Mike and Eric,

Here is a new redline. We edited one sentence to make clear that we only provided Apple with 3 claim charts in early January and that Samsung will be serving supplemental contentions for the other 9 Samsung patents as well. We also do not agree that the parties cannot retake depositions. That language needs to be removed as I explained last night.

Mike – Can we have a call in an hour or so to finalize this?

Thanks, Todd

Eric,

Can you explain what would constitute good cause to retake a deposition?

Thanks, Todd

Eric,

I accepted all of the changes in the redline you sent and made a few additional redlines in the attached document. We removed the statement Apple added regarding the retaking of depositions. Samsung cannot stipulate to that. However, Apple is free to argue that retaking of depositions should not be allowed in the event the issue arises.

Hi Vicki,

A few of our folks (both at Apple and WH) are in the air right now, unfortunately, so the further extension that we discussed would be helpful. Attached is a draft.

As not to jam us up again, I've proposed Thursday for our opp. and Monday for your reply (giving you the weekend, if necessary). If you want the dates earlier, though, please let me know.

Thanks -- Rich

Mike, Rich, Mark, Peter,

We are close to an agreement, but we still need sign off from a few people on the revised stipulation. It would be safest to file a stipulation right now seeking an extra day from the court for Apple's opposition. However, if you would rather try to get it done today, we will do our best to get back to you in a few hours. Please let me know how you would like to proceed.

Thanks.

Mike,

Thank you for your email. Because of the time difference, we will not be able to give you Samsung's definitive response until around 5 pm PST today which is Tuesday morning Korea time. Since Apple's opposition can be filed any time until midnight tonight should the parties not reach agreement, that ought to be workable. In the meantime, Todd and I will call you this morning to discuss and clarify the scope of Apple's proposal. Can you please advise what time you are available and please forward us Apple's proposed amended contentions this morning so that we can discuss those on the call as well?

Thank you.

Vicki,

Consistent with Judge Koh's encouragement in her order shortening time, we agree that both parties should discuss possible compromises regarding adding new products to this litigation.

We understand that Samsung has rejected Apple's proposal to add 18 Samsung newly-released products to this litigation, in exchange for Samsung's addition of the iPhone 4S. We also are mindful of both parties' desire to preserve the July 30, 2012 trial date and Judge Koh's suggestion at the recent Markman tutorial that the parties consider ways to streamline this case for trial.

With that background, we have revisited the proposed stipulation that Mark Selwyn forwarded on January 6, 2012 for possible compromises. We have concluded that six products were unnecessarily included on this list, as they were previously covered by our earlier infringement contentions. These are:

- (1) the Galaxy S II Skyrocket & Galaxy S II Epic 4G Touch (covered by our contentions directed to the "Galaxy S II");
- (2) the Galaxy Tab 7.0 Plus and 8.9 (covered by our "Galaxy Tab" contentions); and
- (3) the Gravity Smart and Showcase i500 (identical to the "Gravity" and "Galaxy Showcase," respectively, in our prior contentions).

As for the remaining 12 products, in the spirit of compromise, we propose that the parties each amend their contentions to add one new product. Samsung would add the iPhone 4S, and Apple would add the Galaxy Nexus. The parties would reaffirm that this agreement would not cause the trial date to slip or be argued as a basis for delay.

Infringement claims against other products would be brought in other lawsuits.

Please let us know your thoughts by tomorrow morning at 10AM. If it would be helpful to have a call to discuss these issues early tomorrow morning, we are available.

Michael

Mark and Peter,

In today's Court order on Samsung's Motion to Shorten, the Court requested that the parties renew their negotiations regarding the addition of iPhone 4S to the case and attempt to submit a stipulation before the close briefing on February 2. Please consider the Court's instruction and advise whether Apple would consent to Samsung's supplementation of its infringement contentions.

Thank you.
