DREW NOMELLINI,
Appellant,

v.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA
INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE,
Appellee.

I. INTRODUCTION

In this bankruptcy appeal, chapter 13 debtor Drew Nomellini (“Debtor”) seeks a determination of the Internal Revenue Service’s (“IRS”) interest, if any, in the proceeds of the sale of Debtor’s real property located at 520 St. Claire Drive, Palo Alto, California (the “Real Property”). The appeal presents a single issue: whether the Bankruptcy Court correctly determined that confirmation of the Debtor’s chapter 13 plan, either originally or as modified, did

1 not strip or otherwise modify the in rem rights of the IRS arising from a pre-petition tax lien
2 recorded against the debtor’s Real Property. This Court affirms the Bankruptcy Court’s 3 determination.

4 II. BACKGROUND

5 After Debtor, a construction contractor, failed to pay federal income taxes for tax years
6 2003 through 2006, the IRS filed a notice of Federal Tax Lien (“NFTL”) with Santa Clara County, 7 California. The NFTL gave notice of a statutory lien in favor of the United States against 8 Debtor’s real and personal property to secure payment of Debtor’s unpaid tax liability, then 9 totaling $173,851.62. The IRS also recorded the NFTL against the Real Property.

10 In December of 2011, Debtor filed a petition for relief under chapter 13 of the Bankruptcy 11 Code. Debtor’s schedules listed his Real Property as an asset valued at $950,000, as well as 12 personal property with an aggregate value of $10,000. On Schedule D, Debtor listed four creditors 13 with secured claims: Wachovia Bank with a first mortgage secured by the Real Property in the 14 approximate amount of $980,190; the IRS with a claim of approximately $214,000; and judgment
15 lien creditors, Midland Funding LLC (“Midland”) and American Express Bank FSB (“AmEx”)
16 holding claims of approximately $4,900 and $9,485, respectively. The mortgage amount exceeded 17 the value of the Real Property, and thus the Real Property was “underwater,” even without taking 18 into account the IRS lien.

19 In his initial petition, Debtor proposed to pay Wachovia more than $28,000 in pre-petition 20 mortgage arrears as a secured claim to be paid through the plan and to make his on-going 21 mortgage payments to Wachovia. The plan provided that Debtor would value and avoid the 22 Midland and AmEx judgment liens encumbering his Real Property, and as a result, that he would 23 pay those claims as general unsecured claims. This initial plan identified IRS as the holder of a 24 secured claim, but did not explicitly refer to the IRS lien, nor provide any information regarding 25 the amount of the IRS claim or the value of any collateral securing it.

SUMMARY JUDGMENT

1 In January of 2012, the IRS objected to confirmation of the plan and filed a proof of claim 2 in the amount of $214,520.27. The IRS proof of claim listed $10,000 as a secured claim and 3 $204,520.27 as an unsecured claim. The IRS’s valuation of the secured claim was based on the 4 value of Debtor’s scheduled personal property because the Debtor’s schedules indicated that there 5 was no equity in the Real Property. Memorandum Decision of Bankruptcy Court dated June 25, 6 2015, p.2.

7 Debtor amended his proposed plan twice. The Second Amended Plan (“Plan”), filed 8 January 18, 2012, made no changes to the proposed treatment of Wachovia, Midland and AmEx.
9 In paragraph 2(b), the Plan listed the IRS as a creditor with an allowed secured claim with 10 collateral valued at $10,000. The Plan provided:

11 The valuations shown above will be binding unless a timely 12 objection to confirmation is filed. Secured claims will be allowed 13 for the value of the collateral or the amount of the claim, whichever 14 is less. . . . The remainder of the amount owing, if any, will be 15 allowed as a general unsecured claim paid under the provisions 16 ¶2(d).

17 See Trustee’s Supplemental Appendix, Tab 34. With respect to the remaining creditors, the Plan 18 specifically noted that “debtor will value the judgment liens of American Express Bank/Legal 19 Recovery Law Offices, Inc. and Midland Funding/Hunt & Henriques and avoid these liens. Any 20 claim will be paid pursuant to section 2d.” Id. In contrast, the Plan made no mention of the IRS 21 lien or that the lien would be avoided. The Plan provided that the Real Property would re-vest in 22 Debtor upon discharge or dismissal of the bankruptcy.

23 Approximately one month later, Debtor filed motions to value and avoid the Midland and 24 AmEx liens against the Real Property. Debtor never filed a similar motion to value and avoid the 25 IRS lien against the Real Property.

27 ORDER AFFIRMING UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY COURT MEMORANDUM
28 DECISION RE: DEFENDANT’S MOTION TO DISMISS AND PLAINTIFF’S MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT

1 On February 29, 2012, the Bankruptcy Court confirmed Debtor's Plan. On March 27, 2 2012, the Bankruptcy Court entered orders granting Debtor's motions to value and avoid the 3 Midland and AmEx liens.

