11 MATTHEW STRONG,

12 Plaintiff,

13 vs.

14 WALGREEN CO., doing business as 15 Walgreens; and RUDOLPH BRAGG,
16 Trustee of the Bragg Family Trust,
17 Dated April 22, 1982,

18 Defendants.

CASE NO. 09cv611 WQH

FINDINGS OF FACT AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW;
ORDER

19 HAYES, Judge:

20 The matter before the Court is the Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law
21 pursuant to Rule 52(a) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. The following motions 22 are also before the Court: (1) Defendants' Motion to Strike Evidence (ECF No. 108);
23 (2) Defendants' Motion for Judgment as a Matter of Law (ECF No. 109); (3) Plaintiff's 24 Motion for Judgment on Partial Findings (ECF No. 114); (4) Plaintiff's Motion to 25 Strike Legal Conclusions from Kim Blackseth's Testimony (ECF No. 115); and (5)
26 Defendants' Motion to Strike Plaintiff's Post-Trial Motions and Proposed Findings of 27 Fact/Conclusions of Law (ECF No. 116).

PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On March 25, 2009, Plaintiff Matt Strong initiated this action by filing a complaint against Defendants Walgreen Co., doing business as Walgreens

1 (“Walgreens”), and Rudolf Bragg, Trustee of the Bragg Family Trust (collectively 2 “Defendants”) (ECF No. 1).

3 On April 28, 2011, Plaintiff filed the First Amended Complaint – the operative 4 complaint in this case – against Defendants. (ECF No. 64). Plaintiff alleges that the 5 Walgreens store (“Store”), located at 215 North 2nd Street in El Cajon, California, is 6 a public sales or retail establishment designed or constructed after January 26, 1992, 7 and is not fully accessible to him because of architectural barriers. Id. at 2, 7. Plaintiff
8 alleges claims against Defendants for violation of the Americans with Disabilities Act 9 (“ADA”), the California Disabled Persons Act, the California Unruh Act, and the 10 California Health and Safety Code. Plaintiff seeks injunctive relief; declaratory relief; 11 attorney’s fees, costs, and legal expenses; the statutory minimum damages; and interest.

12 On November 8, 2011, the Court granted Defendants’ motion for summary 13 judgment on Plaintiff’s first claim for violation of the ADA with respect to the 14 following alleged architectural barriers: (1) the lack of a marked crossing in the parking 15 lot; (2) an incorrect sign in the van accessible parking space; (3) the location of 16 detectable warnings; (4) the lack of a designated checkstand for the disabled open at 17 all times; (5) the lack of a self-closing restroom door; (6) a toilet paper dispenser which 18 protrudes into the clear maneuvering space needed to access the water closet; (7) the 19 front roll of toilet paper located more than twelve inches from the water closet; (8) the 20 lack of access to the disposable seat cover dispenser in the bathroom; (9) improperly 21 or incompletely wrapped pipes in the bathroom; and (10) insufficient strike side 22 clearance on the pull-side of the restroom door. (ECF No. 74 at 19). The motion for 23 summary judgment was denied as to Plaintiff’s ADA claim with respect to the 24 following alleged architectural barriers: (1) the disabled parking spaces are not outlined 25 in white; (2) improper slope in the disabled parking spaces and access aisles; and (3)
26 the toilet paper dispenser contains sharp edges. Id. at 17. With respect to the exercise 27 of supplemental jurisdiction over Plaintiff’s remaining state law claims, the Court 28 issued the following Order to Show Cause:

1 Plaintiff has also alleged several barriers relating to the three state law
2 claims of (1) violation of the California Disabled Persons Act, (2)
3 violation of the California Unruh Act, and (3) violation of the California
4 Health and Safety Code. Plaintiff is ORDERED TO SHOW CAUSE why
5 the Court should continue to exercise supplemental jurisdiction over 6 Plaintiff's state claims by no later than twenty days from the date of this 7 Order. Defendants may respond by no later than ten days from the date 8 that Plaintiff's response to the order to show cause is filed.

9 Id. at 19. The parties responded to the Order to Show Cause with additional briefing.
10 (ECF Nos. 75, 76, 78).

11 On May 30, 2012, the Court issued the Final Pretrial Order. (ECF No. 87). The 12 Final Pretrial Order set forth the following issues of fact and law, and no others, which 13 remained to be litigated at trial: (1) whether the following conditions constitute barriers 14 to access, exist(ed) at the Store, and violate state or federal law: a) there is no marked 15 crossing where the accessible route crosses the vehicular way; b) the signage posted 16 at the van accessible parking space is incorrect; c) the slopes and cross slopes of the 17 disabled parking spaces to the north side of the Store exceed 2.0%; d) the slopes and 18 cross slopes of the access aisle(s) to the north side of the Store exceed 2.0%; e) the 19 disabled parking spaces are not outlined in white; f) the detectable warnings are located 20 on the ramp rather than prior to it; g) there are no check stands designated as being 21 accessible to the disabled and open at all times for persons with disabilities; h) the 22 restroom door is not self-closing; i) the toilet tissue dispenser protrudes in to the clear 23 maneuvering space needed to access the water closet; j) the toilet tissue dispenser 24 contains sharp edges; k) if having to use the front roll of toilet tissue, it is located more 25 than twelve inches from the front of the water closet; l) the water closet is an 26 obstruction to the use of the disposable seat cover dispenser; m) the pipes underneath 27 the lavatory are improperly and/or incompletely wrapped; n) there is insufficient strike 28 side clearance on the pull-side of the restroom door; (2) whether Plaintiff visited the Store and was denied "full and equal" enjoyment and use because of his disability; (3) whether Plaintiff was deterred from visiting the Store because of actual knowledge that the Store denied him "full and equal" enjoyment and use; (4) whether the slopes and

1 cross slopes of the disabled parking spaces to the north side of the Store violate the 2 ADA Accessibility Guidelines, constitute a barrier to access, and exceed the 3 construction industry tolerance for field conditions; (5) whether the slopes and cross
4 slopes of the access aisle(s) to the north side of the Store violate the ADA Accessibility
5 Guidelines, constitute a barrier to access and exceed the construction industry tolerance 6 for field conditions; (6) whether the disabled parking spaces are not outlined in white 7 and/or whether that condition violates the ADA or any other disabled accessibility 8 requirement; (7) whether the toilet tissue dispenser contains sharp edges and whether 9 said condition violates the ADA or any other disabled accessibility requirement; (8) 10 whether a violation or violations of one or more construction-related accessibility
11 standards denied Plaintiff full and equal access to the Store; and (9) whether Plaintiff 12 personally encountered one or more construction-related accessibility violations as that 13 phrase is defined in Civil Code section 55.56. Id. at 6-9.

14 On November 8, 2012, the Court held a motions in limine¹ hearing, followed by 15 a bench trial. At the conclusion of the bench trial, the Court ordered the parties to file 16 any motions to strike and/or motions to dismiss, as well as proposed findings of fact 17 and conclusions of law, by January 28, 2013. (ECF No. 104).

18 On January 28, 2013, Defendants filed: (1) Proposed Findings of Fact and 19 Conclusions of Law (ECF No. 110); (2) a Motion for Judgment as a Matter of Law 20 pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 50(a) (ECF No. 109); and (3) a Motion to 21 Strike Evidence “concerning alleged accessibility issues that were not identified in the 22 Final Pre-Trial Order” (ECF No. 108).

23 On January 31, 2013, Plaintiff filed: (1) Proposed Findings of Fact and 24 Conclusions of Law (ECF No. 113); (2) a Motion for Judgment on Partial Findings

25
26 ¹On August 27, 2012, the parties filed motions in limine. (ECF Nos. 88, 89, 90, 27 91). On September 4, 2012, the parties filed oppositions. On November 8, 2012, the 28 Court granted Plaintiff’s unopposed motion in limine to exclude unpled affirmative defenses (ECF No. 88), and denied the remaining motions in limine (ECF Nos. 89, 90, 91) without prejudice and subject to renewal as motions to strike filed at the conclusion of trial.

