MOTION FOR PARTIAL SUMMARY
JUDGMENT; GRANTING IN PART
AND DENYING IN PART
DEFENDANTS' CROSS-MOTION FOR
PARTIAL SUMMARY JUDGMENT

Re: Dkt. Nos. 185, 195

Plaintiff Robert W. Cabell (“Cabell” or “Plaintiff”) brings this action for copyright infringement and related claims against Zorro Productions, Inc. (“ZPI”) and ZPI’s owner John Gertz (collectively, “Defendants”), in connection with a musical Plaintiff created based on the fictional character “Zorro.” Presently before the Court is Plaintiff’s Motion for Partial Summary Judgment (Dkt. No. 185) (“Plaintiff’s Motion” or “Pl’s Mot.”) and Defendants’ Cross-Motion for Partial Summary Judgment (Dkt. No. 195) (“Defendants’ Cross-Motion” or “Defs’ Cross-Mot.”) under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 56.

The Court has subject matter jurisdiction over this case pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §§ 1331 and 1338. Having carefully considered the pleadings, the briefs submitted by the parties, and the parties’ arguments at the hearing, Plaintiff’s Motion will be GRANTED and Defendants’ Cross-Motion will be GRANTED IN PART and DENIED IN PART for the reasons discussed below.

ORDER GRANTING PLAINTIFF'S MOTION FOR PARTIAL SUMMARY JUDGMENT;
GRANTING IN PART AND DENYING IN PART DEFENDANTS' CROSS-MOTION FOR
PARTIAL SUMMARY JUDGMENT

1 I. BACKGROUND

2 A. Factual Background

3 i. The Curse of Capistrano

4 The fictional character of “Zorro” first debuted in 1919 in “The Curse of Capistrano” 5 (“COC”), a serialized story by Johnston McCulley which was published in All-Story Weekly.
6 Declaration of Robert Cabell (“Cabell Decl.”), Dkt. No. 185-1, at ¶ 2; Declaration of John Gertz
7 (“Gertz Decl.”), Dkt. No. 195-10, at ¶ 3. In 1920, COC was adapted into a silent movie titled 8 “The Mark of Zorro” by Douglas Fairbanks. Id. In 1922, McCulley published a sequel to COC
9 entitled “The Further Adventures of Zorro,” which also appeared as a serialized story in All-Story 10 Weekly. Cabell Decl. ¶ 3. COC has also since been re-published as a novel entitled “The Mark of 11 Zorro.” Cabell Decl. ¶ 2. All of these works are in the public domain. Pl’s Mot. 3.

12 COC takes place in early 19th Century Spanish California and tells the story of Don Diego 13 de la Vega, a wealthy nobleman who has taken on the secret identity of Zorro. Cabell Decl. ¶ 4; 14 Gertz Decl. ¶ 3. Zorro seeks to protect the poor and downtrodden from the corrupt administration
15 of Governor Alvarado, Captain Juan Ramon, and Sergeant Pedro Gonzales. Id. He disguises
16 himself by wearing a black cap, black sombrero, and black mask. Id. He rides a horse and fights 17 with a whip and a sword. Id. His love interest is Lolita Pullido, who dislikes Diego but becomes 18 enamored with Zorro. Gertz Decl. ¶ 3. When Lolita’s family is incarcerated for treason, Zorro 19 kills Captain Ramon in a swordfight, forces Governor Alvarado to abdicate, and then reveals his 20 true identity as Diego to win Lolita’s heart. Id.

21 ii. ZPI

22 On July 26, 1949, McCulley assigned “the absolute exclusive and unqualified right, license 23 and privilege throughout the world . . . to radio, motion picture, phonograph, records . . . , comic 24 strips advertising, dramatic and television rights to the character ‘Zorro,’ throughout the world 25 forever” to Mitchell Gertz, the father of defendant John Gertz. Gertz Decl. ¶ 5; Gertz Decl., Ex.
26 C, Dkt. No. 195-11. ZPI has licensed its rights in Zorro to a number of Hollywood companies for

1 various Zorro-related works and paraphernalia. Gertz. Decl. ¶ 6. One of these was a musical
2 stage production entitled “Zorro, The Musical,” which was written and directed by Ken Hill (“Hill
3 Musical”). Gertz Decl., Ex. F, Dkt. No. 195-11. ZPI has not specifically identified the copyrights
4 and trademarks it owns which it believes are relevant to this litigation.¹

5 iii. The Cabell Musical and Copyrights

6 In 1996, Plaintiff published a musical entitled “Z - The Musical of Zorro” (“Cabell 7 Musical”) based “expressly” on McCulley’s 1919 story and Fairbanks’ 1920 movie. Pl’s Mot. 3.
8 Zorro is portrayed in Plaintiff’s musical as “a masked avenger leading a double life, donned in a 9 black mask, black sombrero, black cape, and with a sword and whip.” Id. The musical was first 10 produced as a staged reading at the Lamb’s Theatre in New York City in 1997, and was 11 subsequently released on audio cassette and then CD format. Supplemental Declaration of Robert 12 Cabell (“Supp. Cabell Decl.”), Dkt. No. 206-5, at ¶ 12. A stage production by the Actors Cabaret 13 of Eugene (“ACE”) premiered in Eugene, Oregon in 2000. Cabell Decl. ¶ 8.

14 Plaintiff has registered various scripts and audio versions of the Cabell Musical with the 15 U.S. Copyright Office, and his copyright interest “extends only to the original, novel elements of 16 his work and do not include those elements present in any Zorro works that were in the public 17 domain as of 1996.” Second Amended Complaint (“SAC”), Dkt. No. 119, at ¶¶ 16-18. Of the 18 copyrights Plaintiff owns, the following are at issue in this lawsuit: (1) Copyright No. PA 2-113-
19 089, which relates to the original script of the Cabell Musical from 1996; (2) Copyright No. PA 2-20 171-672, which relates to a revised script of the Cabell Musical from 1997; (3) Copyright No. PA 21 2-2226-359, which relates to a further revised script of the Cabell Musical from later in 1997; and 22 (4) Copyright Nos. SR 389-305 and PA 10-000-842, which relate to 1998 recordings of the Cabell 23 Musical, after it was performed at Lamb’s Theatre. SAC ¶¶ 16-19, 70.

25
26 ¹ Instead, ZPI states that it has, “[a]mong other things . . . licensed over 60 separate ZORRO stage 27 productions and owns the federally registered mark ZORRO, Reg. No. 2,198,254, in connection 28 with “entertainment in the nature of theater productions.” Defs’ Cross-Mot. 4.

ORDER GRANTING PLAINTIFF'S MOTION FOR PARTIAL SUMMARY JUDGMENT;
PARTIAL SUMMARY JUDGMENT

1 In connection with this motion, the parties have submitted the following scripts of the 2 “Cabell Musical:”

- 3 • “’098 Deposit Copy” (Declaration of David Aronoff (“Aronoff Decl.”), Ex. 1, Dkt. No.
4 195-7): The deposit copy of PA 2-113-089.
- 5 • “’672 Deposit Copy” (Cabell Decl., Ex. D, Dkt. No. 148-5): The deposit copy of PA 2-6 171-672.
- 7 • “1996 Cabell Script” (Gertz Decl., Ex. I, Dkt. No. 195-12): The version of the Cabell
8 Musical which Plaintiff provided to John Gertz in 1996. Supp. Cabell Decl. ¶ 11. Plaintiff
9 claims this is “very similar” to the ’098 Deposit Copy and “nearly identical” to the ’672
10 Deposit Copy. Id.; Dkt. No. 215 at 3.
- 11 • “1997 Cabell Script” (Supp. Cabell Decl., Ex. 2, Dkt. No. 206-7): The version of the 12 Cabell Musical that was read in 1997 at the Lamb’s Theatre. Supp. Cabell. Decl. ¶ 12.
13 Cabell claims this is “very similar” to the deposit copy of PA 2-2226-359.² Supp. Cabell 14 Decl. ¶ 12.
- 15 • “2000/ACE Cabell Script” (Dkt. No. 185-1 at 8-143): The version of the Cabell Musical 16 that was performed in 2000 by ACE. Supp. Cabell Decl. ¶ 13. Cabell claims this is “very 17 similar” to the ’672 Deposit Copy.³ Id.

18 The parties have not submitted deposit copies for Copyright Nos. PA 2-2226-359, SR 389-19 305, and PA 10-000-842. Defendants report that they attempted to locate the deposit copy for 20 Copyright No. PA 2-2226-359, but were informed by the Copyright Office that “unfortunately, it 21 appears that the work . . . has been misplaced at our storage facility.” Aronoff Decl., Dkt. No.

22
23 ² In his supplemental briefing, Plaintiff states in an unsworn footnote that this is a “duplicate copy” of the work he registered. Dkt. No. 215 at 1 n.1.

