte motion requests this Court to: 1) review the decision of another district court denying bail in Petitioner’s underlying extradition proceeding; and 2) deny the petition for habeas corpus in this action in order to “facilitate judicial review” in the court of appeals. Petitioner’s underlying extradition case is assigned to the Honorable Richard Seeborg, and has been referred to Magistrate Judge Nandor J. Vadas. See In the Matter of the Extradition of Patrick Joseph McCabe, Case No. 3:10-XR-90622-RS. An extradition hearing is scheduled for January 31, 2011 before Judge Vadas. On December 28, 2010, in the underlying extradition case, Petitioner filed an appeal to the Ninth Circuit regarding Judge Vadas’ decision to deny bail.

¹ Petitioner did not comply with Civil Local Rule 7-10, which only allows for ex parte motions when a statute, Federal Rule, local rule or Standing Order authorizes such motions. Plaintiff has cited no such statute, Federal Rule, local rule or Standing Order authoring his ex parte motion for an immediate ruling on his habeas corpus petition.

1 Petitioner has cited no authority granting this Court jurisdiction to review, and potentially
2 grant the extraordinary remedy of habeas relief, while an appeal on exactly the same issue is
3 pending at the federal court of appeals. The general rule is just the opposite: “the filing of a notice
4 of appeal divests a district court of jurisdiction over those aspects of the case involved in the
5 appeal.” See Stein v. Wood, 127 F.3d 1187, 1189 (9th Cir. 1997). Petitioner does cite to one case,
6 Paretti v. United States, 122 F.3d 758 (9th Cir. 1997), for the supposed proposition that “[t]his
7 indirect method of review is traditionally used because of legal questions of whether an order
8 denying bail in an extradition proceeding can be directly appealed to the Court of Appeals.” See
9 Petitioner’s Ex Parte Motion at 2 [dkt. #3]. Paretti, however, is procedurally distinct because it did
10 not involve simultaneous review of a habeas petition while an appeal on the same issue was
11 pending. In fact, the Ninth Circuit in Paretti actually reviewed on direct appeal a magistrate
12 judge’s decision (affirmed by the district judge) denying bail in an extradition proceeding. See 122
13 F.3d at 760. Moreover, Circuit precedent does not support Petitioner’s argument. See United
14 States v. Kirby (In re Kirby), 106 F.3d 855, 860 (9th Cir. 1997) (holding that district judges’ bail 15 decisions in extradition cases are final, appealable orders). Although Kirby involved the appeal of 16 a district judge’s decision denying bail, the Ninth Circuit, in dicta, did recognize its jurisdiction to
17 review a decision to grant or deny bail “by a magistrate or district judge to a potential extraditee.”
18 See id. at 861. Petitioner has provided no other authority to support his argument that the “indirect
19 method,” i.e., filing a petition for a writ of habeas corpus in the hopes it will be denied and then
20 appealable, is “traditionally used” in extradition bail proceedings. Petitioner’s own direct appeal
21 on the denial of bail suggests otherwise.

22 Accordingly, Petitioner’s ex parte motion is DENIED, and the Petition for a Writ of Habeas
23 Corpus is DISMISSED WITH LEAVE TO AMEND. Any amended petition must sufficiently
24 respond to the deficiencies identified above.

25 IT IS SO ORDERED.

26
27 Dated: January 7, 2011

LUCY H. KOH
United States District Judge