UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

CHAD MCKINNEY, an individual,
Plaintiff,
vs.
APOLLO GROUP, INC., a Corporation, et al.,
Defendants.

CASE NO. 07cv2373 WQH (CAB)
ORDER

HAYES, Judge:

The matter before the Court is the Amended Motion to Dismiss (Doc. # 122).

Background

On December 19, 2007, Plaintiff initiated this action by filing a complaint (Doc. # 1). The complaint alleged the following causes of action: (1) retaliation, in violation of the False Claims Act, 31 U.S.C. section 3730(h) (the "FCA"), (2) retaliation, in violation of Title VII of the 1964 Civil Rights Act ("Title VII"), (3) wrongful termination, (4) false imprisonment, (5) intentional infliction of emotional distress, (6) defamation, and (7) equal pay. On July 23, 2008, the Court issued an Order dismissing the complaint (the "July 23 Order") (Doc. # 87). The Court concluded that the complaint failed to state a claim pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. The Court granted Plaintiff leave to amend.

On January 12, 2009, Plaintiff filed the First Amended Complaint ("FAC"), which is the operative pleading in this case (Doc. # 119). The FAC alleges that on August 7, 2006, Plaintiff was hired as an enrollment counselor for Defendant University of Phoenix

1 (“Phoenix”). The FAC alleges that Plaintiff was told the job was a salary position, and that 2 “there was no mention to the Plaintiff that his salary would decrease if the Plaintiff did not 3 meet quotas for new students enrolled into the university.” FAC, ¶ 8. The FAC alleges that 4 “[a]fter two months of employment, the Plaintiff alleges to have discovered that his salary was 5 based on enrollment quotas.” Id., ¶ 10. The FAC alleges that Defendants Mechelle Bonilla 6 (“Bonilla”), Carlyn Lindsten (“Lindsten”), and Kyan Flynn (“Flynn”), employees of the 7 University of Phoenix, “entered Plaintiff into various contests that [Plaintiff] believes 8 encouraged sales quotas.” Id., ¶ 11. The FAC alleges that “[a]fter the Plaintiff discovered that 9 the Higher Education Act prohibits enrollment counselors from using incentives and bonuses 10 to enroll individuals into the university, he vocalized this concern to his first direct supervisor, 11 Barbara Keramati” (“Keramati”). Id., ¶ 12. The FAC alleges that despite Plaintiff’s concerns, 12 “Keramati informed Plaintiff that his tuition reimbursement would be revoked if he failed to 13 meet the ‘goal’ of enrolling at least four students per month.” Id., ¶ 13.

14 The FAC alleges that on December 19, 2006, Plaintiff was informed that his job 15 performance was exceptional. The FAC alleges, however, that “[o]n a multitude of occasions 16 from the end of February 2007 until the Plaintiff was terminated, [Plaintiff] believes that he 17 received multiple harassing emails from” Lindsten, which “threatened reduction in pay if 18 enrollment quotas were not met, questioned the level of dedication demonstrated by the 19 Plaintiff, and asked the Plaintiff if he was truly serious about his career with the company.” 20 Id., ¶ 15. The FAC alleges that “Plaintiff perceived these communications initiated by 21 Lindsten to be condescending, threatening, and harassing in nature.” Id.

22 The FAC alleges that employees were required to participate in mandatory “blitzes” 23 whereby “Lindsten would ring a repeating siren throughout the entire building.” Id. The FAC 24 alleges that “[d]uring this time, employees were led to believe that they were not allowed to 25 leave their cubicle.” Id. The FAC alleges that blitzes occurred three times a day.

26 The FAC alleges that in late February 2007 or early March 2007, Lindsten transferred 27 Plaintiff from the Kearny Mesa campus to the downtown San Diego campus. The FAC alleges 28 that “[t]he transfer occurred soon after the Plaintiff vocally repeated his concerns to Lindsten,

1 regarding the legality of the quota system being used by Apollo's San Diego Enrollment
2 Department." Id., ¶ 17. The FAC alleges that Bonilla "told the Plaintiff to sign a 'Discussion
3 Memo' that stated his performance fell below expectations of appointments seen, applications 4 taken, and students whom started class," and which stated that "failure to improve your 5 performances may result in further disciplinary action up to and including termination." Id., 6 ¶ 19. The FAC alleges that thereafter, "[m]any of Plaintiff's applicants were subsequently 7 transferred to other San Diego staff to enroll into school;" that "Plaintiff's 'lead base' (number 8 of students in his data base available for contact) was reduced drastically by Bonilla;" and that 9 Plaintiff's "work schedule was changed, without consultation, by Lindsten." Id., ¶¶ 21-22.

10 The FAC alleges that Lindsten and Bonilla "stated on multiple occasions that they had 11 made [potential students] cry on the telephone, and that 'it was our job to do the same.'" Id., 12 ¶ 22. The FAC alleges that this behavior "was perceived by the Plaintiff to be harassing, and 13 conducted in a condescending, demanding, and braggart manner," and that the behavior also 14 "cause[d] potential students emotional distress." Id. The FAC alleges that Plaintiff 15 complained to Defendants "that he believed the employment practices mandated by the 16 company forced Enrollment Counselors to enroll students who were not qualified or ready to 17 go to school, or to deceive students into enrolling into the University of Phoenix." Id.

