UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
SAN JOSE DIVISION

JIMIL BORILLO,
Plaintiff,
v.
LEGAL RECOVERY LAW OFFICES,
INC.,
Defendant.

Case No. 5:16-cv-05508-HRL
ORDER FOR REASSIGNMENT TO A DISTRICT JUDGE
REPORT AND RECOMMENDATION
RE MOTION FOR DEFAULT JUDGMENT
Re: Dkt. No. 15

Plaintiff Jimil Borillo sues defendant Legal Recovery Law Offices, Inc. (LRLO) for violation of the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act (FDCPA), 15 U.S.C. § 1692, et seq. He claims that LRLO violated FDCPA § 1692i by bringing a legal action against him to collect a consumer debt in a judicial district other than the one in which he lived at the time suit was filed.

Defendant was served with process (Dkt. 7), but failed to answer or otherwise respond to the complaint. At Borillo’s request, the Clerk of the Court entered LRLO’s default on November 3, 2016. (Dkt. 9).

Borillo now moves for default judgment, seeking statutory damages of $2,000.00, plus attorneys’ fees of $3,060.00, and $470.00 in costs for a total judgment of $5,530.00. The docket indicates that defendant was served with notice of the present motion. (Dkt. 15-9). This court has received no response to the motion, and the time for briefing has closed. At the court’s direction,

1 plaintiff's counsel submitted additional documentation in support of the request for fees.

2 Plaintiff has consented to proceed before a magistrate judge, 28 U.S.C. § 636(c); Fed. R.
3 Civ. P. 73. Defendant, however, has never appeared and is in default. Accordingly, this court 4 directs the Clerk of the Court to reassign this action to a district judge, with the following report 5 and recommendation that plaintiff's motion for default judgment be granted in part and denied in 6 part.

7 BACKGROUND

8 Borillo's complaint alleges the following facts:

9 On or around August 19, 2009, LRLO filed a debt collection suit against Borillo in Santa 10 Clara County Superior Court. That suit was filed on behalf of Arrow Financial Services, LLC
11 (Arrow) and alleged that Borillo defaulted on a credit card with an entity known as Household
12 Bank. LRLO's complaint alleged that venue was proper in Santa Clara County because Borillo 13 resided there:

14 This is the proper venue, superior court and court location for this action 15 because the action involves an offer or provision of goods, services and/or 16 credit intended for commercial use to be sold to the public primarily for personal, family or household use and at least one Defendant resides in this court's jurisdiction.

17 (Dkt. 1, Complaint at ¶ 8).

18 Nevertheless, LRLO subsequently filed a Declaration of Non-Service on September 24, 19 2009, stating that it attempted to serve Borillo at an address in San Jose, California, but that he did 20 not live at that address. Then, on October 22, 2009, LRLO filed a proof of service indicating that 21 Borillo was served by substituted service at his residence in South San Francisco. South San 22 Francisco is in San Mateo County.

23 Borillo states that at the time the state court suit was filed, he did not reside in Santa Clara 24 County. He also claims that he never signed a contract with Household Bank (or any of its 25 assignees) in Santa Clara County. Indeed, plaintiff says he did not recognize the alleged debt and 26 denies ever incurring it. He also claims that he did not receive actual notice of LRLO's suit, until 27 years later when attempts were made to collect the judgment.

28 On December 21, 2009 the Santa Clara County Superior Court entered Borillo's default.

1 That was followed by entry of default judgment against him on March 15, 2010 in the amount of 2 $3,063.80. According to the complaint, at no time before entry of default judgment did LRLO 3 attempt to transfer the case to San Mateo County where Borillo resided.

4 Several years later, on October 13, 2015, an Assignment of Judgment was recorded in the 5 state court lawsuit, indicating that the judgment had been assigned from Arrow to LVNV Funding, 6 LLC (LVNV). Borillo says that he did not learn about the state court lawsuit until the following 7 month, November 2015, when LVNV attempted to garnish his wages.

8 On March 3, 2016, Borillo moved the Santa Clara Superior Court for an order vacating and 9 setting aside the default judgment. That motion was granted on March 29, 2016. Subsequently, 10 on June 21, 2016 Borillo and LVNV stipulated to dismiss the state court lawsuit with prejudice.

