UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

MARK GLEN GROCE,)	Case No. 09cv01630-BTM (WMc)
Plaintiff,)	ORDER GRANTING DEFENDANT’S
)	MOTION TO QUASH
v.)
THEODORE BERNARD CLAUDAT, dba)
QUALITY INSTANT PRINTING,)	(ECF No. 72)
Defendant.)

Introduction

Plaintiff worked for defendant at Quality Instant Printing (QIP) for an eight month period from November 15, 2004 to July 29, 2005. Plaintiff is currently incarcerated.

Plaintiff’s First Amended Complaint (“FAC”) alleges: (1) defendant failed to pay plaintiff for over time and double over time for hours worked, (2) defendant did not have workers compensation insurance, and (3) plaintiff suffered an injury at work due to defendant’s negligence.

Defendant now moves to quash plaintiff’s subpoena of financial information. (ECF No. 72). Additionally, defendant seeks a protective order of his financial information. Plaintiff filed an opposition to defendant’s motion. (ECF No. 85).

Defendant’s Motion

Defendant moves this Court to quash plaintiff’s subpoena pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 45,

1 Fed. R. Civ. P. 26, and Cal. Gov't Code § 7470. (ECF No. 72). Defendant asserts the subpoenas
2 are not relevant to this issues in this matter, the subpoenas are meant to harass defendant, the 3 subpoenas seek privileged and/or protected information, the subpoenas were not served on 4 defendant, and the subpoenas were not properly filed with the court. Id.

5 Plaintiff's Opposition

6 Plaintiff filed a 245 page opposition to defendant's motion to quash. Essentially, plaintiff
7 argues the financial documents requested are "material and relevant to defendant's credibility,
8 truthfulness and veracity" and may lead to the discovery of evidence establishing a "a pattern 9 and practice of submitting false and misleading statement[s] in banking applications and/or 10 documents." (ECF No. 85, pg. 3). Plaintiff also notes the subpoenas permit the institution to 11 omit personal data. Id.

12 Legal Standard

13 The legal standard applicable to discovery is broad. See Oppenheimer Fund, Inc. v.
14 Sanders, 437 U.S. 340, 351 (1978). Generally, relevant information is discoverable. Id.
15 Discoverable information need not be admissible at trial so long as it "reasonably calculated to 16 lead to the discovery of admissible evidence." Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(b)(1). However, relevancy is 17 not without "ultimate and necessary boundaries." Hickman v. Taylor, 329 U.S. 495, 507 (1947).
18 Accordingly, district courts have broad discretion to determine relevancy for discovery purposes.
19 Hallett v. Morgan, 296 F.3d 732, 751 (9th Cir. 2002).

20 District courts also have broad discretion to limit discovery. For example, a court may 21 limit the scope of any discovery method if it determines that the discovery sought is 22 "unreasonably cumulative or duplicative, or is obtainable from some other source that is more 23 convenient, less burdensome, or less expensive." Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(b)(2)(C). Similarly, district 24 courts are directed to limit discovery where "the burden or expense of the proposed discovery 25 outweighs its likely benefit." Fed. R. Civ. P. 26(b)(2)(C).

26 Under Rule 45, any party may serve a subpoena commanding a non-party "to attend and 27 give testimony or to produce and permit inspection [and] copying" of documents. Fed. R. Civ. P.
28 45(a)(1) (C). A subpoena is subject to the relevance requirements set forth in Rule 26(b). Fed. R.

1 Civ. P. 26(b)(1). The non-party may make objections to the subpoena within fourteen days after 2 service, or before the time for compliance if less than fourteen days. Fed.R.Civ.P. 45(c)(2)(B).
3 Upon a timely motion, the court may quash or modify the subpoena for any one of the reasons
4 set forth in Rule 45(c)(3)(A), such as the subpoena “requires disclosure of privileged or other 5 protected matter and no exception or waiver applies,” or it “subjects a person to undue burden.”
6 Fed.R.Civ.P. 45(c)(3)(A). A party cannot simply object to a subpoena served on a non-party, but 7 rather must move to quash or seek a protective order. Moon v. SCP Pool Corp., 232 F.R.D. 633,
8 636 (C.D.Cal.2005); Pennwalt Corp. v. Durand-Wayland, Inc., 708 F.2d 492, 494 n. 5 (9th
9 Cir.1983) (“[o]nce the person subpoenaed objects to the subpoena ... the provisions of Rule 45(d) 10 come into play”). The party who moves to quash a subpoena has the burden of persuasion under 11 Rule 45(c)(3). Moon v. SCP Pool Corp., 232 F.R.D. 633, 637 (C.D.Cal.2005).