18 The FAC alleges that "Plaintiff feels that [] retaliatory acts were taken against him by 19 the company, and its associates, for voicing concerns about the San Diego Enrollment 20 Department using quotas for enrolling students into school." Id., ¶ 24. The FAC alleges that 21 "Bonilla and Flynn asked the Plaintiff to sign documents that he felt were untrue relating to 22 his performance as an enrollment counselor," and that "Plaintiff's salary was reduced from 23 $37,000 to $35,000 in May . . . because he did not 'meet goal' in May." Id., ¶¶ 23-24.

24 The FAC alleges that on June 11, 2007, Plaintiff submitted evidence to human resources 25 which Plaintiff believes "supported his claim that the San Diego office was using harassment, 26 intimidation, and discrimination to get the plaintiff to quit employment, or accept the sales 27 quota system." Id., ¶ 25. The FAC alleges that Defendants "continued to create a hostile work 28 environment for [Plaintiff] even after he had demanded to [human resources] that the

1 Defendants cease and desist what he felt were threatening, harassing, and retaliatory actions.”
2 Id., ¶ 28. The FAC alleges that Defendants represented that Plaintiff’s complaints would be 3 examined and resolved, but continued to postpone the date on which Plaintiff’s complaints 4 would be resolved. The FAC alleges that “Plaintiff believes [Defendants] were playing games 5 with him, and willfully allowing for further discrimination and harassment to occur against the 6 Plaintiff in an effort to force [Plaintiff] to resign from the company.” Id., ¶ 38.

7 The FAC alleges that in June 2007, Plaintiff “was reprimanded by Bonilla for his attire
8 (flip flops, jeans, and a t-shirt) on a casual Friday.” Id., ¶ 30. The FAC alleges that “Plaintiff 9 believes that this action was discriminatory, retaliatory, and harassing” because three female 10 employees “had all worn the same attire (as well as tank tops) and were previously 11 unpunished.” Id.

12 The FAC alleges that “Plaintiff was extremely stressed out over the situation,” and 13 communicated his stress to Defendants.” Id., ¶ 34. The FAC alleges that Plaintiff’s stress 14 increased daily, and that Plaintiff “began grinding his teeth, vomiting, and experiencing severe 15 stomach pains as a result of the harassment and stress that he claims to have endured at the 16 hand of the Defendants.” Id., ¶ 35.

17 The FAC alleges that Plaintiff was unable to work due to his stress, and “was forced to 18 suffer another day at home without pay.” Id., ¶ 38. The FAC alleges that on June 12, 2007, 19 Plaintiff received a telephone call while at home whereby Plaintiff was informed that he could 20 take a leave of absence from work. The FAC alleges that, having heard nothing regarding the 21 resolution of his complaint and evidence submitted to human resources, that Plaintiff decided 22 to take the leave of absence. The FAC alleges that on July 13, 2007, “Plaintiff notified Alcorn 23 and Bonilla via email that he would take a 10 day non-paid vacation in order to provide them 24 enough time to rectify the situation,” and “provided his personal email account, should they 25 need to contact.” Id., ¶ 43. The FAC alleges that while Plaintiff was on leave of absence, 26 three overnight Federal Express packages were left at Plaintiff’s residence. The FAC alleges 27 that the first package contained a letter stating that Plaintiff needed to return to work no later 28 than July 19, 2007; the second package contained a letter stating that the “Company has chosen

1 to separate your employment effective July 19th, 2007” on grounds that Plaintiff failed to 2 report to work at the designated date and time; and the third package contained a letter stating 3 that “Apollo Group, Inc. has reviewed your concerns and we find no evidence to support any 4 findings of the San Diego Enrollment Department violating Company policies or procedures 5 as outlined by your allegations.” Id., ¶¶ 45-48.

6 The FAC alleges the following causes of action: (1) retaliation in violation of the FCA;
7 (2) retaliation in violation of Title VII; (3) wrongful termination; (4) false imprisonment; (5)
8 intentional infliction of emotional distress; (6) defamation; and (7) violation of the Equal Pay 9 Act (“EPA”). In support of the cause of action for retaliation in violation of the FCA, the 10 FAC alleges that “Plaintiff was retaliated against, and discharged from Apollo, for bringing 11 his concerns regarding the legal and ethical practices of the company to the attention” of 12 Defendants. Id., ¶ 49. In support of the cause of action for retaliation in violation of Title VII, 13 the FAC alleges that Defendants discriminated against Plaintiff based on his dress, even though 14 he was dressed no less professional than his female co-workers; and that Plaintiff “had heard 15 from several other company employees that . . . a manager of the Finance Department, was 16 discriminated against” because he was male. Id., ¶ 50. In support of the cause of action for 17 wrongful termination, the FAC alleges that Defendants wrongfully terminated Plaintiff “in an 18 attempt to silence and quash the Plaintiff’s opposition to what he believed were unlawful 19 practices by Apollo and its employees in violation of public policy.” Id., ¶ 51. In support of 20 the cause of action for false imprisonment, the FAC alleges that Defendants “used threats and 21 the show of apparent authority to falsely imprison the Plaintiff to his office cubicle,” and that 22 “Plaintiff was not allowed to leave his desk to get water, use the restroom, or exit the room for 23 multiple periods of time, often exceeding beyond the duration of thirty minutes.” Id., ¶ 52.
24 In support of the cause of action for intentional infliction of emotional distress, the FAC 25 alleges that Plaintiff “suffered severe and extreme emotional distress as a result of Defendants’ 26 outrageous and extreme conduct.” Id., ¶ 53. In support of the cause of action for defamation, 27 the FAC alleges that “Plaintiff suffered defamation when Bonilla attacked his personal 28 character, in private, as well as in front of other employees at Apollo;” when Bonilla and Flynn