11 Borillo then filed the present lawsuit on September 27, 2016,¹ alleging that LRLO violated 12 FDCPA § 1692i by suing him in the wrong county. Because of defendant's choice of venue, 13 plaintiff says that he suffered a concrete risk of injury, making it more difficult, time-consuming, 14 and expensive to travel to the Santa Clara County Superior Court from his home in San Mateo 15 County. Although he claims that he sustained actual damages (e.g., attorney's fees and emotional 16 distress from taking time off from work and fighting traffic to appear in court), on the present 17 motion he seeks only statutory damages.

18 LEGAL STANDARD

19 After entry of default, courts may, in their discretion, enter default judgment. Fed. R. Civ.
20 P. 55; Aldabe v. Aldabe, 616 F.2d 1089, 1092 (9th Cir. 1980). In deciding whether to enter 21 default judgment, a court may consider the following factors: (1) the possibility of prejudice to 22 the plaintiff; (2) the merits of the plaintiff's substantive claim; (3) the sufficiency of the complaint; 23 (4) the sum of money at stake in the action; (5) the possibility of a dispute concerning material

24 _____
25 ¹ A claim under the FDCPA must be brought "within one year from the date on which the 26 violation occurs." 15 U.S.C. § 1692k(d). Accepting as true plaintiff's allegation that he did not 27 learn of the state court suit until sometime in November 2015, his complaint timely was filed 28 within 1 year from his discovery of the alleged FDCPA violation. See Lyons v. Michael & Assocs., 824 F.3d 1169 (9th Cir. 2016) (holding that the discovery rule applies when determining whether the statute of limitations begins to run on an FDCPA claim, and concluding that the limitations period on the plaintiff's § 1692i claim began to run when she was served with process, not when the lawsuit was filed).

1 facts; (6) whether the default was due to excusable neglect; and (7) the strong policy underlying 2 the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure favoring decisions on the merits. Eitel v. McCool, 782 F.2d 3 1470, 1471-72 (9th Cir. 1986). In considering these factors, all factual allegations in the plaintiff's
4 complaint are taken as true, except those relating to damages. TeleVideo Sys., Inc. v. Heidenthal, 5 826 F.2d 915, 917-18 (9th Cir. 1987). When the damages claimed are not readily ascertainable 6 from the pleadings and the record, the court may conduct a hearing to conduct an accounting, 7 determine the amount of damages, establish the truth of any allegation by evidence, or investigate 8 any other matter. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(b)(2).

9 DISCUSSION

10 A. Jurisdiction and Service of Process

11 The exercise of subject matter jurisdiction over this matter is proper because the FDCPA 12 claim raises a federal question, 28 U.S.C. § 1331. Additionally, the court has personal jurisdiction 13 over defendant. Plaintiff alleges that LRLO is a California professional corporation, with its 14 principal place of business in San Diego, California. (Complaint ¶ 5). Defendant's commercial 15 activities in California support the exercise of general personal jurisdiction. See generally Mavrix 16 Photo, Inc. v. Brand Technologies, Inc., 647 F.3d 1218, 1223-24 (9th Cir. 2011) ("For general 17 jurisdiction to exist, a defendant must engage in continuous and systematic general business 18 contacts that approximate physical presence in the forum state.") (citations omitted).

19 The docket indicates that plaintiff properly effected service by personally serving the 20 summons and complaint on an individual authorized to accept service on behalf of LRLO. (Dkt.
21 7). See Fed. R. Civ. Proc. 4(h)(1)(B) (a corporation may be served "by delivering a copy of the 22 summons and of the complaint to an officer, a managing or general agent, or any other agent 23 authorized by appointment or by law to receive service of process and---if the agent is one 24 authorized by statute and the statute so requires---by also mailing a copy of each to the 25 defendant").

26 Additionally, there is nothing in the record suggesting that LRLO is a minor, incompetent, 27 or person in military service. Fed. R. Civ. P. 55(b)(2).

1 B. The Eitel Factors

2 All of the Eitel factors favor entry of default judgment here.

3 “In order to state a claim under the FDCPA, a plaintiff must show: 1) that he is a 4 consumer; 2) that the debt arises out of a transaction entered into for personal purposes; 3) that the 5 defendant is a debt collector; and 4) that the defendant violated one of the provisions of the 6 FDCPA.” Freeman v. ABC Legal Services, Inc., 827 F. Supp.2d 1065, 1071 (N.D. Cal. 2011).