24 ³ In his supplemental briefing, Plaintiff identified that, on February 22, 2018, he submitted a 25 copyright application for the “2000/ACE Cabell Script,” Dkt. No. 185-1 at 8-143, which has been 26 assigned Copyright Case No. 1-6312495651. However, Plaintiff has not asserted this copyright interest in this litigation. See SAC ¶ 70; cf. 17 U.S.C. § 411(a) (“No action for infringement of the copyright in any work shall be instituted until registration of the copyright claim has been made in accordance with this title.”); 3 Nimmer on Copyright § 12.08; 2 Nimmer on Copyright § 7.16[B].

1 195-6, at ¶ 3.

2 iv. Plaintiff and ZPI

3 In 1996, Plaintiff met with Gertz about producing the Cabell Musical, during which time
4 Plaintiff provided Gertz with a copy of the 1996 Cabell Script. Supp. Cabell Decl. ¶ 11; Gertz 5 Decl. ¶ 9 and Ex. H, Dkt. No. 195-12. However, the conversations ultimately broke down. On 6 April 1, 1997, Plaintiff sent Gertz a letter informing him that “[t]hough I appreciate your past
7 support it seems in actuality, the only thing you are able to license to me is the Zorro logo, which I 8 have absolutely no interest in You must understand that I will continue this project under the 9 rights of public domain” Gertz Decl. ¶ 11 and Ex. J, Dkt. No. 195-12. That same day, Gertz 10 replied “I understand clearly that you have decided that my company’s rights are unnecessary for 11 your project, and that you intend to proceed without our rights [S]ince you seem determined
12 to proceed onwards, I will simply inform you of the obvious: any attempt to produce your play 13 before a paying audience will result in an immediate law suit.” Gertz Decl. ¶ 12 and Ex. K, Dkt.
14 No. 195-12. At that point, Plaintiff alleges that ZPI began, for the first time, aggressively 15 asserting that Plaintiff’s script infringed ZPI’s copyrights and trademarks, and insisting that 16 Plaintiff acquire a license from ZPI to produce it. SAC ¶ 38.

17 Plaintiff then proceeded to work on the commercial release of his musical without a license 18 from Defendants. In the early 2000s, he engaged an agency and a choreographer/producer in 19 anticipation of a Broadway production. Id. ¶ 39. However, according to Plaintiff, the Broadway 20 production never materialized due to threats from Defendants. Id. ¶ 40. Plaintiff also alleged in 21 his SAC that, after the Cabell Musical was commercially released, Defendants harassed and 22 threatened litigation against other vendors of his work, and actively discouraged third parties from 23 producing the musical in the United States, London, Brazil, Japan, Germany, and Belgium. Id.

24 In response to Defendants’ alleged interference and threats of litigation, Plaintiff filed a 25 Petition for Cancellation of ZPI’s registered trademarks in the United States Patent and Trademark 26 Office in 2002. Id. ¶¶ 35-36, 43. However, in 2004, Plaintiff voluntarily withdrew the Petition

1 without prejudice as part of a “walk-away agreement” negotiated by Sony Pictures out of concern
2 for the dispute’s impact on the release of its upcoming film, “Legend of Zorro.” Id. ¶ 36. As part
3 of the deal, Plaintiff agreed to withdraw his cancellation petition, and ZPI agreed not to challenge 4 Plaintiff’s Zorro-related copyrights and trademarks. Id.

5 v. ZPI Works

6 On or about November 19, 2003, ZPI entered into a written license agreement with Isabelle 7 Allende authorizing her to use McCulley’s characters, including Zorro and Don Diego, to write a 8 full-length book telling the story of “Young Zorro” based on a summary written by Allende.
9 Gertz Decl. ¶ 14 and Ex. N, Dkt. No. 195-13. Allende’s novel, titled “Zorro, A Novel,” (the 10 “Allende Novel”) was published in 2005. Gertz Decl., Ex. O (“Allende Novel”), Dkt. No. 195-13.
11 According to Allende, the Allende Novel was “her own original story” and “[n]one of the 12 expressive content of the [Allende] Novel was created by any third party, including ZPI and Mr.
13 Gertz. It is all my original expression.” Declaration of Isabel Allende (“Allende Decl.”), Dkt. No.
14 195-1, at ¶ 3. She also maintains that she has “never heard of Mr. Cabell or the Cabell Musical 15 until after this litigation was filed” and “at no time did [she] have access to any version of the 16 Cabell Musical or any songs scripts, or other materials pertaining to Mr. Cabell or his musical.”
17 Id. ¶ 4.

18 On or about January 1, 2005, ZPI entered into an agreement with Zorro London Limited 19 (“ZLL”)⁴ for the development and production of a musical based on Zorro (the “ZPI Musical”).
20 Gertz Decl. ¶ 15 and Ex. P, Dkt. Nos. 195-15 and 195-16. Christopher Renshaw, the director of 21 the ZPI Musical, attests that he was “integrally involved in all steps of the development of the 22 book (i.e., the script) and the lyrics of the musical in shoulder-to-shoulder collaboration with 23 Stephen Clark who, is credited for writing both the book and lyrics, and Helen Edmundson, who is 24 credited for co-writing the book of the ZPI Musical. Unfortunately, Mr. Clark passed away in

1 2016.” Declaration of Christopher Renshaw (“Renshaw Decl.”), Dkt. No. 195-3, at ¶ 3. Renshaw
2 also states that he has “never heard of Mr. Cabell or the Cabell Musical until after this litigation
3 was filed” and “at no time did [she] have access to any version of the Cabell Musical or any songs 4 scripts, or other materials pertaining to Mr. Cabell or his musical.” Id. ¶ 5.

5 The ZPI Musical premiered in 2008 and has been performed in various United States 6 jurisdictions including Atlanta, Georgia and Salt Lake City, Utah. Gertz Decl. ¶ 18. It has also 7 been performed internationally. Id. According to Gertz, he has invested over $30 million 8 worldwide to produce the ZPI Musical. Id.

9 Over the years, the ZPI Musical has gone through multiple revisions, embodied in different 10 scripts. The following are relevant here:

- 11 • “2005 AKA Script” (Cabell Decl., Ex. 3, Dkt. No. 206-8): A version of the musical which 12 was commissioned by AKA Productions, not ZPI. Supplemental Declaration of John 13 Gertz (“Supp. Gertz. Decl.”) Dkt. No. 210-2, at ¶ 3; Defs’ Reply at 4 n.9, Dkt. No. 210.
14 According to Gertz, this is a draft which was written three years before the public debut of 15 the ZPI Musical. Supp. Gertz. Decl. ¶ 5. It was never performed or released to the public.
16 Id. ¶ 4.
- 17 • “2008 ZLL Script” (Gertz Decl., Ex. Q, Dkt. No. 196-16): The final version of the ZPI 18 musical which was performed in 2008 in London. Gertz Decl. ¶ 15, Dkt. No. 195-10.
- 19 • “2012 ZLL Script” (Cabell Decl., Ex. 4, Dkt. No. 206-9): The final version of the script 20 which was performed in 2012 at Hale Centre Theatre in West Valley, Utah.
- 21 • “2013 ZLL Script” (Cabell Decl., Ex. 5, Dkt. No. 206-10): The final version of the script
22 which was performed in 2013 in Atlanta.

23 vi. German Production Efforts and Litigation

24 While ZPI made efforts to produce and promote its musical, Plaintiff made efforts to do 25 the same. He retained Gallissas Theaterverlag und Mediaagentur GmbH (“Gallissas”) to serve as 26 his international broker and agent. Cabell Decl. ¶ 10. In early 2013, Gallissas licensed the Cabell

1 Musical to affiliates in Germany so that it could be performed in Clingenberg and Villa Fuchs, 2 Germany. Id. ¶ 11. Before the musicals were produced, ZPI initiated preliminary injunction 3 proceedings against both theatres, alleging infringement of ZPI’s German copyrights and 4 trademarks in the Zorro story and character. Id. ¶ 12; Declaration of Bernhard Buchner (“Buchner
5 Decl.”), Dkt. No. 195-8, at ¶¶ 3-5. In the Clingenburg case, the regional court set an oral hearing 6 for May 22, 2013, at which time the parties entered into a settlement. Buchner Decl. ¶¶ 3-5. The 7 court in the Villa Fuchs case conducted an oral hearing on May 15, 2013, and later denied a
8 preliminary injunction on the grounds that ZPI’s moving papers had not sufficiently proved ZPI’s 9 rights in ZORRO. Id. Subsequently, Plaintiff filed an independent action against ZPI for 10 declaratory relief, and ZPI counterclaimed for infringement. Id. ¶ 7. Those actions are still 11 pending. Id.

12 Meanwhile, Gallissas’ rights to license the Cabell Musical have expired. On June 24, 13 2014, Plaintiff “rescinded the worldwide rights granted to Gallissas” in a “Second Amendment” to 14 his contract with Gallissas. Aronoff Decl., Ex. 4, Dkt. No. 195-7, at ¶ 23.