1 “demanded that he sign documents published as statements of fact that he felt were untrue 2 relating to his professional performance and character;” when Plaintiff “was told in an initial 3 telephone conversation with Alcorn that the stress and harassment he received was his ‘fault;’” 4 and when “the company allowed its associates . . . under the auspices of its authority, to 5 continually violate his rights as an employee of Apollo.” Id., ¶ 54. In support of the cause of 6 action for violation of the EPA, the FAC alleges that Defendants “discriminated against the 7 Plaintiff on the basis of his status as a member of a protected class by paying him lower 8 wages.” Id., ¶ 55.

9 On January 29, 2009, Defendants filed the Amended Motion to Dismiss (“Motion to 10 Dismiss”). On February 17, 2009, Plaintiff filed a Response in Opposition to the Motion to 11 Dismiss (Doc. # 122). On February 23, 2009, Defendants filed a Reply (Doc. # 123).

12 Standard of Review

13 A motion to dismiss under Rule 12(b)(6) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure tests 14 the legal sufficiency of the pleadings. See De La Cruz v. Tormey, 582 F.2d 45, 48 (9th Cir.
15 1978). A complaint may be dismissed for failure to state a claim under Rule 12(b)(6) where 16 the factual allegations do not raise the right to relief above the speculative level. See Bell 17 Atlantic v. Twombly, 127 S. Ct. 1955, 1965 (2007). Conversely, a complaint may not be 18 dismissed for failure to state a claim where the allegations plausibly show that the pleader is 19 entitled to relief. See id. (citing Fed R. Civ. P. 8(a)(2)). In ruling on a motion pursuant to Rule 20 12(b)(6), a court must construe the pleadings in the light most favorable to the plaintiff, and 21 must accept as true all material allegations in the complaint, as well as any reasonable 22 inferences to be drawn therefrom. See Broam v. Bogan, 320 F.3d 1023, 1028 (9th Cir. 2003); 23 see also Chang v. Chen, 80 F.3d 1293 (9th Cir. 1996). “Courts have a duty to construe pro se 24 pleadings liberally, including pro se motions as well as complaints.” Bernhardt v. Los Angeles 25 County, 339 F.3d 920, 925 (9th Cir. 2003).

26 Rule 8 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure requires a complaint to contain “a short 27 and plain statement of the claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief . . .” FED R. CIV.
28 P. 8(a)(2). While the Federal Rules adopt a flexible pleading policy, every complaint must,

1 at a minimum, “give the defendant fair notice of what the . . . claim is and the grounds upon 2 which it rests.” Bell Atlantic, 127 S. Ct. at 1964 (citing Conley v. Gibson, 355 U.S. 41, 47 3 (1957)).

4 Analysis

5 Defendants move to dismiss the FAC pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6) of the Federal Rules of 6 Civil Procedure on grounds that it fails to provide a basis upon which relief can be granted.
7 Defendants further contend that the FAC is “incoherent, rambling [and] unreadable,” and 8 therefore fails to comply with Rule 8 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. Mot. to Dismiss, 9 p. 17. Defendants contend that Plaintiff “has filed a protracted, rambling, incomprehensible 10 FAC that utterly fails to allege any facts to support any of his claims,” and that Plaintiff “has 11 had numerous attempts to provide an adequate pleading and cannot assert anything in a newly 12 amended pleading that will give merit to his baseless claims.” Id. at 18. Defendants therefore 13 request that the Court dismiss the FAC with prejudice pursuant to Rule 41(b) of the Federal 14 Rules of Civil Procedure.

15 Plaintiff contends that dismissal of the FAC is not proper because the FAC provides a 16 basis upon which relief can be granted. Plaintiff “believes that the FAC alleged the necessary 17 facts to move this case into the discovery phase of litigation.” Opposition, p. 34. Plaintiff 18 states: “[i]f, for whatever reason it is found by this honorable Court to be lacking, [Plaintiff] 19 respectfully requests leave to submit a second amended complaint.” Id.