7 Borillo has satisfied the first two elements of an FDCPA claim by alleging that LRLO sued 8 him to collect on a credit card debt he (allegedly) incurred primarily for personal, family, or 9 household use. (Complaint ¶¶ 6-8). See 15 U.S.C. § 1692a(3) (defining “consumer” as “any 10 natural person obligated or allegedly obligated to pay any debt.”); 15 U.S.C. § 1692a(5) (defining 11 “debt” as “any obligation or alleged obligation of a consumer to pay money arising out of a 12 transaction in which the money, property, insurance, or services which are the subject of the 13 transaction are primarily for personal, family, or household purposes, whether or not such 14 obligation has been reduced to judgment.”).

15 With respect to the third element, a “debt collector” under the FDCPA is “any person” the 16 “principal purpose” of whose business “is the collection of any debts,” or “who regularly collects 17 or attempts to collect, directly or indirectly, debts owed or due or asserted to be owed or due 18 another.” 15 U.S.C. § 1692a(6). A bare allegation that a defendant is a “debt collector as that 19 term is defined by the FDCPA” has been rejected as too conclusory to support default judgment.
20 See, e.g. Monroe v. Steinfeld, No. C-11-02726 SBA (DMR), 2011 WL 7030908, at *3 (N.D. Cal., 21 Nov. 28, 2011) (citing King v. Nat’l Credit Works, Inc., No. 10-cv-02413, 2011 WL 3847018, at 22 *4 (E.D.Cal. Aug. 30, 2011)). Instead, allegations related to the frequency of the collection by the 23 debt collector are necessary. Id. Here, Borillo alleges that LRLO “is a California professional 24 corporation, who regularly collects or attempts to collect debts.” (Complaint ¶ 5). Although that 25 allegation is somewhat lightweight, this court finds that Borillo has met the third element for an 26 FDCPA claim inasmuch as the complaint alleges something more than a generic reference to the 27 statutory definition of “debt collector” and alleges the frequency of LRLO’s debt collection 28 efforts.

1 As for the fourth claim element, the FDCPA provides that “[a]ny debt collector who brings 2 any legal action on a debt against any consumer” must “bring such action only in the judicial 3 district or similar legal entity--(A) in which such consumer signed the contract sued upon; or (B) 4 in which such consumer resides at the commencement of the action.” 15 U.S.C. § 1692i(a)(2); see 5 also generally Reyes v. Kenosian & Miele, LLP, 619 F. Supp.2d 796, 801-04 (N.D. Cal. 2008)
6 (holding that the FDCPA applies to a state court complaint filed to collect a debt); Simmonds &
7 Narita LLP v. Schreiber, 566 F. Supp.2d 1015, 1016 (N.D. Cal. 2008) (noting that FDCPA venue 8 provisions apply to debt collection actions filed in state and federal court). The FDCPA thus holds 9 liable “[a]ny debt collector” who brings such a legal action in the wrong venue. 15 U.S.C.
10 §1692i(a)(2). Borillo has alleged sufficient facts demonstrating that LRLO sued him in the wrong 11 venue. As discussed, he says that at the time the state court suit was filed, he did not reside in 12 Santa Clara County and that he never signed a contract with Household Bank (or any of its 13 assignees) in Santa Clara County. See generally Fox v. Citicorp Credit Services, Inc., 15 F.3d 14 1507, 1515 (9th Cir. 1994) (concluding that two different counties within the same judicial district 15 are different venues under the FDCPA where the state provides a formal transfer mechanism, such 16 as a motion to transfer venue).

17 Borillo seeks only statutory damages, not actual damages. As for the amount of money at 18 stake, this court will recommend that plaintiff be awarded what it determines to be an amount that 19 is proportionate to the conduct alleged. Because all liability-related allegations are deemed true, 20 there is no possibility of a dispute as to material facts. Although defendant received proper notice 21 of this lawsuit, it failed to appear or present a defense in this matter. There is no indication that 22 defendant’s default was due to excusable neglect. While the court prefers to decide matters on the 23 merits, defendant’s failure to participate in this litigation makes that impossible. A default 24 judgment against defendant is plaintiff’s only recourse.