15 vii. Recent Production Efforts in the United States

16 In addition to the German production efforts, Plaintiff contends that he has recently made 17 efforts to produce his play commercially in the United States. In particular, he has engaged with 18 the director/producer Rick Sordalet, who “ha[s] continued to follow and support Mr. Cabell’s 19 efforts to produce his musical . . . and ha[s] always desired to produce Mr. Cabell’s musical.” 20 Declaration of Rick Sordalet (“Sordalet Decl.”), Dkt. No. 185-2, at ¶ 9. In 2013, Sordalet went to 21 work on lining up productions of the Cabell Musical at The 5th Avenue Theatre in Seattle, 22 Washington and The Philadelphia Shakespeare Theatre in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. Id. ¶¶ 12-23 13. However, according to Sordalet, while these discussions were taking place, “John Gertz made 24 it clear to Mr. Cabell and his agent, Gallissas, that despite the rulings in Germany, he would 25 continue to sue any theatre that produced Mr. Cabell’s musical.” Id. ¶ 14. “As a result of these 26 continued threats, Gallissas refused to license Mr. Cabell’s musical. Since the 5th Avenue Theatre

1 and Pennsylvania Shakespeare Festival could not obtain a license, all discussions and negotiations
2 with those theatres ceased.” Id. ¶ 15.

3 B. Procedural Background

4 On March 13, 2013, Plaintiff filed a Complaint against ZPI, Gertz, and Stage 5 Entertainment Licensed Productions in the United States District Court for the Western District of 6 Washington. Dkt. No. 1. Plaintiff filed a First Amended Complaint (“FAC”) on April 8, 2013, 7 and Defendants moved to dismiss the FAC on May 16, 2013, pursuant to Federal Rules of Civil 8 Procedure 12(b)(2) and 12(b)(6), and under the doctrine of forum non conveniens. Dkt. Nos. 8, 9 20. After Plaintiff conducted early discovery on personal jurisdiction, the district court in 10 Washington granted the 12(b)(2) motion and dismissed the action with respect to ZPI and Gertz.
11 Dkt. Nos. 71, 72. In response, Plaintiff moved the court to reconsider the dismissal in favor of 12 transfer. Dkt. Nos. 73. The court did so, reinstated the claims against ZPI and Gertz, and 13 transferred the action to this Court. Dkt. No. 84.

14 On April 14, 2015, after the case was transferred to this district, Defendants again moved 15 to dismiss on grounds of forum non conveniens and for failure to state a claim under Rule 16 12(b)(6). Dkt. No. 101. Plaintiff then filed a Motion for Leave to File Second Amended and 17 Supplemental Complaint, which the Court granted on September 23, 2016. Dkt. Nos. 105, 118.
18 Accordingly, the Court also denied without prejudice Defendants’ first Motion to Dismiss. Id.

19 On September 26, 2016, Plaintiff filed his SAC, asserting the following claims: 20 (1) copyright infringement, (2) declaratory judgment of non-infringement, (3) cancellation of 21 federal trademark registration; (4) tortious interference with contract and business expectancy; 22 (5) common law fraud; and (6) unfair competition and unfair trade practices in violation of 23 California Business and Professions Code § 17200. SAC ¶¶ 69-99. Plaintiff also sought a 24 preliminary and permanent injunction against Defendants prohibiting them from making claims
25 that Plaintiff’s musical infringes upon any of Defendants’ intellectual property rights. Id. at 20, ¶

26 G. On October 14, 2016, Defendants moved to dismiss the SAC under Federal Rules of Civil

1 Procedure 12(b)(1) and 12(b)(6). Dkt. No. 120. On May 30, 2017, the Court issued an order 2 granting Defendants’ motion with respect to Plaintiff’s third, fourth,⁵ and fifth cause of action and 3 denying it with respect to the remainder. Dkt. No. 154.

4 Meanwhile, on April 4, 2017, Plaintiff moved for partial summary judgment on his second 5 cause of action, seeking a declaration that he did not infringe Defendant’s copyrights. Dkt. No.
6 138. However, because no discovery on the merits had been conducted prior to this filing, see 7 Dkt. Nos. 139, 146, 152, the Court denied Plaintiff’s motion without prejudice. Dkt. No. 176.

8 On October 25, 2017, Plaintiff again moved for summary judgment on his second cause of 9 action, again seeking a declaration that he did not infringe Defendant’s copyrights. Dkt. No. 185.
10 On November 22, 2017, Defendant filed an opposition and cross-motion for summary judgment 11 on Plaintiff’s first and second causes of action, seeking dismissal of Plaintiff’s first claim for 12 copyright infringement and Plaintiff’s second claim for declaratory judgment of non-infringement.
13 Dkt. No. 195. The Court held a hearing on the parties’ motions on February 15, 2018. Dkt. No.
14 212. However, because neither party’s briefing sufficiently provided the Court with the 15 information it needed to reach a determination, the Court requested supplemental briefing. Dkt.
16 No. 213. The parties submitted supplemental briefs in February and March, 2018.⁶ Dkt. Nos.
17 215, 216, 223, 224. After supplemental briefing was concluded, Plaintiff filed a motion for leave 18 to file a further supplemental brief, Dkt. No. 226, which Defendants opposed, Dkt. No. 227.
19 Defendants then filed their own motion for leave to file a further supplemental brief, Dkt. No. 229.

20

22 ⁵ Specifically, for Plaintiff’s Fourth Cause of Action for Tortious Interference with Contract and 23 Business Expectancy, the Court granted Defendants’ motion to the extent it was based on 24 Defendants’ alleged interference with Cabell’s third-party negotiations and prospective business opportunities, but denied it without prejudice with respect to Defendants’ alleged interference with Gallissas. Dkt. No. 154.

25 ⁶ The Court notes that, despite its request for additional information, including a chart of all of the 26 allegedly protectable elements of the Cabell Musical and whether or not they infringe, Plaintiff’s 27 comparison chart in its supplemental briefing is—disappointingly—mostly a repetition of the 28 comparison chart which Plaintiff submitted in connection with his Reply/Opposition. Compare

1 II. LEGAL STANDARD

2 A motion for summary judgment or partial summary judgment should be granted if “there 3 is no genuine dispute as to any material fact and the movant is entitled to judgment as a matter of 4 law.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(a); Addisu v. Fred Meyer, Inc., 198 F.3d 1130, 1134 (9th Cir. 2000).

5 The moving party bears the initial burden of informing the court of the basis for the motion 6 and identifying the portions of the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories, admissions, 7 or affidavits that demonstrate the absence of a triable issue of material fact. Celotex Corp. v.
8 Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 323 (1986). If the issue is one on which the nonmoving party must bear the 10 the claim; it does not need to disprove its opponent’s claim. Id. at 325.

11 If the moving party meets the initial burden, the burden then shifts to the non-moving party 12 to go beyond the pleadings and designate specific materials in the record to show that there is a 13 genuinely disputed fact. Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(c); Celotex Corp., 477 U.S. at 324. A “genuine issue” 14 for trial exists if the non-moving party presents evidence from which a reasonable jury, viewing 15 the evidence in the light most favorable to that party, could resolve the material issue in his or her 16 favor. Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 248-49 (1986).

17 The court must draw all reasonable inferences in favor of the party against whom summary 18 judgment is sought. Matsushita Elec. Indus. Co. v. Zenith Radio Corp., 475 U.S. 574, 587 (1986).
19 However, the mere suggestion that facts are in controversy, as well as conclusory or speculative 20 testimony in affidavits and moving papers, is not sufficient to defeat summary judgment. Id.
21 (“When the moving party has carried its burden under Rule 56(c), its opponent must do more than 22 simply show that there is some metaphysical doubt as to the material facts.”); Thornhill Publ’g
23 Co. v. GTE Corp., 594 F.2d 730, 738 (9th Cir. 1979). Instead, the non-moving party must come 24 forward with admissible evidence to satisfy the burden. Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(c).

25 “If the nonmoving party fails to produce enough evidence to create a genuine issue of 26 material fact, the moving party wins the motion for summary judgment.” Nissan Fire & Marine

1 Ins. Co. v. Fritz Cos., Inc., 210 F.3d 1099, 1103 (9th Cir. 2000). “But if the nonmoving party 2 produces enough evidence to create a genuine issue of material fact, the nonmoving party defeats 3 the motion.” Id.

4 III. DISCUSSION

5 Plaintiff moves for partial summary judgment with respect to the second claim in the SAC, 6 seeking a declaration that the Cabell Musical does not infringe Defendants’ copyrights. Pl’s Mot.
7 Defendants oppose Plaintiff’s Motion and cross-move for partial summary judgment with respect
8 to the first and second claims in the SAC, seeking dismissal of both. Defs’ Cross-Mot. The Court 9 addresses each claim in turn.