1 pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 52(c) (ECF No. 114); and (3) a Motion to 2 Strike Legal Conclusions from Kim Blackseth's Testimony (ECF No. 115).

3 On February 4, 2013, Defendants filed a Motion to Strike (ECF No. 116), 4 requesting that the Court strike Plaintiff's post-trial motions and Proposed Findings of 5 Fact and Conclusions of Law as untimely. (ECF No. 116).

6 On February 18, 2013, Plaintiff filed: (1) an opposition to the Motion to Strike
7 Plaintiff's post-trial motions and Proposed Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law 8 as untimely (ECF No. 121); (2) an opposition to the Motion for Judgment on Partial 9 Findings (ECF No. 120); and (3) an opposition to the Motion to Strike "certain 10 accessibility issues that were not identified in the Final Pre-Trial Order" (ECF No.
11 122). On February 18, 2013, Defendants filed: (1) an opposition to the Motion for 12 Judgment on Partial findings (ECF No. 123-1); and (2) an opposition to the Motion to 13 Strike Legal Conclusions from Kim Blackseth's Testimony (ECF No. 123).

14 On February 20, 2013, Plaintiff filed a Request for Judicial Notice of Doran v.
15 7-Eleven, No. 11-55619, 2013 WL 602251 (9th Cir. Feb. 19, 2013). (ECF No 124).
16 That request is granted. See Lee v. City of Los Angeles, 250 F. 3d 668, 689 (9th Cir.
17 2001).

18 FINDINGS OF FACT

19 Plaintiff, a quadriplegic, is disabled under the ADA and California law. At the 20 time Defendants answered Plaintiff's Complaint, Walgreens owned, operated, 21 managed, and/or leased the Store, which is located at 215 North 2nd Street, El Cajon, 22 CA, 92021. Walgreens provides goods, services, facilities, privileges, advantages, or 23 accommodations at the Store. The Store is a sales or retail establishment, open to the 24 public, which is intended for nonresidential use and whose operation affects commerce.
25 The Store is a business establishment under California Civil Code sections 51 and 51.5, 26 and a place of public accommodation as defined by 42 U.S.C. section 1218(7). The 27 Store was designed and constructed for first occupancy after January 26, 1993.

28 Plaintiff submitted four receipts into evidence showing that he purchased

1 several items at the Store with cash in February and March of 2009. (ECF No. 107 at 2 14); Exh. 2. Plaintiff testified that he traveled and continues to travel to the Store either 3 by wheelchair or public bus in order to purchase household items. (ECF No. 107 at 12, 4 29-30). Plaintiff testified that he visited the Store on November 7, 2012, the day before 5 trial, and that he intends to return to the Store in the future. Id. at 11, 18.

6 Plaintiff testified that as he crossed though the Store's disabled parking spaces
7 on his way to the Store's entrance, the elevation of the surface changed and the wheels
8 of his mechanized wheelchair lifted off the ground. Id. at 21. Plaintiff testified that no 9 marked crossing existed from the vehicular way to the Store on his first visit in 10 February of 2009; Plaintiff testified that he noticed a marked crossing from the 11 vehicular way to the Store for the first time on his November 7, 2012 visit. Id. at 19-12 20, 48, 70. Plaintiff testified that there was a "van accessible sign" by the parking 13 spaces at the Store which he found "confusing" because it was also a disabled parking 14 sign. Id. at 20. Plaintiff testified that there were no detectible warnings on any of the 15 ramps in the parking lot leading to the store. Id. at 39-40. Plaintiff testified that, in the 16 restroom of the Store, the location of the toilet seat cover dispenser was too high for 17 him to reach; the sharp edges on the toilet paper dispenser prevented him from taking 18 any toilet paper to wipe off his leg bag; there were unwrapped hot water pipes that 19 prevented him from washing his hands; and he had difficulty leaving the restroom 20 because the door was locked. Id. at 32, 34-35, 59-60. Plaintiff testified that no register 21 in the Store was marked as accessible for the disabled, and that he had to throw his 22 items onto the counter in order to pay, which was "a pain" and "difficult." Id. at 38-39.
23 Plaintiff testified that there was a sign hanging from the ceiling of the Store which 24 indicated a checkout register for the disabled on his November 7, 2012 visit. Id. at 72.

25 Defendant's expert witness and disabled access consultant, Kim Blackseth, 26 testified that he inspected the Store on two occasions: first on August 17, 2009, and 27 again on November 7, 2012, the day before trial. Id. at 79, 118. Blackseth testified 28 that he prepared two expert reports related to this case: (1) an independent report dated

1 October 14, 2009, which was based upon his August 17, 2009 inspection; and (2) a 2 report purporting to rebut a report prepared by Plaintiff's designated expert witness, 3 Reed Settle, who was not called to testify. Id. at 75. Blackseth testified regarding 4 observations he made and measurements he took of the Store's facilities, and provided 5 his expert opinion as to the Store's compliance with the relevant state and federal 6 accessibility guidelines, i.e. the Americans with Disability and Accessibility Guidelines 7 and the California Building Code.

8 Lance Zwanck, manager of the Store during all of 2009, testified regarding the 9 checkout counters at the front of the store and the checkout stands in the pharmacy.
10 Id. at 179-184. Zwanck testified that there were four checkout counters at the front of 11 the Store, one of which was "a bit lower than the others" and was always open. Id. at 12 179-180.

13 Harold Hanson, a retired California Highway Patrolman, testified that he went 14 to the Store on November 7, 2012 at the direction of Plaintiff and took photographs of 15 the Store's checkout counters. Id. at 186-192; Exhs. 9-3, 9-4, 9-6, 9-9.

16 CONCLUSIONS OF LAW²

17 I. Defendants' Motion to Strike (ECF No. 108) Evidence Regarding 18 Accessibility Issues Not Identified in the Final Pretrial Order

19 Defendants move to strike evidence introduced at trial regarding "the tow-away 20

22 ²Defendants contend that the Court should strike Plaintiff's post-trial motions 23 and proposed findings of fact and conclusions of law because the documents were filed 24 late. (ECF No. 116 at 1-2). Plaintiff asserts that he intended to request an extension until January 31, 2013, the day the documents were filed, but "rain and flooding [in Hawaii] prevented Scott Hubbard[, counsel for Plaintiff,] from effectively communicating with the associate attorney...." (ECF No. 121 at 2).

25 Plaintiff filed his post-trial motions and proposed findings of fact and 26 conclusions of law on January 31, 2013, one day after the January 30, 2013 deadline 27 imposed by the Court; however, Defendants have not asserted, and the Court does not 28 find, any prejudice as a result of that one-day delay. The Court will decline to exercise its discretion to strike Plaintiff's post-trial motions and proposed findings of fact and conclusions of law. See Fantasy, Inc. v. Fogerty, 984 F.2d 1524, 1528 (9th Cir. 1993) (stating that whether to grant a motion to strike lies within the sound discretion of the district court) (citing Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(f)). The Motion to Strike (ECF No. 116) filed by Defendants is denied.

1 signage (Trial Transcript 85:3-86:1-25, 88:20-90:1-16) and [the] counters located in 2 the pharmacy department (TT 100:16-103:2).” (ECF No. 108 at 1). Defendants 3 contend that evidence relating to the tow-away sign and the pharmacy counters issues
4 is not relevant because “these conditions are not identified in the Final Pre-Trial Order 5 as issues in the trial.” Id. at 2-3. Defendants assert that the Court denied Plaintiff’s 6 request to add the tow-away sign and pharmacy counters as alleged barriers of access 7 to Plaintiff’s original complaint. Id.