25 C. Statutory Damages

26 The FDCPA allows for statutory damages up to $1,000. 15 U.S.C. § 1692k(a)(2)(A).
27 Statutory damages are available without proof of actual damages. Baker v. G.C. Servs. Corp., 677 28 F.2d 775, 781 (9th Cir. 1982). In determining an appropriate amount of damages to be awarded,

1 the court is to consider “the frequency and persistence of noncompliance by the debt collector, the 2 nature of such noncompliance, and the extent to which such noncompliance was intentional.” 15 3 U.S.C. § 1692k(b)(1). For example, courts in this district have awarded $300 in statutory damages
4 for a single failure to provide written notice of the consumer’s rights, see Jamal v. Thompson &
5 Assocs., P.C., No. C09-04249 MHP (BZ), 2010 WL 678925, at *4 (N.D. Cal., Feb. 25, 2010), 6 $400 for a single deceptive voicemail, and up to $1,000 for two phone calls in which the defendant 7 threatened criminal prosecution and purported to be from the “D.A.’s Office,” see Evans v.
8 Creditor’s Specialty Service, Inc., No. 15-cv-03355-BLF, 2016 WL 730277 at *3 (N.D. Cal., Feb.
9 24, 2016) (citing cases). And, some courts have refused to award any statutory damages for 10 technical or de minimis violations. See, e.g., Lester E. Cox Med. Ctr. v. Huntsman, 408 F.3d 989, 11 993-94 (8th Cir. 2005) (affirming the denial of statutory damages where the defendant hospital 12 attempted to collect a debt using its registered name, rather than the hospital’s actual name).

13 The FDCPA § 1692i venue provision was meant to limit the ability of debt collectors to 14 file debt collection actions in courts inconvenient to the debtor. In re Lord, 270 B.R. 787, 797 15 (M.D. Ga. 1998). This court finds that the violation alleged here was more than de minimis and 16 not merely technical. The complaint’s allegations suggest that LRLO knew plaintiff did not live 17 in San Jose (and, at the very least, should have known that he did not reside in Santa Clara 18 County), but nevertheless proceeded with a suit in the wrong county over a debt he says he did not 19 owe. Under the circumstances, this court recommends that plaintiff be awarded $750 in statutory 20 damages.

21 However, plaintiff’s request for an additional $1,000 in statutory damages under the 22 California Rosenthal Fair Debt Collection Practices Act (Rosenthal Act) should be denied. The 23 sole claim for relief was made under the FDCPA, and the complaint does not assert any claim 24 under the Rosenthal Act. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(c) (“A default judgment must not differ in kind 25 from, or exceed in amount, what is demanded in the pleadings.”).

26 D. Attorney’s Fees and Costs

27 The FDCPA provides for an award of fees and costs to a prevailing plaintiff. 15 U.S.C. § 28 1692k(a)(3). Whether calculating attorney’s fees under California or federal law, courts follow

1 the lodestar approach. “The most useful starting point for determining the amount of a reasonable 2 fee is the number of hours reasonably expended on the litigation multiplied by a reasonable hourly
3 rate.” Hensley v. Eckerhart, 461 U.S. 424, 433, 103 S. Ct. 1933, 76 L.Ed.2d 40 (1983), abrogated 4 on other grounds by Tex. State Teachers Ass’n. v. Garland Indep. Sch. Dist., 489 U.S. 782, 109 S.
5 Ct. 1486, 103 L.Ed.2d 866 (1989). “In determining a reasonable hourly rate, the district court 6 should be guided by the rate prevailing in the community for similar work performed by attorneys 7 of comparable skill, experience, and reputation.” Chalmers v. City of Los Angeles, 796 F.2d 8 1205, 1210-11 (9th Cir. 1986), reh’g denied, amended on other grounds, 808 F.2d 1373 (9th Cir.
9 1987) (citing Blum v. Stenson, 465 U.S. 886, 895 n.11, 104 S. Ct. 1541, 79 L.Ed.2d 891 (1984)).
10 “Generally, the relevant community is the forum in which the district court sits.” Barjon v.
11 Dalton, 132 F.3d 496, 500 (9th Cir. 1997) (citing Davis v. Mason County, 927 F.2d 1473, 1488 12 (9th Cir. 1991)). The fee applicant has the burden of producing evidence, other than declarations 13 of interested counsel, that the requested rates are in line with those prevailing in the community 14 for similar services by lawyers of reasonably comparable skill, experience and reputation. Blum, 15 465 U.S. at 896 n.11. Additionally, the court can rely on its own knowledge and experience in 16 evaluating a request for fees. Ingram v. Oroudjian, 647 F.3d 925, 928 (9th Cir. 2011) (agreeing 17 that “judges are justified in relying on their own knowledge of customary rates and their 18 experience concerning reasonable and proper fees.”).