20 A. Cause of Action for Retaliation in Violation of the False Claims Act

21 Defendants contend that the FAC fails to allege “facts supporting any ‘investigation for, 22 initiating of, testimony for, or assistance in a FCA suit’ as required to support a claim under 23 31 U.S.C. section 3730(h).” Mot. to Dismiss, p. 5 (quoting 31 U.S.C. section 3730(h)).
24 Defendants contend that the allegation in the FAC that Defendants “utilized a list of preferred 25 third party lenders that it referred its students to in order to apply for financial aid is not 26 improper, is common place among colleges and universities and most certainly does not 27 qualify as facts to support a claim of false statements or other corrupt or fraudulent conduct.” 28 Id. (internal quotations omitted). Defendants contend the FAC and Opposition “are devoid of 1 any claims that [Plaintiff] reported any violations of the FCA and only concern purported 2 violations of the Higher Education Act.” Reply, p. 4. Defendants therefore contend that the 3 FAC “fails to allege any facts supporting that [Plaintiff] told anyone anything about purported 4 FCA violations or g[a]ve notice of a FCA suit, qui tam action or that [Plaintiff] intended to 5 report or assist the government in the investigation of a FCA violation.” Id. Defendants 6 further contend that an employee cannot claim retaliation under the whistleblower protections 7 for “re-reporting the same claims that an employer is already aware of.” Mot. to Dismiss, p.

8 6. Defendants contend that Plaintiff is not entitled to protection under the FCA because the 9 claims alleged in the FAC are identical to those alleged in Hendow v. University of Phoenix, 10 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 28990 (E.D. Cal., May 19, 2004), reversed and remanded 461 F.3d 11 1166 (9th Cir. 2006) (the “Hendow action”).

12 Plaintiff contends that in his formal complaint to human resources, he gives “pointed 13 reference to the Higher Education Act, specific use of the term ‘illegal,’ and notification to the 14 defendants that he was considering legal action against the University.” Opposition, p. 14-15.
15 Plaintiff contends that the FAC “alleges that the Defendants deliberately directed potential 16 students to specific lenders from that list of preferred third party lenders” thereby intimidating, 17 harassing and demanding enrollment counselors to coerce potential students into selecting a 18 specific lender. Id. at 15-16. Plaintiff contends that the FAC alleges that “Plaintiff contributed 19 to the furtherance of an investigation which may have been brought forth in the name of the 20 United States government at a later time” because “on numerous occasions [Plaintiff] initiated 21 an investigation into his complaint that the Defendants were in violation of the FCA.” Id. at 22 12. Plaintiff further contends that Defendants are not immune from suit based on the Hendow 23 action because the facts alleged in the Hendow action are not identical to those in the FAC.
24 Based on the foregoing, Plaintiff contends that the FAC pleads sufficient facts to invoke the 25 whistleblower protection under the FCA.

26 31 U.S.C. section 3730(h) is the FCA’s whistle blower provision. Section 3730(h) 27 provides that an employee who 28

1 is discharged, demoted, suspended, threatened, harassed, or in any other manner 2 discriminated against in the terms and conditions of employment by his or her 3 employer because of lawful acts done by the employee on behalf of the 4 employee or others in furtherance of an action under this section . . . may bring an action in the appropriate district court of the United States for the relief provided in this subsection.

5 31 U.S.C. § 3730(h). “Mere dissatisfaction with one’s treatment on the job is not, of course, 6 enough [to state a claim under section 3730(h)]. Nor is an employee’s investigation of nothing 7 more than his employer’s non-compliance with federal or state regulations.” United States ex
8 rel. Yesudian v. Howard University, 153 F.3d 731, 742 (D.C. Cir. 1998).

9 Pursuant to 31 U.S.C. section 3730(b), a private person may bring a civil action for 10 violation of the FCA “for the person and for the United States Government. The action shall 11 be brought in the name of the Government.” 31 U.S.C. § 3730(b). Section 3730(c) governs 12 the rights of the parties to qui tam actions, and provides: “If the Government proceeds with the 13 action, it shall have the primary responsibility for prosecuting the action, and shall not be 14 bound by an act of the person bringing the action. Such person shall have the right to continue 15 as a party to the action.” 31 U.S.C. § 3730(c). Section 3730(e) provides that “[i]n no event 16 may a person bring an action under subsection (b) which is based upon allegations or 17 transactions which are the subject of a civil suit or an administrative civil money penalty 18 proceeding in which the Government is already a party.” 31 U.S.C. § 3730(e).