8 Plaintiff contends that the tow-away sign and pharmacy counter issues are 9 encompassed by the Final Pretrial Order. Plaintiff asserts that the Final Pretrial Order 10 “identifies improper signage at the van accessible parking space,” and contends that 11 “tow away signage is one of the signs that must be posted above the van accessible 12 parking spaces.” (ECF No. 122 at 2) (emphasis in original). Plaintiff asserts that the 13 Final Pretrial Order “identified ... no checkstands designated as being open or 14 accessible to the disabled,” and contends that “Lance Zwanck testified that the 15 pharmacy also had a checkstand counter so the lack of signage at that counter was 16 included in the pretrial order, too.” Id. “Long story short,” Plaintiff asserts, “the Ninth 17 Circuit has instructed district courts to liberally construe the pretrial order to permit 18 trial of issues reasonably embraced within its language.” Id.

19 “The court may hold a final pretrial conference to formulate a trial plan, 20 including a plan to facilitate the admission of evidence.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 16(e). “A 21 Rule 16(e) order controls the subsequent course of action in the litigation unless it is 22 modified by a subsequent order. Although we liberally construe pretrial orders, a 23 theory will be barred if not at least implicitly included in the order.” Eagle v. Am. Tel.
24 & Tel. Co., 769 F.2d 541, 548 (9th Cir. 1985) (citing United States v. First National 25 Bank of Circle, 652 F.2d 882, 886 (9th Cir. 1981); Fed. R. Civ. P. 16(e)).

26 On February 18, 2011, Plaintiff filed a motion for leave to file a first amended 27 complaint, seeking to add, inter alia, allegations of 19 barriers to access which were 28 not alleged in the original complaint – including allegations that “the tow away sign

1 is incorrect” and “there is no lowered portion of the pharmacy counter.” (ECF No. 48).
2 On April 18, 2011, the Court denied Plaintiff’s request for leave to add the 19 new 3 barriers to the First Amended Complaint. (ECF No. 63 at 7-8). On May 30, 2012, the 4 Court issued the Final Pretrial Order, which identified the issues of fact and law to be 5 litigated at trial and stated that “no other” issues, besides those expressly identified in 6 the Order, remained to be litigated; the tow-away sign and pharmacy counter issues 7 were not identified in the Final Pretrial Order. (ECF No. 87 at 6, 12). Based upon the 8 factual allegations of the First Amended Complaint, the plain language of the Final 9 Pretrial Order, and the procedural history of this case, the Court finds that the tow away 10 sign and pharmacy counter issues were not “implicitly included in the pretrial order.” 11 Eagle, 769 F.2d at 548 (“We find that the tax liability theory was not implicit in the 12 pretrial order. [Plaintiff’s] initial and amended complaints allege that the minority 13 shareholders were injured by the refund [the defendant] was ordered to pay. Neither 14 complaint mentions the tax liability.”). The Motion to Strike (ECF No. 108) filed by 15 Defendants is granted.

16 II. Plaintiff’s Americans with Disabilities Act Claims

17 Title III of the ADA prohibits discrimination “on the basis of disability in the full 18 and equal enjoyment of the goods, services, facilities, privileges, advantages, or 19 accommodations of any place of public accommodation by any person who owns, 20 leases (or leases to), or operates a place of public accommodation.” 42 U.S.C. § 21 12182(a). To establish a violation of the ADA, Plaintiff must show that (1) he is 22 “disabled”; (2) Defendants own, lease, or operate a “public accommodation”; and (3) 23 he was denied full and equal treatment because of his disability. See Molski v. M.J.
24 Cable, 481 F.3d 724, 730 (9th Cir. 2007). The parties do not dispute that Plaintiff is 25 “disabled” and the Store is a “place of public accommodation” within the meaning of 26 the ADA.

27 The ADA Accessibility Guidelines (“ADAAG”) “provides the objective contours 28 of the standard that architectural features must not impede disabled individuals’ full

1 and equal enjoyment of accommodations.” Chapman v. Pier 1 Imports (U.S.), Inc., 631
2 F.3d 939, 945 (9th Cir. 2011) (en banc); 41 C.F.R. Subpart 101–19 .6 App. A. “If a 3 particular architectural feature of a place of public accommodation is inconsistent with 4 the ADAAG, a plaintiff can bring a civil action claiming that the feature constitutes a 5 barrier that denies the plaintiff full and equal enjoyment of the premises in violation of 6 the ADA.” Oliver v. Ralphs Grocery Co., 654 F.3d 903, 905 (9th Cir. 2011) (citing 42 7 U.S.C. §§ 2000a–3(a), 12188(a)(2)). “The ADAAG’s requirements are as precise as 8 they are thorough, and the difference between compliance and noncompliance with the 9 standard of full and equal enjoyment established by the ADA is often a matter of 10 inches.” Chapman, 631 F.3d at 945-46; see also, e.g., ADAAG § 4.16.4 (requiring 11 grab bar behind water closets to be at least thirty-six inches long); ADAAG § 4.19.6 12 (“Mirrors shall be mounted with the bottom edge of the reflecting surface no higher 13 than 40 in (1015 mm) above the finish floor....”).

14 A plaintiff has sufficient personal stake in the outcome of an ADA claim only 15 to the extent that the alleged barrier relates to the plaintiff’s personal disability.
16 Chapman, 631 F.3d at 947; see also Doran v. 7-Eleven, Inc., 524 F.3d 1034, 1044 n.
17 7 (9th Cir. 2008) (explaining that a wheelchair-dependent plaintiff “may challenge 18 only those barriers that might reasonably affect a wheelchair user’s full enjoyment of 19 the store”); Steger v. Franco, Inc., 228 F.3d 889, 893 (8th Cir. 2000) (holding that a 20 plaintiff who is not blind lacks standing to sue for ADA violations that only affect the 21 blind).

22 With respect to Plaintiff’s ADA claim, the following alleged barriers of access 23 remain at issue: (1) improper slope in the disabled parking spaces and access aisles; (2) 24 the toilet paper dispenser contains sharp edges; and (3) the disabled parking spaces are 25 not outlined in white. See ECF No. 74 at 17 (order denying Plaintiff’s motion for 26 summary judgment and granting in part Defendants’ motion for summary judgment); 27 ECF No. 87 (Final Pretrial Order).

1 A. Slopes and cross slopes of the disabled parking spaces and access 2 aisles

3 “A cross slope that is too steep can cause a wheelchair occupant to have difficult 4 steering and, in extreme cases, cause the wheelchair to overturn.” Hubbard v.
5 7-Eleven, Inc., 433 F. Supp. 2d 1134, 1137 (S.D. Cal. 2006) (citing Parr v. L & L
6 Drive-Inn Rest., 96 F. Supp. 2d 1065, 1087 (D. Haw. 2000)). Pursuant to the ADAAG, 7 “[p]arking spaces and access aisles shall be level with surface slopes not exceeding 8 1:50 (2%) in all directions.” 28 C.F.R. part 36, App. D, § 4.6.3; see also 28 C.F.R. part 9 36 § 4.3.7; Hubbard, 433 F. Supp. 2d at 1137 (“Under the federal law, a cross slope of 10 an accessible route cannot exceed 1:50, or 2%.”).

11 The ADAAG further provides that “[a]ll dimensions are subject to conventional 12 building industry tolerances for field conditions.” 28 C.F.R. part 36, App. D, § 3.2.
13 “This is intended to allow for construction tolerances, such as variations based on field, 14 material, manufacturing and workmanship conditions.” Cherry v. City Coll. of San 15 Francisco, C 04-04981 WHA, 2006 WL 6602454, *5 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 12, 2006). The 16 district court in Cherry explained:

17 [T]he burden is on plaintiffs to prove that the variance exceeds the 18 allowed tolerance. It is not enough to simply show that a particular 19 bathroom stall, for example, is ‘less than’ the required width. The approximate extent of any shortfall must be proven. And, the dimensional tolerance at the time of construction must be proven.