10 A. First Claim: Copyright Infringement by Defendants

11 To establish copyright infringement, a plaintiff must prove “(1) ownership of a valid 12 copyright, and (2) copying of constituent elements of the work that are original.” Feist Publ’ns, 13 Inc. v. Rural Tel. Serv. Co., 499 U.S. 340, 361 (1991). Here, the parties do not appear to dispute 14 that Plaintiff owns multiple copyright registrations for his script and related audio recordings. See 15 Defs’ Cross-Mot 14-19; Pl’s Opp/Reply 9-15. They do, however, dispute copying.

16 Where, as here, there is no direct evidence of copying, copying can be proven 17 circumstantially by showing a defendant had “access” to a plaintiff’s copyrighted material and that 18 the two works at issue are “substantially similar.” See Funky Films, Inc. v. Time Warner
19 Entertainment Co., L.P., 462 F.3d 1072, 1076 (9th Cir. 2006); Three Boys Music Corp. v. Bolton, 20 212 F.3d 477, 481 (9th Cir. 2000). “By establishing reasonable access and substantial similarity, a 21 copyright plaintiff creates a presumption of copying. The burden shifts to the defendant to rebut 22 that presumption through proof of independent creation.” Three Boys, 212 F.3d at 486. “Even 23 without proof of access, a plaintiff can still prove copying if he can show that the two works are 24 not only substantially similar, but are so strikingly similar as to preclude the possibility of 25 independent creation.” Meta-Film Assocs., Inc. v. MCA, Inc., 586 F. Supp. 1346, 1355 (C.D. Cal.
26 1984) (citing 3 Nimmer on Copyright § 13.01[B] and Ferguson v. National Broadcasting

PARTIAL SUMMARY JUDGMENT

1 Company, Inc., 584 F.2d 111, 113 (5th Cir.1978)). “Thus, whether or not a plaintiff proves access 2 determines the degree of similarity that he must demonstrate between the two works.” Id.

3 Here, Plaintiff contends that the ZPI Musical and Allende Novel (collectively, the 4 “Accused Works”) copied the Cabell Musical,⁷ thereby infringing the copyrights he holds in his 5 various scripts and audio recordings.⁸ The Court first addresses the issue of access, and then turns 6 to issues of similarity.

7 i. Access

8 Access is proven when the plaintiff shows that the defendant had an “opportunity to view 9 or to copy” the plaintiff’s work. See Sid & Marty Krofft Television Productions, Inc., 562 F.2d at 10 1172. In order to satisfy this standard, a plaintiff must show that the defendant had a “reasonable 11 possibility” to view the plaintiff’s work. See 3 Nimmer on Copyright § 13.02[A] n.5. “Of course, 12 reasonable opportunity . . . does not encompass any bare possibility in the sense that anything is 13 possible. Access may not be inferred through mere speculation or conjecture.” Three Boys, 212 14 F.3d at 482 (quoting 4 Nimmer on Copyright, § 1302[A]). “Circumstantial evidence of 15 reasonable access is proven in one of two ways: (1) a particular chain of events is established 16 between the plaintiff’s work and the defendant’s access to that work . . . , or (2) the plaintiff’s 17 work has been widely disseminated.” Id. (citations omitted); see Stewart, 574 F. Supp. 2d at 1085 18 (same).

19 Here, the parties do not dispute that, in 1996, Cabell provided Gertz with a copy of the 20 1996 Cabell Script. Gertz Decl. ¶ 10, Dkt. No. 195-10. Defendants also concede, for the purposes

21 _____
22 ⁷ Different versions of Plaintiff’s scripts and recordings are registered separately and each 23 constitute separate copyrighted works. (Plaintiff does not claim copyright in one combination of 24 all of these versions and recordings.) Therefore, each work is only entitled to protection of the 25 original expression in that particular work, and each work must be judged against any allegedly 26 infringing work on its own. Nevertheless, because the various versions of the Cabell Musical 27 which the parties have submitted are similar, the Court will analyze them all at once and refer to 28 them generally as the “Cabell Musical.” This does not, however, mean that the Court considers all of the scripts and recordings as one whole.

⁸ Plaintiff does not assert a separate claim of copyright infringement as to individual songs contained in the Cabell Musical. Pl’s Opp/Reply 13 n.9.

1 of this motion only, that Gertz had access to the 2000/ACE Cabell Script.⁹ Defs’ Reply 12. The 2 parties do not identify or provide evidence of any other instances where Plaintiff directly provided 3 his works to anyone related to ZPI. See Pl’s Reply at 3-4. Plaintiff also does not contend that his 4 works were “widely disseminated.” See id.

5 From these undisputed facts, the Court can draw two initial conclusions: First, the parties
 6 have not submitted any evidence of access for works related to Copyright Nos. PA 2-2226-359, 7 SR 389-305, and PA 10-000-842. By Plaintiff’s own admission, the only works for which there is 8 evidence of access (the 1996 Cabell Script and the 2000/ACE Cabell Script) at most relate to 9 Copyright Nos. PA 2-113-089 and PA 2-171-672.¹⁰ See Supp. Cabell Decl. ¶ 11 (claiming that 10 the 1996 Cabell Script is “very similar” to the ’098 Deposit Copy), ¶ 13 (claiming that the 11 2000/ACE Cabell Script is “very similar” to the ’672 Deposit Copy); Dkt. No. 215 at 3 (arguing 12 that the 1996 Cabell Script is “nearly identical” to ’098 Deposit Copy). Thus, the only way that 13 Plaintiff can prevail in his infringement claims for Copyright Nos. PA 2-2226-359, SR 389-305, 14 and PA 10-000-842 is by showing that the Cabell Musical is “strikingly similar” to the Accused 15 Works. See 3 Nimmer on Copyright § 13.01[B].

16 Second, even for Copyright Nos. PA 2-113-089 and PA 2-171-672, there is no evidence 17 that any of the authors of the Accused Works—Isabel Allende (the author of the Allende Novel), 18 Helen Edmundson (co-writer of the ZPI Musical), Stephen Clark (co-writer and co-composer of 19 the ZPI Musical), John Cameron (co-composer of the ZPI Musical), the Gypsy Kings (co-

21 ⁹ There may, however, be a factual dispute on this issue: Cabell states in his declaration that in 22 2003 he provided John Gertz’s legal counsel with a copy of the 2000/ACE Cabell Script. Cabell 23 Decl. ¶ 9. Gertz states that neither he nor ZPI have records of having received this script. Gertz
 24 Decl. ¶ 10.

25 ¹⁰ The Court also notes that, because the 1996 Cabell Script and the 2000/ACE Cabell Script are 26 not themselves the works registered as Copyright Nos. PA 2-113-089 and PA 2-171-672, there is 27 also some doubt as to whether Plaintiff will be able to prove at trial that there was any access to 28 these works. However, because Plaintiff at least makes the argument that these scripts are similar and it appears to the Court that a reasonable juror could agree (see Dkt. Nos. 148-5, 185-1 at 8-143, 195-7, 195-12), the Court will not conclude at summary judgment that there is no evidence of access to the works registered as Copyright Nos. PA 2-113-089 and PA 2-171-67.

1 composers of the ZPI Musical), and Christopher Renshaw (director of the ZPI Musical)—had 2 direct access to the Cabell Musical. Instead, the only way any of these authors could have had 3 “access” was through “a particular chain of events” that began with Gertz. Three Boys, 212 F.3d 4 at 482.

5 In copyright law, a reasonable possibility of access can be established through a third-party 6 intermediary if the nexus between the defendant and the individual possessing knowledge of 7 plaintiff’s work is sufficiently strong. Meta Film, 586 F. Supp. at 1355. The nexus is sufficiently 8 strong to demonstrate a reasonable possibility of access when the third-party intermediary, “the 9 person who had viewed plaintiff’s work and was therefore in a position to transmit it to the copier, 10 either was a supervisor with responsibility for the defendant’s project, was part of the same work 11 unit as the copier, or contributed creative ideas or material to the defendant’s work.” Id. At a 12 minimum, establishing a reasonable possibility of access through a third-party intermediary 13 requires that “the dealings between the plaintiff and the intermediary and between the 14 intermediary and the alleged copier must involve some overlap in subject matter to permit an 15 inference of access.” Meta Film, 586 F. Supp. at 1358.

16 Here, there is no material dispute that Gertz, as President and CEO of ZPI, the company 17 that entered into a licensing arrangement with the authors of the infringing works, had some kind 18 of supervisory authority over their creation. Gertz Decl., at ¶¶ 14 and 15, Exs. N and P. However, 19 this, in and of itself, is not enough. Instead, there must be evidence that there was “some overlap 20 in subject matter” in his dealings with the authors. The Court next reviews the record evidence 21 with respect to each of the Accused Works in turn.