19 The FAC alleges that Plaintiff reported his concern that Defendants’ enrollment scheme 20 violated the Higher Education Act, and that Defendants coerced students into obtaining loans 21 through specific lenders. The FAC, however, does not allege facts to support that Plaintiff 22 reported any violation of the FCA or otherwise allege facts to support that Plaintiff was 23 retaliated against because of lawful acts done by Plaintiff in furtherance of an action under the 24 FCA. Instead, the FAC alleges that Defendants retaliated against Plaintiff for investigating 25 Defendants’ alleged non-compliance with federal or state regulations, which is insufficient to 26 state a claim under section 3730(h). Furthermore, Plaintiff does not dispute that Defendants 27 are involved in a qui tam action, which is ongoing and was filed in 2004. See Hendow, 2004
28 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 28990. The Hendow action challenges the legality of offering incentive pay

1 for enrollment counselors, and the facts alleged in the FAC with respect to this claim are 2 essentially identical to the facts alleged in the Hendow action. As previously discussed, 3 Plaintiff's claims that do not relate to Defendants' enrollment practices, such as the claim 4 relating to coercive lending policies, do not allege facts sufficient to support a claim under the 5 FCA. Viewing the allegations in the light most favorable to Plaintiff, the Court concludes that 6 Plaintiff has failed to state a claim under 31 U.S.C. § 3730(h), and that section 3730(e) bars 7 Plaintiff from bringing this action under 31 U.S.C. § 3730(b) for violation of the FCA. The 8 cause of action for retaliation in violation of the FCA is dismissed.

9 B. Cause of Action for Retaliation in Violation of Title VII

10 Defendants contend that the "only two instances of perceived sexual discrimination [] 11 were: (1) being reprimanded once for his attire; and (2) overhearing a workplace rumor about 12 someone in a different department whom he never worked with." Reply, p. 6. With respect 13 to the claim that Plaintiff was discriminated against based on his attire, Defendants contend 14 that Plaintiff "never asserts that he was replaced by a person outside the protected class, that 15 similarly situated non-protected employees were treated more favorably or that he was treated 16 differently because of his sex." Mot. to Dismiss, p. 10. Defendants further contend that 17 "isolated incidents (unless extremely serious) do not amount to discriminatory changes in the 18 terms and conditions of employment," and that "[c]ourts have routinely held that employers 19 may establish moderately different dress and grooming standards for male and female 20 employees." Id. Regarding the claim that Plaintiff heard that another male employee was 21 discriminated against, Defendants contend that a "plaintiff cannot support a sexual 22 harassment/discrimination claim when the alleged harassment/discrimination occurred out of 23 plaintiff's sight and orbit in venues in which [the plaintiff] did not work." Id. at 10-11 (internal 24 quotations omitted).

25 Plaintiff contends that the "claims under Title VII are not based on one conversation 26 with [Plaintiff's] manager." Opposition, p. 22. Plaintiff contends that the FAC does allege 27 that "similarly situated employees were treated more favorable and that [Plaintiff] was treated 28 differently because of his sex" through allegations that he dressed no less professional than his

1 female co-workers, yet was the only employee reprimanded for his dress. Id. Plaintiff 2 contends that the FAC “alleged several instances of discrimination.” Id.

3 Title VII makes it unlawful for covered employers to hire or discharge any individual, 4 or otherwise discriminate against any individual on the basis of race, color, religion, sex or 5 national origin. 42 U.S.C. § 2000e, et seq. To state a retaliation claim under Title VII, the 6 plaintiff must allege that he (1) engaged in some conduct protected by Title VII, (2) suffered 7 an adverse employment action, and (3) the adverse employment action was taken against him 8 because of the protected activity. Trent v. Elect. Assoc., 41 F.3d 524, 526 (9th Cir. 1994). To 9 state a claim for discriminatory treatment under Title VII, the plaintiff must allege that he (1) 10 is a member of a protected class, (2) was capable of performing his job, and (3) was treated 11 differently because of his protected class status. Pejic v. Hughs Helicopters, Inc., 840 F.2d 12 667, 672 (9th Cir. 1988). Sexual harassment “is actionable under Title VII only if it is so 13 severe or pervasive as to alter the conditions of [the plaintiff’s] employment and create an 14 abusive working environment.” Clark County School Dist. v. Breeden, 532 U.S. 268, 270 15 (2001) (internal quotations omitted). “[S]imple teasing, offhand comments, and isolated 16 incidents (unless extremely serious) will not amount to discriminatory changes in the terms and 17 conditions of employment.” Id. Courts “have long recognized that companies may 18 differentiate between men and women in appearance and grooming policies.” Jespersion v.
19 Harrah’s Operating Co. Inc., 444 F.3d 1104, 1110 (9th Cir. 2008). “The material issue under 20 our settled law is not whether the policies are different, but whether the policy imposed on the 21 plaintiff creates an unequal burden for the plaintiff’s gender.” Id. (internal quotations omitted).
22 A party does not have standing under Title VII to allege injury because of third-party 23 discrimination. See Patee v. Pacific Northwest Bell Tel., 803 F.2d 476, 478 (9th Cir. 1986); 24 see also Leibovitz v. New York City Transit Auth., 252 F.3d 179, 189 (2d Cir. 2001) (plaintiff 25 cannot support a sexual harassment claim when the “women who were allegedly harassed were 26 working in another part of the employer’s premises, out of [the plaintiff’s] sight and regular 27 orbit; . . . the experiences of those women came to [the plaintiff’s] notice via hearsay”).