20 Cherry, 2006 WL 6602454 at *6.

21 Plaintiff testified that, on each of his visits, he crossed though disabled parking 22 spaces on the north side of the Store and, as he approached the entrance, “the elevation 23 on the parking lot change[d] ...[,] lifting [his] chair off the ground.” (ECF No. 107 at 24 21). When Plaintiff was asked whether the elevation change “makes it difficult for you 25 to cross those spaces,” Plaintiff responded: “It is unsafe.” Id. Plaintiff testified that it 26 is difficult for him to control his wheelchair when he has only two wheels on the 27 ground. Id. at 69. Plaintiff testified that he noticed no difference in the elevation of the 28 disabled parking spaces when he visited the Store the day before trial because his

1 wheels still lifted off the ground when he traveled over the slopes. Id. at 57. Plaintiff
2 estimated that his wheels lift “a foot” off of the ground as he travels over the disabled
3 parking space to the right of the access aisle. Id. at 58.³

4 Blackseth testified that he made several measurements of the slopes of the 5 disabled parking spots and access aisles in the Store’s parking lot area. Id. at 94.
6 Blackseth testified that his August 17, 2009 measurements indicated slopes of between 7 2% and 2.9%. Id. at 95. Blackseth testified that he “found no condition ... that 8 exceeded two percent [slope]...” during his November 7, 2012 inspection.⁴ Id. at 129.
9 Blackseth testified that he “would find it inconceivable that [his] wheels would leave 10 the ground at anything ... under four or five percent [slope].” Id. at 132. Blackseth 11 testified that he has never experienced a situation in his entire life in a motorized 12 wheelchair where his wheels raised a foot off of the ground. Id. at 133. Blackseth 13 testified that if he were traveling on his motorized wheelchair over a 2.9% slope, the 14 slope would be “imperceptible” to him without measuring equipment. Id. at 132.
15 Blackseth testified that his motorized wheelchair is similar to Plaintiff’s wheelchair.
16 Regarding the slopes of parking spaces and access aisles generally, Blackseth testified:

17 Both the federal and state requirements prohibit anything that exceeds two 18 percent [slope] in any direction.... Both the federal and the state codes[, 19 i.e. the ADA and the California Building Code,] have identical language.
20 They are in my report, but to paraphrase, it talks about the measurements 21 are to be within quote-unquote, normal construction industry standards, 22 end quote....

23 [What this means is that] it is relative to the work you are doing. Clearly 24 the construction – as a general contractor for many years, the tolerances 25 that you use when you are framing are different than the tolerances you

26 ³The Court did not receive the photographs numbered 84 and 86 on Exhibit 3-3 27 into evidence.

28 ⁴Plaintiff objected to Defendants’ questioning of Blackseth about his November 7, 2012 inspection as “beyond his scope of expert disclosure.” (ECF No. 107 at 123).
The Court overruled that objection and stated that “you can address it in the [post-trial] briefing.” Id. at 124. At the conclusion of the bench trial, the Court instructed the parties file any “motions to strike, motions to dismiss, ... and your initial proposed findings of fact and conclusions of law” by January 28, 2013. Id. at 193. The record reflects that Plaintiff did not file any motion to strike Blackseth’s testimony regarding his November 7, 2012 inspection.

1 use when you are hanging cabinet work, and that is what the code section 2 is trying to imply.

3 We're using asphalt which is elastic and it swells. It is not a precision 4 material. In my experience both as a contractor and as an expert, one 5 percent, an 8th of an inch per foot, is a fairly exacting standard in my 6 opinion within normal construction industry standards.

7 Id. at 130-31. Blackseth based his testimony regarding the constructional tolerance of 8 asphalt on “[his] experience working with the material[, his] experience as an expert 9 in this field for 20 some years[, his] experience as a user of those spaces, in a 10 wheelchair, but primarily [his] experience as a general contractor.” Id. at 159.

11 The testimony on this issue is inconsistent. Blackseth testified that the slopes 12 and cross-slopes at the Store were as steep as 2.9% on August 17, 2009, but did not 13 exceed 2.0% on November 7, 2012. On the other hand, Plaintiff testified that the 14 slopes and cross-slopes remained unchanged between his 2009 visits and his November 15 7, 2012 visit. The Court finds Blackseth’s testimony to be more reliable and believable
16 than Plaintiff’s testimony on this issue for two main reasons. First, Blackseth’s 17 testimony was based upon measurements that he took with sophisticated measuring 18 equipment, while Plaintiff’s testimony was based solely upon his subjective 19 recollections that, over the course of three years, his wheels have consistently lifted off 20 the ground the same amount as he traversed the Store’s parking lot. Second, the Court 21 finds Plaintiff’s statement that his wheels lifted a foot off the ground not to be credible 22 in light of Blackseth’s expert opinion that a 2.9% slope would be imperceptible to 23 someone traveling over it. The Court finds that Plaintiff has failed to prove, by a 24 preponderance of the evidence, that a slope exceeding 2% currently exists at the Store.
25 Finally, even if a 2.9% slope does exist, Blackseth testified that a 1% variance in the 26 slope of asphalt is within industry tolerances, id. at 131, 134, and Plaintiff submitted 27 no evidence to the contrary; accordingly, the Court finds that Plaintiff has failed to 28 prove that a 1% variance in the slope of asphalt exceeds the “conventional building industry tolerances for field conditions.” Cherry, 2006 WL 6602454 at *6 (“[T]he burden is on plaintiffs to prove that the variance exceeds the allowed tolerance.”).

1 Plaintiff has failed to prove, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the slope and/or 2 cross-slope of any disabled parking space or access aisle constitutes a barrier to access 3 pursuant to the ADAAG. The Court concludes that Defendants are entitled to 4 judgment in their favor on Plaintiff's ADA claim as to this alleged barrier.

5 B. Sharp Edges on Toilet Paper Dispenser

6 Pursuant to the ADAAG, "[a] handrail or grab bar and any wall or other surface 7 adjacent to it shall be free of any sharp or abrasive elements." 28 C.F.R. part 36, App.
8 D, § 4.26.4 (emphasis added). While the ADAAG does not define the word "adjacent," 9 it is defined in the most recent edition of Black's Law Dictionary as "lying near or 10 close to, but not necessarily touching." Black's Law Dictionary (9th ed. 2009).

11 Plaintiff testified that the toilet paper dispenser "was too low. I couldn't reach 12 it. It was like you had to reach under the outlet. There was sharp edges, plastic. I 13 couldn't reach my hands under there and was afraid I would cut my hands underneath 14 the bottom of it, and I wasn't able to actually grab any toilet paper at that time." (ECF 15 No. 107 at 35). Plaintiff testified that he did not cut himself on the toilet paper 16 dispenser. Id. Blackseth testified that he inspected the bottom of the toilet paper 17 dispenser and noticed "a plastic serrated device that allows the paper to be torn off.
18 [The serrated device] is approximately 20 inches below the grab bar and about 16 19 inches above the ground. ... It was serrated, but I ... didn't notice anything sharp or 20 anything that would have damaged my hand." Id. at 106-07.

21 Based upon Blackseth's uncontroverted testimony that the grab bar was 20 22 inches from the serrated device on the toilet paper dispenser, the Court does not find 23 that the serrated device was "near or close to" the grab bar in the context of a bathroom 24 stall. The Court concludes that Plaintiff has failed to prove, by a preponderance of the 25 evidence, that any sharp edge on the toilet paper dispenser "constitutes a barrier that 26 denies the plaintiff full and equal enjoyment of the premises in violation of the ADA."
27 Oliver, 654 F.3d at 905. The Court concludes that Defendants are entitled to judgment 28 in their favor on Plaintiff's ADA claim as to this alleged barrier.

1 C. Outlining of disabled parking spaces

2 Plaintiff testified that the paint was worn on the disabled parking spaces, and 3 testified that “you can barely see it” and “you could see the asphalt right through the 4 paint.” (ECF No. 107 at 22).