4 Approximately two years later, in April of 2014, Debtor filed an amended Schedule C that 5 listed the value of the Real Property as $950,000, as well as a motion to modify the Plan to allow 6 for the sale of the Real Property. In May of 2014, Debtor filed an application to employ a real 7 estate broker, which included a listing agreement stating that the listing price would be 8 $1,800,000. Docket No. 3-1, p. 2.¹ Debtor also filed a second amended motion to modify the 9 Plan, which was granted. Among other things, the Plan, as modified, provided for the Real 10 Property to be sold within eight months from the date of approval, and for estate property to re-11 vest in Debtor upon plan confirmation. The motion made no mention of the IRS lien.

12 In late May of 2014, Debtor filed an amended Schedule C that continued to list the Real 13 Property as valued at $950,000, even though Debtor's application to employ a real estate broker 14 proposed listing the Real Property at $1,800,000. Appellant's Appendix, Tab 20, p. 169. On June 15 19, 2014, Debtor filed a motion to sell the Real Property for $2,175,000 free and clear of all liens, 16 of which $1,039,919.84 was to be disbursed to Debtor.² A few days later, the IRS filed an 17 amended proof of claim and listed $214,552.06 in secured claims based upon its earlier filed pre-18 petition lien. Debtor filed an objection to the amended proof of claim, contending that the value of 19 the IRS claim had been determined to be $10,000 when the Bankruptcy Court confirmed the Plan.

20 Thereafter, the parties agreed to proceed with the sale of the Real Property free and clear of 21 the IRS lien with the lien to attach to the sale proceeds. The stipulation further provided that the 22 IRS would submit a demand into escrow for the amount the IRS believed was owing and that 23 Debtor's counsel would receive from escrow and hold an amount equal to 120% of the IRS 24

25 ¹ The application and listing agreement were e-filed, but not served on any party by mail.

26 ² This appears to be the first notice given to the IRS of the substantial increase in the value of the Real Property.

1 escrow demand pending further agreement of the parties or a court determination regarding the 2 validity and amount of the IRS lien. The Bankruptcy Court authorized the sale of the Real 3 Property and the sale closed.

4 The Debtor filed the instant adversary proceeding seeking a determination regarding the 5 extent, validity and priority of the IRS lien. Debtor contends that the Plan precludes the IRS from 6 recovering more than the $10,000 secured claim listed in the Plan. The IRS filed a motion to 7 dismiss the action for failure to state a claim, asserting that the IRS lien remained in full force and 8 that the IRS is entitled to payment from the proceeds of the sale of the Real Property in the amount 9 set forth in the IRS's amended proof of claim. Debtor filed a motion for summary judgment and 10 opposition to the IRS's motion to dismiss. The Trustee also participated in the adversary 11 proceedings, asserting that Debtor had never stripped the IRS lien from the Real Property and that 12 the full extent of the IRS lien attached to the proceeds from the sale of the Real Property.

13 In a thorough and well-reasoned opinion, the Bankruptcy Court granted the IRS's motion 14 to dismiss the Debtor's complaint and denied the Debtor's motion for summary judgment.
15 Relying primarily upon the Ninth Circuit's decision in In re Brawders, 503 F.3d 856 (9th Cir.
16 2007), the Bankruptcy Court held that "confirmation of Debtor's Plan did not modify the IRS in 17 rem lien rights when no notice was given that the value of the Property had substantially increased 18 or that Debtor intended to avoid the balance of the IRS's statutory lien." Memorandum Decision 19 of Bankruptcy Court dated June 25, 2015, p.6. The Bankruptcy Court reasoned: "[b]ecause 20 Debtor has never stripped or modified the IRS lien against the Property, either by motion or 21 through his plan, under controlling Ninth Circuit authority, the IRS's lien was not affected by plan
22 confirmation, and the IRS had a valid lien against the [Real Property] at the time of sale. That lien 23 was enforceable to the full extent of the underlying unpaid tax assessment and should be paid from 24 the proceeds of the sale being held by the Trustee." Memorandum Decision of Bankruptcy Court 25 dated June 25, 2015, p.13.

1 III. STANDARDS OF REVIEW

2 The Bankruptcy Court’s determination regarding the effect of a chapter 13 plan is subject
3 to de novo review. Brawders, 503 F.3d at 866, citing George v. Morro Bay (In re George), 318
4 B.R. 729, 732-33 (9th Cir BAP 2004); Wells Fargo Bank v. Yett (In re Yett), 306 B.R. 287, 290
5 (9th Cir. BAP 2004). Interpretation of the terms of a chapter 13 plan is generally a factual issue 6 reviewed for clear error, but may become mixed with legal issues. Id. Whether a chapter 13 plan 7 is ambiguous is a matter of law subject to de novo review. Id. In this case, the Court need not 8 decide whether the clear error or de novo standard of review applies to Debtor’s chapter 13 Plan 9 because application of either standard leads to the same result. Whether adequate notice has been 10 given to a creditor for purposes of due process is a mixed question of law and fact that is subject to 11 de novo review. See Brawders, supra.

