Case No.: C 11-00234 EJD (PSG)
ORDER RE PARTIES' AUGUST 9,
2012 MOTIONS
(Re: Docket Nos. 231, 232, 238)

On July 3, 2012, Plaintiff Lantiq Deutschland GMBH (“Lantiq”) and Defendants Ralink Technology Corporation, a California corporation, and Ralink Technology Corporation, a Taiwanese corporation, (collectively, “Ralink”) participated in a court-ordered conference held in San Jose to resolve outstanding discovery disputes. While the parties devoted nearly six hours of time and provided tentative assurances to the court that most of their discovery disputes had been, or likely would be, resolved short of further court intervention, one month later they filed three additional motions on many of the same issues: (1) Lantiq’s motion to preclude ADMtek products from Ralink’s list of accused products; (2) Ralink’s motion to compel scheduling of depositions; and (3) Lantiq’s motion to compel production of MediaTek information. The parties oppose each other’s respective motions. On August 9, 2012, the parties appeared for hearing. Having reviewed the papers and considered the arguments of counsel,

1 IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that Lantiq's motion to preclude ADMtek products from
2 Ralink's list of accused products is DENIED.

3 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Ralink's motion to compel scheduling of depositions is
4 GRANTED.

5 No later than 2PM today, Lantiq shall tender dates for Ralink to depose any remaining
6 witnesses, including Joerg Hauptmann, Gregor Groew, Gunther Stang, Paul Goodwin, Imran
7 Hajimusa, Hubert Christl, Fitz Geissler and any Rule 30(b)(6) designees. All noticed depositions
8 shall be completed by August 31, 2012.¹

9 IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Lantiq's motion to compel MediaTek information is
10 GRANTED.

11 No later than August 17, 2012, Ralink shall produce all responsive documents in its 12 possession, custody or control.

13 IT IS SO ORDERED.