5 Plaintiff has not cited to any ADAAG guideline regulating the outlining of 6 disabled parking spaces. Plaintiff has failed to prove, by a preponderance of the 7 evidence, that the worn paint on the disabled parking spaces “constitutes a barrier that 8 denies the plaintiff full and equal enjoyment of the premises in violation of the ADA.”
9 Oliver, 654 F.3d at 905. Even if the outlining of the parking spaces did violate an 10 ADAAG guideline, the Court finds that such a barrier would not relate to the plaintiff’s
11 personal disability. See Chapman, 631 F.3d at 947; see also Doran, 524 F.3d at 1044 12 n. 7 (explaining that a wheelchair-dependent plaintiff “may challenge only those 13 barriers that might reasonably affect a wheelchair user’s full enjoyment of the store”).
14 The Court concludes that Defendants are entitled to judgment in their favor on 15 Plaintiff’s ADA claim as to this alleged barrier.

16 III. Plaintiff’s State Disability Law Claims

17 Unlike the ADA, which only provides injunctive relief, the Unruh Act and the 18 California Disabled Persons Act (“CDPA”) provide a statutory minimum amount of 19 damages. See 42 U.S.C. § 12205; Cal. Civ. Code §§ 52(a), 54.3(a). A violation of the 20 ADA constitutes a violation of the Unruh Act and the CDPA. See Cal. Civ. Code § 21 54.1(d) (regarding the CDPA); Munson v. Del Taco, Inc., 46 Cal. 4th 661, 687 (Cal.
22 App. 2009) (“A plaintiff who establishes a violation of the ADA, ... need not prove 23 intentional discrimination in order to obtain damages under [California’s Unruh Act] 24 section 52.”). As discussed above, see supra Part II., Plaintiff has failed to prove any 25 violation of the ADA.

26 In addition, “[a] violation of a California Code of Regulations, title 24 (title 24) 27 building standard that denies access to a disabled individual has been found to 28 constitute a violation of both the Unruh Act and the [California Disabled Persons

1 Act].” Californians for Disability Rights v. Mervyn’s LLC, 165 Cal. App. 4th 571, 585-
2 86 (2008) (citations omitted). The 2009 Construction Related Accessibility Standards
3 Compliance Act (“CRAS”), Cal. Civ. Code §§ 55.51–55.57, provides in pertinent part:

4 (a) Statutory damages under either [the Unruh Act] or [the 5 California Disabled Persons Act] may be recovered in a 6 construction-related accessibility claim against a place of public 7 accommodation only if a violation or violations of one or more 8 construction-related accessibility standards denied the plaintiff 9 full and equal access to the place of public accommodation on a 10 particular occasion.

11 (b) A plaintiff is denied full and equal access only if the plaintiff 12 personally encountered the violation on a particular occasion, or 13 the plaintiff was deterred from accessing a place of public 14 accommodation on a particular occasion.

15 (c) A violation personally encountered by a plaintiff may be 16 sufficient to cause a denial of full and equal access if the plaintiff 17 experienced difficulty, discomfort, or embarrassment because of 18 the violation.

19 Cal. Civ. Code § 55.56 (a)-(c).

20 In Mundy v. Pro-Thro Enters., 192 Cal. App. 4th Supp. 1 (2011), the Appellate 21 Division of the California Superior Court held that section 55.56(c) requires evidence 22 of difficulty, discomfort, or embarrassment in order for a plaintiff to recover statutory 23 damages. The Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit recently issued an unpublished 24 opinion, citing Mundy, which affirmed the district court’s denial of statutory damages 25 under the Unruh Act and the CDPA to a plaintiff who failed to prove that “he 26 personally encountered the violation and ‘experienced difficulty, discomfort, or 27 embarrassment because of the violation.’” Doran v. 7-Eleven, No. 11-55619, 2013 WL 28 602251, *2 (9th Cir. Feb. 19, 2013) (quoting Cal. Civ. Code § 55.56 (c)); see also Kohler v. Presidio Int’l, Inc., CV 10-4680 PSG PJWX, 2013 WL 1246801 (C.D. Cal.
Mar. 25, 2013) (citing Doran and Mundy, and holding that “Plaintiff must offer evidence of difficulty, discomfort, or embarrassment in relation to his personal encounter of a barrier in order to recover statutory damages under the Unruh Act or the [C]DPA.”). The Court finds the reasoning of Doran and Mundy to be persuasive. In order for Plaintiff to recover statutory damages under the Unruh Act or the CDPA, the

1 Court holds that Plaintiff must prove that he experienced difficulty, discomfort, or 2 embarrassment because of an encounter with a violation of an accessibility standard.

3 A. No marked crossing where the accessible route crosses the vehicular 4 way

5 Plaintiff testified that, on his first trip to the Store in February of 2009, there was 6 no marked crossing from the vehicular way to the Store and “you [would] have to 7 dodge cars.” (ECF No. 107 at 19-20). Plaintiff testified that on November 7, 2012, the 8 day before trial, he noticed a marked crossing from the vehicular way to the Store for 9 the first time. Id. at 48, 70. Plaintiff testified that there was never a situation where he 10 was almost hit by a vehicle while traversing the parking lot. Id. at 50. Plaintiff was 11 asked the following question: “It wasn’t very difficult for you to roll through the 12 parking lot in your ... mechanized wheelchair, was it?” Plaintiff answered, “No.” Id.
13 at 47.

14 Blackseth testified that “there was no marked crossing” during his August 17, 15 2009 inspection; however, Blackseth testified that “there was no requirement that I was 16 able to find in the ... California Building Code that required the marked crossing.” Id.
17 at 125. Blackseth testified that, during his inspection on November 7, 2012, “[t]here 18 was a marked crossing installed,” which “connected a walkway from the public 19 sidewalk and the bus stop through a landscaped area with a walkway, then a painted 20 marked crosswalk that attached to the access aisle and curb ramp to get a person onto 21 the walkway in front of Walgreens.” Id. at 124.

22 Plaintiff does not cite to any building standard that regulates marked crossings
23 in accessible routes. Plaintiff contends that the California Manual on Uniform Traffic 24 Control Devices (“MUTCD”) requires marked crossings in parking lots, but does not 25 cite to any case supporting that proposition. Defendants contend that the California 26 MUTCD does not apply on private property.

27 The Court finds that Plaintiff has failed to prove, by a preponderance of the 28 evidence, that the lack of a marked crossing violates a construction-related accessibility

1 standard. Even if the MUTCD did apply and the Store was in violation of one of its 2 provisions, Plaintiff testified that he had “no [difficulty]” traveling through the parking 3 lot on his mechanized wheelchair. Although Plaintiff testified, in the abstract, that 4 “you have to dodge cars” crossing the parking lot, there is no evidence that Plaintiff 5 suffered any “discomfort or embarrassment” due to the lack of a marked crossing on 6 any particular occasion. Cal. Civ. Code § 55.56. Plaintiff provided no evidence that 7 he was “deterred from accessing” the Store. Cal. Civ. Code § 55.56(b). “A claimant 8 who offers no such evidence is ‘not entitled as a matter of law’ to recover statutory 9 damages under the CRAS. By the same token, he is not entitled to recover statutory 10 damages under the Unruh Act or the CDPA.” Doran, 2013 WL 602251, at *2 (citing 11 Mundy, 192 Cal. App. 4th Supp. at 5; Munson, 208 P.3d at 633–34 (noting that the 12 CRAS was intended to protect “businesses from abusive access litigation” and “impose 13 limitations on damages”). The Court concludes that Defendants are entitled to 14 judgment in their favor on Plaintiff’s CDPA and Unruh Act claims as to this alleged 15 barrier.

16 B. No van accessible parking space sign below disabled parking sign

17 Plaintiff testified that there was a “van accessible sign” by the parking spaces at 18 the Store, but he found the sign “confusing” because it was also a disabled parking 19 sign. (ECF No. 107 at 20). Blackseth testified that he observed a van accessible 20 parking sign during his 2009 and 2012 inspections. Id. at 127.