22 With respect to the Allende Novel, Plaintiff refers to excerpts from Isabel Allende’s 23 deposition, where she discussed meetings that she had with John Gertz and Sandy Curtis. Dkt.
24 No. 223 at 2. On its face, this evidence seems insubstantial—although she had meetings with 25 Gertz, Allende consistently testified that she worked independently. See, e.g., Dkt. No. 223-1, at 26 24:10-12 (explaining that “I don’t want to write with anybody watching over my shoulder, that I

27 Case No.: 5:15-cv-00771-EJD
28 ORDER GRANTING PLAINTIFF'S MOTION FOR PARTIAL SUMMARY JUDGMENT;

PARTIAL SUMMARY JUDGMENT

1 need total independence”); 29:5-17 (testifying that she declined to “work with a team” and instead 2 wrote the story line on her own); 40:5-9 (stating that ZPI “respected very carefully what we had 3 agreed, that I would write the book without them watching over my shoulder. And I defend that 4 space very fiercely.”). Nevertheless, at the same time, this evidence does not completely preclude 5 the possibility that Allende also had exchanges with Gertz which could have given her access to 6 the substance of Plaintiff’s works. For example, Allende testified that at one point during a 7 meeting with Gertz “the idea of writing how [Don Diego] becomes Zorro was expressed” and she 8 did not “remember who proposed it.” Id. at 24:17-19. Accordingly, construed in the light most 9 favorable to Plaintiff, there is at least a triable issue of fact as to whether Allende had access to 10 Plaintiff’s works.

11 With respect to the ZPI Musical, Plaintiff refers to a series of Production Notes between 12 Gertz and its authors (Pl’s Opp/Reply, Ex. 2, Dkt. No. 206-2) and argues that this is evidence that 13 “Gertz actively participated in organized meetings with all the authors [and] offer[ed] direction on 14 character development, plot structure, and storyline.” Reply 12, Dkt. No. 206. This evidence 15 seems stronger than the Allende deposition, but it is still superficial. Plaintiff only identifies a 16 couple of instances within these production notes where there is potential overlap in subject 17 matter, Dkt. No. 215 at 4-5, and it is not clear that Gertz was the one who introduced this subject 18 matter in the meetings. Nevertheless, construing this evidence in the light most favorable to 19 Plaintiff, it is at least possible that a reasonable juror could conclude that there was sufficient 20 overlap such that the authors gained access to Plaintiff’s works. For example, during these 21 meetings, Gertz and the authors discussed the character of Maria and certain plot elements (e.g., 22 young Diego’s learning magic and sword fighting, growing up in California but travelling to 23 Spain, and using Gypsies as shadow characters) which Plaintiff contends are “substantially 24 similar” to his copyrighted works. Dkt. No. 215 at 4-5 (citing Pl’s Opp/Reply, Ex. 2, Dkt. No.
25 206-2, at 2, 5, 7, 9). Accordingly, a triable question of fact remains as to whether the authors of 26 the ZPI Musical had access to Plaintiff’s works.

28 ORDER GRANTING PLAINTIFF'S MOTION FOR PARTIAL SUMMARY JUDGMENT;

1 In sum, taking the facts in the light most favorable to Plaintiff, the Court finds that there
2 are genuine issues of material fact as to whether Defendants had access to the 1996 Cabell Script 3 and the 2000/ACE Cabell Script. Plaintiff has not met his burden to show that there are any 4 factual disputes as to whether Defendants had access to any of the other variants of the Cabell 5 Musical, however.

6 ii. Comparison

7 With these observations in mind, the Court turns to comparing the Accused Works with the 8 Cabell Musical. Because there are only triable questions of fact as to access for the 1996 Cabell
9 Script and the 2000/ACE Cabell Script—which at most relate to Copyright Nos. PA 2-113-089
10 and PA 2-171-672—the Court need only consider substantial similarity for those two works. In 11 addition, because, as noted above, the evidence of access that Plaintiff points to in his briefing is 12 relatively superficial, Plaintiff will, at least for the purposes of this motion, need to show a higher 13 degree of similarity in order to prove copying. Meta Film, 586 F. Supp. at 1358 (“whether or not a 14 plaintiff proves access determines the degree of similarity that he must demonstrate between the 15 two works.”). As to the remaining works—where the parties present no evidence of access—16 Plaintiff will need to show striking similarity in order to prove copying. See 3 Nimmer on 17 Copyright § 13.01[B].

18 The Court begins with substantial similarity, assessing each of the Accused Works in turn, 19 and then turns to striking similarity.

20 a. Substantial Similarity (PA 2-113-089 and PA 2-171-672)

21 “The Ninth Circuit employs a two-part test for determining whether one work is 22 substantially similar to another.” Shaw v. Lindheim, 919 F.2d 1353, 1356 (9th Cir. 1990) (citation 23 omitted). Under this approach, a plaintiff must establish “substantial similarity of general ideas 24 under the ‘extrinsic test’ and substantial similarity of the protectable expression of those ideas 25 under the ‘intrinsic test.’” Id.

26 The “extrinsic test is an objective comparison of specific expressive elements” of the 1 works, and focuses on “articulable similarities between the plot, themes, dialogue, mood, setting, 2 pace, characters, and sequence of events in two works.” Id. (quoting Cavalier v. Random House,

3 Inc., 297 F.3d 815, 822 (9th Cir. 2002)); see also Funky Films, 462 F.3d at 1077. “Familiar stock
4 scenes and themes that are staples of literature are not protected.” Cavalier, 297 F.3d at 823.
5 Likewise, “[s]cenes-à-faire, or situations and incidents that flow necessarily or naturally from a 6 basic plot premise, cannot sustain a finding of infringement.” Id. “Therefore, when applying the 7 extrinsic test, a court must filter out and disregard the non-protectable elements in making its 8 substantial similarity determination.” Id. at 822-23; Shaw, 919 F.2d at 1361 (applying the 9 extrinsic test to determine “whether there is substantial similarity between the protected expression 10 of ideas in two literary works”); Berkic v. Crichton, 761 F.2d 1289, 1293–94 (9th Cir.1985) 11 (rejecting consideration of general ideas as well as scènes-à-faire in determining substantial 12 similarity under the extrinsic test).

13 The “intrinsic test” is a subjective comparison that is left to the trier of fact and focuses on 14 “whether the ordinary, reasonable audience” would find the “total concept and feel of the works” 15 to be substantially similar. Wild v. NBC Universal, Inc., 788 F. Supp. 2d 1083, 1098 (C.D. Cal.
16 2011), aff’d sub nom. Wild v. NBC Universal, 513 F. App’x 640 (9th Cir. 2013) (citing Benay v.
17 Warner Bros. Entm’t, Inc., 607 F.3d 620, 624 (9th Cir. 2010)).

18 “For summary judgment, only the extrinsic test is important.” Kouf v. Walt Disney 19 Pictures & Television, 16 F.3d 1042, 1045 (9th Cir. 1994). “Summary judgment on the issue of 20 substantial similarity is appropriate ‘if no reasonable juror could find substantial similarity of ideas 21 and expression.’” Funky Films, 462 F.3d at 1077 (quoting Kouf, 16 F.3d at 1045). In general, 22 “summary judgment is not highly favored on the substantial similarity issue in copyright cases.”
23 Funky Films, 462 F.3d at 1076 (citation omitted).

24 Before turning to the issues of similarity, the Court clarifies the scope of comparison.
25 First, as both parties agree, the following works are in the public domain: Johnston McCulley, 26 “The Curse of Capistrano” (1919) (“COC”) (Gertz Decl., Ex. A, Dkt. No. 195-11); Douglas

1 Fairbanks, “The Mark of Zorro” (1920) (“Fairbanks Film”), (Gertz Decl., Ex. B, Dkt. No. 195-2 11); Johnston McCulley, “The Further Adventures of Zorro” (1922) , (Dkt. No. 138-1); Johnston
3 McCulley, “The Mark of Zorro” Novel, (Dkt. No. 138-1) (collectively, the “Public Domain
4 Works”). Thus, to the extent that Plaintiff’s works contain elements that also appear in the Public
5 Domain Works, he cannot use that as a basis for claiming substantial similarity. Second, as 6 discussed above, there are only triable questions of fact as to whether Defendants had access to the 7 1996 Cabell Script and the 2000/ACE Cabell Script; thus, Plaintiff can only prove copying 8 circumstantially by showing access and substantial similarity for those two scripts. Third, as 9 discussed above, Plaintiff claims that both the Allende Novel and the ZPI Musical infringe his 10 copyrights. As evidence, Plaintiff relies on four different scripts of the ZPI Musical—the 2005
11 AKA Script, the 2008 ZLL Script, 2012 ZLL Script, and 2013 ZLL Script. However, only the last 12 three were publicly performed; thus, the Court will limit its analysis for the ZPI Musical to only 13 those scripts.

14 With these parameters in mind, the Court turns to the question of substantial similarity, 15 addressing each of the Accused Works in turn.

