DECLARATION OF AMY STEVENS IN SUPPORT OF REUTERS' OPPOSITION TO MOTIONS TO SEAL TRIAL AND PRETRIAL EVIDENCE

Date: No hearing set
 Time: N/A
 Place: Courtroom 1, 5th Floor
 Judge: Hon. Lucy H. Koh

23 I, Amy Stevens, declare:

24 1. I have personal knowledge of the facts set forth below, except as to those stated on 25 information and belief, and as to those I believe them to be true.

26 2. I am employed by Reuters America, LLC as the executive editor, professional 27 news. The following is a short summary of my experience: I was a reporter at the Wall Street
 28 Journal (“WSJ”) from 1990-96; I served in various editing roles for the WSJ from 1996-2000; was deputy page one editor of the WSJ from 2001-2003; editor of the Weekend Journal of the WSJ from 2004-2006; deputy editor of Conde Nast Portfolio magazine from 2006-2009; and have held my current job since June 2010.

Reuters is the largest independent international news agency in the world. Each day its news and insight reaches over one billion people, including 430,000 financial professionals

1 around the world who subscribe to Thomson Reuters desktop products, hundreds of thousands 2 legal and tax and accounting professionals, 35 million visitors to Reuters web sites each month
3 and 650 TV clients, 1700 text media clients and 1,000 pictures and graphics clients.

4 3. I am well-acquainted with media coverage of this lawsuit. Business and 5 technology reporters from many media organizations are closely following this lawsuit due to the 6 widespread interest in the disputes between Apple and various companies, including Samsung,
7 that utilize Google's Android operating system. Mainstream business outlets like the Wall Street
8 Journal, Bloomberg and Reuters tend to focus coverage on the case's strategic impact on the 9 companies, including financial risks for shareholders; publications like The Recorder analyze 10 legal tactics, and sites like The Verge dig into the technology.

11 4. Our organization is providing detailed reporting and analysis on the case because 12 our subscribers here in North America and in Asia are interested in the information. Some 13 subscribers follow developments in the wireless devices industry, for example. Other subscribers 14 are retail and institutional investors who may own stock in Apple, Samsung, or both.

15 5. Our reporting on the case also facilitates a broad discourse on the interesting and 16 important issues presented by the case. Our stories, either on Reuters' own platforms or 17 transmitted on the wire, are picked up or otherwise incorporated into the reporting, analysis and 18 commentary of many others.

19 6. Although certain colorful aspects of this case (such as Steve Jobs' supposed 20 declaration of "thermonuclear" war on Android) have increased the limelight on the case, Reuters 21 believes that the journalistic value of the case derives from having a complete picture of the 22 evidence and arguments.

23 7. Our organization, like others in journalism, sees this public and open jury trial as a 24 rare opportunity to inform the public about the workings of our justice system, and particularly 25 patent law, which has been much in the spotlight because of its use and possible abuse in many 26 cases but which may not be well understood by the general public.

27 8. I am informed and believe that the public is particularly interested in this case 28 because it is a major dispute between corporate giants that are leaders in the most popular