12 IV. DISCUSSION

13 Like the Bankruptcy Court, this Court finds that the principles set forth by the Ninth 14 Circuit in Brawders, supra, control the outcome of this appeal. In Brawders, the Ninth Circuit 15 affirmed the decision of the Bankruptcy Appellate Panel (“BAP”) holding that confirmation of a 16 chapter 13 plan did not alter the County of Ventura’s lien rights to recover pre-petition taxes that 17 remained unpaid. The Ninth Circuit adopted as its own the BAP’s opinion, which sets forth 18 several principles directly applicable to the instant appeal.

19 First, as a general matter, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. §1327, the provisions of a confirmed plan 20 bind the debtor and each creditor. Further, principles of res judicata and finality can make even an 21 “illegal” provision of a chapter 13 plan binding. In re Brawders, 503 F.3d at 867. A debtor 22 relying upon the res judicata effect of a bankruptcy plan, however, “has the burden of proof on all 23 elements and bears the risk of non-persuasion.” Id., quoting Educ. Credit Mgmt. Corp. v. Repp 24 (In re Repp), 307 B.R. 144, 148, n. 3 (9th Cir. BAP 2004) (citations omitted).

27 ORDER AFFIRMING UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY COURT MEMORANDUM

1 Next, a bankruptcy plan “should clearly state its intended effect on a given issue. Where it 2 fails to do so it may have no res judicata effect for a variety of reasons: any ambiguity is 3 interpreted against the debtor, any ambiguity may also reflect that the court that originally 4 confirmed the plan did not make any final determination of the matter at issue, and claim 5 preclusion generally does not apply to a ‘claim’ that was not within the parties’ expectations of 6 what was being litigated, nor where it would be plainly inconsistent with the fair and equitable 7 implementation of a statutory or constitutional scheme.” In re Brawders, 503 F.3d at 867.

8 Further, the principle of res judicata “should be invoked only after careful inquiry” and 9 where consistent with due process. Enewally v. Wash. Mutual Bank (In re Enewally) Enewally v.
10 Wash. Mutual Bank (In re Enewally), 368 F.3d 1165, 1173 (9th Cir.), cert. denied, 543 U.S. 1021
11 (2004). A confirmed plan “has no preclusive effect on issues that must be brought by an adversary 12 proceeding, or were not sufficiently evidenced in a plan to provide adequate notice to the 13 creditor.” Id. These limitations on the application of res judicata “are particularly apropos when 14 secured claims are involved” because “liens ordinarily pass through bankruptcy unaffected, 15 regardless whether the creditor holding the lien ignores the bankruptcy case, or files an unsecured 16 claim when it meant to file a secured claim, or files an untimely claim after the bar date has 17 passed.” In re Brawders, 503 F.3d at 867, citing, Bisch v. United States (In re Bisch), 159 B.R.
18 546, 550 (B.A.P. 9th Cir. 1993) (federal tax lien on real property remained valid even though the 19 IRS had filed an unsecured proof of claim in the debtors’ chapter 13 case); see also, In re Warner, 20 146 B.R. 253 (N.D. Cal. 1992) (in general, liens, including federal tax liens, pass through 21 bankruptcy unaffected). Constitutionally adequate notice is notice that is “reasonably calculated, 22 under all the circumstances, to apprise interested parties of the pendency of the action and afford 23 them an opportunity to present their objections.” U.S. Student Aid Funds, Inc. v. Espinosa, 559 24 U.S. 260, 272 (2010); see also In re Chagolla, 544 B.R. 676, 682 (9th Cir. BAP 2016), quoting 25 Mullane v. Cent. Hanover Bank & Trust Co., 339 U.S. 314 (1950).

26 CASE NO.: 5:15-CV-04122-EJD
27 ORDER AFFIRMING UNITED STATES BANKRUPTCY COURT MEMORANDUM
SUMMARY JUDGMENT

1 In Brawders, the BAP (and the Ninth Circuit) applied the principles set forth above and 2 held that the confirmed plan only affected Ventura County’s claim against the bankruptcy estate, 3 and not the amount of the underlying assessment debt or Ventura County’s in rem rights. The 4 BAP reviewed the language of the debtors’ confirmed plan and concluded that the plan did not 5 expressly put Ventura County on notice that its in rem rights were being affected. The BAP also 6 found significant that the debtors did not bring an adversary proceeding seeking a declaratory
7 judgment or partial lien avoidance limiting Ventura County’s in rem rights, nor did the confirmed 8 plan give notice that the debtors had any such intent. In re Brawders, 503 F.3d at 870.