16 1. Allende Novel

17 Defendants contend that many of the constituent elements of the Cabell Musical mirror the 18 Public Domain Works and are not protected. Cross-Mot. 23-24. Defendants also contend that, to 19 the extent the Cabell Musical does contain protected elements, they differ vastly from the Allende 20 Novel. Id. Plaintiff disagrees on both accounts. After reviewing the Cabell Musical and the 21 Allende Novel, the Court agrees with Defendants.

22 First, the plot of the Allende Novel is markedly different from the Cabell Musical. The 23 Allende Novel is largely a fictional biography of Don Diego’s childhood. It begins with his 24 parents, telling the story of how his father, a Spanish soldier, first met his mother, an Indian 25 warrior, and eventually came to marry her. See Allende Novel 5-25. It then follows Diego as a 26 young boy, detailing his childhood friendship with Bernardo, the Indian training that the two

1 received, and how Bernardo became mute after buccaneers rape and murder his mother. See 2 Allende Novel 30-90. The story then shifts to Spain, where the boys perform with a gypsy troupe, 3 train in the covert society La Justica, and befriend two girls, Juliana, Diego's love interest, and 4 Isabel, her tomboyish sister. See Allende Novel 91-238. It then recounts how the group returned
5 to the New World, with intermediate stops in places such as Cuba and New Orleans. See Allende
6 Novel 238-319. Finally, the book ends with Diego's return to California, where he finds his father 7 in prison and his land confiscated. See Allende Novel 320-84. Diego clears his father's name and 8 dons the mask of Zorro to seek justice for those who cannot fight for themselves. Id.

9 Much of this detail is absent from the Cabell Musical. For example, 1996 Cabell Script 10 begins with a grown-up Don Diego, who has already established his double-life as Zorro. See 11 Dkt. No. 195-12. In addition, the 2000/ACE Cabell Script spends only the first 10 of its 124 pages 12 on the life of young Zorro, and it is limited to sketches of (1) young Diego playing with young 13 Carlotta and (2) young Diego training with his grandfather. Dkt. No. 185-1. This is far from 14 substantial similarity. Nevertheless, in his supplemental briefing, Plaintiff identifies several 15 discrete plot elements which he contends are similar, including: (1) Diego getting sent to Spain
16 and learning magic from an older Spanish man; (2) a grandparent teaching Diego magic; (3) a 17 mystical stone/sword; and (4) Diego getting involved with a tribe of gypsies. Dkt. No. 215-2 at 4.
18 While there may be some rough and/or isolated similarities here, this is not enough to counteract 19 the bulk of the Allende Novel's plot, which is new and different from the Cabell Musical. In 20 addition, at least the element of gypsies is not original to the Cabell Musical, at they were also 21 featured in the Hill Musical. See Gertz Decl., Ex. F. Accordingly, no reasonable juror could find 22 that the plots are substantially similar.

23 Second, the characters of the Allende Novel are different from the Cabell Musical. In his 24 supplemental briefing, Plaintiff identifies only three characters from the 1996 Cabell Script or the 25 2000/ACE Cabell Script which he contends are protectable: Maria, Young Diego and Young 26 Carlotta, and Endara Montero. Dkt. No. 215-2 at 1-2. However, none of these characters are

1 substantially similar to characters in the Allende Novel. In the Cabell Musical, Maria is a 2 voluptuous innkeeper in California; in the Allende Novel, Amalia—the character who Plaintiff
3 claims is an analog—is a mature gypsy woman who Diego met in Spain. Compare, e.g., 1996
4 Cabell Script 8-9, with Allende Novel 151. In the Cabell Musical, Endara Montero is Diego’s
5 grandmother and barely featured; in the Allende Novel, Toypurnia is Diego’s mother and plays a 6 more prominent role. Compare, e.g., 2000/ACE Cabell Script 5-9, with Allende Novel 5-25. In 7 the Cabell Musical, Young Diego and Young Carlotta appear briefly in a swordfighting scene in 8 California; in the Allende Novel, a younger Diego has two young female companions (Juliana and 9 Isabel), who he meets in Spain. Compare, e.g., 2000/ACE Cabell Script 3-4, with Allende Novel 10 113-14. Accordingly, no reasonable juror could find that these characters are substantially similar.

11 Third, the setting of the Allende Novel is different from the Cabell Musical. As discussed 12 above, the Allende Novel largely focuses on Diego’s childhood, and contains scenes in Spain, 13 Cuba, and New Orleans, as well as in California. By contrast, the Cabell Musical takes place 14 almost exclusively in California. In addition, these California-based settings also largely parallel 15 the settings in the Public Domain Works and, as such, are not protectable. Accordingly, no 16 reasonable juror could find that the settings are substantially similar.

17 Fourth, the themes of the Allende Novel and the Cabell Musical are different. The Allende 18 Novel, by its own account, is “[a] swashbuckling adventure story that reveals for the first time 19 how Diego de la Vega became the masked man we all know so well.” Allende Novel, Cover. Its 20 theme is largely one of coming of age, aimed at telling the internal evolution of Diego’s character.
21 In contrast, the Cabell Musical focuses much more on Zorro the hero and has a more of a “good 22 conquers evil” theme. In addition, in this sense, its theme is similar to the themes of the Public 23 Domain Works and, as such, is not protectable. Accordingly, no reasonable juror could find that 24 the themes are substantially similar.

25 Fifth, there is no substantial similarity among dialogue. “To show substantial similarity 26 based on dialogue, a plaintiff must establish ‘extended similarity of dialogue.’” Olson v. NBC,

PARTIAL SUMMARY JUDGMENT

1 855 F.2d 1446, 1450 (9th Cir. 1988). Plaintiff has not identified—nor has the Court uncovered—
2 any dialogue in the Allende Novel and the Cabell Musical that meets this bar. Accordingly, no 3 reasonable juror could find that the dialogue is substantially similar.

4 Finally, there is no substantial similarity among pace, mood, or tone. The Allende Novel
5 has a sort of a romantic, wistful tone, and its narrator has a dignified air to his voice. See, e.g., 6 Allende Novel 167 (“I take no pleasure in prying into others’ intimate moments.”). The Cabell
7 Musical, in contrast, has a more direct, matter-of-fact tone, and its gypsy narrators have a playful
8 demeanor. See generally 1996 Cabell Script; 2000/ACE Cabell Script. In addition, the Cabell
9 Musical develops much more quickly than the Allende Novel. For example, Diego and Carlotta 10 fall in and out of love in mere pages. See, e.g., 1996 Cabell Script 29-41. Accordingly, no 11 reasonable juror could find that the pace, mood, or tone is substantially similar.

12 Putting all these observations together, no reasonable juror could find that there is 13 substantial similarity between the Allende Novel and the Cabell Musical. Combining this with the 14 insubstantial evidence of access discussed above (which in turn requires a higher degree of 15 similarity), no reasonable juror could conclude that there is circumstantial evidence of copying.
16 As such, there is no material dispute that the Allende Novel does not infringe Plaintiff’s 17 copyrights. Defendants’ motion for summary judgment that it does not infringe is GRANTED as 18 to the Allende Novel.

19 2. ZPI Musical

20 Turning to the ZPI Musical, Defendants contend here too that many of the constituent 21 elements of the Cabell Musical mirror the Public Domain Works and are not protected. Cross-22 Mot. 23-24. Defendants also contend that, to the extent the Cabell Musical does contain protected 23 work, they differ vastly from the ZPI. Id. Plaintiff disagrees on both accounts. After reviewing 24 the Cabell Musical and the relevant scripts of the ZPI Musical, the Court agrees with Plaintiff.

25 First, a reasonable juror could find that the plot of the ZPI Musical is substantially similar 26 to the plot of the Cabell Musical. Unlike the Allende Novel, the ZPI Musical focuses more on the

1 adventures of a mature Zorro in Spanish California, which is similar to the focus of the Cabell 2 Musical. As such, more similarities among the plots exist. For example, as Plaintiff points out in 3 his supplemental briefing, both the Cabell Musical and the ZPI Scripts feature a female 4 tavernkeeper who flirts with and seduces the sergeant. Compare, e.g., 2000/ACE Cabell Script at 5 56-59, with ZPI 2008 Script at 62-67. To be sure, there are also similarities between the Cabell 6 Musical and the ZPI Scripts also appear in the Public Domain Works and thus, are not protectable.
7 There are also a number of differences between the Cabell Scripts and the ZPI Scripts. See Cross-
8 Mot. 23 (listing potential differences). Nevertheless, this is at least enough to create a triable issue
9 of fact as to whether the plot of the ZPI Musical is substantially similar to the plot of the Cabell 10 Musical.

11 Second, a reasonable juror could find that certain characters of the ZPI Musical are 12 substantially similar to the characters of the Cabell Musical. For example, both the ZPI Musical 13 and the Cabell Musical contain a female innkeeper character (Inez/Maria) who develops an 14 emotional connection with the Sergeant. As another example, both the ZPI Musical and the 15 Cabell Scripts feature a young Diego and young Carlotta/Luisa, who is a tomboyish girl who plays 16 swords with Diego. As Defendants point out, there are a number of differences between how 17 these characters are portrayed in each of the musicals. See Dkt. No. 216-1 at 1-2. Nevertheless, 18 there is at least enough similarity to raise a triable issue of fact as to whether the characters of the 19 ZPI Musical are substantially similar to the characters of the Cabell Musical.