21 Plaintiff does not cite to any building standard requiring a van accessible sign 22 separate from a traditional disabled parking sign. The Court finds that Plaintiff has 23 failed to prove, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the lack of a van accessible 24 parking sign separate from the disabled parking sign violated a construction-related 25 accessibility standard. Even if the Store’s sign did violate an accessibility standard, 26 Plaintiff testified that he merely found the sign “confusing.” Id. at 20. Plaintiff 27 testified that he never drove a vehicle to the Store, never attempted to drive a vehicle
28 to the Store, and was never driven to the Store in anyone’s vehicle. Id. at 46. Plaintiff

1 offered no evidence that he suffered any “difficulty, discomfort or embarrassment” due 2 to the lack of a marked crossing, nor did Plaintiff provide any evidence that he was 3 deterred from accessing the Store. Cal. Civ. Code § 55.56(c). “A claimant who offers 4 no such evidence is ‘not entitled as a matter of law’ to recover statutory damages under 5 the CRAS. By the same token, he is not entitled to recover statutory damages under 6 the Unruh Act or the CDPA.” Doran, 2013 WL 602251 at *2 (citations omitted). The 7 Court concludes that Defendants are entitled to judgment in their favor on Plaintiff’s 8 CDPA and Unruh Act claims as to this alleged barrier.

9 C. Slopes and cross slopes of the disabled parking spaces and access 10 aisle(s)

11 Pursuant to the California Building Code, “[s]urface slopes of accessible parking 12 spaces and access aisles shall be the minimum possible and shall not exceed one unit
13 vertical in 50 units horizontal (2-percent slope) in any direction. 24 C.C.R. § 14 1129B.3.4. The California Building Code states that “[a]ll dimensions are subject to 15 conventional industry tolerances except where the requirement is stated as a range with 16 specific minimum and maximum end points.” 24 C.C.R. § 1101B.5; see also 28 C.F.R.
17 Part 36 App. A at § 3.2 (pursuant to the ADAAG, “[a]ll dimensions are subject to 18 conventional building industry tolerances for field conditions.”). The “industry 19 tolerance” provision “is intended to allow for construction tolerances, such as 20 variations based on field, material, manufacturing and workmanship conditions.” 21 Cherry v. City Coll. of San Francisco, C 04-04981 WHA, 2006 WL 6602454, *5 (N.D.
22 Cal. Jan. 12, 2006).

23 Blackseth testified that, during his August 17, 2009 inspection of the Store’s 24 premises, each of his measurements of the parking spots and access aisles indicated a 25 slope of between 2 and 2.9 percent. (ECF No. 107 at 95). Blackseth testified that if 26 he were traveling on his motorized wheelchair over a 2.9% slope, the slope would be 27 “imperceptible” to him without measuring equipment. Id. at 132.

28 The Court finds that the California Building Code’s surface slope requirement

1 is “subject to conventional industry tolerances” because the requirement is not “stated 2 as a range with specific minimum and maximum end points”; while the regulation lists 3 a specific maximum slope of 2%, it also calls for a nonspecific “minimum possible”
4 slope at the low end of the range. 24 C.C.R § 1101B.5. As discussed above, Blackseth 5 testified that a 1% variance in slope is within industry tolerances for asphalt, and 6 Plaintiff submitted no evidence to the contrary. Accordingly, the Court finds that 7 Plaintiff has failed to prove that a 1% variance in slope exceeds the “conventional 8 building industry tolerances for field conditions.” Cherry, 2006 WL 6602454 at *6 9 (“[T]he burden is on plaintiffs to prove that the variance exceeds the allowed tolerance.
10 It is not enough to simply show that a particular bathroom stall, for example, is ‘less 11 than’ the required width. The approximate extent of any shortfall must be proven.”); 12 24 C.C.R § 1101B.5. Plaintiff has failed to prove, by a preponderance of the evidence, 13 that any slope and/or cross-slope in a parking space or access aisle violated a 14 construction-related accessibility standard.

15 Even if a 2.9% slope did violate an accessibility standard, the Court does not find 16 Plaintiff’s testimony that his wheels lifted off the ground to be credible, especially in 17 light of Blackseth’s expert opinion that a 2.9% slope would be imperceptible to 18 someone traveling over it. Id. at 20. Plaintiff offered no other evidence that he 19 suffered any “difficulty, discomfort or embarrassment” due to the slope of the disabled 20 parking spaces or access aisles, nor did Plaintiff provide any evidence that he was 21 deterred from accessing the Store. Cal. Civ. Code § 55.56(c). “A claimant who offers 22 no such evidence is ‘not entitled as a matter of law’ to recover statutory damages under 23 the CRAS. By the same token, he is not entitled to recover statutory damages under 24 the Unruh Act or the CDPA.” Doran, 2013 WL 602251 at *2 (citations omitted). The 25 Court concludes that Defendants are entitled to judgment in their favor on Plaintiff’s
26 CDPA and Unruh Act claims as to this alleged barrier.

27 D. Outlining of disabled parking spaces

28 The California Building Code provides detailed requirements for disabled

1 parking spaces. See 24 C.C.R. § 1129.B.3(1). Plaintiff testified that the paint was 2 worn on the Store’s disabled parking spaces and that “you could see the asphalt right
3 through the paint.” (ECF No. 107 at 22). However, Plaintiff has offered no evidence 4 that he was “deterred from accessing” the Store due to insufficient outlining of the 5 parking spaces, Cal. Civ. Code § 55.56(b), nor has Plaintiff offered any evidence that 6 he “personally encountered” the violation and “experienced difficulty, discomfort, or 7 embarrassment because of the violation.” Cal. Civ. Code § 55.56(c). “A claimant who 8 offers no such evidence is ‘not entitled as a matter of law’ to recover statutory damages
9 under the CRAS. By the same token, he is not entitled to recover statutory damages 10 under the Unruh Act or the CDPA.” Doran, 2013 WL 602251 at *2 (citations omitted).
11 The Court concludes that Defendants are entitled to judgment in their favor on 12 Plaintiff’s CDPA and Unruh Act claims as to this alleged barrier.

13 E. Detectable warnings

14 Pursuant to the California Building Code, a “[d]etectable warning is a 15 standardized surface or feature built into or applied to walking surfaces or other 16 elements to warn visually impaired persons of hazards in the path of travel.” 24 C.C.R.
17 § 1102B.

18 Plaintiff testified there were no detectible warnings on any of the ramps in the 19 parking lot leading to the store. (ECF No. 107 at 39-40). Plaintiff testified that the 20 parking lot “doesn’t have any bumps or any kind of motion detector showing you it is 21 going to be a ramp.” Id. at 40. Plaintiff was asked the following question: “So does 22 it make it difficult if there aren’t detectible warnings?”; Plaintiff gave the following 23 answer: “At least – at least it let’s you know that you are coming upon a ramp or 24 actually dropping from one level to another, yes.” Id.

25 Blackseth testified that “[d]etectable warnings as defined in the code are the 26 yellow raised bump mats that you see at the corners. The grooves at the top of the curb 27 ramps are different issues. They are not called detectable warnings. Both the grooves 28 and the detectable warnings in my opinion are there for the visually impaired.” Id. at 1 136. Blackseth based that opinion on “[y]ears of experience with the code, [his] code 2 advisory committee [experience], the Office of the State Architect, [and his] time in the 3 Building Standards [Commission]...” Id. at 136.