9 In the present case, the IRS was not given adequate notice of Debtor’s intent to modify the 10 IRS lien. Debtor did not notice a motion for valuation of security pursuant to Fed.R.Bankr.P.
11 3012 with respect to the IRS lien. In pertinent part, Rule 3012 provides that the bankruptcy court 12 “may determine the value of a claim secured by a lien in which the estate has an interest on motion 13 of any party in interest and after a hearing on notice . . .” Fed.R.Bankr.P. 3012. The procedure for 14 determining the value of security under Rule 3012 is set forth in the Northern District of 15 California “Guidelines for Valuing and Avoiding Liens in Individual Chapter 11 cases and 16 Chapter 13 Cases,” which instructs a debtor seeking such a determination to file a noticed motion 17 in order to provide clear notice to the affected lienholder. Debtor followed the Guidelines and 18 filed duly noticed motions to strip the liens of Amex and Midland, which were granted. Debtor, 19 however, failed to follow the same procedure for the IRS lien.

20 Debtor contends that the Plan itself gave the IRS sufficient notice to comport with due 21 process. In general, a bankruptcy plan can effectively determine value and/or avoid a lien, but 22 only if the creditor receives clear notice that the plan will do so. See In re Shook, 278 B.R 815, 23 824 (9th Cir. BAP 2002). The Plan in this case, however, contained no explicit reference to the 24 IRS lien. Nor did the Plan give any indication that the Real Property served as collateral for the 25 IRS tax debt. Instead, the Plan listed the IRS as a secure claim holder with collateral valued at

SUMMARY JUDGMENT

1 $10,000, which was the value of Debtor’s personal property. Therefore, the Plan did not provide 2 clear notice that Debtor intended to modify the IRS’s lien rights against the Real Property.

3 Debtor’s reliance on In re Talbot, 124 F.3d 1201 (10th Cir. 1997), is misplaced. In Talbot, 4 the chapter 13 plan clearly trifurcated the IRS’s claim, and provided that the IRS would retain its 5 lien only to the extent of its secured claim. Specifically, the Talbot plan provided that “[e]ach 6 allowed secured creditor shall receive the fair market value of the collateral held by said creditor
7 as indicated below. The balance of that claim due to said creditor shall become an unsecured 8 claim . . . Each creditor shall retain its lien up to the fair market value of the collateral as 9 determined by the Court.” Talbot, 124 F.3d at 1209. The Plan in the instant case did not contain 10 similar language limiting the value of liens. Therefore, the IRS lien remained unaffected by the 11 Plan and was enforceable to the full extent of the underlying unpaid tax assessment.

12 Nevertheless, Debtor appears to reason that a lien modification can be inferred because 13 before Plan confirmation, the IRS filed a proof of claim asserting a secured claim for only $10,000 14 and an unsecured claim of $204,520.27. Debtor contends that “[t]he form plan proposed to 15 bifurcate the IRS claim and modify the lien, providing for payment of the secured claim of the IRS 16 in the amount of $10,000 plus interest payable at 3%.” Debtor’s Opening Brief, p. 3. At most, 17 however, the IRS’s earlier filed proof of claim suggests that the Plan is ambiguous. Ambiguities 18 in a bankruptcy plan are interpreted against the debtor. In re Brawders, 325 B.R. at 411; see also 19 In re Jones, 420 B.R. 506, 516 (9th Cir. BAP 2009).

20 As a final argument, Debtor contends that the Bankruptcy Court necessarily valued the 21 IRS’s secured claim in the confirmation process in order to ensure that the Plan was feasible under 22 11 U.S.C. §1325, and that the valuation is binding, regardless of any change in the value of the 23 collateral over the course of a chapter 13 case. The argument is unpersuasive. As the Bankruptcy 24 Court noted, a lien and a claim are not equivalent or synonymous. Memorandum Decision of 25 Bankruptcy Court dated June 25, 2015, p.13, citing In re Work, 58 B.R. 868 (Bankr. D. Or. 1986).

1 The Plan valued only the IRS's claim, not the lien. The Plan provided for a secured claim based 2 on the valuation of Debtor's personal property. The Plan did not explicitly provide for the IRS's 3 interest in Debtor's Real Property.

4 V. CONCLUSION

5 For the reasons set forth above, the Court AFFIRMS the Bankruptcy Court's decision. No 6 later than September 14, 2017, the IRS shall file and serve an appropriate proposed order and/or 7 judgment to effectuate immediate transfer of the funds held by Debtor's counsel that remain owing 8 to the IRS and to close this appeal.
