4. On May 24, 2011, I forwarded a copy of the filed Complaint to Defendant via overnight mail and asked her to contact me immediately if she was interested in resolving the dispute.

5. This morning, I searched for www.thebellabride.com and found that the home page for this URL shows a blank page, and Defendant appears to have migrated the entire site to www.yvesbellabrides.com. However, thebellabride.com is not inactive. Other than the home page, every other page is still working, many of which are reachable from Google searches. Many of these listings and even one of the pages itself (which also appears at www.yvesbellabrides.com) reference "The Bella Bride." True and correct copies of these pages are attached hereto as Exhibit C.

6. Every search for "bella bride" in connection with either "San Francisco" or "Bay Area" retrieves listings for Bella Bridesmaid on the first page of the organic search results. Searches performed today are attached here as Exhibit D.

I declare under the penalty of perjury under the laws of the State of California and the United States that the foregoing is true and correct.

Executed this 10th day of June 2011 at Oakland, California.

Re: Demand to Cease and Desist Trademark Infringement
THE BELLA BRIDE

Dear Ms. Young:

We represent Bella Bridesmaid, LLC and Ms. Bridget Brown, owner of several service marks and trademarks ("marks") including the federally registered composite mark BELLA BRIDESMAID (Reg. No. 3,114,088). Bella Bridesmaid is also the owner of the flagship Bella Bridesmaid retail store in San Francisco, located at 2250 Union Street, Suite 1B.

Bella Bridesmaid is a well known and highly regarded business which has been the subject of substantial press and attention over many years for its unique and sophisticated blend of personal service and sought after designer bridesmaid dresses and accessories in a relaxing and welcoming environment. It is currently comprised of more than 30 locations in 21 states across the country, and its flagship store has operated in San Francisco since 2000.

It has come to our attention that you recently assumed ownership of a bridal salon located at 1821 Steiner, San Francisco which you are operating under the fictitious business name of The Bella Bride. Additionally, as of November 10, 2009, the domain name registration record for www.thebellabride.com reflects you as the registrant. We previously delivered a demand to cease and desist to your store, addressed to the prior owners, who have since informed us of your acquisition of the business.

Your use of THE BELLA BRIDE is confusingly similar to my client's marks, particularly when your store is operating in such close proximity to Bella Bridesmaid's San Francisco headquarters. Your use appears intentionally calculated to trade on my client's fame and popularity among brides and bridesmaids in the Bay Area and across the country. It is noteworthy that two of the three lines of bridesmaid dresses which you advertise on your website, Vera Wang and Badgley Mischka, are carried by Bella Bridesmaid. Accordingly, you are in direct competition with Bella Bridesmaid and in violation of section 43(a) of the Lanham Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1125.

While my client does not object to lawful competition, it will not tolerate trademark infringement or unfair competition. Demand is hereby made for you to immediately cease using the name The Bella Bride, the internet domain name thebellabride.com, and any advertising or marketing material in any form which refers to your business using the word BELLA in any way. You are further instructed to turn over the domain name thebellabride.com to our clients. Please confirm in writing that you will do so, no later than November 20, 2009.

If we do not hear from you with an agreement to cease your infringing and unfair behavior, Bella Bridesmaid will have no choice but to take further action, which may be taken without further notice to you. This demand is sent without limitation or waiver of any rights, remedies, claims or causes of action that Bella Bridesmaid may have with respect to your conduct, including the right to make claims for actual, consequential and punitive damages and injunctive relief as may be available, to file a Uniform Domain Name Dispute Resolution Policy action, or any other claims, all of which are expressly reserved hereby.

Very truly yours,

Re: Final Demand to Cease and Desist Trademark Infringement
THE BELLA BRIDE
Deadline: May 3, 2011

Dear Ms. Young:

As you know, we represent Bella Bridesmaid, LLC and Ms. Bridget Brown, owner of several service marks and trademarks ("marks") including the federally registered composite mark BELLA BRIDESMAID (Reg. No. 3,114,088). We wrote to you on November 12, 2009, regarding the issue of trademark infringement and your decision to change the name of a bridal salon you acquired to "The Bella Bride" despite the fact that the bridal salon was located only a short distance from my clients' flagship Bella Bridesmaid boutique, a San Francisco store that has been in operation since 2000 and is nationally known.

After receiving our letter, you assured our clients that you were changing the name to Yve's Bella Bride and that there was no confusion in the marketplace. You specifically assured them that you would change signage and that you answered the phone and conducted business uniformly as Yve's Bella Bride. Over the last 16 months, you have issued repeated and continuous assurances that consumers are not confused and that you are doing everything you can to transition to a new name.

In fact, however, incidences of confusion have continued. Despite your repeated promises over many months that you have new signage being designed, no new signage has gone up. Despite your assurance that you always answer the phone with the YVE'S portion of your trade name emphasized, your outgoing voicemail message calls your business "The Bella Bride" with no mention of the Yve's portion of the name. In addition, Bella Bridesmaid has received complaints from brides that it is not returning phone messages. It has turned out that those brides called your store.

This infringement is harming Bella Bridesmaid's goodwill and affecting its income. After giving you the time you said you needed to make requested changes to your advertising, it can no longer tolerate your ongoing infringement. You have one week in which to comply with all of the following, or we have been directed to pursue legal action against you:

1. Remove all signage, both exterior and interior, that reads "The Bella Bride" and replace it with Yve's Bella Bride signage. Any replacement signage should not have the "Yve's" portion of your name in a smaller or more difficult to read style or font than the "Bella Bride" portion and it must not physically separate the "Yve's" portion from the rest of the name, such that the public might miss the "Yve's" portion of the name and see only the "Bella Bride" portion.
2. Change your voicemail and any other recordings that members of the public might hear to refer exclusively to "Yve's Bella Bride" and not "The Bella Bride."
3. Cease use of www.thebellabride.com and stop referring to this website in your voicemail messages and marketing materials, including business cards, letterhead, invoices and other materials.
4. Operate exclusively as "Yve's Bella Bride" rather than "The Bella Bride" in all discussions with the public and with vendors.

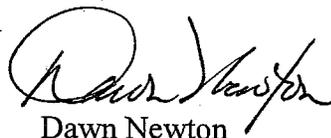

As we have previously pointed out, your use of THE BELLA BRIDE is confusingly similar to my client's marks, particularly when your store is operating in such close proximity to Bella Bridesmaid's San Francisco headquarters. Your use appears intentionally calculated to trade on our client's fame and popularity among brides and bridesmaids in the Bay Area and across the country and has resulted in actual confusion. Accordingly, you are in direct competition with Bella Bridesmaid and in violation of section 43(a) of the Lanham Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1125.

If you have not complied with the outlined steps above within one week, Bella Bridesmaid has instructed us to file a complaint against you in federal court and immediately seek injunctive relief. This demand is sent without limitation or waiver of any rights, remedies, claims or causes of action that Bella Bridesmaid may have with respect to your conduct, including the right to make claims for actual, consequential and punitive damages and injunctive relief as may be available, to file a Uniform Domain Name Dispute Resolution Policy action, or any other claims, all of which are expressly reserved hereby.

Very truly yours,

Trunk shows are exciting times at The Bella Bride.

During a trunk show, the featured designer will showcase an entire line of gowns for the new season. This allows brides to view the entire selection of gowns that may not be otherwise available in the salon to try on.

During an event, appointments are very much encouraged should you wish to try on gowns. Please contact us early for an appointment if you are interested in a trunk show.