4 Plaintiff is a quadriplegic. Plaintiff is not visually impaired. The Court finds 5 Blackseth’s expert testimony regarding the purpose of detectable warnings to be 6 credible. Although Plaintiff testified generally that a detectable warning “lets you know 7 that you are coming upon a ramp,” the Court finds that Plaintiff has failed to prove, by 8 a preponderance of the evidence, that he suffered any “difficulty, discomfort, or 9 embarrassment ... on a particular occasion” as a result of the lack of detectable 10 warnings at the Store. Cal. Civ. Code § 55.56. “A claimant who offers no such 11 evidence is ‘not entitled as a matter of law’ to recover statutory damages under the 12 CRAS. By the same token, he is not entitled to recover statutory damages under the 13 Unruh Act or the CDPA.” Doran, 2013 WL 602251 at *2 (citations omitted); see also 14 Chapman, 571 F.3d at 858 (stating that, with respect to an ADA claim, “[t]he Ninth 15 Circuit does not ... grant a plaintiff standing to challenge un-encountered barriers not 16 related to his or her disability. For example, a non-blind, non sight-impaired person 17 who needs a wheelchair for mobility cannot challenge barriers that would only restrict 18 access for a person who is blind or sight-impaired.”). The Court concludes that 19 Defendants are entitled to judgment in their favor on Plaintiff’s CDPA and Unruh Act 20 claims as to this alleged barrier.

21 F. Check stands

22 The California Building Code provides:

23 In new and existing construction, accessible check stands shall provide a 24 clear checkout aisle width of 36 inches (914 mm) with a maximum 25 adjoining counter height not exceeding 38 inches (965 mm) above the 26 finish floor. The top of the counter lip shall not exceed 40 inches (1016 27 mm) above the finish floor. Accessible checkstands shall always be open to customers with disabilities and shall be identified by a sign clearly visible to those in wheelchairs. The sign shall display the international symbol of accessibility in white on a blue background and shall state ‘This check stand to be open at all times for customers with disabilities.’

28 24 C.C.R. § 1110B.1.3.

1 Plaintiff testified that after he left the Store restroom, he went to the checkout 2 register. (ECF No. 107 at 38). Plaintiff testified that there was not a register in the 3 Store marked as accessible for the disabled and open at all times. Id. Plaintiff testified 4 that he never asked any employees whether there were any checkout registers with a 5 lower counter. Id. at 63. Plaintiff testified that when he was visiting the Store, he 6 noticed a checkout register with a lower counter as he traveled to the checkout registers 7 with higher counters. Id. at 64. Plaintiff testified that no employees were stationed at 8 the register with the lower counter and that “it was used for storage ... There [were] 9 boxes, all kinds of stuff on top of the counter. It wasn’t being used for purchase in and 10 out.” Id. at 64-65. Plaintiff testified that in order to pay for his items at the Store, he 11 “had to throw [his items] up on the counter,” which was “a pain,” and “difficult.” Id.
12 at 39.

13 Lance Zwanck, manager of the Store during all of 2009, testified that there were 14 four checkout counters at the front of the Store, one of which was a bit lower than the 15 others and was always open. Id. at 179-180. Zwanck testified that he never received 16 a complaint from a disabled customer unable to use the lower counter.

17 Blackseth testified that he measured the height of the checkout counters at the 18 front of the store at 36 inches, except for one counter which he measured at 34 inches.
19 Id. at 103-04. Blackseth stated that, “[f]or purposes of trying to resolve this case” and 20 because “it was cheap and easy to do,” he recommended that Walgreens add a sign 21 identifying the 34-inch checkout stand as accessible for the disabled. Id. at 104.

22 The uncontroverted evidence presented at trial shows that each checkout counter 23 at the Store was below 40 inches from the floor and in compliance with 24 C.C.R. §
24 1110B.1.3. The Court does not find that 24 C.C.R. § 1110B.1.3 requires the posting 25 of an accessible sign if every checkout aisle is accessible to the disabled; such a 26 requirement would force Defendants to post an accessible sign above every checkout 27 aisle and leave every checkout aisle open at all times. The Court finds that Plaintiff has 28 failed to prove, by a preponderance of the evidence, that any checkout counter or

1 checkout aisle violated a construction-related accessibility standard. Even if an 2 accessible sign should have been posted, Plaintiff has offered no evidence that he was 3 “deterred from accessing” the Store due to the lack of such a sign, Cal. Civ. Code § 4 55.56(b), nor has Plaintiff offered any evidence that he “personally encountered” the 5 violation and “experienced difficulty, discomfort, or embarrassment because of the 6 violation.” Cal. Civ. Code § 55.56(c). “A claimant who offers no such evidence is ‘not 7 entitled as a matter of law’ to recover statutory damages under the CRAS. By the same 8 token, he is not entitled to recover statutory damages under the Unruh Act or the 9 CDPA.” Doran, 2013 WL 602251 at *2 (citations omitted). The Court concludes that 10 Defendants are entitled to judgment in their favor on Plaintiff’s CDPA and Unruh Act 11 claims as to this alleged barrier.

12 G. Restroom stall door

13 Pursuant to the California Code of Regulations, “[t]he water closet compartment 14 shall be equipped with a door that has an automatic-closing device....” 24 C.C.R. § 15 1115B.3.1.4-4.

16 Blackseth testified that, during his August 17, 2009 inspection, he observed a 17 “closer” – i.e. a “device that is in the hinge that brings the door back to the latch so that 18 a disabled user doesn’t have to pull it closed” – on the door of the restroom stall. (ECF 19 No. 107 at 105, 138). Blackseth testified that, during that initial inspection, the door 20 “did not close completely, stopped about an inch short of the jamb. The closer was 21 there, but it stopped approximately an inch from the strike.” Id. at 105. Blackseth 22 testified that, during his November 7, 2012 inspection, the closer had been adjusted and 23 “[t]here was no gap.” Id. at 139.

24 Based upon Blackseth’s uncontroverted testimony, the Court finds that Plaintiff 25 has failed to prove, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the water closet 26 compartment door lacked an automatic-closing device in violation of a construction-27 related accessibility standard. Even if the water closet compartment door did violate 28 an accessibility standard, Plaintiff has offered no evidence that he was “deterred from 1 accessing” the Store due to the lack of such a sign, Cal. Civ. Code § 55.56(b), nor has 2 Plaintiff offered any evidence that he “personally encountered” the violation and 3 “experienced difficulty, discomfort, or embarrassment because of the violation.” Cal.

4 Civ. Code § 55.56(c). “A claimant who offers no such evidence is ‘not entitled as a 5 matter of law’ to recover statutory damages under the CRAS. By the same token, he 6 is not entitled to recover statutory damages under the Unruh Act or the CDPA.”
7 Doran, 2013 WL 602251 at *2 (citations omitted). The Court concludes that 8 Defendants are entitled to judgment in their favor on Plaintiff’s CDPA and Unruh Act
9 claims as to this alleged barrier.

10 H. Toilet tissue dispenser

11 1. Sharp Edges

12 The California Building Code provides: “A grab bar and any wall or other 13 surface adjacent to it shall be free of any sharp or abrasive elements.” 24 C.C.R. § 14 1115B.7.3. For the reasons stated above, see supra Part II.B., Defendants have failed 15 to prove that the dispenser constituted a barrier of access pursuant to 24 C.C.R. § 16 1115B.7.3 because the toilet paper dispenser is not “adjacent” to the grab bar; 17 accordingly, Defendants are entitled to judgment in their favor on Plaintiff’s CDPA and 18 Unruh Act claims as to this alleged barrier.

19 2. Protruding Object

20 The California Building Code provides:

21 Objects projecting from walls (for example, telephones), with their 22 leading edges between 27 inches (686 mm) and 80 inches (2032 mm)
23 above the finished floor, shall protrude no more than 4 inches (102 mm) 24 into walks, halls, corridors, passageways or aisles. Objects mounted with 25 their leading edges at or below 27 inches (686 mm) above the finished 26 floor may protrude any amount. Free-standing objects mounted on posts 27 or pylons may overhang 12 inches (305 mm) maximum from 27 inches 28 (686 mm) to 80 inches (2032 mm) above the ground or finished floor.
Protruding objects shall not reduce the clear width of an accessible route or maneuvering space.