20 Third, a reasonable juror could find that the settings of the ZPI Musical and the Cabell 21 Musical are substantially similar. For example, both open with a crowd of gypsies who narrate the 22 story of Zorro. Compare, e.g., 1996 Cabell Script at 1, with ZPI 2008 Script at 4. As Defendants 23 correctly argue, a “play within a play” format in and of itself is not protectable—this is a stock 24 literary device that has been around since at least Shakespeare.¹¹ Nevertheless, the more specific 25

26 ¹¹ Plaintiff also concedes this point. Pl’s Opp/Reply 10.

1 setting of gypsies telling the story of Zorro is not a stock literary device and, as such, illustrates 2 that there is a triable issue of fact as to whether the settings of the ZPI Musical are substantially 3 similar to the settings of the Cabell Musical.

4 Finally, a reasonable juror could find that the themes of the ZPI Musical and the Cabell 5 Musical are substantially similar. For example, because their plots more similarly focus on the 6 adventures of a mature Zorro, both have themes which have some relation to “good conquers
7 evil.” This at least suggests that there is a triable question of fact as whether the themes of the ZPI 8 Musical are substantially similar to the themes of the Cabell Musical.

9 Putting all these observations together, there is at least a triable question of fact as to 10 whether there is substantial similarity between the ZPI Musical and the Cabell Musical.
11 Combining this with the stronger evidence of access discussed above, a reasonable juror could 12 conclude that there is circumstantial evidence of copying. As such, material disputes remain as to 13 whether Defendants infringe Plaintiff’s copyrights. Defendants’ motion for summary judgment 14 that it does not infringe is DENIED as to the ZPI Musical and Copyright Nos. PA 2-113-089 and 15 PA 2-171-672.

16 b. Striking Similarity (PA 2-2226-359, SR 389-305, PA 10-000-842)

17 A plaintiff can prove copying even without proof of access “if he can show that the two 18 works are not only substantially similar, but are so strikingly similar as to preclude the possibility 19 of independent creation.” Meta-Film Assoc., Inc. v. MCA Inc., 586 F. Supp. 1346, 1355 (C.D. Cal.
20 1984) (citing 3 Nimmer on Copyright § 13.01[B] and Ferguson v. Nat’l Broadcasting Co., Inc., 21 584 F.2d 111, 113 (5th Cir. 1978)). This rule only applies, however, where the works are so 22 unmistakably similar that, “as a matter of logic, the only explanation [for the similarities] between 23 the two works must be ‘copying rather than . . . coincidence, independent creation, or prior 24 common source.’” 4-13 Nimmer on Copyright § 13.02[B] (2009) (citations omitted).

25 Here, there can be no material dispute that the Cabell Musical is not strikingly similar to 26 the Allende Novel because, as discussed above in Section III.A.ii.a.1, the two are not substantially

1 similar.

2 There can also be no material dispute that Cabell Musical is not strikingly similar to the 3 ZPI Musical. As Defendants point out in their supplemental briefing, Dkt. No. 216-1, there are a 4 number of differences between the two: For example, even though both contain a female 5 innkeeper character (Inez/Maria), there are differences—Cabell’s Maria drunkenly flirts with the 6 Sergeant and never transforms his character; Inez, on the other hand, successfully encourages the 7 Sergeant to become a better man by assisting Zorro in the end. Compare, e.g., 2000/ACE Cabell
8 Script at 121-22, with ZPI 2008 Script at 71. As another example, in the Cabell Musical, Diego is 9 a good student who contentiously learns sword fighting from his grandfather; in the ZPI Musical, 10 Diego is a renegade who drops out of the academy and learns swordsmanship and magic from 11 gypsies. Compare, e.g., 2000/ACE Cabell Script at 6-11, with ZPI 2013 Script at 2-6. Such 12 differences are sufficient to confirm, as a matter of law, that the Cabell Musical is not strikingly 13 similar to the ZPI Musical.

14 Accordingly, because there is no evidence of access for Copyright Nos. PA 2-2226-359, 15 SR 389-305, and PA 10-000-842 and the Cabell Musical is not strikingly similar to the Accused 16 Works, there is no circumstantial evidence of copying. As such, Defendants do not infringe these 17 copyrights. Defendants’ motion for summary judgment that it does not infringe is GRANTED as 18 to Copyright Nos. PA 2-2226-359, SR 389-305, and PA 10-000-842.

19 B. Second Claim: Declaratory Judgment of Non-Infringement by Plaintiff

20 iii. Lack of Justiciable Case or Controversy

21 A federal district court may render a declaratory judgment pursuant to the Declaratory 22 Judgment Act (“DJA”), 28 U.S.C. § 2201, where an “actual controversy” exists. Aetna Life Ins.
23 Co. v. Haworth, 300 U.S. 227, 239-41 (1937). This “actual controversy” requirement is 24 “coextensive with the ‘case or controversy’ requirement of Article III of the United States 25 Constitution.” Shloss v. Sweeney, 515 F. Supp. 2d 1068, 1075 (N.D. Cal. 2007). A plaintiff may 26 therefore bring an action for declaratory relief “once the adverse positions [of the parties] have

1 crystallized and the conflict of interests is real and immediate.” Id. (internal quotations omitted);
2 see also MedImmune, Inc. v. Genentech, Inc., 549 U.S. 118, 127 (2007) (holding that the relevant 3 question in determining whether issuance of a declaratory judgment is warranted “is whether the 4 facts alleged, under all the circumstances, show that there is a substantial controversy, between 5 parties having adverse legal interests, of sufficient immediacy and reality . . .”) (quoting Maryland
6 Cas. Co. v. Pac. Coal & Oil Co., 312 U.S. 270, 273 (1941)).

7 In the Ninth Circuit, a plaintiff seeking declaratory judgment must show (1) a “real and 8 reasonable” apprehension that he will be subject to liability if he continues to produce the work at 9 issue; and (2) that the apprehension was “caused by the defendant’s actions. Hal Roach Studios, 10 Inc. v. Richard Feiner & Co., 896 F.2d 1542, 1556 (9th Cir. 1989) (citing Societe de 11 Conditionnement en Aluminium v. Hunter Eng’g Co., 655 F.2d 938, 944 (9th Cir. 1981) and 12 International Harvester Co. v. Deere & Co., 623 F.2d 1207, 1211 (7th Cir. 1980)). Courts should 13 apply these principles “with a flexibility that is oriented to the reasonable perceptions of the 14 plaintiff.” See Chesebrough-Pond’s, Inc. v. Faberge, Inc., 666 F.2d 393, 396 (9th Cir. 1982). “A 15 plaintiff does not have to begin distribution of the potentially infringing product in order to have a 16 controversy ripe for declaratory judgment adjudication, so long as the plaintiff has completed all 17 preparatory work.” Shloss, 515 F. Supp. 2d 106 at 1078 (citing Cardtoons, L.C. v. Major League 18 Baseball Players Ass’n, 95 F.3d 959, 966 (10th Cir. 1996)).

19 Here, Defendants argue that there is no material dispute that there is no justiciable 20 controversy over whether the Cabell Musical infringes Defendants’ copyrights in the U.S. Cross-21 Mot. 22-23. Defendants acknowledge that there is currently an ongoing copyright dispute in 22 Germany, but argue that, since copyright law is territorial, that has no relevance here. Id. at 23.
23 As to the U.S., Defendants point out that they have undertaken no efforts to interfere with any 24 productions of the Cabell Musical in the U.S. for over 15 years, and Plaintiff has not undertaken 25 any efforts—i.e., “completed all preparatory work”—to stage such productions. Id.

26 Plaintiff, on the other hand, argues that he has “completed all preparatory work” because

1 he has a completed script of the Cabell Musical, the Cabell Musical has already been performed in 2 the U.S. and Germany, and there is record evidence that it would currently be performed in the 3 U.S. but for alleged threats of suit from the ZPI Defendants. Mot. 9. As support, Plaintiff cites to 4 the declarations from Mr. Sordalet and himself, which attest that, in 2013, he attempted to 5 negotiate the production of the Cabell Musical at several theatres in the U.S., but, because of 6 threats from the ZPI Defendants, Plaintiff’s agent, Gallissas, refused to license the Cabell Musical.
7 Sordalet Decl. ¶¶ 12-13; Cabell Decl. ¶¶ 16-18.

