UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA
SAN JOSE DIVISION

IN RE TELESCOPES ANTITRUST
LITIGATION

Case No. 20-cv-03642-EJD (VKD)

ORDER DENYING DPPS’ MOTION TO ENFORCE DISCOVERY ORDER

Re: Dkt. No. 238

Plaintiff Radio City, Inc. on behalf of Direct Purchaser Plaintiffs (“DPPs”) moves to enforce the Court’s order setting deadlines for Defendants’ substantial completion of document production (Dkt. No. 212),<sup>1</sup> and for an order requiring Defendants to show cause why they should not be sanctioned for violating that order. Dkt. No. 238 (redacted); Dkt. No. 239-29 (unredacted). The Court held a hearing on the motion on August 16, 2022. Dkt. No. 252.

The Court denies DPPs’ request for relief and for an order to show cause, and orders further proceedings, as set forth below.

I. BACKGROUND

After resolving several discovery disputes, including a dispute concerning Defendants’ proposed use of technology assisted review (“TAR”) in the production of electronically stored information (“ESI”) (Dkt. No. 201), on October 27, 2021, the Court entered an order setting several deadlines, including the following:

- 9. By no later than January 13, 2022, Defendants will

<sup>1</sup> DPPs move against all defendants except for Ningbo Sunny, which has not appeared in the action. See Dkt. No. 238 at 3 n.1.

1 substantially complete their production of all responsive non-
2 privileged documents that identify one or more of the following
3 individuals in the “AllCustodian” metadata field: David Shen,
4 Sylvia Shen, Jack Shen and/or Jean Shen (“January 3 Production”).

5 10. By no later than January 13, 2022, Defendants will
6 produce a privilege log identifying all responsive documents that 7 have been withheld or redacted from the January 3 Production in
8 accordance with Section V of the ESI Order.

9 11. By no later than February 15, 2022, Defendants will 10 substantially complete their production of all remaining responsive
11 non-privileged documents (“February 15 Production”).

12 12. By no later than February 25, 2022, Defendants will
13 produce a privilege log identifying all responsive documents that 14 have been withheld or redacted from the February 15 Production in 15 accordance with Section V of the ESI Order.

16 Dkt. No. 212 at 2.

17 In early March 2022,<sup>2</sup> Defendants produced 51,500 documents to DPPs and the Indirect
18 Purchaser Plaintiffs (“IPPs”) (collectively, “Plaintiffs”). Dkt. No. 238 at 5, 7. On March 15, 19 2022, IPPs filed a motion seeking leave to file an amended complaint, relying in part on several of 20 the documents included in Defendants’ recent production. Id. The next day, on March 16, 2022,
21 Defendants emailed Plaintiffs explaining that the 51,500 documents had been produced in error:

22 In the process of producing documents, a folder of sensitive and 23 privileged documents that had been segregated for secondary review
24 was inadvertently produced due to a vendor error. In addition to 25 privilege, these documents contain, among other things, personal 26 medical information, including communications with and about 27 doctors.

28 Pursuant to the clawback agreement in this case, we request (and require) that you delete all versions and copies of the documents identified in the attached spreadsheet. We will reproduce all relevant, responsive, nonprivileged documents from this set once we have been able to properly review them—a process that is occurring expeditiously.

Your prompt confirmation of compliance with the foregoing request is appreciated.

<sup>2</sup> It is not clear from the parties’ papers when Defendants inadvertently produced the 51,500 documents, but that production appears to have been made around March 10, 2022. See Dkt. No. 245 at 5 (“... on March 16, 2022, approximately six days after the inadvertent disclosure . . .”).

1 Dkt. No. 238-4. The spreadsheet attached to the email listed, among other things, documents IPPs
2 had cited and relied upon in support of the motion for leave to file an amended complaint. Dkt.
3 No. 238 at 7. After IPPs objected to Defendants’ demand that they destroy obviously responsive
4 documents on which IPPs had already relied, Defendants agreed that Plaintiffs need not destroy
5 those documents, but asked that the remaining documents be segregated until Defendants could 6 complete their review of those documents. Dkt. Nos. 238-8, 238-10. IPPs agreed to this request.
7 See Dkt. No. 238 at 15-16; Dkt. No. 245 at 11.