12 Courts have broad discretion to determine whether a subpoena is unduly burdensome.
13 Exxon Shipping Co. v. U.S. Dep't of Interior, 34 F.3d 774, 779 (9th Cir.1994). For example, a 14 subpoena is unduly burdensome where it seeks to compel production of documents regarding 15 topics unrelated to or beyond the scope of the litigation. Mattel, Inc. v. Walking Mountain 16 Prods., 353 F.3d 792, 813-14 (9th Cir.2003) (holding subpoenas properly quashed where their 17 overbreadth led the court to conclude that subpoenas were “served for the purpose of annoying
18 and harassment and not really for the purpose of getting information”). Again, the moving party
19 bears the burden of establishing that a subpoena is unduly burdensome. F.D.I.C. v. Garner, 126
20 F.3d 1138, 1146 (9th Cir.1997).

21 Finally, although irrelevance is not among the enumerated reasons for quashing a 22 subpoena under Rule 45(c)(3), federal courts have incorporated relevance as a factor to be 23 considered when ruling on motions to quash. Moon v. SCP Pool Corp., 232 F.R.D. 633, 637
24 (C.D.Cal.2005). Under Rule 45(c)(3)(A), “[a]n evaluation of undue burden requires the court to 25 weigh the burden to the subpoenaed party against the value of the information to the serving 26 party[,]” and mandates the court's consideration of such factors as relevance, the serving party's 27 need for the requested documents, the breadth of the discovery request, the particularity with 28 which the documents are described, and the burden imposed. Moon v. SCP Pool Corp., 232

1 F.R.D. 633, 636 (C.D. Cal.2005).

2 Analysis

3 After a thorough review of the papers filed, the Court finds the subpoena requests to JP
4 Morgan Chase over broad, irrelevant, and unduly burdensome. The Court analyzes the specific 5 requests below.

6 Subpoena Request No. 1, 5

7 These requests are over broad because the requests seek any and all information 8 regarding Quality Instant Printing and defendant's personal financial information including any 9 accounts that list defendant as an account holder during a four year period following plaintiff's
10 employment with defendant. Requests 1 and 5 are over broad as to time and subject matter
11 because plaintiff's wage and hour, worker's compensation, and negligence claims have nothing 12 to do with the defendant's personal financial information following plaintiff's employment and 13 during plaintiff's incarceration.

14 Subpoena Request Nos. 2, 3, 4, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10

15 These requests are over broad and irrelevant because they seek information with no
16 apparent connection to plaintiff's claims. For example, Request No. 2 states:

17 Any and all documents described as, which includes, but is not limited to JPMC's
18 policies and procedure governing the notification to customers of an unauthorized 19 signature and/or alternation and suspicious banking activities in association with check 20 fraud, check forgery and/or theft, from the period of January 2004 to and including 21 January 2009, and including any and all amendments addendums and hand written 22 provisions including, but not limited to the relevant period(s) stated hereinabove. (UCC § 23 4406).
24 (Groce Subpoena at 2.)

25 Likewise Request Nos. 3, 4, and 6-8, relate to JP Morgan Chase's reimbursement
26 procedures and personal identification number ("PIN") changing procedures. Accordingly, 27 plaintiff seeks information from defendant's bank unrelated to the claims in plaintiff's complaint.
28 Plaintiff claims primarily relate to wage and hour violations along with a worker's insurance claim yet his request seeks information on "check fraud, check forgery, and/or theft." (Groce Subpoena at 2.) JP Morgan Chase's "policies and procedure" regarding notifications to customers regarding topics wholly independent from the claims in plaintiff's complaint are irrelevant and not subject to discovery. Thus, plaintiff's subpoenas request material that is 1 irrelevant to the claims in his complaint, and Plaintiff's requests are unduly burdensome.

2 Additionally, the time period covered by the request is unreasonable. The documents
3 requested seek material for a time period that far exceeds the amount of time plaintiff worked for 4 defendant and thus irrelevant to his wage hour and worker's compensation insurance claims.

5 Request Nos. 12, 13, 14

6 Like the requests above, Request Nos. 12 - 14 are over broad because they request
7 information "including, but not limited to the period of January 2004 to and including January
8 2009." Additionally, these requests contemplate information irrelevant to plaintiff's claims 9 including signature cards, deposit agreements, and account service agreements.

10 Protective Order

11 Upon a showing of "good cause," a court may "protect a party or person from annoyance, 12 embarrassment, oppression, or undue burden or expense" in discovery by "requiring that trade 13 secret or other confidential . . . commercial information not be revealed, or be revealed only in a 14 specified way." Fed.R.Civ.P. 26(c); see In re Violation of Rule 28(D), 635 F.3d 1352, 1357 (Fed.
15 Cir. 2011). The party seeking a protective order has the burden of showing that the protection is 16 warranted. Id. Generally, good cause requires the moving party to show that specific prejudice or 17 harm will result if the protective order is not issued. Rivera v. NIBCO, Inc., 384 F.3d 822, 826
18 (9th Cir.2004). And, in this context, the courts administer a balancing test of the conflicting 19 interests between the protection of Rule 26(c) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure and the 20 broad mandate of the admissibility of information in discovery conferred by Rule 26(b)(1).
21 Brown Bag Software v. Symantec Corp., 960 F.2d 1465, 1472 (9th Cir.1992).

