

United States District Court
For the Northern District of California

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
SAN JOSE DIVISION

RICHARD NOLL AND RHYTHM MOTOR )
SPORTS, LLC, Individually and on behalf of all ) others similarly situated, )
 )
Plaintiffs, )
 )
v. )
 )
EBAY INC., ET AL., )
 )
 )
Defendants. )

Case No.: 5:11-CV-04585-EJD

ORDER GRANTING DEFENDANTS’ MOTION TO DISMISS
CONSOLIDATED SECOND
AMENDED CLASS ACTION COMPLAINT

[Re: Docket No. 91]

Presently before the court is Defendants eBay Inc., eBay Europe S.A.R.L., and eBay International AG Inc.’s (collectively, “eBay”) Motion to Dismiss Plaintiffs Richard Noll and Rhythm Motor Sports (collectively, “Plaintiffs”) Consolidated Second Amended Class Action Complaint (“CC”). Dkt. No. 91. The court found this matter suitable for decision without oral argument pursuant to Civil Local Rule 7-1(b) and previously vacated the hearing. The court has subject matter jurisdiction pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1332. Having fully reviewed the parties’ briefing, and for the following reasons, the court GRANTS Defendants’ Motion.

1           On September 16, 2008, eBay introduced the “Good ‘Til Canceled (“GTC”) Listing” option
2 for Fixed Price Listings. Id. at ¶ 24. Under this option, sellers’ listings automatically renew every 3 30 days until the item is sold or the listing is cancelled. See id. at ¶ 25(b). Since the introduction
4 of GTC listings, eBay has charged sellers recurring Listing Fees every 30 days for their GTC
5 listings that were not sold or cancelled. Id. This automatic fee charge for GTC Listings is the 6 subject of this case—Plaintiffs allege that eBay misled them into thinking that their GTC Listings
7 and any optional upgrades they applied to them would be renewed for free indefinitely.

8           eBay first gave sellers information regarding GTC Listings through a Seller Update in 9 August 2008—the month before GTC Listings went live. See Dkt. No. 27 Ex. C. That Seller
10 Update stated that the GTC feature would be available at “no extra cost,” but also specified, in 11 response to the question “What is a GTC listing duration?” found in the FAQ section, that “[a]
12 listing with GTC duration will renew every 30 days until the item sells successfully. Insertion fees 13 and all Feature Fees will be charged every 30 days at the time the listing is renewed.” Id. In 14 addition to its Seller Updates, eBay regularly sets forth its fees in the Fees Schedule, which is part
15 of the User Agreement. On December 16, 2008 eBay revised its Fees Schedule to include a 16 disclosure about recurring charges for GTC listings, which was located in the Fees Schedule under 17 the heading entitled “A note about eBay fees.” Id. at ¶ 25(c). The disclosure stated:

18           Good ‘Til Cancelled renews automatically every 30 days until the item sells or you end the 19 listing.” Insertion fees are charged every 30 day period.

20           Id.

21 This statement did not appear on eBay Motors Fees Schedule until 2010. Id. Two years later, on 22 October 10, 2012, eBay again revised its User Agreement and Fees Schedule, and provided the 23 following disclosure:

24           Good ‘Til Cancelled listings renew automatically every 30 days unless all of the items sell,
25 you end the listing, or the listing violates an eBay policy. Insertion fees and optional
26 feature fees are charged every 30-day period. Fee amounts are based on the terms in effect
27 when the listing goes live, and when it renews.

1           Id.
2 Plaintiffs refer to the time period from September 16, 2008 until the effective dates of the relevant
3 changes to the Fees Schedules as the “No Recurring Charge Period” and refer to the period
4 following eBay’s addition of the Insertion Fees language until the October 10, 2012 revision as the 5 “Insertion Fee Only Period.” During all relevant periods in which they were eBay sellers,
6 Plaintiffs placed GTC Listings that included optional features and were charged recurring fees on 7 these listings. Id. at ¶¶ 29-30.

8           b. Procedural History

9           Mr. Noll filed this action on September 15, 2011 on behalf of himself and all others
10 similarly situated. eBay moved to dismiss and this court granted the motion in part and denied it in 11 part. See Dkt. No. 57. Mr. Noll filed his amended complaint on June 15, 2012. Dkt. No. 61.
12 That same day, Mr. Noll filed a motion for leave to file a Second Amended Complaint, which this 13 court denied. Dkt. Nos. 62, 67. On July 10, 2012, Rhythm filed a motion to intervene in this
14 action and simultaneously filed a separate lawsuit against eBay. See Dkt. No. 69. This court
15 granted Rhythm’s motion to intervene on September 4, 2012, and Rhythm voluntarily dismissed its 16 separate case. Dkt. Nos. 83, 86.