28

1 The FAC alleges two instances of perceived sexual discrimination. First, the FAC
2 alleges that Plaintiff was reprimanded for his attire, and that females wearing the same attire 3 were not reprimanded. With respect to this claim, the FAC alleges only one incident of 4 discrimination on the basis of Plaintiff’s attire, which does not constitute “extremely serious” 5 discrimination. Breedon, 532 U.S. at 270. Furthermore, a company may differentiate between 6 men and women in appearance policies, and the FAC does not allege facts to support that 7 Defendants’ appearance policy creates an unequal burden for Plaintiff’s gender. Jespersion, 8 444 F.3d at 1110. Second, the FAC alleges that Plaintiff heard that another male employee 9 suffered sexual discrimination. With respect to this claim, the FAC alleges that Plaintiff “had 10 heard from several other company employees” about the discrimination, and that the 11 discrimination occurred against an employee that works in a different department than 12 Plaintiff. FAC, ¶ 50. The allegations with respect to discrimination against a manager of the 13 finance department constitute allegations of third party discrimination, which are insufficient 14 to support a claim for violation of Title VII. Based on the foregoing, the Court concludes that 15 the FAC fails to allege facts sufficient to support a claim under Title VII. The cause of action 16 for retaliation in violation of Title VII is dismissed.

17 C. Cause of Action for Wrongful Termination

18 Defendants contend that since Plaintiff’s claim under the FCA “should be dismissed, 19 his use of a violation of this statute as the basis for his claim of wrongful termination must also 20 fail.” Mot. to Dismiss, p. 11. Defendants contend that Plaintiff’s “admission of facts that he 21 was given a warning and then fired after not returning to work essentially eliminates any claim 22 of wrongful termination.” Id. at 12. Defendants contend that Plaintiff may not explain away 23 the fact that Plaintiff was given a written warning to return to work “by blaming the Corporate 24 Defendants for not sending him this warning using the ‘modality’ of communication he 25 preferred.” Reply, p. 7.

26 Plaintiff contends that he has stated a claim under the FCA such that dismissal of his 27 claim for wrongful termination on grounds that Plaintiff fails to state a claim under the FCA 28 is not proper. Plaintiff contends that the FAC alleges that Plaintiff provided Defendants with

1 his personal email address should they need to contact him while he was on his leave of 2 absence. Plaintiff contends that he “did not admit that he was given a warning to return to 3 work” because, as alleged in the FAC, Plaintiff “did not receive any correspondence from the 4 Defendants in his personal email account after he had notified them that this was the modality 5 in which to contact him during his ten day leave of absence.” Opposition, p. 24-25.

6 To state a claim for wrongful termination in violation of public policy, a plaintiff must 7 establish that there was an employer-employee relationship; a termination of employment or 8 other adverse employment action; that the termination was a violation of public policy; and 9 that the termination was the legal cause of plaintiff’s damage and that the plaintiff suffered 10 damage. City of Moorpark v. Super. Ct., 18 Cal. 4th 1143, 1159 (1998).

11 The bases alleged in the FAC in support of the cause of action for wrongful termination 12 are that Plaintiff “was terminated by [Defendants] for acting as a whistle blower,” and that 13 Plaintiff was discharged in an attempt to “silence or quash the Plaintiff’s opposition to what 14 he believed were unlawful practices . . . in violation of public policy.” Opposition, p. 35-36.
15 However, as previously discussed, the FAC fails to allege facts sufficient to invoke the 16 whistle-blower protections of the FCA, or to state a claim under Title VII. Plaintiff provides 17 no basis to support a finding that Defendants failure to send him a warning to return to work
18 using the modality of communication that Plaintiff preferred violates public policy. The FAC 19 fails to describe how this conduct otherwise violates public policy. The Court concludes that 20 the FAC fails to state a claim for wrongful termination. The cause of action for wrongful 21 termination is dismissed.

22 D. Cause of Action for False Imprisonment

23 Defendants contend that “all enrollment counselors were required to do the very same 24 tasks” underlying the false imprisonment claim “at the very same times - each and every day.” 25 Mot. to Dismiss, p. 13. Defendants contend that the FAC “does not allege that [Plaintiff] was 26 detained by the Corporate Defendants, confined to a room or physically barred from leaving 27 the premises,” or that Plaintiff “suffered any damages since he was paid his regular wages 28 during this time.” Id. Defendants contend that Plaintiff’s “complaint of having to be at his

1 desk and make phone calls during a pre-designated scheduled work time is precisely the type 2 of action that employees are barred from bringing against their employers since it was clearly 3 an action that was a normal part of the employment relationship.” Id. (internal quotations 4 omitted).

5 Plaintiff contends that the “false imprisonment alleged by [Plaintiff] is said to have 6 occurred on multiple occasions.” Opposition, p. 26. Plaintiff contends that the “blitz” periods
7 during which Plaintiff was confined to his desk were not a normal part of the employment 8 relationship because “Plaintiff has alleged facts to state that the Defendants conspired to, and 9 deliberately performed acts to humiliate, harass, and intimidate him.” Id. at 27. Plaintiff 10 contends that his confinement was not voluntary because “he received an email threatening 11 termination if he did not blitz.” Id.