22 Courts have considered the following factors in determining the existence of good cause 23 for a protective order: (a) whether the information is being sought for a legitimate purpose, and 24 (b) whether disclosure will violated any privacy interest. Pansy v. Borough of Stroudsburg (3rd 25 Cir. 1994) 23 F3d 772, 787-791.

26 Here, defendant has established the requisite good cause for a protective order of 27 defendant's personal financial information. The person seeking the protective order has the 28 burden of showing a specific injury. However, all that is necessary is an injury to legitimate

1 interests in privacy. Pearson v. Miller 211 F.3d. 57, 72-73 (3rd Cir. 2000). Defendant's privacy
2 interests of his personal financial matters outweighs the interests of having material being 3 produced by defendant because the information sought is irrelevant. The production of the 4 documents would subject defendant to disclosure of highly private and confidential matters that 5 have little if any probative value to plaintiff's claims. Furthermore, plaintiff may also be 6 attempting to subpoena defendant's e-mail and cell phone service providers for "any and all"
7 phone calls, e-mails, and text messages sent or received for any account listing defendant as 8 account holder from January of 2004 to December of 2009. (ECF No. 85-1, Exhibit Set 1, 9 Exhibits C, D) (Subpoena to Cox Communications and Verizon Communications).

10 Defendant argues plaintiff seeks to harass defendant for testifying against him in a 11 criminal matter. (ECF No. 72). Defendant asserts plaintiff stole, forged, and cashed defendant's 12 checks. Defendant further asserts plaintiff threatened to sue defendant if he testified against 13 plaintiff in the criminal matter. Defendant testified at plaintiff's criminal trial from which 14 plaintiff was convicted and is now incarcerated. Id. Some of the requests to defendant's bank call 15 for information regarding "suspicious banking activities, check fraud, check forgery, theft, 16 unauthorized signatures and/or alterations." (Groce Subpoena at 3.) This information is 17 irrelevant to plaintiff's claims in this action and thus outside the scope of discoverable 18 information.

19 Moreover, defendant attached two letters from plaintiff to defendant regarding 20 defendant's testimony at plaintiff's criminal trial. The two letters urged defendant not provide 21 information to the authorities regarding the check fraud matter. Plaintiff states that if defendant 22 provides testimony it will subject QIP and defendant to liability because plaintiff had some 23 damaging information regarding QIP's tax information. (ECF No. 72, Exhibit B.)

24 Considering the grossly over broad JP Morgan Chase subpoena requests, the subpoenas 25 of Cox Communications and Verizon Communications, the history between the parties, and 26 letters from plaintiff to defendant, the Court finds plaintiff is not merely ignorant of proper 27 discovery protocols but is rather consciously and diligently seeking information for an 28 illegitimate purpose.

1 The Court has balanced plaintiff's the need for discovery with defendant's interest in 2 privacy of his financial matters and finds a protective order of defendant's personal financial 3 accounts is warranted. The discovery deadline was April 13, 2012 and discovery is now closed.
4 (ECF No. 56). In lieu of issuing a protective order, the Court will impose limits on plaintiff's
5 discovery requests. The Court finds an order imposing these limits and regulating discovery will 6 not only serve to protect defendant from improper disclosure of irrelevant and confidential
7 information, it may also serve to streamline and expedite discovery. The discussion regarding the 8 protective order was given for the purpose of educating the plaintiff and is purely academic. The 9 Court has not ordered or allowed any discovery in this order which would require a protective 10 order.

11 Accordingly, pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 26(b)(2)(C)(iii), the Court will 12 impose the following limits on plaintiff's discovery requests. Plaintiff shall not serve, or attempt 13 to serve, any unserved subpoenas without prior approval of the Court. Nor shall plaintiff send 14 letters to defendant's various services providers including, but not limited to, Cox
15 Communications, Verizon Communications, and JP Morgan Chase Bank, regarding defendant's
16 accounts or activities without prior approval of the Court. The Court will address any requests 17 for approval following Judge Moskowitz' ruling on defendant's motion for summary judgment.
18 To this end, the Court instructs defendant's counsel to contact Judge McCurine's chambers
19 within 72 hours following Judge Moskowitz' ruling on defendant's motion for summary 20 judgment.

21 Defendant's motion to quash is GRANTED.

22 IT IS SO ORDERED.