17           On October 2, 2012, Plaintiffs filed their CC on behalf of themselves and the putative class,
18 alleging that eBay improperly charged all Listing Fees every 30 days for GTC Listings during the 19 No Recurring Charge Period and/or improperly charged all Listing Fees every 30 days for GTC
20 Listings during the Insertion Fee Only period. CC at ¶ 27. Dkt. No. 90. The CC defines the class
21 as all eBay members subject to the eBay User Agreement who on and after September 16, 2008:

- 22           a. placed GTC Listings on eBay that are subject to the Fees Schedules; and 23           b. were charged Listing Fees at any time after the initial listing.

24 Id. at ¶ 33. Plaintiffs note that “[t]he Class period will need to be adjusted based on the exact 25 content of the Fees Schedules.” Id. at n. 7. As discussed in the previous section, elsewhere in the 26 complaint, Plaintiffs appear to allege two class periods. The first class period, titled the “No
27 Recurring Charge Period,” covers eBay sellers who placed GTC listings from September 16, 2008

1 to December 16, 2008 and were charged any Listing Fees after the initial listing. Id. at ¶ 26(a).
2 Rhythm Motor Sports appears to purport to represent this class. Id. at ¶ 13. The second class
3 period, titled the “Insertion Fee Only Period” covers eBay sellers who placed GTC listings after 4 eBay added the Insertion Fees disclosure to the Fee Schedules on December 16, 2008 and were 5 charged any Listing Fees after the initial listing. Both plaintiffs appear to purport to represent this 6 class. Id. at ¶¶ 13, 29.

7 On October 17, 2012, eBay filed the instant Motion to Dismiss the CC, seeking dismissal of 8 Plaintiffs’ fraud-based claims, i.e., Plaintiffs’ Second (violation of California’s Unfair Competition
9 Law (“UCL”), Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code § 17200 et seq.), Third (violation of California’s False
10 Advertising Law (“FAL”), Cal. Bus. & Prof. Code § 17500 et seq.), Fifth (violation of California’s
11 Consumer Legal Remedies Act (“CLRA”), Cal. Civ. Code § 1750 et seq.), and Seventh (common 12 law fraud) causes of action, as well as Plaintiffs’ newly-added Fourth cause of action (violation of 13 Cal. Bus & Prof. Code § 17600 et seq.).

14 II. LEGAL STANDARD

15 Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 8(a) requires a plaintiff to plead each claim in the 16 complaint with sufficient specificity to “give the defendant fair notice of what the ... claim is and 17 the grounds upon which it rests.” Bell Atlantic Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 555 (2007)
18 (internal quotations omitted). A complaint which falls short of the Rule 8(a) standard may be 19 dismissed if it fails to state a claim upon which relief can be granted. Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6).
20 Dismissal under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6) for failure to state a claim is “proper only 21 where there is no cognizable legal theory or an absence of sufficient facts alleged to support a
22 cognizable legal theory.” Shroyer v. New Cingular Wireless Servs., Inc., 606 F.3d 658, 664 (9th 23 Cir. 2010) (quoting Navarro v. Block, 250 F.3d 729, 732 (9th Cir. 2001)). In considering whether 24 the complaint is sufficient to state a claim, the court must accept as true all of the factual
25 allegations contained in the complaint. Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 678 (2009). While a 26 complaint need not contain detailed factual allegations, it “must contain sufficient factual matter,
27
28

1 accepted as true, to ‘state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face.’” Id. (quoting Twombly, 550
2 U.S. at 570).

3 III. DISCUSSION

4 As an initial matter, the court notes that Plaintiffs have failed to satisfy Rule 8(a) because
5 Plaintiffs do not clearly delineate exactly what class periods they are alleging, which Plaintiff
6 purports to represent the class for each class period, which eBay entity is at issue in each period,
7 and what fees were improperly charged during each period. As discussed above, Plaintiffs define
8 the class as covering one period starting September 16, 2008, but later appear to allege two class
9 periods. See CC ¶¶ 26, 33. Additionally, Plaintiffs point to numerous revisions of eBay’s Fee
10 Schedules, some of which include various disclosures regarding recurring fees or recurring
11 Insertion Fees, some which contain no disclosure, and some which pertain only to certain eBay
12 entities, but they fail to connect these revisions to clearly defined class periods or otherwise allege 13 how the revisions affect the class definition. The lack of clarity on these basic points alone is 14 sufficient ground on which to grant Defendants’ Motion to Dismiss. However, because the court 15 dismisses several causes of action with leave to amend, the court will address additional 16 deficiencies in Plaintiffs’ claims below.