8 The Court agrees with Plaintiff. As the Court observed when considering this issue at the 9 motion to dismiss stage, Defendants’ position is not compelling in light of the parties’ contentious 10 history, as well as evidence that Defendants threatened Plaintiff and other third parties with 11 litigation if they produced the Cabell Musical. See, e.g., Sordalet Decl. ¶ 14 (“John Gertz made it 12 clear to Mr. Cabell and his agent, Gallissas, that despite the rulings in Germany, he would 13 continue to sue any theatre that produced Mr. Cabell’s musical.”); Cabell Decl. ¶ 16 (“John Gertz 14 and ZPI continued to threaten Gallissas and any theatre willing to produce my musical.”).
15 Plaintiff currently has completed script(s) which he stands ready produce. If he continues in these 16 efforts, it seems likely that Defendants will continue to threaten suit. Plaintiff need not have a 17 theater rented out and a cast of characters waiting in the back in order to confirm this. Even 18 without this, “the conflict of interests is real and immediate.” Accordingly, Plaintiff’s claim 19 cannot be defeated for lack of a justiciable controversy.

20 iv. Statute of Limitations

21 The statute of limitations bars copyright claims that are not “commenced within three years 22 after the claim accrued.” 17 U.S.C. § 507(b). “A claim ordinarily accrues ‘when [a] plaintiff has 23 a complete and present cause of action.’” Petrella v. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Inc., 134 S. Ct.
24 1962, 1969, 188 L. Ed. 2d 979 (2014) (quoting Bay Area Laundry and Dry Cleaning Pension 25 Trust Fund v. Ferbar Corp. of Cal., 522 U.S. 192, 201, 118 S. Ct. 542, 139 L. Ed. 2d 553 (1997)).
26 “For ordinary claims of copyright infringement, each new infringing act causes a new claim to

1 accrue.” Seven Sills (citing Roley v. New World Pictures, Ltd., 19 F.3d 479, 481-82 (9th
2 Cir.1994)). “By contrast, . . . ‘claims of co-ownership, as distinct from claims of infringement,’ 3 accrue only once, ‘when plain and express repudiation of co-ownership is communicated to the 4 claimant, and are barred three years from the time of repudiation.’” Id. (quoting Zuill v.
5 Shanahan, 80 F.3d 1366, 1369 (9th Cir. 1996)).

6 Courts have applied the statute of limitations to declaratory judgment claims. See, e.g., 7 Zuill v. Shanahan, 80 F.3d 1366, 1371 (9th Cir. 1996), as amended (June 14, 1996) (declaratory
8 judgment claim for co-ownership barred by statute of limitations); Merch. v. Levy, 92 F.3d 51, 56
9 (2d Cir. 1996) (same). However, at the same time, the statute of limitations does not bar
10 affirmative defenses. Estate of Burne Hogarth v. Edgar Rice Burroughs, Inc., 342 F.3d 149, 163
11 (2d Cir. 2003) (“A defendant who is not seeking any affirmative relief and who asserts a defense 12 only to defeat a plaintiff’s claim is not barred by a statute of limitations.”) (citing United States v.
13 Western Pacific R.R. Co., 352 U.S. 59, 72, 77 S. Ct. 161, 1 L. Ed. 2d 126 (1956)).

14 Here, it is undisputed that, “[i]n 1997, [Defendants] expressly and unequivocally 15 repudiated [Plaintiff’s] claims that he could produce his musical without infringing ZPI’s rights.”
16 Dkt. No. 206-11 at 10-11. Defendants argue that because Plaintiff waited until 2013 to seek a 17 declaration that “his musical does not infringe upon any copyright or trademark interest of ZPI”—
18 well over three years since their 1997 “repudiation”—the statute of limitations bars Plaintiff’s
19 claim. Defs’ Cross-Mot. 19-20. Plaintiff, on the other hand, argues that the statute of limitations 20 does not bar his declaratory judgment claim because he “submit[s] [it] as a defense to Defendants 21 yet-to-be asserted copyright infringement claims.” Pl.’s Reply at 6.

22 Defendants are correct that the statute of limitations can apply to a claim for declaratory 23 relief. As the Ninth Circuit has directed, the analysis must focus on the substance of the 24 underlying claim; where the statute of limitations would bar a claim brought for affirmative relief 25 (e.g., a claim for infringement brought by a copyright holder), it would also bar a declaratory 26 judgment claim that effectively seeks the same result (e.g., a claim for declaratory judgment of 1 non-infringement brought by an alleged infringer). See Levald, Inc v. City of Palm Desert, 998 F.

2 2d 680, 688 (9th Cir. 1993) (“To prevent plaintiffs from making a mockery of the statute of 3 limitations by the simple expedient of creative labelling - styling an action as one for declaratory 4 relief rather than for damages - courts must necessarily focus upon the substance of an asserted 5 claim as opposed to its form. It is settled, therefore, that where legal and equitable claims coexist, 6 equitable remedies will be withheld if an applicable statute of limitations bars the concurrent legal 7 remedy.”); see also Luckenbach S. S. Co. v. United States, 312 F.2d 545, 549 (2d Cir. 1963) (“For 8 purposes of the statute of limitations non-liability is inextricably linked with that cause of action.
9 So long as the claim can be made, its negative can be asserted. When the claim itself has been 10 barred, a declaration of non-liability is also barred, except for non-liability which is itself based 11 upon the bar of the limitations period.”).

12 Here, however, the declaratory relief that Plaintiff seeks is a declaration that “his musical 13 does not infringe upon any copyright or trademark interest of ZPI”—i.e., if Plaintiff were to 14 produce his musical tomorrow, it would not infringe Defendants’ intellectual property. If Plaintiff 15 were to produce his musical tomorrow, the statute of limitations would not bar an infringement 16 claim by Defendants. Accordingly, the statute of limitations also cannot bar the declaration that 17 Plaintiff seeks.

18 v. Laches

19 “In order to succeed on a defense of laches, a defendant must prove both: (1) an 20 unreasonable delay by plaintiff in bringing suit, and (2) prejudice to himself.” Miller v. Glenn 21 Miller Prods., Inc., 454 F.3d 975, 997 (9th Cir. 2006).

22 “Laches is a defense developed by courts of equity.” Petrella, 134 S. Ct. at 1973. As 23 such, the Supreme Court “has cautioned against invoking laches to bar legal relief.” Id. For this 24 reason, the Supreme Court determined in Petrella that laches was not available as a defense to a 25 claim of copyright infringement under 504(b). Id. at 1975.

26 Defendants argue that laches bars Plaintiff’s claim for declaratory relief because the

1 disputes over whether the Cabell Musical potentially infringed Defendants’ rights came to a head
2 in 1997, but Plaintiff unreasonably waited until 2013 to seek declaratory relief. Cross-Mot. 21.
3 All the while, Defendants argue, Defendants invested millions of dollars in developing the ZPI 4 Musical. Id. In addition, evidence was lost and memories faded. Id.

5 Plaintiff responds that laches does not apply here because, under Petrella, laches does not 6 apply to remedies at law, which include copyright infringement. Pl.’s Opp/Reply 6-7. Defendants 7 do not disagree that laches is an equitable remedy, but argue that, because declaratory relief is an 8 equitable remedy, laches can be invoked here. Defs’ Reply at 12-13.

9 Plaintiff is correct that Petrella held that copyright claims are remedies at law and, as such, 10 cannot be barred by laches. The question then becomes whether this result changes when 11 copyright issues are adjudicated as part of a declaratory judgment claim. Although the Ninth 12 Circuit has not squarely decided this issue, the Court concludes that laches also cannot apply to 13 Plaintiff’s declaratory judgment claim. “A particular declaratory judgment draws its equitable or 14 legal substance from the nature of the underlying controversy.” Transamerica Occidental Life Ins.
15 Co. v. Digregorio, 811 F. 2d 1249, 1251 (9th Cir. 1987). Applied here, this suggests that 16 Plaintiff’s claim for declaratory relief is legal (not equitable) in nature. As such, laches cannot 17 apply.

18 vi. Merits

19 To prevail in a claim for copyright infringement, a plaintiff must show “(1) ownership of a 20 valid copyright, and (2) copying of constituent elements of the work that are original.” Feist
21 Publ’ns, 499 U.S. at 361.

22 In his original motion, Plaintiff argued that he is entitled to summary judgment of non-23 infringement because his musical is just a composition of elements from the public domain, it does 24 not infringe. Mot. 11-13. Defendants did not respond to these arguments. See Cross-Mot. The 25 Ninth Circuit has “held that a plaintiff has ‘abandoned . . . claims by not raising them in opposition 26 to [the defendant’s] motion for summary judgment.’” Shakur v. Schriro, 514 F.3d 878, 892 (9th

2 Accordingly, the Court deems Defendants to have abandoned the position that Plaintiff does not 3 infringe its copyrights on the merits.¹² For this reason, Plaintiff’s motion for summary judgment
4 of non-infringement is GRANTED.

5 IV. ORDER

6 For the foregoing reasons:

7 1. Plaintiff’s motion for partial summary judgment (Dkt. No. 185) that he does not