8           Meanwhile, DPPs pointed out to Defendants that the 51,500 documents included many 9 additional documents that were obviously not privileged and that no rule or order permitted
10 Defendants to clawback non-privileged materials from production. Dkt. No. 238-7. DPPs advised
11 that they would “quarantine” the 51,500 documents but asked Defendants to substantiate any 12 claim of privilege as to any document by March 30, 2022. See id. When Defendants did not
13 comply with this request, DPPs advised that they would ask their own discovery vendor to screen
14 the 51,500 documents for privilege using the names of Defendants’ attorneys then known to DPPs, 15 after which DPPs would resume review of the remaining documents. Dkt. No. 238-12.
16 Defendants objected to DPPs using “self-help” and demanded that DPPs “immediately stop 17 reviewing those documents pending our further review.” Dkt. No. 238-13.

18           The parties conferred regarding the 51,500 documents during the month of April 2022.
19 Dkt. No. 238 at 11; Dkt. No. 247 at 4. On April 26, 2022, Defendants provided a spreadsheet
20 identifying some documents as privileged and 4,270 as non-responsive. Id. On May 2, 2022,
21 Defendants re-produced all of the 51,500 documents to Plaintiffs except for 4,270 documents
22 withheld as “non-responsive” and 65 withheld as “potentially privileged.” Id.

23           The parties conferred again on July 5, 2022. Dkt. No. 245-1 ¶ 12. Defendants offered to 24 produce a final log of the documents being withheld and invited Plaintiffs’ counsel to identify any 25 documents about which they had questions so that the documents could be shared and discussed in 26 an effort to “resolve any doubts on the issue of relevance, privilege and privacy.” Id. DPPs filed 27 the present motion later that same day.

28           On July 19, 2022, shortly before filing their opposition to DPPs’ motion, Defendants made

1 an additional production of documents. Dkt. No. 245 at 3; Dkt. No. 247 at 3. Defendants
2 represent that they have now re-produced 49,000 of the 51,500 documents and are presently
3 withholding approximately 1800 as non-responsive and as containing personal or sensitive
4 information, and 190 as privileged. Dkt. No. 247 at 3.

5 DPPs ask the Court to order Defendants to (1) certify that they have now substantially
6 completed their document production and are not withholding any other potentially responsive
7 documents pending further review for undisclosed purposes; (2) disclose to DPPs the criteria
8 Defendants used to identify the collection of 51,500 documents as sensitive or potentially 9 privileged and how they made their determinations that some of these documents are non-
10 responsive; and (3) show cause why they should not be sanctioned for violating the Court’s 11 scheduling order setting deadlines for the substantial completion of document production and the 12 production of privilege logs. See Dkt. No. 238 at 2; Dkt. No. 247 at 9. Defendants ask the Court 13 to deny DPPs’ motion, and to order DPPs’ counsel to return or destroy all non-responsive and 14 privileged documents that were inadvertently produced. Dkt. No. 247 at 18.

15 II. DISCUSSION

16 DPPs argue that Defendants violated the Court’s scheduling order by failing to produce
17 51,500 documents that should have been produced by January 3, 2022, or at the latest by February 18 15, 2022, and that they compounded this violation by subsequently demanding the destruction or 19 sequestration of highly relevant documents within that production. Dkt. No. 238 at 15. They also 20 argue that it is inappropriate for Defendants to engage in a secondary review of documents that hit
21 on a court-ordered search term. Id. at 15-16. DPPs seek relief pursuant to Rule 37(b)(2)(A) of the 22 Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, which provides that “[i]f a party . . . fails to obey an order to 23 provide . . . discovery . . . the court . . . may issue further just orders,” including several listed
24 sanctions. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 37(b)(2)(A)(i)-(vii).<sup>3</sup>

25 Defendants do not dispute that they did not produce the 51,500 documents until March 26 2022, after the January 3 and February 15 deadlines. They also do not dispute that this set of

27

28 <sup>3</sup> DPPs also cite Rule 37(c)(1), but when pressed during the hearing, they were unable to articulate how they are entitled to relief pursuant to that Rule.

1 documents contained many highly relevant documents. Defendants argue that the 51,500
2 documents represent a small fraction of the more than 3.8 million documents they have already 3 produced in this case. They do not explain why the 51,500 documents were produced initially
4 after the deadline set for compliance, but they appear to argue that DPPs have suffered no
5 prejudice, given the steps Defendants have taken to review and re-produce all non-privileged 6 responsive documents as of July 19, 2022. See Dkt. No. 245 at 3, 11. At the hearing, Defendants’
7 counsel confirmed that Defendants are not withholding any other collection of potentially 8 responsive documents pending further review for undisclosed purposes. Dkt. No. 252.