17 a. Plaintiffs’ Fraud-Based Claims

18 As discussed in this court’s previous Order, Plaintiffs’ UCL, FAL, CLRA, and common 19 law fraud claims are entirely based on allegations that eBay made misrepresentations and 20 omissions that are “grounded in fraud.” See Dkt. No. 57 at 10 (citing Tietsworth v. Sears, Roebuck 21 and Co., No. 09-CV-00288, 2009 WL 3320486 *6 (N.D. Cal. Oct. 13, 2009)). As such, these 22 claims are subject to the heightened pleading requirement of Federal Rule of Civil Procedure Rule 23 9(b). Fed. R. Civ. Proc. 9(b) (requiring party alleging fraud to “state with particularity the 24 circumstances constituting fraud or mistake”). To satisfy Rule 9(b), Plaintiffs must allege “the 25 who, what, where, and how of the misconduct charged.” Vess v. Ciba-Geigy Corp. USA, 317 F.3d
26 1097, 1106 (9th Cir. 2003) (internal quotations omitted). In addition, Plaintiffs must plead
27 reasonable reliance on alleged misstatements with particularity by alleging facts “of sufficient
28

1 specificity,” allowing a court to infer that “misrepresentations caused injury to plaintiffs by
2 inducing them to pay” for products or services. In re Actimmune Marketing Litig., No. 08-CV-
3 02376, 2009 WL 3740648 *11 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 6, 2009); see City of Atascadero v. Merrill Lynch,
4 Pierce, Fenner & Smith, Inc., 68 Cal. App. 4th 445, 481 (1998) (“The well-established common
5 law elements of fraud” require “justifiable reliance on the misrepresentation.”). In the context of a
6 fraudulent omission claim, a plaintiff cannot plead a specific time or place of a failure to act and so
7 may plead fraud in alternative ways. Washington v. Baenziger, 673 F. Supp. 1478, 1482 (N.D. Cal.
8 1987).

9 Plaintiffs allege that, in choosing to place GTC Listings, they relied on the User Agreement,
10 the eBay Fees Schedule and fee tables therein, and the Sell-Your-Item form, each of which 11 contained an omission regarding the recurring nature of Listing Fees for GTC Listings. CC ¶¶ 29,
12 30. Plaintiffs further allege that they relied on these omissions and would not have chosen to place
13 GTC Listings had they known the Listing Fees, or alternatively, the Optional Features Fees, would 14 recur. Id. However, Plaintiffs do not allege that they cancelled their GTC Listings or otherwise
15 ceased placing GTC Listings upon discovering that eBay charged recurring fees on such listings.
16 This omission is fatal to Plaintiffs’ fraud-based claims. That Plaintiffs continued to keep and/or 17 place GTC listings even after discovering the recurring fees belies their allegations that they would 18 not have placed listings had they known these fees would recur. Plaintiffs have thus failed to plead
19 reliance on eBay’s alleged omissions. Accordingly the court DISMISSES with leave to amend 20 Plaintiffs Second (UCL), Third (FAL), Fifth (CLRA), and Seventh (common law fraud) claims.

21 Additionally, Plaintiffs did not plead any facts sufficient to establish that, to the extent they
22 relied on any omission regarding Insertion Fees during the Insertion Fee Only Period, their reliance
23 was reasonable. See, e.g., Semi-Materials Co., Ltd. V. SunPods, Inc., No. 11-CV-06719, 2012 WL
24 3962487, at *7 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 10, 2012) (dismissing complaint in part because the plaintiff failed
25 to allege any facts tending to show that any reliance was reasonable). Plaintiffs allege, inter alia,
26 that they relied on various versions of eBay’s Fees Schedule, and the fee tables contained therein,
27 when deciding whether to place GTC listings. CC ¶¶ 29, 30. Plaintiffs further allege that eBay’s
28

1 Fees Schedule and fee tables are misleading by omission because neither the fee tables nor the 2 adjacent verbiage contained any disclosure that the Listing Fees would recur. eBay points out, and 3 Plaintiffs do not dispute, that several versions of the Fees Schedule contain the disclosure that 4 “Insertion fees are charged every 30 day period.” Plaintiffs in fact name the period governed by 5 the Fees Schedule containing this disclosure the “Insertion Fees Only Period.” The disclosure
6 appears at the end of the Fee Schedules in a section entitled “The fine print.” Id. at ¶ 29; Pl. Opp’n
7 10, Dkt. No. 96. Plaintiffs contend that they reasonably relied on eBay’s omissions despite the 8 presence of the Insertion Fee disclosure because Plaintiffs would not expect to find information
9 regarding fees in “The fine print” section. Such an allegation is insufficient to establish the 10 reasonableness of Plaintiffs’ reliance. “The fine print” section follows the fee tables, appears in the 11 same font as the rest of the fee schedule, bears a bolded title, and is relatively short. See Dkt. No.
12 39 Ex. G. Plaintiffs allege that they read the Fee Schedules and considered the fee tables therein.
13 CC ¶¶ 29-30. That Plaintiffs failed to read the following obvious section simply does not afford 14 them the ability to claim reasonable reliance.