12 To state a claim for false imprisonment, the plaintiff must allege that he was 13 intentionally confined without consent, without lawful privilege, and for an appreciable period 14 of time. Easton v. Sutter Coast Hosp., 80 Cal. App. 4th 485, 496 (2000). Employees may not 15 take action against their employers for “actions which are a normal part of the employment 16 relationship.” Cole v. Fair Oaks Fire Protection District, 43 Cal. 3d 148, 160 (1987). “[I]n 17 order to plead false imprisonment in a civil action, a plaintiff/ employee would have to allege 18 rather specific, and fairly uncommon, acts of involuntary and criminal confinement.” Fermino 19 v. Fedco, Inc., 7 Cal. 4th 701, 717 (1994).

20 The blitzes alleged in the FAC are tantamount to “actions which are a normal part of 21 the employment relationship” because all enrollment counselors were required to participate 22 in blitzes, and the FAC does not allege that Plaintiff was physically confined to the room and 23 barred from leaving the premises. Cole, 43 F. 3d at 160. Furthermore, the FAC does not 24 allege “fairly uncommon [] acts of involuntary and criminal confinement.” Fermino, 7 Cal.
25 4th at 717. Although the FAC alleges facts that Plaintiff had a subjective belief that he would 26 be subject to adverse employment action if he did not participate in the blitzes, the FAC does 27 not allege facts to support a claim for false imprisonment. The cause of action for false 28 imprisonment is dismissed.

1 E. Cause of Action for Intentional Infliction of Emotional Distress

2 Defendants contend that “[b]ased on the FAC, [Plaintiff’s] claims of discrimination and 3 harassment all derive from his claims made under the FCA and Title VII. Accordingly, since 4 [Plaintiff’s] claims under these statutes should be dismissed, his claim for [intentional infliction 5 of emotional distress] should be dismissed as well.” Mot. to Dismiss, p. 14.

6 Plaintiff contends that the FAC sufficiently alleges a claim for intentional infliction of 7 emotional distress because Plaintiff “has stated that his employer singled him out and subjected 8 him to an extreme and outrageous campaign of humiliation, discrimination, intimidation, and 9 harassment for the purpose of causing emotional distress.” Opposition, p. 29.

10 To state a claim for intentional infliction of emotional distress, Plaintiffs must allege: 11 “(1) extreme and outrageous conduct by the defendant with the intention of causing, or 12 reckless disregard of the probability of causing, emotional distress; (2) the plaintiff’s suffering 13 severe or extreme emotional distress; and (3) actual and proximate causation of the emotional 14 distress by the defendant’s outrageous conduct.” Potter v. Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., 6 Cal.
15 4th 965, 1001 (1993) (citing Christensen v. Superior Ct., 54 Cal. 3d 868, 903 (1991)). In order 16 to be “outrageous,” conduct “must be so extreme as to exceed all bounds of that usually 17 tolerated in a civilized society.” Garamendi v. Golden Eagle Ins. Co., 128 Cal. App. 4th 452, 18 480 (2005). Severe emotional distress “may consist of any highly unpleasant mental reaction 19 such as fright, grief, shame, humiliation, embarrassment, anger, chagrin, disappointment or 20 worry.” Hailey v. California Physicians’ Service, 158 Cal. App. 4th 452,476 (9th Cir. 2007).

21 The FAC does not allege that Defendants acted with the intent of causing Plaintiff 22 emotional distress. Rather, the allegations in the FAC support that Defendants tried to 23 accommodate Plaintiff in light of his concerns by granting him a leave of absence and 24 investigating his complaint. Furthermore, the factual allegations in the FAC do not support 25 a claim for violation of Title VII, violation of the FCA, false imprisonment, or wrongful 26 termination, and the FAC does not articulate how Defendants’ conduct is otherwise extreme 27 or outrageous. The Court concludes that the FAC fails to state a claim for intentional infliction 28 of emotional distress because the FAC fails to allege facts to show that Defendants conduct

1 was extreme or outrageous, and that Defendants acted with the intent to cause Plaintiff 2 emotional distress. The cause of action for intentional infliction of emotional distress is 3 dismissed.

4 F. Cause of Action for Defamation

5 Defendants contend that courts disfavor claims of libel brought by a plaintiff against 6 his former employer for receiving a poor performance evaluation. Defendants contend that all 7 of the “comments alleged by [Plaintiff] are privileged under the employer employee privilege 8 since they concerned work-related issues and were not made to anyone not employed by the 9 Corporate Defendants.” Mot. to Dismiss, p. 15.

10 Plaintiff contends that FAC alleges that the comments underlying his defamation claim 11 “poisoned the well and changed the course of Plaintiff’s career with the company.” 12 Opposition, p. 30. Plaintiff contends that the comments “were fabricated as a pretext for 13 prohibited discrimination.” Id. Plaintiff contends that “had the articles under question of 14 defamation not been entered into the Plaintiff’s employee file, it is reasonable to assume that 15 his salary would not have been reduced, and he may have remained at the Kearny Mesa 16 campus and progressed along a different career path with the Defendants.” Id.