9 DPPs principal concern is not so much that Defendants failed to produce many highly 10 relevant documents until after the substantial completion deadline, but that Defendants intended to 11 delay that late production even further so that they could conduct a supplementary review of these 12 documents, without informing Plaintiffs of what they were doing and how they were doing it, and 13 then tried to prevent Plaintiffs from reviewing the documents that were inadvertently produced.
14 Defendants’ inadvertent production of these documents and subsequent efforts to get them back
15 has now given rise to suspicion about the Defendants’ compliance with their discovery 16 obligations.

17 While the Court does not condone Defendants’ late production of documents, Defendants
18 have already taken steps to remedy their non-compliance. As the Court understands, Defendants
19 have now produced all the documents DPPs identified as highly relevant in their motion papers.
20 In addition, Defendants have provided a log of all documents withheld as privileged or non-
21 responsive and have offered to provide Plaintiffs more information about any non-responsive
22 document upon request. At the hearing, the Court asked DPPs’ counsel whether DPPs had 23 identified from among the 51,500 documents any non-privileged responsive documents that 24 Defendants had not yet re-produced. DPPs indicated they did not know of any, although they had 25 not completed their review of Defendants’ current log. Dkt. No. 252. In these circumstances, 26 DPPs have not shown prejudice from Defendants’ delayed production that might be remedied by 27 measures other than or different from those Defendants have already undertaken.

28 DPPs additionally demand that Defendants disclose the criteria they used to identify the

1 51,500 documents for supplementary review. DPPs suggest in their briefing that a Court order
2 requires Defendants to produce all documents that hit on a court-ordered search term and prohibits
3 Defendants from using any criteria or methods to cull documents from review without first
4 disclosing those criteria or methods to Plaintiffs in advance. See Dkt. No. 238 at 1; Dkt. No. 247
5 at 3; see also Dkt. No. 122 (ESI Order, Secs. IV.A.i and IV.B). DPPs are mistaken. The Court
6 has never ordered that a party must not review ESI for responsiveness after applying search terms;
7 rather, the Court has suggested that a party may choose to expedite its production by relying only 8 on search terms and a privilege screen. See Dkt. No. 201; Dkt. No. 213 at 24-25. Moreover,
9 Defendants explained at the hearing that they applied additional search terms, not to cull
10 documents from production, but to identify within their collection of potentially responsive 11 documents those that required a manual review, so as to avoid inadvertently producing non-12 responsive documents that included privileged material or private and sensitive information that 13 was not responsive to any of Plaintiffs' document requests. See Dkt. No. 252; see also Dkt. No.
14 245-1 ¶¶ 4-5. No order prohibits such review.

15 Accordingly, the Court concludes that DPPs have already obtained substantially all the 16 relief they sought by motion and that sanctions are not warranted. However, in order to ensure 17 complete resolution of this dispute, the Court orders as follows with respect to the 51,500
18 documents at issue:

- 19 1. DPPs must not review, and must sequester or destroy, any document Defendants have 20 identified as privileged or non-responsive.
- 21 2. If DPPs believe that any of the approximately 190 documents withheld by Defendants 22 as privileged are, in fact, not privileged and should be produced, DPPs must notify 23 Defendants of each such document no later than September 7, 2022. The parties must 24 confer in an effort to resolve their dispute about production of these documents, and 25 they may ask the Court to decide any unresolved disputes using the Court's expedited
26 discovery dispute resolution procedures.<sup>4</sup>

3. If DPPs believe that any of the approximately 1800 documents withheld by Defendants as non-responsive are, in fact, responsive to a document request and relevant to a claim or defense and should be produced, DPPs must notify Defendants of each such document no later than September 21, 2022 and must identify the request(s) for production to which it is responsive. The parties must confer in an effort to resolve their dispute about production of these documents, and they may ask the Court to decide any unresolved disputes using the Court’s expedited discovery dispute resolution procedures.
4. DPPs must destroy any withheld document whose withholding they do not challenge no later than September 28, 2022 and must promptly inform Defendants in writing that they have done so.
5. If they wish, DPPs and Defendants may modify the deadlines set in paragraphs 2-4 by mutual agreement without seeking the Court’s approval.

IT IS SO ORDERED.