15 The Ninth Circuit recently came to a similar conclusion in Davis v. HSBC Bank Nevada,
16 N.A., 691 F.3d 1152 (9th Cir. 2012). The plaintiff in Davis raised, inter alia, claims of fraud,
17 alleging that the defendant had failed to adequately disclose the annual fee for its credit card. The 18 Ninth Circuit upheld the district court’s dismissal of the plaintiff’s fraud claim because it was 19 undisputed that the plaintiff had failed to read the “Important Terms & Disclosure Statement”
20 before checking the box accepting those terms and conditions. Id. at 1163. In upholding the 21 dismissal, the court noted that under California law, when parties come to an agreement at arm’s
22 length “it is not reasonable to fail to read a contract before signing it.” Id. Like the plaintiff in 23 Davis, Plaintiffs here had access to the disclosure regarding recurring Insertion Fees, and simply 24 failed to read it. The failure to read an important disclosure that was “within [Plaintiffs’] 25 observation” is fatal to Plaintiffs’ claims. Id. Therefore, the court DISMISSES without leave to 26
27
28

1 amend Plaintiffs’ fraud-based claims to the extent they seek to recover recurring insertion fees
2 charged during the Insertion Fee Only Period.<sup>1</sup>

3 i. Plaintiff’s Common Law Fraud Claim

4 Defendants further argue that Plaintiffs are barred from bringing their common law fraud
5 claim because it is based on the same alleged omissions and seeks to recover the same damages as 6 the breach of contract claims. California’s economic loss rule “requires a purchaser to recover in 7 contract for purely economic loss due to disappointed expectations, unless he can demonstrate 8 harm above and beyond a broken contractual promise.” Robinson Helicopter, 34 Cal. 4th at 988.
9 The economic loss rule does not apply “where a claim is based upon a duty that exists independent
10 of the contract and arises from principles of tort law,” e.g. where there has been intentional
11 misconduct. Id.

12 The court agrees with Defendants. Plaintiffs’ common-law fraud claim appears to be based 13 on the exact conduct at issue in the breach of contract claim. Plaintiffs allege that Defendants
14 made omissions regarding the fees for the GTC listings and seek damages covering the “improper 15 fees” Defendants charged. CC ¶ 64. Likewise, Plaintiffs’ breach of contract claim alleges that 16 Plaintiffs and Defendants entered into a contract setting forth the fees for GTC listing, but 17 Defendants breached that contract by charging GTC Listing Fees in a manner different than that set 18 forth in the contract. CC ¶ 44. The damages Plaintiffs seek for the breach of contract claim are 19 “the difference between the amount of Listing Fees actually charged and ...inapplicable Listing 20 Fees.” CC ¶ 44. The allegations in the CC make clear that Plaintiffs seek an identical recovery for 21 identical conduct.

22
23
24 <sup>1</sup> Defendants also argue that Plaintiffs’ reliance on any omission by Defendants was not reasonable because the Fee
25 Schedules explicitly state that “Good ‘Til Cancelled renews automatically every 30 days until the item sells or you end
26 the listing” (CC ¶ 25(c)), because Plaintiffs’ purported interpretation of the GTC Listing policies would produce
27 “absurd results,” and because Plaintiffs knew the total amount charged on their invoices each month and had access to 28 detailed information regarding the charges assessed but nevertheless continued to pay the recurring fees. Dkt. No. 91 at 13-15. The interpretation of the disclosure, the invoices, and Plaintiffs’ actions is a question of fact for the jury.
Unlike the specific disclosure regarding Insertion Fees, the “renews automatically” disclosure and the availability of detailed listing charges would not necessarily compel “reasonable minds to come to just one conclusion.” Davis, 691
F.3d at 1163 (citing Broberg v. Guardian Life Ins. Co. of Am., 171 Cal. App. 4th 912 (Cal. Ct. App. 2009)). Therefore, though the court dismisses Plaintiffs’ fraud-based claims, it does not do so on these grounds.

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

Period, they are DISMISSED without leave to amend. Plaintiffs' Fourth claim is DISMISSED without leave to amend.

Any amended complaint must be filed within thirty days of the date of this Order. Plaintiffs are advised that they may not add new claims or parties without first obtaining Defendants' consent or leave of court pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 15. Plaintiff is further advised that failure to amend the complaint in a manner consistent with this order may result in the dismissal of this action.

IT IS SO ORDERED

Dated: May 30, 2013

_____
EDWARD J. DAVILA
United States District Judge