24 C.C.R. § 1133.B.8.6.1. Blackseth testified that, during both of his inspections, the toilet paper dispenser protruded 3.5 inches from the wall. (ECF No. 107 at 95, 140).

1 Blackseth testified that the toilet paper dispenser “is under 27 inches [from the floor].”
2 Id. at 96. Plaintiff testified that he does not know how far the toilet paper dispenser 3 sticks out from the wall. Id. at 40.

4 Based upon Blackseth’s uncontroverted testimony, the Court finds that the toilet 5 paper dispenser was located under 27 inches from the floor, and therefore “may 6 protrude any amount.” 24 C.C.R. § 1133.B.8.6.1. Plaintiff has failed to prove, by a 7 preponderance of the evidence, that the dispenser violated a construction-related 8 accessibility standard due to the distance it protruded from the wall. The Court
9 concludes that Defendants are entitled to judgment in their favor on Plaintiff’s CDPA 10 and Unruh Act claims as to this alleged barrier.

11 3. Location of the Toilet Paper Dispenser

12 The California Building Code provides: “Toilet tissue dispensers shall be located 13 on the wall within 12 inches (305 mm) of the front edge of the toilet seat, mounted 14 below the grab bar, at a minimum height of 19 inches (485 mm), and 36 inches (914 15 mm) maximum to the far edge from the rear wall.” 24 C.C.R. § 1115B.8.4.

16 Blackseth testified that, during both of his inspections, the toilet paper dispenser 17 was a “double-roll dispenser” and that “there was a roll of toilet paper well within 36 18 inches of the back wall.” (ECF No. 107 at 96). Blackseth testified that “[t]he second 19 roll may have exceeded [the 36-inch distance]....” Id.

20 Based upon Blackseth’s uncontroverted testimony, the Court finds that the toilet 21 paper dispenser was located within 36 inches of the back wall. No evidence was 22 presented at trial to suggest that the toilet paper dispenser was located more than 12 23 inches from the toilet seat. Plaintiff has failed to prove, by a preponderance of the 24 evidence, that the dispenser violated a construction-related accessibility standard due 25 to its distance from either the back wall or the toilet seat. The Court concludes that 26 Defendants are entitled to judgment in their favor on Plaintiff’s CDPA and Unruh Act
27 claims as to this alleged barrier.

28 I. Location of the disposable seat cover dispenser

1 The California Building Code provides:

2 Where towel, sanitary napkins, waste receptacles, dispensers, other 3 equipment and controls are provided, at least one of each type shall be 4 located on an accessible route, with all operable parts, including coin slots, within 40 inches (1016 mm) from the finished floor and shall comply with Section 1117B.6, Controls and operating mechanisms.

5 24 C.C.R. § 1115B.8.3.

6 Plaintiff testified that the location of the toilet seat cover dispenser “was too 7 high. I couldn’t reach it.” (ECF No. 107 at 34). Blackseth testified that, during his 8 August 17, 2009 inspection, he noticed the toilet seat dispenser “was not in the 9 appropriate location,” id. at 143, but that, during his November 7, 2012 inspection, “it 10 had been moved.... [I]t was under 40 inches high and had a clear approach.” Id.
11 Blackseth, a C-5 quadriplegic himself, testified: “I am unaware of any C-5 quad that 12 transfers himself independently. I’ve never used [a disposable toilet seat cover], never 13 had a use for one. I don’t know of friends that are similarly situated to my disability, 14 I am unaware of them ever using them.” Id. at 145.

15 The Court does not find Plaintiff’s testimony, that he attempted to reach for a 16 disposable seat cover, to be credible. Plaintiff testified that he uses the restroom to 17 empty his leg bag, and offered no testimony that he transfers himself independently 18 onto the toilet; Blackseth testified that he is unaware of any quadriplegic who does so.
19 In Plaintiff’s opposition to Defendants’ motion for summary judgment on Plaintiff’s 20 ADA claim as to this barrier, Plaintiff stated that “the location of the toilet seat covers 21 behind the water does not relate to Strong’s disability (a point that we freely conceded), 22 and [P]laintiff has no objection to a grant of summary judgment – for want of Article 23 III standing – on this barrier.” (ECF No. 68 at 11). The Court finds that Plaintiff has 24 failed to prove, by a preponderance of the evidence, that he “personally encountered” 25 any barrier of access related to the location of the toilet seat cover dispenser during his 26 visits to the Store. Cal. Civ. Code § 55.56(b), (c). The Court concludes that 27 Defendants are entitled to judgment in their favor on Plaintiff’s CDPA and Unruh Act 28 claims as to this alleged barrier.

1 J. Pipes underneath the restroom sink

2 Plaintiff testified that he attempted to wash his hands in the restroom but was 3 unable to do so because “[t]he sink was exposed[.] [T]he hot water piper, and all the 4 hardware underneath was exposed, [and] were not covered. I was afraid to burn my 5 legs.” (ECF No. 107 at 32). Plaintiff testified that he used the Store’s restroom the day 6 before the trial, and noticed that the sink pipes “were wrapped.” Id. at 59-60.

7 Plaintiff has not cited to any current California accessibility guideline, and the 8 Court is not aware of any guideline, regulating the wrapping of pipes in restrooms.
9 Plaintiff has failed to prove, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the pipes 10 underneath the sink in the restroom violated a construction-related accessibility 11 standard. The Court concludes that Defendants are entitled to judgment in their favor 12 on Plaintiff’s CDPA and Unruh Act claims as to this alleged barrier.

13 K. Strike side clearance on the pull-side of the restroom door

14 Pursuant to the California Code of Regulations, “Minimum maneuvering 15 clearances at doors shall be as shown in Figures 11B-26A and 11B-26B.” 24 C.C.R.
16 § 1133B.2.4.2. Pursuant to Figure 11B-26A, an interior door must have a minimum 17 of 18 inches of strike side clearance.

18 Plaintiff testified that he had difficulty leaving the restroom because the door 19 was locked. (ECF No. 107 at 32). Plaintiff testified that he “tr[ied] to open the door 20 at the same time and pull the door open [but] there was no room for me to back up and 21 pull the door open by itself under my own power and get around the door to get out.”
22 Id. at 33. Plaintiff testified that he knocked on the door for 30 minutes until an 23 employee heard him knocking and opened the door. Id. at 33-34. Plaintiff testified that 24 he felt “frustrated [he] couldn’t get out.” Id. at 37-38. Plaintiff testified that, during 25 his visit to the Store on November 7, 2012, he could not open the door to leave the 26 restroom and that “someone helped [him]” open the door to leave. Id. at 70.

27 Blackseth testified that, based upon his measurements on November 7, 2012, 28 “[t]here was 18 inches of strike side clearance on the pull side [of the Store’s main

1 restroom door].” Id. at 140. When counsel for Plaintiff questioned Blackseth about 2 the strike side clearance during Plaintiff’s visits to the Store, the following exchange 3 took place:

4 Blackseth: I would find it almost inconceivable there were structural 5 walls that they moved [between 2009 and 2012].

6 Counsel: I would agree it would seem –

7 Blackseth I don’t know that the structural walls haven’t been moved.
8 I would give you that.

9 Counsel: Fair enough. Little victories, sir.

10 Id. at 171-172.

11 Plaintiff has presented no evidence that any structural changes took place 12 between Plaintiff’s visits to the Store in 2009 and Blackseth’s visit on November 7, 13 2012, when he measured the strike side clearance of the restroom door at 18 inches.
14 Because an 18-inch clearance satisfies the requirements of the California Building 15 Code, the Court finds that Plaintiff has failed to prove, by a preponderance of the 16 evidence, that the strike side clearance of the restroom door violated a 17 construction-related accessibility standard. See 24 C.C.R. § 1133B.2.4.2, Figure 11B-18 26A. The Court concludes that Defendants are entitled to judgment in their favor on 19 Plaintiff’s CDPA and Unruh Act claims as to this alleged barrier.