19 Here, plaintiff seeks $3,060.00 in attorney’s fees as follows: (1) $1,610.00 for work 20 performed by attorney J. Erik Heath at $350 per hour; (2) $725.00 for work performed by attorney 21 George Wiggs at $250 per hour; and (3) $725.00 for work performed by research clerks at $125 22 per hour. Heath has held a Georgia law license since 2009 and a California law license since 23 2015, focusing on consumer financial services, including debt collection and debtors’ rights.
24 Heath is a solo practitioner; and, since January 2016 has also been Of Counsel at the San 25 Francisco-based law firm of Duckworth, Peters, Lebowitz, Olivier LLP. Wiggs has been a 26 California attorney since 2011, and is a sole practitioner focusing on consumer financial services, 27 including debt collection and debtors’ rights. Wiggs points out that his $250 rate was approved in 28 February 2016 in a state court suit, although it is unclear whether that court was located in this

1 district. (Dkt. 18, Suppl. Wiggs Decl. ¶ 8). In any event, the fee applications are also supported 2 by the declaration of attorney Monique Olivier, who avers based on her knowledge and experience 3 that rates in this area for consumer claims range from $200 per hour for new attorneys to $725 per 4 hour for experienced class action litigators. (Dkt. 19, Olivier Decl. ¶ 4). A relatively recent case 5 suggests that the highest rate awarded plaintiffs-side in this district in class action FDCPA cases is 6 $600 per hour. See Jacobson v. Persolve, LLC, No. 14-cv-00735-LHK, 2016 WL 7230873, at *6 7 (N.D. Cal., Dec. 14, 2016). Nevertheless, this court finds that the rates requested here fall within 8 the range of those approved in this district for attorneys of comparable experience in debt 9 collection practice cases. See, e.g., Schuchardt v. Law Office of Rory W. Clark, 314 F.R.D. 673, 10 689 (N.D. Cal. 2016) (approving a $350 hourly rate for a senior associate and a $400 hourly rate 11 for other attorneys in an FDCPA action); Jacobson, 2016 WL 7230873 at *7 (approving a $500 12 hourly rate for an attorney with 19 years of experience and an hourly rate of $400 for an attorney 13 with approximately 9 years of experience); Evans, 2016 WL 730277 at *4 (approving a rate of 14 $320 per hour for an attorney with nearly 8 years experience and noting that an hourly rate of $290 15 had been approved for the same attorney two years beforehand).

16 As for the time spent by plaintiff's counsel on this matter, this court has reviewed the time 17 records submitted by counsel and finds that the time reasonably was incurred, with the following 18 exception: On October 13, 2016 Wiggs charged 0.5 hours to "File Summons Service Executed as 19 of 10-06-2016." (Dkt. 15-7, Wiggs Decl. ¶ 11, Ex. 5). That time entry apparently relates to Dkt.
20 7, a one-page scanned document. This court sees no reason why filing that document reasonably 21 would have required 30 minutes of Wiggs' time and recommends that 0.4 hours of Wiggs' time 22 ($100) be deducted from the fee award.

23 Although counsel have not submitted evidence as to the reasonableness of the claimed 24 $125 hourly rate for work performed by research clerks, that rate appears to be below rates 25 approved in other recent debt collection cases. See, e.g., Jacobson, 2016 WL 7230873 at *7 26 (approving a rate of $180 per hour for a law clerk); Long v. Nationwide Legal File & Serve, Inc., 27 No. 12-cv-03578-LHK, 2014 WL 3809401, at *12 (N.D. Cal., July 23, 2014) (approving a rate of 28 $175 in a debt collection practices case for a law clerk).