17 To state a claim for defamation, the plaintiff must establish “the intentional publication 18 of a statement of fact that is false, unprivileged, and has a natural tendency to injure or which 19 causes special damage.” Smith v. Maldonado, 72 Cal. App. 4th 637, 645 (1999). A 20 publication “must contain a false statement of fact to give rise to liability for defamation.
21 Jensen v. Hewlett Packard Co., 14 Cal. App. 4th 958, 969-70 (1993) (emphasis in original).
22 “[T]he word ‘evaluation’ denotes opinion, not fact.” Id. at 970. No action lies unless “an 23 employer’s performance evaluation falsely accuses an employee of criminal conduct, lack of 24 integrity, dishonest, incompetence or reprehensible personal characteristics or behavior.” Id.
25 at 965. “This is true even when the employer’s perceptions about the employee’s efforts, 26 attitude, performance, potential or worth to the enterprise are objectively wrong and cannot be 27 supported by reference to concrete, provable facts.” Id. “[W]here an employee alleges the 28 employer’s negative evaluations are feigned, the only potentially available remedy lies in 1 contract.” Id.

2 The allegations in the FAC underlying Plaintiff’s defamation claim concern Defendants’ 3 alleged comments relating to Plaintiff’s performance. Defendants’ evaluations of Plaintiff’s 4 performance evaluations constitute opinions, and therefore do not give rise to liability for 5 defamation. See Jensen, 14 Cal. App. 4th at 970. The FAC does not allege that Defendants’ 6 have falsely accused Plaintiff of “criminal conduct, lack of integrity, dishonest, incompetence 7 or reprehensible personal characteristics or behavior.” Id. at 965. The FAC fails to state a 8 claim for defamation because the defamation claim relates to Defendants’ comments regarding 9 Plaintiff’s performance, and the FAC does not allege facts sufficient to support the requisite 10 conduct to state a claim for defamation in the employee-employer context. The cause of action 11 for defamation is dismissed.

12 G. Cause of Action for Violation of the Equal Pay Act

13 Defendants contend that the FAC “fails to aver any facts supporting that Corporate 14 Defendants paid men less than women for the same type of work or that only men had their 15 pay reduced for poor performance and that women did not.” Mot. to Dismiss, p. 16.
16 Defendants contend that Plaintiff “also never alleges facts to support that he was paid less 17 because of his sex and instead simply infers that because his performance caused his pay to 18 decrease, it could only be because he was a male.” Id.

19 Plaintiff contends that the “FAC more than accurately articulates the merits of the 20 Plaintiff’s allegations in accusing the Defendants of violating his right to protection under the 21 Equal Pay Act.” Opposition, p. 32.

22 29 U.S.C. section 206(d)(1) states:

23 No employer having employees subject to any provisions of this section shall 24 discriminate, within any establishment in which such employees are employed, 25 between employees on the basis of sex by paying wages to employees in such 26 establishment at a rate less than the rate at which he pays wages to employees 27 of the opposite sex in such establishment for equal work on jobs the 28 performance of which requires equal skill, effort, and responsibility, and which are performed under similar working conditions, except where such payment is made pursuant to . . . (iii) a system which measures earnings by quantity or quality of production; or (iv) a differential based on any other factor other than sex.

1 29 U.S.C. § 206(d)(1).

2 Aside from the conclusory allegation that Defendants “discriminated against the 3 Plaintiff on the basis of his status as a member of a protected class by paying him lower 4 wages,” the FAC does not allege sufficient facts to support that Plaintiff was paid less than 5 women for performing essentially the same type of duties. Id., ¶ 55. Furthermore, the FAC 6 alleges that employees were also paid pursuant to a system which measures earnings by 7 quantity or quality of production. 29 U.S.C. § 206(d)(1)(iii). The Court concludes that the 8 FAC fails to state a claim under the EPA. The cause of action for violation of the EPA is 9 dismissed.

10 H. Conclusion

11 Rule 15 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure mandates that leave to amend “be 12 freely given when justice so requires.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 15(a). This policy is applied with 13 “extraordinary liberality.” Morongo Band of Mission Indians v. Rose, 893 F.2d 1074, 1079
14 (9th Cir. 1990). Once an answer to the complaint has been filed, as is the case here, courts 15 may deny leave to amend where the proposed amendment would be futile, where it is sought 16 in bad faith, where it will create undue delay, or where “undue prejudice to the opposing party 17 will result.” Howey v. United States, 481 F.2d 1187, 1190 (9th Cir. 1973); see also Johnson 18 v. Mammoth Recreations, Inc., 975 F.2d 604, 607 (9th Cir. 1992); Saul v. United States, 928 19 F.2d 829, 843 (9th Cir. 1991).

20 Defendants do not contend that amendment would be futile, is sought in bad faith, 21 would create undue delay or would otherwise result in undue prejudice to Defendants. In light 22 of the “extraordinary liberality” with which courts grant leave to amend, and Plaintiff’s pro se 23 status, the Court grants Plaintiff leave to amend.
